"Sit down right here," she added, pointing to a table at the rear of the lunchroom. "I hurried all I could, but that rascally milkman hasn't been here yet and there's no cream for your coffee. Your steak's most ready, though."

She started back to the kitchen.

"Not enough for two, is there?" asked Laramie.

"Who's coming?" demanded Belle, stopping in her tracks.

While he continued his banter she served him and attempted to serve Kate behind the curtains. By persistent, almost despairing pantomine Kate dissuaded her from this—she meant the enemy should have the whole steak. But at that moment the front door opened again, a brisk greeting was called out, and a heavy tread crossed the uneven floor of the outer room.

"John Lefever!" Laramie got up to welcome the big deputy marshal. "Just in time. Take off your manners and sit down."

A bubbling laugh greeted the sally: "Jim, I just can't do it."

"O, yes, you'll eat with me. Where you from?"

"Bear Dance; and Medicine Bend on the next train. Heard you were in town and dropped off for just one hour."

"You like Medicine Bend, don't you?"

"Too many people there. John settled gloomily back. Then with wide open eyes, he started suddenly forward. "Give me a gun, Jim, he cried, "a gun and a horse and a north wind—and a country"—the sweep of his arm was magnificent—"where you can't see a damned thing in any direction for a hundred and fifty miles."

"Jim," came next between mouthfuls, "what was that story about you being up at the Junction the day I wanted you to serve those papers on old Barb Doubleday?"

"I went up there that day because I had business of a different kind with Barb."

"About the wire ripping, yes. But I heard you got sewed up by a skirt and didn't talk wire to Barb at all."

"No more of that an you love me John."

"What was there to it?"

"I guess there was."

"A ride or something—what?"

"Something, John."

"Thunder. It must have been the ride. I had a deputy marshalship all lined up for you if that hadn't happened. And, believe me, boy, a deputy marshalship isn't lying around loose every day!"

Kate listened keenly for Laramie's comment.

"The ride was worth the price, John," was all he said.

"Some skirt, eh."

Laramie squirmed and, with an expletive, protested: "Hang it, John——"

"No matter; no matter. I'll get it all from Belle some day. And after you get through with your wire thieves we'll tell the story of your brief romance——"

"Over my grave."

"I haven't!" exclaimed his companion.

"I've got to send a message. Come over to the train."

"I've got to write a couple of letters."

"Come over to the station and write your letters."

Laramie shook his head: "I couldn't even get to the station by 1 o'clock. Every man in Main street wants to talk about Tom Stone. You'd think I had a million friends among the cattlemen this morning."

"If Belle's got some ink I'll write my letters right here."

Kate's spirits, which had risen at the hope of being so luckily rid of one who might prove troublesome, fell at his refusal to leave. John urged, but Laramie only asked Belle again for the ink. Lefever tried to coax Belle to go to the train with him. Belle would do almost any fool thing, but this time she must have had pity on Kate and would not leave her unprotected. Lefever went his way. From a shelf near where Kate, with clasped hands, sat in silence Belle took papers and ink in to Laramie and began to clear the table.

At this unlucky moment the front door was opened swiftly and a boy from the butcher shop stuck his head inside.

"Miss Shockley," he called, "the milkman is on the phone, if you want him." Closing the door, he hurried back across the street. With a sense of her wrongs keen within her, Belle, forgetting her charge in the kitchen, hurried across after him.

Even then Kate hoped that by keeping deathly still she might escape an unpleasant meeting. She never breathed more carefully in her life, yet she was doomed. She heard Laramie's chair pushed back and heard his footsteps. She could not be sure which way he was walking, but she thought only of flight. As stealthily and rapidly as possible she started for the back door. Without looking around she felt as if he had come to the archway and was looking at her. With courage and resolve she grasped the knob to open the door. It was locked. She fumbled with the key. Behind her, silence. She locked and unlocked the door more than once, and with a fast-dying hope, for the wretched door would not open. Flushed with annoyance, she turned around only to see Laramie standing precisely where she had imagined him.

They faced each other. Kate could not have found a word to say had her life depended upon it. Laramie held in his left hand an ink bottle, in his right a pen. He, too, seemed surprised, but he recovered himself. "You are certainly unlucky with doors," he said. "If you'll tell me where Belle keeps her ink I'll tell you how to open that one," he suggested calmly.

Kate stiffened and shrugged her shoulders the least bit. "I haven't an idea where Belle keeps the ink," she replied, clearing her throat of its huskiness.

He pointed to beyond where she stood: "I think the ink supply is on that shelf; she gave me an empty bottle. Should you mind handing me one with ink in it?"

Kate turned to the shelf. "There seems to be two kinds here," she said as coldly as possible.

"Any bottle with a hole in the top will do," he suggested. "This one"—he held up the bottle in his hand and looked at it—"seems to have a hole top and bottom. Give me the blue ink, will you?"

"I am sure I don't know which is which. Perhaps you had better help yourself," Kate said icily.

"Thank you. But I'll show you how to open the door first."

Fourth of July at Doubleday's.

Jim walked to the door, explaining as he took hold of the knob, "The door wasn't locked; I could tell that from the way you handled it. You locked it, yourself——"

Kate could not hide her resentment. "It wouldn't open when I first took hold of it," she declared hastily. "I tried it before I touched the key."

"I know, but when you did take hold of the key you locked the door and then you couldn't open it; so you unlocked it and tried it again. After that you worked so fast I lost track." He pointed to the back of the lock. "The catch was on." And pushing down the catch he opened the door.

Kate was thoroughly incensed. "You are doubtless better acquainted here than I am."

"To tell the truth, I have to be acquainted with rooms I go into. If I ever tried to get through a door and failed, it might not be pleasant. And there's a board fence, six feet high, all around this yard, so unless you're a good climber you couldn't gave got out, anyway."

Kate felt she looked very silly, standing staring at him, and perhaps looking frightened—as she really was—for he went on as if he were explaining to a child; "I'm not permitted to tell you, but I'm going to——"

"Don't bother, please——"

"Yes, I'd rather. There is a way to get out without climbing the fence; a loose board I'll show you some time—but you must handle yourself fast to make your getaway."

"I never expect," she said contemptuously, "to have to make a getaway."

"Then I was wrong," he said frankly, "for I kind of thought you were trying to make one a minute ago."

His composure irritated Kate. "You are very much mistaken," she declared with spirit in her words, for she saw—indeed know—how persistent he was. "I was only trying to leave for home quietly and quickly."

His eyes were a study in silent laughter. "That's all I've ever claimed to be doing, any time in my life."

"But I can just as well leave by the front door—which, perhaps," retorted Kate, "you haven't always been able to do."

"Before you go——" he was standing directly in the archway, so she had to listen—"tell me about things at the Junction; I hear the lunchroom was closed up a while ago."

"It was. But——" Kate thought the time for explanation had come—"I was not working at the eating house when you came in there. I am Kate Doubleday and I wanted to save my father that day and I'm not a bit sorry for it."

"I suppose, then, I ought to speak out, too. I knew you were Kate Doubleday soon after I got into the lunchroom that day and I'm not a bit sorry for it. And I knew pretty soon you were trying to save your father. And I helped you."

"O——" Kate suppressed an incredulous exclamation.

PROVES X-RAYS CAN PHOTO OBJECTS THROUGH STONES

Paris, May 19.—The French scientist Countremouline, chief of the bureau of radiography for the hospitals of Paris, has just demonstrated in a series of remarkable experiences that an x-ray apparatus can photograph subjects thru a stone wall more than 250 feet distant from the source of the rays.

Countremouline does not claim to full development of this work, declaring the practical biological value requires 10 to 15 years to perfect, but he has actually made plates at various distances with x-rays projected through all kinds of building material. He is preparing documents now to submit to the French academy of science.

Starting with an ordinary apparatus a little more than four yards distant from the sensitized plate, he in the lapse of one hour, obtained a clear photograph of metallic objects, for which the rays filtered through a marble plate more than an inch thick, a sheet of lead an eighth of an inch thick, 12 inches of oak, and four inches of plaster.

At 50 feet from the same source, then at 130 feet and later at 200 feet, during four hours' exposure, human bones and other objects, including a crab with one claw, were clearly photographed when placed on the inside of the brick and stone wall of one hospital building. It is recalled that in 1896 the first radiograph apparatus required eight hours' exposure with the plate only ten inches distant.

This brings into discussion the possibility of photographing people through the walls of their own houses, as everything in the conical path of the rays is affected until the rays find the plate which absorbs them. It is not known just how distinguished academicians will accept this photographic intrusion into the privacy of the home.

Scenery "Up Aloft," Will Be Interested and Astonished.

Those civilians who intend to venture to a good height during the coming ying season will see a great deal both to interest and astonish them, says Answers.

The distance to which they can see will alone impress them. If they merely ascended about 2,000 feet, they would be able to have a view on every hand of between 50 to 60 miles.

A height of 5,000 feet would enable them to enlarge their view to the extent of nearly 90 miles; whilst should they venture up to, say, 10,000 feet, they could see 125 miles in every direction—that is, the horizon would be that distance away.

But some of the things they would see in the sky would perhaps excite their wonder even more. If thunderstorms were about, and the ma hine was above the clouds, the passengers might have the luck to witness the extraordinary spectacle of the big black thunder-cloud heads thrust to a height of a thousand feet or more through the level sea of white cloud above which the aeroplane was travelling.

Sometimes there would be banks of beautiful colors round the shadow of the aeroplane, caused by the sun shining on the water-drops in the cloud on which the shadow is cast.

At other times very large rings would appear. These would be due to tiny particles of ice in the air. A similar ring is occasionally seen round the sun and moon from the ground.

These with white fogbows, double and treble mock suns, ice-pillars at sunrise, and the whole capped by the glorious cloud scenery must indeed hold out for the civilian high-flyer a dazzling prospect.

Are you naturally attractive?

How many there are, however, among our growing girls of whom this cannot be said. You see them sitting on the side benches looking on, or lolling around in a listless, careless manner, and, as a rule, irritable and nervous.

Nature intended women to be strong, and healthy and happy as the day is long. MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS have proved so beneficial in such a multitude of cases, that they can be recommended without hesitation.

They give sound, restful sleep, tone up the nerves, make the heart beat regular and strong, create new red blood corpuscles, and impart that sense of buoyancy to the spirits that is only possible when enjoying mental and physical vigor.

Mrs. Fred Lee, Almonte, Ont., writes:—"My oldest daughter was so bad for over a year, with her heart and nerves, that she was compelled to give up her work. I was very discouraged about her, as I had her to two doctors, but they did not seem to do her much good. She could not sleep at night, would have to walk the floor, and felt as if she would go out of her mind. One day a friend told me to use Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I cannot speak too highly of them. She used three boxes and is feeling fine, and started back to work again two months ago."

WHERE THE BOSS WAS.

——There were probably few more impressive figures anywhere than that of Chief Justice White. Nearly all Washington knows the Chief Justice of the United States by sight at least. Men of affairs, women of social consequence, everybody who figures at all in the social or political life of Washington pay him an obvious deference. Not so the soda-counter boy. The other day the Chief Justice stopped in at one of the crowded drug store refreshment centres of the capital for a lemonade. It was a warm day and the justice seated himself at the counter with an air of relief. "Plain lemonade," he said to the boy. The boy regarded him suspiciously. "Haven't you got your check?" he demanded fiercely. "No," replied the justice, with due meekness. "Well, get your check," ordered the soda potentate. "I can't serve nobody without no check." Compliant with law and order the justice rose and purchased his check, while the other patrons looked at the soda potentate in awed wonder.—Washington Star.

ON HIS OATH.

"Of course," said the lady to the druggist, "it may be perfectly harmless, just as you say, but then, you know, there has been so much exposure of patent medicines and such like goods that I——"

"My dear madam," interrupted the druggist, "I beg to assure you in the strongest terms that you need not apprehend any——"

"I know; but I read in one newspaper where lots of people had acquired the drink and drug habits through using such remedies, and——"

"Impossible in this case. Why, you can see for yourself that——"

"Will you give me your word of honor that it contains no alcohol?"

"I would swear it on oath," answered the druggist.

"Then I'll take it." And the druggist wrapped up the porous plaster for her.

Plan to Extend The Civic Bathing Beach Along Crescent Street Front

The City Planning Commission of the Chamber of Commerce is considering just now a proposition which, at a small cost, would go far to beautifying to a greater extent a very pretty part of the city. The idea is to fill out about forty feet of Crescent street to form an extended bathing beach. The present bath house would be enlarged, a retaining wall would be placed around the curve with a cement sidewalk and railing, and safety places would be formed with seats and shade trees, surrounded by a curbing, to make this bathing beach of the most attractive and pleasant recreation centres in the city. A certain amount of dredging would be necessary to clean up the water and the co-operation of the lumber company enlisted to keep the logs from the water during bathing periods.

This is only one of the ideas which the City Planning Commission have in reserve to further the attractions of our pretty city. Visitors from other parts of the Dominion never fail to remark on the natural beauties of Peterborough, and their attention is especially attracted to our abundant shade trees, but never a word is said about the water-front. This natural advantage, which could be made so attractive, has been neglected shamefully, and yet there are few towns or cities of this size which possess such a naturally lovely water-front as Peterborough does. If encouraged, the City Planning Commission could do a great deal towards helping this worthy object, which should be a matter of municipal pride on the part of every citizen.

Fashion Fancies

Cover-petticoats are the very latest thing in feminine lingerie. They are soft light affairs with slender clinging lines, narrow straight skirts and little shoulder-strap bodices, making an ideal slip for dainty frocks, for which the ordinary petticoat and camisole will not quite answer the purpose. They come in crepe de chine, chiffon, Georgette and lace and are trimmed with ribbons in many shades and floral embroidery.

Belts have been almost forgotten in the past few years, but now they have come into their own again. Perhaps small waists and corseted effects will also see a revival of their vogue when belts are in. They come in white kid and red leather with ivory clasps and dangling tassels, and one odd one has been seen with a running pattern of Greek dancing figures done in black. Still others are painted in Egyptian designs and some are studded with gold nailheads. They are all worn rather loosely, at a low waistline, to give the figure the long, straight lines now so fashionable.

A boutonniere of bright colored velvet flowers is the latest idea for adorning dark dinner gowns. The very gayest colors are selected for a rather stiff and prim arrangement of the flowers and leaves. One comes in emerald green with dashes of brown, another is in geranium shade, and still a third shows a combination of orange and yellow.

The United Farm Women Plan Local Drive For New Membership

The United Farm Women of Ontario have instituted a drive for membership in the local branch, particularly in connection with their rest-room over the United Farmers' grocery on Simcoe street. This room, a large, bright, airy place, with all conveniences, is already fitted out with tables and chairs, and the ladies need a little extra money for further furnishings and also to pay for its rental and upkeep, two considerable items in the expense account. Tickets, which entitle a family to yearly membership at the very low cost of seventy-five cents, each have been issued, and the ladies are working hard to dispose of them. This room offers a comfortable refuge for women when marketing, either from town or country, being warm in winter and pleasantly cool and airy in the summer months. The ladies hope to have demonstrations of sewing, home conveniences, and such things with out-of-town demonstrators some time in the near future, and have also in mind a picnic to be held during the early summer months to further augment the treasury.

League to Entertain The Knights

The Catholic Women's League has been asked to act as hostesses for the Knights of Columbus convention to be held here on May 31st and June 1st. The ladies will help to receive the visiting delegates and will also have charge of many items in the programme planned for their entertainment. Two informal dances will be held, with a bridge party for card lovers. Tea will be served in the afternoon and the League will have a booth on the lawn for the convenience of those desiring soft drinks or ice cream. Miss Margaret McCabe has charge of the concert planned for one evening, the feature of which will be a specially trained glee club.

Mrs Edith Rogers Has Reputation As A Speaker

Reference To Her Experience in Manitoba Legislature

WINNIPEG, May 28.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Edith Rogers, the first woman member of the Manitoba Legislature, during the recent sessions established a reputation as one who speaks when she has something to say, says it, and sits down. The legislation introduced by Mrs. Rogers includes a bill to provide a stricter censorship of motion pictures, a bill to establish the Winnipeg Foundation, an incorporated body with a Board of Trustees to provide for the management of funds left by will to public institutions in cases where the testators so desire and the bill giving the widow increased power over the estate left by her husband.

In speaking of her experiences in the Legislature, Mrs. Rogers paid tribute to the uniformly courteous manner in which she had been treated by every member of the House. "The courtesy I have received," she stated, "and the real friendliness extended to me have been unfailing and have come from all members without distinction."

Questioned as to her attitude on a Woman's Party, Mrs. Rogers replied: "In this country what need is there for anything of that kind? Surely what we need most is co-operation between all classes and elements of the people. More women will be elected to the Legislature undoubtedly, and I think there cannot be any doubt that, like the men elected, they will line up with the groups whose political thinking and convictions are in accord with their own convictions. That is what government of the people, by the people and for the people means, and women and people equally with men. Of course, women can bring to the work of law-making as their special share their knowledge and experience of domestic and social questions. But do not understand me as saying, or for one moment suggesting, that women legislators should confine themselves only to social service work. Not at all. They must take their part in every part in every phase of legislative work. It is real work—much of it is drudgery. It requires experience and study."

57th I.O.D.E.

The 57th Chapter, I.O.D.E., have fixed the 9th of June, which will probably be the first half holiday, as the date for holding their picnic to Burnham's Woods. Arrangements are in charge of Mrs. C. G. Gemmell, Convenor.

Mrs. E. B. Clegg and Mrs. V. Eastwood will represent the 57th Chapter at the annual meeting of the National Executive to be held in Toronto next week.

"Breathe Deeply"

One of the most perfect and simplest rules of health to which the majority of people pay far too little attention is the old one. "Breathe deeply." The supply is unlimited, but many of us go from day to day, drawing in little inadequate puffs of air, and then wondering why we feel tired and nervous, why our skins are sallow and our eyes dull, why we catch cold easily and digest our food badly. If a poor breather watches himself closely, he will notice that when engaged on any work requiring close attention he does not even breathe as deeply as usual. He almost holds his breath, thus further vitiating the blood current when it should be cleansed. Learn to make a breathing lesson of every act of life. Draw in deep drafts of air every time you take a breath, and you will be surprised at the improvement in your general condition.

Other aids to health and beauty might be summed up as follows:
Drink at least two quarts of water each day. Do not fail to drink a glass on rising.

Learn to like buttermilk, if you not already care for it, and drink it whenever possible.

Sleep with your window open.

Do not, as you value your complexion, retire without washing your face and neck. Use soap, or oatmeal, if you prefer it. Rinse the face with cold water three or four times.

Take a good brisk five-mile walk every day and attend a gymnasium if possible also.

Recipies

Hints Picked Up.

In making banana salad place whole nuts on fruit. It is less trouble than to mince the nuts.

In marinating potatoes, use spoon and fork. Put fork close to the edge of bowl and do not work from the centre with it, for the potatoes will then be broken.

Always remove the seeds from tomatoes when using them for salad.

Soup From Vegetable Water.

Use water drained from potatoes, or combine water from carrots, potatoes and onions. Thicken with two tablespoons of oleomargarine, thence of flour, one tablespoon of salt and three level tablespoons of pastry flour. These dry ingredients should be mixed with water and then poured into the vegetable water. Cook gently until thickened. This will thicken one pint of liquid.

Salad Dressings.

For cooked mayonnaise, take one teaspoon of salt, one-quarter teaspoon of cayenne pepper, two teaspoons of mustard and two tablespoons of granulated sugar. Mix these ingredients well and add four yolks of eggs. Mix all together and then add four tablespoons of white wine vinegar. Cook over simmering water, stirring all the time. Then strain. This keeps indefinitely if kept covered closely with oiled paper. Left over from this recipe are the whites of four eggs. To keep these until such times as you wish to use them, soak eight or nine thicknesses of cotton, cover the dish containing the eggs with damp cloth and place in the refrigerator. The dampened cloth will preserve either whites or yolks for some days, and if a good many thicknesses are used the moisture will be preserved for some time.

A sweet salad dressing, which may be used for any fruit except bananas, is made with half a teaspoon of salt, two tablespoons of sugar, two tablespoons of lemon juice and the yolks of two eggs. Mix well and cook over hot water until thick.

For French dressing, which may be used for some vegetables, for all fish and for meat salads, take one teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of pepper, three teaspoons of cider vinegar, three teaspoons of oil and beat with small Dover beater until thick.

In thinning the first two dressings, which is done only when a salad is being made, use whipped cream.

Getting Materials Ready.

To expedite the preparations of salads, always have everything ready beforehand, and then they are quickly made. Dressings can be kept ever in readiness and the good manager will also always have a supply of lettuce in her refrigerator. To keep lettuce fresh, roll in wet paper—newspaper will do—and then cover with dry paper. Put this in a crock in the cellar or in the refrigerator and be careful to use the outside leaves first. At the end of the week the heart of lettuce, kept in this manner, is perfectly crisp. Wash lettuce some hours before the salad is made and drain through a colander in an ice box. Have also on hand some choped parsley and some whole parsley, or a little mint. With the majority of salads cooked mayonnaise is used, but French dressing is good with fish, beans, peas, spinach and beet tops.

Lunch Salads.

Use plenty of lettuce in lunch salads. Take boiled potatoes, trim off sides and ends and cut the remaining square in dice. Add parsley. Marinate with cooked mayonnaise and place on lettuce leaves.

Dip tomatoes in chopped parsley by way of garnishing, allowing the garnish to touch only the edges. Fill with green peas marinated with French dressing. This makes a very pretty dish.

To use little scraps of fish, take a large leaf of lettuce, put a little fish in the centre. Add a few beans, a little potato, both marinated. Garnish with yolk of egg powdered.

Rinso

RINSO—not a cake soap, nor a chip soap, nor a washing powder, but pure granules so rich in cleaning value that dirt is loosened while the clothes are soaking. Yet so harmless that your things are as safe in the RINSO suds as in pure water alone.

It is fine granules of purest and highest-quality ingredients ever used in a family laundry soap.

It cleans by soaking in the rich foaming RINSO suds for a few hours and then thorough rinsing in either warm or cold water. Even the worst spots, the collar bands, cuff edges or hems, need only a slight rubbing between the hands to make them, too, perfectly clean.

Just soak the clothes with Rinso. A few hours later rinse them thoroughly in either warm or cold water. That's all. They're clean.

If you have a washing machine—
Soak the clothes overnight in the usual Rinso way. The cleansing suds loosen every bit of dirt. In the morning operate the machine for a few minutes and the clothes are perfectly clean—even the most soiled spots.

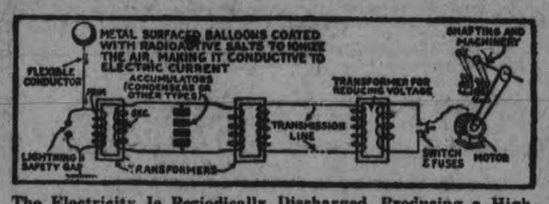
ELECTRIC POWER FROM THE AIR



The Electricity Is Periodically Discharged, Producing a High Frequency Current Which Flows from the Collecting Station and Thence Through the Transformer to the Transmission Line Which Conduct the Current to the Machinery.

OLD KING COAL has served mankind well, but at the present hour his services are coming uncommonly high. Small wonder then that inventors and men of science are becoming increasingly keen in their endeavors to find some source of energy which may replace, at some future day, if not in the immediate present, those stores of fossil sunlight, which within but little more than a century have revolutionized human activities and made modern actualities of Arabian Nights dreams.

One of the newest propositions of this sort, which is described in the Scientific American Monthly by T. A. Marchmay, is attracting widespread interest on the continent of Europe, where the pinch of fuel shortage is keenly felt. This plan calls for the making use of what is believed to be the inexhaustible storehouse of static electricity contained in the upper reaches of the atmosphere.

In normal weather the terrestrial atmosphere constitutes a practically uniform electric field in which the surfaces of equal potential are parallel to the earth and the lines of force are vertical. The degree of the potential increases with comparative regularity—except during periods of violent atmospheric disturbance—in proportion to the distance above the level of the ground. This difference of potential varies also according to the season of the year, being estimated at 100 volts per meter during the summer, on an average, and 300 volts during the winter.

A Hamburg scientist named Plauson, who has been studying this subject for a number of years, has proposed an ingenious scheme by means of which this energy of the upper air may be captured and set to work. He has already demonstrated, in fact, that at altitudes exceeding 300 meters it is possible to capture an average of 200 horse-power per square meter; his latest experiments, indeed, have yielded as much as 400 to 500 horse-power.

He proposes to make use of a system of huge balloons having a metallic surface and connected with each other by an aerial network of conducting wires. These balloons act as collecting antennae and, that they may the better fulfil this function, they bristle with a series of points as shown in the accompanying illustration, so that they somewhat comically resemble those queer puffer fish which can inflate themselves like rubber balloons, and which likewise bristle with sharp points. Further to increase their power of capturing energy he proposes to impart conducting power to the air by ionization. Plauson plans to secure this by means of radio-active salts such as radium, polonium, etc., placed at the extremities of the antennae. Each system of balloons is connected with the earth by means of non-conductors, and the vast supplies of energy thus collected in the upper strata of the air are discharged at brief intervals so as to produce a high frequency current.

If you have ever stood under the discharge terminal of an electrical machine and felt the electric breeze which sometimes causes the hair to stand vertically from the head owing to the very high voltage (but relatively small amperage or current present), the emf., which may easily have been several hundred thousand volts, you were given a practical demonstration of how the atmosphere may be highly charged electrically and yet be unnoticed by the usual organs of sense.

Among the several important and extremely interesting points that come up for consideration is the advisability of placing the first plants that are erected for this purpose on high elevations such as mountains or hills. This is the suggestion of an authority writing in Science and Invention, as in this way it may prove possible to gather the same quantity of electrical energy with a shorter balloon cable than would be the case with plants situated in valleys. If the balloon cables were guyed, the guy wires would have to be insulated suitably the same as radio antennae masts, so as to prevent the dissipation of energy down through the guy wires to earth.

If it comes to pass that such plants prove practical and the hopes of Prof. Plauson and other investigators who are working on this problem, are actually realized, the electric current thus obtained from the atmosphere can be utilized directly in the preparation of nitric acid and ozone from the air, thus providing a sure means of refertilizing the soil.

By suitably transforming the current, it can be further employed on a large scale in the realms of electro-chemistry and electro-metallurgy.

M. Matignon, a French writer, has stated that by means of the electrical energy collected upon the surface of six square kilometers (about 2.16 square miles) it will be possible to produce five tons of carbid within 24 hours. This expert further points out that, assuming that 100 horse-power per square kilometer is obtained, it will be possible to develop 100,000,000 horse-power from the total surface of France.

A German writer, who describes the invention of Prof. Plauson, and whose article appeared in Ueber Land Und Meer, states that one of the engineer's estimates shows that 720,000,000 horse-power per day can be procured from the atmosphere with an area equivalent to that covered by the German nation.

It is claimed by Prof. Plauson that even with the considerable initial cost of erecting these atmospheric electric collecting stations over the country, the operating factor of the total production cost would be considerably less than that resulting from electric plants operating with coal.

BALLOON PLANT for COLLECTING and UTILIZING ATMOSPHERIC ELECTRICITY

Scientists Have Successfully Demonstrated That by Sending Up Metal-Surfaced Balloons and Tapping the Electrical Energy from the Atmosphere at a Level of 1000 Feet and More, It Is Possible to Realize an Average of 200 Horsepower Per Square Meter, an Area Equivalent to 10.8 Square Feet.

The EFFECT That MUSIC Has on Different ANIMALS

FROM time to time investigations have been made in order to ascertain whether the legend of Orpheus, the wondrous music of whose lyre enthralled the wild beasts of the forests, rests upon a fact. The noted scientist Cornish visited the London Zoological Gardens and endeavored to discover by experiment what effect music would have upon the creatures there in captivity. With him went a musical friend, who played on the violin to insects, reptiles, birds and beasts.

The tarantulas listened, or did not listen, unmoved and sulky. They whose bite is said in fable to cause others to dance refused to dance themselves. Not so the scorpions. After a few notes had been played they became agitated and writhed and danced tumultuously, their excitement increasing with every crescendo and decreasing with every diminuendo.

In the reptiles' cages more marked effects were seen. The monitor lizard listened and swayed. Black snakes were attentive and started up and hissed. A boa crept as close as possible to the instrument and seemed enraptured.

But of all the snakes, the cobra is reputed to be the most susceptible to music, and the specimen experimented on at the zoo did not belie its fame. On hearing the violin it raised itself in the traditional attitude on its tail and spread its hood gently, swaying to and fro the while.

The first quadrupeds to which the violin was played were polar and grizzly bears, which manifested much pleasure and stood up at the front of the cages to listen. The wolves snarled and cowered in fear at the sound of the violin, with their tails between their legs, hair bristling and bodies quivering in spasms of fright. The same results were noted in the case of jackals and foxes. The sheep, naturally enough, found much pleasure in that which frightened the wolves. So did the wild hogs, the bisons and the zebras.

The elephant did not care for the music, but snorted and whistled with rage. The monkeys displayed a critical diversity of sentiment. Some listened eagerly with nods and gestures of appreciation, while others scowled and turned away in disgust.

Further experiments were made on the various animals with other instruments, especially with the piccolo and the flute. As a rule, the shrill notes of the piccolo annoyed, frightened, or enraged the animals, while the softer tones of the flute soothed and pleased them.

YELLOW a TONIC for Tired NERVES

EVERYBODY has at one time or another been conscious of the power of sunshine to create mental vigor and dispel melancholy. "I feel much better this morning," says a man who had been feeling depressed for several days. In nine cases out of ten this man has been cured by sunshine; in fact, has been cured by vivid color.

Sunshine is a vital curative force, and sunshine is yellow. Yellow is one of the most stimulating of colors. Any person who is sufficiently unfortunate to be suffering from the nervous depression, or from that terrible agony of the nerves called neurasthenia, should experiment with the colors of yellow and orange.

It has been said that more than 40 per cent. of modern nervous diseases is caused by color starvation. This may sound like an extreme statement, but color science is now a recognized branch of medicine, and can no longer afford to ignore the function of color in its relation to good health.

Nature has made color almost as important as food and fresh air; she uses color in many wonderful and subtle ways. A sick person, for instance, who is ordered into the country for a nerve cure, not only breathes purer air than it is possible to obtain in the city, but also draws upon the healing influences of natural color.

Fresh air is only one factor in the cure; color plays an equally important part. Today the science of color is being very seriously studied; we are beginning to understand the psychological laws that are inherent in various colors; man is learning how to utilize them in the restoration of health.

Color really does fight disease. Take, for example, the ultra-violet ray. Here is a most convincing proof of the healing force that resides in color. This famous ray exerts a very potent curative effect upon certain diseases of the skin. A ray of ultra-violet light is concentrated upon the diseased part, and immediately a new process is set up by which the disease is eventually destroyed.

How FISH Are HEARD SWIMMING

THE depths of the ocean are known to be dark, and up till recently they were supposed to be soundless. This supposition, however, has been proved now not to be founded on fact.

During the war hydrophones of marvellous power and delicacy were invented. These instruments—designed primarily for the detection of submarines—are so exceedingly sensitive that they register quite plainly the "noise" made by fishes swimming. A submarine traveling beneath the surface can be detected 20 miles away.

In his recently-published book, "The Victory at Sea," Admiral Sims tells about the newest type of hydrophone, which first revealed an underwater world full of noises of many kinds.

This was, in a sense, awkward for the listeners intent on locating the U-boats, for, until they got used to distinguishing between them, the "chug! chug!" of a whale swimming, or the "swish!" of a school of porpoises was often mistaken for the sound sent up by a submarine.

The most gruesome story in the whole book concerns a crippled German submarine that sank to the bottom to avoid pursuing destroyers, and was unable to rise again. Every movement of the boat lying helpless deep down below was registered on the surface.

Next arose the vibrant sound of hammers beating upon steel; the imprisoned crew were trying to make repairs. Then quiet again for many hours.

Last of all came ringing over the delicate wires a sharp, piercing noise that made the listeners' blood run cold. Only one thing in the world could make a sound like it. It was the crack of a revolver. A second shot followed; then others in quick succession. The listeners on the surface counted, and knew that 25 despairing men had committed suicide.

Where ROCKS Really MEAN RICHES

ROCKS mean riches on the island of Yap, which fact leads a wit to remark that it must be peopled only by Rockefellers. Unique in the character of its currency Yap is called in a book by W. H. Furniss, "The Island of Stone Money." This money consists of wheels of calcite or limestone, from one to twelve feet in diameter, with a hole through the centre, by which it is transported, in any trading operation, on a pole carried by stout porters.

These stones are quarried and cut in the Palao, or Pelew archipelago, 200 miles southeast, and carried by sea to Yap. Some are brought by trading vessels now; in fact, one ingenious American copra trader took a number of Yap natives to the Pelews, had them quarry and shape a ship load of stone money, and took it back to Yap, where he exchanged it for a valuable cargo.

Some of the stones were on the island when the white men first came, and must have been transported by canoes or rafts. The larger ones are not always moved when used for payment in any transaction, but remain before the huts of the purchasers of the goods in question, although becoming the property of the sellers. A story is told of one huge fei, as these stones are called, which was sunk in a storm while being rafted from the Pelews, but it is still regarded as valid, existing money, and has been made the medium of trade many times since, though several thousand feet at the bottom of the sea.

For "small change," says Mr. Furniss, the Micronesians of Yap use pearl shells and mats of banana fibre. They are good agriculturists and skilled boatbuilders. They are not believed to be the original inhabitants of the Carolines, as the existence of huge stone dolmens and fort-like structures, similar to those on other isolated Pacific islands, and also to like structures in Japan and Korea, is attributed to a prehistoric Asiatic people, who reached the islands before a comparatively recent submergence, which has removed earlier connections between the archipelagoes and the continent. Canals and breakwaters in the harbor of Ponape, which the present natives are now believed incapable of constructing, are also attributed to this ancient and vanished people.

Origin of the Name Harding

HARDING, the family name of the 29th President of the United States, is one of the last names that is derived from a first name. A very great number of surnames are so derived, but the interesting thing about Harding is that while the surname is still current in both America and Great Britain, the first name of Harding is almost obsolete.

The first name Harding is said to have been derived from two old words—"here," meaning an army, and "ing," meaning a meadow or place where an army is encamped.

According to authority the Hardings were descended from the Anglo-Saxon Heardingas—a name that in old Norse was Haddingjar, originally Danish and Swedish and Swedish in origin—who in remote times made their home in England.

The Hardings have counted among their number soldiers, statesmen, publishers, lawyers, doctors and artists. They seem to be marked by versatility and perseverance; and sturdiness, both moral and physical, seem to have been attributes of men of the name from earliest time.

How MUSHROOMS Are "BREWED"

WITH the advent of nation-wide prohibition in the United States came the problem of what should be done with the breweries, but at least one New York brewer seems to have found a satisfactory answer to this question. It may seem, at first thought, to be a far cry from beer to mushrooms. But a closer examination of the facts reveals a rather intimate connection.

The process of making beer is largely one of growing a species of yeast cells in a liquor obtained from malt and hops. Yeast is a first cousin to the mushroom; each is a colony of cell growths from the same family tree, and the cell growths are propagated best under similar conditions. Thus the brewing plant, with its refrigerating machinery and dimly lighted interior is admirably suited for the growing of mushrooms when growing frames have been substituted for the beer vats. Furthermore, the expert knowledge of the master brewer is entirely useful in preparing the mushroom spawn for the beds and in controlling the growing conditions.

How one brewer gave the plan a thorough test and met with great success is described in The Scientific American by M. A. Henry.

This brewer called to his assistance a man who has had 30 years' experience in developing the mushroom industry in France. After a thorough survey, he put in about 100,000 square feet of beds after the French practice. These are narrow, rounded beds of rich loam in pairs and were placed in the cellar of the plant which is carved from solid rock. Thus were approximated the conditions under which mushrooms are grown commercially in the many caves in solid rock near Paris, which became famous during the war as places of refuge during bombardments.

Later a system of flat beds built in tiers was adopted, as this allowed a great increase in bed area for the same floor space. Then began a series of remarkable experiments to determine the best production methods.

The first mushrooms were grown from spawn secured through the regular commercial channels, but this was found not to be of uniform quality. Of two beds planted side by side with the same spawn and treated in an identical manner, one would often bear prolifically while the other would be almost barren.

The production of spawn was then undertaken. In the growing of brewing yeast, a single cell is isolated under the microscope and this is "planted" in a bottle of gelatin. In a few days the cell has multiplied until it appears as a spot of white mold on the gelatin. Then it is transferred to a jar of specially prepared liquor and the mold increases in size until it fills the jar. These "roots" are separated again and again and placed in other jars until, from a single cell invisible to the eye, sufficient yeast has been produced to make a brewing of many thousands of gallons.

An exactly parallel process is used in making mushroom spawn. The single "mother" cell is taken from the underneath side of a good specimen of mushroom, chosen from a spot in the beds which bore prolifically. Care is taken to secure a cell which is not contaminated. A number of cells are planted simultaneously and the best of the growths from these are transplanted to the "root" jars. From this small beginning enough spawn is secured to plant all of the beds of the "plantation." The great delicacy of this operation may be judged from the fact that there are in this country only two concerns, aside from this brewery, which have succeeded in producing spawn on a commercial scale.

Noting the rapid growth of mushrooms in the natural state immediately after a thunder storm, experiments were begun to determine the response of cultivated mushrooms to similar conditions. After the beds are planted and allowed to germinate, they are wetted down not as by a shower, but by the better method of producing in the room a heavy fog. This is done by the use of steam and the refrigerating apparatus. For a time there is maintained a fog so dense that one can hardly see one's hand held at arm's length. When the beds have reached the proper degree of saturation the air is cleared within a few minutes and a slow drying process begins. It is during the drying out that the mushroom growth takes place. Appearing within a few hours as little white balls, they grow steadily until within a week they are "ripe."

A mushroom is ripe, it is explained, when the delicate skin or membrane on the under surface is still unbroken, but gives to a slight pressure of the thumb. If the membrane which protects the "gills" is already broken the mushroom is over-ripe and decay will begin very soon.

Carrying still further the idea of reproducing the atmosphere of a thunder storm, a large static machine was obtained and continual discharges of artificial "lightning" were produced during the period of growth. The subtle change this produced in the atmosphere was found to have a very marked effect on speed of growth and size of the product. Since the power required to operate the static machine was very small and the results quite noticeable, the machine will be made a permanent part of the equipment.

The Brewing Plant, with Its Refrigerating Machinery and Dimly Lighted Interior, Is Admirably Suited for the Growing of Mushrooms When Growing Frames Have Been Substituted for Beer Vats.

BANKERS ARE AGAIN IN FRONT IN THE JUVENILE

The Bankers went out in front in the juvenile series of the City League last night when they defeated the Lakeviews by 4 to 3 in one of the best battles of the series. It was a pitching duel between Turner, the Bankers' southpaw, and Shaughnessy, the good right-hander of the Lakeviews, and both twirlers had a big edge on the batters, Turner fanning ten, while "Shag" retired seven by the strike-out route. The snappy ball played by both teams made a hit with the crowd.

Lakeviews got an easy run in the first when Rogers, with two out, was sent to first base on interference by the catcher, stole second, and scored when Tom Pogue threw past first on Miller's roller.

There was no further scoring until the fourth when the Bankers annexed three counters. Hensley singled to start with. Jeff Hardill rapped out to Moore and with a double play in sight the second sacker fumbled and everybody was safe. Wilgar flied to Rody in right, Hensley taking third after the catch. Pogue rolled to Pethick and was safe on the short stop's fumble, Hensley scoring, while Hardill's single to centre scored the pair. Hall also hit safely but Johnston and Turner fanned.

Lakeview got one back in their half. Miller led off with a single to centre. Stole second, went to third on a wild pitch, and scored on Shaughnessy's safe punt, Jack Hardill mising the throw. The next three were easy.

The fifth gave the Bankers another counter when with two out Jeff Hardill singled to right and Wilgar doubled to left, slow fielding by Miller allowing Hardill to score.

Lakeviews were not beaten yet, however, and in the sixth they closed the gap. Rogers got a life when he swung at a wild pitch for his third strike and reached first. A wild pitch put him on second. Miller singled through the box sending Roger to third, and he scored, while Pogue was throwing out Shaughnessy. With the tieing run on the bases Lebarr and Pethick struck out.

The losers made another bid for victory in the seventh. Jones was safe on Turner's fumble but died stealing Wilgar to Pogue. Rody walked and went to second on a balk. Fitzgerald's infield out. Turner to Jack Hardill put him on third and it was up to Moore whose best was a long fly to Johnston, and the game was over.

LACROSSE NOTES

Manager J. Skinner requests the following players to be out for regular practice every Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights: F. Goodfellow, Kennedy, J. McCoy, S. Rosenfield, J. Lawson, J. Thirnbeck, G. Donnovan, H. Tudhope, G. Halpin, E. Brown, C. Nattress, G. Johnson, Webb, Nolan, Mein, Scriver, Hatton, L. McCoy, Todd and Dillon. Creighton, who is coaching the boys, is sparing no pains getting them into condition and promises, with the team's help, that Manager Skinner will have a team in good winning condition to meet Havelock in their first league game, the 9th of June. Both Manager J. Skinner and Coach Creighton promises the citizens of Peterborough that they will have a team second to none and good clean lacrosse will be played. The team have been highly complimented on their clean play, both in Oshawa and Norwood. Not one penalty was given to the boys in the two matches.

The juniors will practice in uniform on Tuesday night. All those who are interested in the game and who would like to learn it, are requested to turn out with the boys who have become Johnnie Sutherland's regulars.

New York reports a vogue for travel coats of blue, tan and grey garbardine, worn over smart one-piece dresses of taffeta, crepe and wool, made in straight lines, and trimmed with bright colored wooden bead insertions, milk white glass bead embroidery and galoons.

COMING ATTRACTION AT THE ALLEN.

"Nothing that within you lies can change the plan of which you are a tiny part. Choose any road, go east, go west, go north or south and meet the thing from which you ran away."

That man's life is governed by fate and that he is not allowed to work out his own destiny is vividly portrayed in the new Goldwyn starring vehicle for Pauline Frederick, "Roads of Destiny," which comes to the Allen Theatre, on Monday.

It is a screen version of the famous story written many years ago by the equally famous writer, O. Henry. The scenario for the picture was written by Channing Pollock. In the adaptation, the story has undergone a change, inasmuch as the play centres around a heroine instead of a hero. Pauline Frederick portrays the part of Rose Merritt who finds tragedy and disillusion awaiting her no matter what road she takes. This production necessitates a combining of what one might term four separate pictures, each in itself complete, and all dealing with the same characters who work their destinies out in four different ways showing what results have been in each case, and in each, Miss Frederick plays an entirely different role, which reveals her wonderfnul versatility and gives her many opportunities to display that splendid dramatic ability that has brought her to the fore as one of the best known dramatic actresses.

Firstly, she portrays a girl betrayed by her lover. The second episode, the environment of which is Alaska, purports to show what would have happened if a certain man had chosen the north road in striving to carve his own way through life. Pauline Frederick as Rose Merritt is a croupier at a roulette wheel in a gambling house, and how fate binds her destiny to that of the "certain" man creates some stirring situations that work themselves out in a thrilling and absorbing story. The next episode shows same characters in an eastern setting and here Miss Frederick plays a courted society favorite and again the same grim fate follows her. The next part takes us to Mexico and Miss Frederick is Rosilla the Mexican girl who sacrifices everything for love.

Miss Frederick is supported by an all-star cast including the well known actor, John Bowers, Maude George, Richard Tucker, Hardee Kirkland, M. B. Flynn, Willard Louis and Jane Novak. This Goldwyn production was directed by Frank Lloyd, and photographed by J. D. Jennings.

Press Comment.

The Capitol offers another big picture and vaudeville programme on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, "Polly With a Past." The big New York stage success is now in picture, and will be the feature picture. The vaudeville act is a novelty, the Famous Kiralfy Children, Calvin and Verona, boy and girl, 12 and 14 years of age. Their novelty specialty consists of a talking, singing and dancing act, with a splendid violin solo by Master Calvin, the boy member of the troupe. Their dances are of the international type and beautifully costumed in silk and satin costumes. They have just closed a long season's tour over the big Pantages circuit.

How Ina Claire, enacting as everyone knows, the principal part of a current Broadway stage success, has found time to repeat her portrayal of the celebrated title part of "Polly With a Past" is one of life's and the theatre's mysteries.

But obviously it has been accomplished; for the Capitol Theatre announces the picture presentation of this Belasco stage hit, written by George Middleton and Guy Bolton, for 3 days, commencing next Monday. This overcomes one of the public's—or more accurately the public's one — objection to Miss Claire: that her popularity in New York precluded her appearance elsewhere, either personally or on the screen.

The story of Polly and the method of her acquisition of a past is one that pleased theatre-goers for a long and sensational season and brought Ina Claire a long and sensational prominence. It is of a girl, who, for certain reasons and for a certain young man, took on a spicy reputation and then — here was the real hitch—had to live up to it.

The Metro photoplay of "Polly With a Past," adapted from the stage form by June Mathis, was directed and supervised personally by Maxwell Karger, director general. Arthur Martinelli photographed it and L. J. Vermilyea provided special settings.

AT THE EMPIRE.

REGENT ATTRACTION FOR MONDAY.

When Edwin Carewe set about to introduce Augustus Thomas' well-known play, "Rio Grande", as his first independent production through Pathe, he picked out players that were particularly suited to the roles they were to portray.

Rosemary Theby proved just the type for the spirited Maria Inez, while Allan Sears was Danny O'Neil to the life. Hector V. Sarno was chosen for the role of the Mexican "El Capitan" and Adele Farrington, Arthur Carew, Peaches Jackson and Georgie Stone was ideal for their respective parts.

"Rio Grande" is announced as the feature on the program at the Regent Theatre for next Monday.

SEATS TOTALING THREE-QUARTERS OF MILLION DOLLARS ALREADY BOOKED.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Tex Rickard hasn't received official permission for his Dempsey-Carpentier spectacle on 2nd July in Jersey City, but he is not worried.

Just a little delay at the printer's shop, where the New Jersey State Commission is having a new model license built, has prevented the officials from handing Rickard the key.

The arena is more than half built, and if no bad weather is encountered the contractors say they will turn the plant over to Rickard about 15th June.

Demand for tickets has been so heavy that Rickard called the contractors in to talk over an enlargement of the stadium that would make it big enough for 100,000 spectators.

Lumber has been doing a little mounting since the contract was awarded, and when Rickard found it would cost him four dollars each to build more five-dollar seats, he called off the plans.

Cash on hand in Rickard's bank is now at the three-quarter millions mark, and Tex is naturally feeling good that the receipts already have exceeded the Dempsey-Willard gate.

Very few choice seats are now on sale at Madison Square Garden. Vast blocks have been grabbed by scalpers, who won't even listen to a bid of $100.00 for a 50.00 piece of pasteboard.

Some of those who have had dealings with the "hawks" in the past predict that $50.00 coupons will be worth $250.00 and $300.00 on the day of the fight.

Most of the theatrical ticket agencies that operate under a State license have big blocks of tickets they are selling for fifty cents over the face value of the ticket.

Most of the mezzanine boxes have been sold. Rickard is holding the list off to spring as a surprise. When published, the names will look like a roll-call of all America's celebrities.

Arrangements for the preiminary matches have been put in the hands of Leo Flynn, who made all Rickard's matches in the garden last winter.

Flynn has closed for several matches that will give the early arrivals something to look at, but he is not ready to make an announcements yet.

ENGLISH DERBY NEXT WEDNESDAY AT EPSOM TRACK

KING GEORGE HAS TWO FOR HISTORIC EVENT.

LONDON, May 28.—Speculation on the Derby, which will be run next Wednesday, June 1, over the famous Epsom track, is taking a very wide range, and, according to the experts, the race will be the most "open" seen for many years. This is due largely to the coal strike, which necessitates the abandonment of many race meetings, and has prevented most of the leading candidates making an appearance on a race track this year.

Strong favorites are W. E. Whinerays' Leighton, Sir Henry Busby-Bird's Monarch, and J. B. Joel's pair, Humorist and Thunderer, while others fancied are the Marquis of Londonderry's Polemarch, Sir James Buchanan's Alan Breck, James White's Granely, and Viscount Astor's Craig-an-Eran.

King George has a couple of entries, Perfect Knight and Will Somers, but neither is very highly esteemed, and a victory for the Royal purple and scarlet jacket is not predicted. A field of 25 or 30 is expected to go to the post. The race is for three-year-olds, who are entered as yearlings, and the value of the stake to owner of the winner is about $30,000. This, however, is infinitesmal compared with the enormously enhanced value of the horse for stud purposes, to say nothing of the amount that can be won by a gambling owner in bets.

Generally speaking, most owners would give almost any amount just for the glory of owning a Derby winner. There is only one Derby. The winner is immortalized, and many sporting Britishers reckon dates by the year "So-and-So" won the Derby.)

Enormous sums are at stake, not only in bets, but in the innumerable "Sweepstakes" organized by every club throughout the British Empire. Sweepstakes are technically illegal. Provided they are not advertised or sold to the public, any club, society or organization can float one among its members. The Stock Exchange "sweep" is worth several thousand of pounds, as are those organized by big corporations, cable companies, etc. The Calcutta Turf Club "sweep" runs into fifty or sixty thousand pounds.

In addition to being the greatest sporting event of the year the Derby is a national festival. Probably nowhere in the world does one find such a heterogenous crowd as turns its steps towards Epsom on Derby day. Kings, princes, beggars, noblemen, crooks, gypsies, prizefighters, plain citizens, wealthy stockbrokers, rich and poor, noble and peasant, alike jostling in holiday spirit to render homage to "King Horse." Vast crowds go to Epsom by road, and every route leading to the Surrey Downs is blocked by automobiles, horse-drawn vehicles, humble "donkey shays" of every description. Epsom is free to all; there are no gates and charges of admission, except to the fashionable enclosures and betting rings. This is due to the Downs being partly public property, and partly belonging to the wealthy sportsmen, like the Earl of Rosebery. No accurate estimate can ever be given as to the number of people who annually witness the race, but it runs from half a million to a million and a half.

The Derby was first run in 1780, as the result of an after-dinner wager between a number of wealthy sportsmen. Ever since that date the Derby has been an annual affair, even during the great war, although from 1915 to 1918 the conditions as to the entry were slightly modified and the location changed to Newmarket heath.

BASEBALL

A fast game of ball was played last evening between the Queen Mary Seniors and the King Edward Seniors, the former team being victors by a score of 14 to 1. This team has not lost a game so far this season. Batteries for the Queen Mary team, Hardill and McCall; for the King Edward, Bradley and Barnon. Umpire, Mr. Alex. Kay.

The Queen Mary Juniors and the Queen Alexandra teams, winners in their respective sections, are scheduled to decide the Junior championship on Monday, June 6th. This game will probably be played at Riverside Park, with Mr. Kay in charge. The Public schools of the city are greatly indebted to Mr. Kay for the interest he has taken in the baseball games this season.

NEW DRUG MAKES YOU FEEL 100% BETTER

For Indigestion, Constipation, Rheumatism, Headaches

People who have been suffering for years with headaches, indigestion, constipation, rheumatism, kidney pains, etc., will be pleased to know that they will suffer no longer if they will try the new drug. Doctors recommend that you take one tablet of Tanated Calomel before meals, or two at bedtime, and in 2 to 5 days you will feel 100% better, your head clear, appetite keen, vigorous, keen, bright, alert, and all aches gone. The success of the new drug is due to the fact that it is the only drug known that acts directly on the Liver. No salts, seidlitz, or castor oil are necessary to drive it out of the system, as it is self-eliminating. The next time you have any trouble, due to intestinal congestion, just try this from your druggist. F. C. Weber, Charlotte Street.

WAITING FOR HIS CAPTORS

I wasn't waiting to hear what he yelled. I dashed down the iron staircase into the big open corridor downstairs. There were some relations of Ball's in the office."

"Harry Cole, of Ingersoll?"

"I guess so. He had evidentl been talking to Gaetz. The had heard Ball yelling, and had just run out of the office door as I reached the outer door with the key I had taken from Ball."

"He wants to. No, I've no use for that kind of thing. It doesn't make any difference if the thing is right or wrong. What he did, in my opinion, is the rottenest and most cowardly thing in the world. Do you think you would write to your brother if he got up on the stand and told something, making it look the worst he could against you and piling to you to save his own skin. He put everything on me," he said bitterly, referring to his brother Denton, now serving his twenty years' term at the Kingston Penitentiary.

"I was living happily in Toronto till he and that wife of his came down there and coaxed me to go to London. And I saw a piece by her in a Cleveland paper, laying all the blame on me, and telling about selling her diamonds to provide food to keep her husband and us alive. I wouldn't let my wife associate with her. That is what she is so jealous about. They were not married till the 21st of December. You can get the proof of that, too, from the minister at London, yet they had been living together for a long time before that."

The reason for his ever going to London was next voluntarily explained that they were supposed to be running booze up to Sarnia. 'I was to get $25 a week for driving the car with no responsibility at all. When I got up there they told me that their car had been stolen with the load of booze and they were flat broke. She came down to Toronto in the first place to our home, introducing herself as my brother's wife. When she came down I told my wife to go out with her to see around, and the very first time Trixie took her to one of the worst dance halls in Toronto. I told my wife not to go with her any more. But I didn't know she was so rotten till I got up to London."

that he was armed so that the guard would be more easy to handle.

"I got the key into the lock of the outer door before Gaetz or the other fellow realized what had happened. One of them kind of grabbed me by the shoulder but he did not have much of a chance. I ran out."

"There certainly wasn't any collusion. I would not do anything to those people."

"The chance just came and you took it?" "Yes, I knew that sometimes the two guards were not on together. I watched them."

Shows how he did it.

Garfield took up a position on the angle as if the cell and the cell corridor at Georgetown were that at Woodstock, and showed how he could look along the corridor to the door at the end of the row of cells into the outer upstairs hall. "If the other guard had been at the outer door of the cell room he would have slammed the door shut and I would have been as tight as in my own cell because all the doors have locks that snap automatically."

The question of where he had obtained the $2 3that was found in his pickets when he was captured, came up. "You'd better not ask me that," he laughed smiling knowingly and putting the indext finger of his right hand to his lips. He said: "Ask me no questions and I tell you no lies." "Your wife didn't give it to you as has been hinted—did she?" "No," he said emphatically.

"Wasn't she really to go to Toronto, in fact she was at the G. T. Station two days before?" "No, there's absolutely nothing in that." "Nor in the report that she and your mother had packed their suit cases on the morning you escaped?" "My wife certainly never intended to go, for she said nothing about it to me. It would have been crazy for me to tell them anything about a plan to escape. They'd have been so nervous thinking about it and waiting that they would have given the whole thing away," he said, forcibly denying rumors that were "absolutely silly." "Oh, no, you can bank upon it, I hadn't any outside help."

Something like the words attributed to Garfield when he had Ball up were confirmed by him. He said that he had to give the impression by ordering "hands up" and the dig in the ribs. I could have made a far better job of it if I had. If I'd have got some guns then, and I could have commandeered any auto I wanted, I'd have had no difficulty then in getting a car."

Doesn't Want Notoriety.

Following a slight pause, in which he took a bite from a sandwich and laid the remainder on a cross-bar on the cell door, he said in cautioning voice, "Don't make this look like notoriety, whatever you do. I don't want anything like that. This is the only time I've ever talked like this," he declared, mentioning the attempt of two London reporters who, before the trial, tried to get pictures and an interview at the Woodstock Jail, but were frustrated by Turnkey Robley. "I was just beginning to say something then, when he interrupted me. It was a shame to have the girls locked up then, because they were entirely innocent of the affair," he explained, meaning his wife and Trixie Harkness, who were being held in the Woodstock Jail.

"I care for my wife more than anything else," he continued, noticeably moved, and swallowing hard. "I don't care for myself. All I've got to live for is that girl and that baby. I think almost anybody would like to see their baby. Poor little girl—she's an angel," he said, talking to himself..

"I don't see why they don't put that Trixie out of the road, somehow," came his next remark in a disconcertingly sudden way. "She's really been married a dozen times—I know of three times at least. The minister at London can prove that. I've seen the licenses since this happened to me. There's another rotten case. They brought her up from a home at Toronto, where she was taken when we were all arrested. They left her alone with my brother in his cell two or three times, and had told her what she had to do, and she fell for it. It is rotten to have your own brother do that. She didn't think she would come through the trial of the baby following my death—or not."

"You haven't heard from your brother, I suppose?"

"Brother?"

Such a question was hard to put, and such scorn not pleasant to hear. "Me write him? Not if I know it. He can write if he wishes."

GORDON CUP FINAL

The price of admission will be: To grounds 25 cents; grandstands 10c. extra. Ladies on grand stands free.

Womens 6th Sense

The mirror sense is supposed to be the latest addition to the bag of tricks of feminine gifts and graces. This is the sense that enables women to see themselves without looking in a glass, to have a psychic perception of the back hair which has come loose, the dome fastener which has evaded its duty and the nose which needs a little dash of powder to overcome its glistening prominence.

By means of this sense also women are enabled to work the small miracles by which they accomplish so many things to which the average male fingers are unaccustomed, like the tying of a thread knot with the fingers of one hand, the threading of a needle with no perceptible eye, the insertion of a pin with the requisite amount of persuasion to make it hold fast, instead of immediately slipping out again, the tying up of a parcel with the least amount of fuss and the most business-like appearance, the making of a pretty bow out of a small piece of ribbon, the sewing on of a button from the under side and the placing of the needle in one of the holes every time without any perceptible effort. These things are all attributed to the mirror sense, which enables a woman to visualize her entire costume without looking in the glass.

Of course, there are exceptions to all rules, and we suppose the lady with the dangling back locks, or the smooth and shiny nasal appendage, or the gaping placket, or the loose skirt braid, or the negligent camisole, or even the tiny hole in her silk stocking, is devoid of as much of this sense as her more fortunate sisters, or perhaps she belongs to the new type of femininity which has its mind on higher things?

EACH NEW TEST PROVES THE POWERS OF TANLAC

Astonishing Results Shown Here As Person After Person is Restored to Health by Master Medicine.

According to the testimony of multiplied thousands who have used it, there is nothing more invigorating than Tanlac to persons suffering from the after effects of operations, typhoid, pneumonia, bronchial troubles, la grippe, influenza or who are in a run down condition from any couse.

Another very interesting statement in connection with this fact, was made recently by Fred Clark, of 574 Parliament street, Toronto, Ont.

"It was last July that Tanlac fixed me," he said, "and it did such a good job of it that I haven't had to take any medicine since. I was so weak and run down that I could not do any heavy work and at times I was unable to work at all. Then last winter the influenza got hold of me, and after that I had terrible weak spells and simply felt miserable. I lost my appetite and suffered a lot with constipation and had had to be particularly careful of what little I did eat. I was bothered a lot with constipation and hal awful spells of neuralgic headache. I did not sleep well at all and mornings would get up feeling all worn out.

"This was my condition last July when I got hold of Tanlac, but the medicine wasn't long in ridding me of indigestion and giving me a dandy appetite. My whole system was built up, my sleep became good and sound, and I got up mornings feeling refreshed and energetic. As I said I hadn't to take any medicine since Tanlac fixed me up, and I want to say it's the finest medicine I've run across during the sixty-eight years of my life."

CLAIMS EIGHT DAYS' PAY GIVEN FOR TWO DAYS' WORK

(E. W. Howe's Monthly.)

Best passenger trains run from New York to Philadelphia in two hours and eleven minutes. For this service the railroad company pays its train men a full day's wages. At Philadelphia the train crew changes, this goes on until Chicago is reached and eight different crews have been engaged, each receiving pay for a full day's work. And the pay of the different train crews is very high. The engineer who pulls the train between New York and Philadelphia certainly receives six or seven dollars an hour for his work. For two old fashioned days' work the railroad company pays for eight days. The railway employees have introduced regulation after regulation until rates are enormously high; and still the railways are not paying their actual expenses. Not only train men have "regulations" which increase two days' work to eight. Shop men, telegraphers, the track men, have similar regulations. Every town through which a railroad runs has regulations which become very expensive. Railroad taxes are higher than other taxes, railroad material is produced by workmen who have regulations and supplies that might be turned out in two days cost the price of eight days' work. All this is well known; yet here is Congress refusing to reduce the wages paid the railway workmen and insisting on lower rates. Another example of the mischief wrought by Public Affairs Lunatics.

GROUND HOGS ARE VERY NUMEROUS

Farmers complain that woodchucks or commonly call l groundhogs, are more plentiful this season than they have been for years. In some loalities they are naming a certain day for farmers to try to exterminate them. A few can be shot by constantly watching for them, and a good dog will soon make short work of them if he can get them far enough away from the hole. However, the surest way to get them is to poison them, and if you go to Lynch's drug store, 168 Hunter street, and get a bottle of CARBON BISULPHIDE, they will give you instructions how to use it.

Household Hints

There is no need of throw berries or other fruits which are too wilted to appear on the table into the garbage pail; stew and serve them with cereals, or as a simple sweet for a home lunch or supper. If they are too spoiled for this purpose, cook, press the juice from them and bottle it for a beverage basis or flavoring extract.

If your table is too low, you do not have to pay a carpenter to lengthen the legs. You can buy doorstops or base knobs for two or three cents each at almost any hardware store, and screw them into the bottom of the table legs.

To keep potatoes from shrinking when they are baked, rub the skins with drippings before placing them in the oven. They bake more quickly, save gas, have a better flavor, and the potato, instead of shrinking, fills the skin to the full.

Two flatirons, side by side, wrapped with old carpet or, best of all, old tweed trousers legs, and with a broom stick simply attached by heavy wires to the handles of the flatirons which are held side by side by the wrapping, make a splendid and economical polisher for hardwood floors, after waxing. Always polish waxed floors with the grain of the floor—never cross grain.

Instead of throwing away the cores and peelings of pineapple, put them into a kettle; cover with warm water; add a piece of ginger root or a teaspoonful of ginger, and let simmer on the back of the stove all day. Then strain off the juice, cool, and use as a beverage.

Discarded talking machine needles make excellent substitutes for brads when framing pictures at home. Having sharper points than brads, they are more easily driven in and hold the cardboard more firmly.

Make your own cherry pitter this season: Tie a strong wire hairpin securely to a short straight stick or an old penholder. This makes a cherry pitter which will remove the stones without disfiguring the cherries.

A folding wooden stool to use when basting meat before the oven is a convenience that will be appreciated in every kitchen where there is much cooking to be done. The high wooden stool is also a comfort in preparing vegetables or sitting beside the sink to wash dishes if one is very tired or to use by the stove in stirring preserves or any other things that have to be continually watched.

STRENGTHEN THE FORCES IN IRELAND

MORE BRITISH TROOPS TO BE SENT AND AREA OF MARTIAL LAW MAY BE EXTENDED.

LONDON, May 28. — (Canadian Press).—The Government's policy for "sterner repression of the criminal element in Ireland," as it is phrased in authoritative quarters, involves the strengthening of the Crown forces in Ireland with military reinforcements which will be drawn from units now in foreign service. No increase of auxiliary police, or "Black and Tans," or of the constabulary is contemplated, it is declared.

There is some likelihood of the extension of martial law to the whole of Ireland, with the exception of Ulster, it is indicated, but the initiative rests with General Sir Nevil Macready, Military Commander in Ireland, as it does in the question of introducing the Kitchener blockhouse system. It was officially stated to-day that reinforcements to be sent will be considerably less than fifty thousand, as not that many troops are available.

REV. ROBERT E. KNOWLES,

Presbyterian minister, author of "St. Cuthbert's" and a number of other novels, who has undertaken the study of law. He is associated with a Toronto firm. As a law student he is permitted to conduct cases in the division court, and so before Judge Morson and a jury he obtained judgment for $120 against the City of Toronto in first case for damages he pleaded.

Master of human destinies am I!
Fame, love and fortune on my footsteps wait.
Cities and fields I walk; I penetrate
Deserts and sea remote, and passing by
Hovel and mart and palace soon or late
I knock unbidden once at every gate!
If sleeping, wake; if feasting, rise before
I turn away. It is the hour of fate,
And they who follow me reach every state
Mortals desire and conquer every foe
Save death; but those who doubt or hesitate
Condemned to failure, penury and woe,
Seek me in vain and uselessly implore!
I answer not and I return no more!

Salvation Army Bandsman's Testimonial in Favour of Dr. Henddrson's Herb Tablets

Mr. Russell Reeve, 23 Cornhill St., Chatham, Ont., says:

Gentlemen: Just a few lines to thank you for the wonderful benefit I have received from Dr. Henderson's Herb Treatment. For 25 years or more I have suffered from Catarrh of the head, brought on by going under the water too much. I had a very disagreeable discharge from my ear, which was very annoying as well as loathsome. I had tried several different treatments that were recommended to me, but they did not appear to help me. I purchased a box of your Herb Treatment and after using it for a time the discharge had ceased and it has never bothered me for over a year. I am certainly grateful to your agent for ever selling them to me. You can use this letter in any way that you choose for the benefit of others.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets are not a "Cure all." It is simply a combination of herbs, roots, barks and juice of fruits that act directly upon the important internal organs, aiding them to perform their functions properly and thus to expel wastes and poisons from the system. In this natural way the body is given a thorough internal cleansing and then the forces of Nature can act vigorously and freely in rebuilding and restoring the affected parts. Try a box and watch the results. Price 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per box at WARNE'S DRUG STORE, Peterborough.

REPEAT MUSIC.
A number of letters, postal cards, and telephone messages have been received by Mr. Huycke, the leader of Murray Street choir, requesting the repetition of the pieces presented by that choir on Sunday evening last. It has been arranged that this shall be done to-morrow evening. The Te Deum and "Lead, Kindly Light," with violin solo and obligato, were of specially high order. Forty-five voices were engaged in the work.

MOONLIGHT ON TUESDAY NIGHT.
The moonlight trips down the river are starting sooner than in the past and on Tuesday night the first for 1921 is being held by Trinity Citizenship Club. Those desiring to go should secure their tickets in advance at the Warne Drug Company and should be at the boat early as there promises to be a capacity crowd. A four-piece orchestra has been engaed to enliven the trip and there will be a well-stocked refreshment booth on board to satisfy all demands upon it.

S. A. NOTES.
The services over the week-end will be conducted by the corps officers, Adjt. and Mrs. Bunton. There will be the usual open air service tonight at which Mr. Martin Black, of Toronto, will speak. For years Mr. Black has suffered from a complication of aparently incurable diseases, and for many years led a very reckless life. He came in touch with Christian influences some time ago and was led to accept salvation. At the meetings held by the Bosworth Brothers in Toronto, when so many people were cured of physical ailments, Mr. Black had faith to believe that he too could be cured and to-day he is a perfectly well man. Come and hear his story to-night.

BIRTH OF SPECIAL ORDERS

DO ANYTHING TO PLEASE A CUSTOMER OF SEMI-READY.

"If you could give me that cloth in my size I would take the suit, for your garments fit perfectly."
To-day we can accept an order for any one of 300 cloth patterns and have a suit tailored to measure on a four-day schedule at the shops. Our photo-type measuring system gives the cutter the exact figure of the customer. Not a moment or motion is lost. Suits at $30 are shown, whilst the more expensive suitings can be seen, at Thornton Bros.' store on George street.

WINNERS OF THE BLACK BEAUTY PRIZES

The contest which was announced this week at the Capitol Theatre in connection with drawings of 'Black Beauty called forth a hearty response from the school children of the city. Over 600 pictures were submitted from the girls and boys who had an idea of what the children's favorite would look like and the assembled drawings were judged at the Theatre this morning, when a large crowd of children attended the special matinee provided by the management. The first prize, $5, went to Richard Cowan, 292 London street, the second, $3, to Kenneth Brown, of 319 Park street, and the third, $2, to Margaret Denne, 113 Simcoe street. The judges were Miss Mamie McCarthy, Park street, teacher of art, Miss Mabel Dorman, one of the teaching staff of the South Central school, and Mr. Thornburg.

A RECITAL

The recital given by the violin pupils of Miss Edwina Palmer at the Conservatory of Music last evening was a triumphant testimonial to the powers of the young teacher. An appreciative audience accorded enthusiastic applause to the different numbers on the well-rounded programme. The orchestra especially, composed of about a dozen little boys and girls, was very good. The small performers went through their pretty selections with the full, roundness of concerted tone, the strict attention to time and the watchful eye on the young leader's baton that is often disappointingly absent from the performances of older orchestral players. Miss Palmer has the true teacher's art of getting excellent results with no noticeable effort, and seems to be in perfect accord with her young students. In solos, duets and trios, the pupils gave evidence also of exceptional training and careful study, with that love of their music which the "king of instruments" invariably calls forth from its devotees. Some of the pieces seemed remarkably difficult for the youth of the performers, but double-stopping, pizzicati, harmonies and sustained playing in the higher registers seemed to have abcolutely no terrors for the little maidens and small men who did so well last evening. Two or three of the numbers were encored again and again, and repeated without hesitation and an entire absence of stage-fright. Several fine readings were contributed by Miss Helen Morrison. The programme was as follows: Poetic melody, "Sundown," by the Orchestra; two Gavottes, by Charles Liebers, "Cantelena," Miss Dorothy Fine, "Evening Song," Emmet McGarrity, Gerald Hutchinson, Eric Jones, "Melody," Emmet McGarrity, "Fantaisie Italien," Roy Rome; reading, by Miss Morrison, Poetic Melody, "The Moon so Round and Yellow," by the Orchestra; "Melody in F," Robert Cormack; "Barcarelle," Stewart Widdess and Leonard Grime; "Prayer," Walter Thorn; "Andante Religioso," Kathie Taylor; "The Broken Melody," Winnie Evans; "Minuet in G," Winnie Evans, Arnold Spencer, Kathie Taylor; "Mazurka," Arnold Spencer; "Air Religieuse," Harold Peace; "In Elizabethan Days," by the Orchestra.
The next of the series of recitals being held at the Conservatory of Music to close their season will be on Wednesday evening, June 1st, when the pupils of Miss Laura Newman and Mrs. Lenora James Kennedy will offer a piano and vocal recital.

HE WANTS ALL THE WORLD TO KNOW

THAT IT WAS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS THAT HELPED HIM.

Mr. Alfred Labbie, Who Suffered From Rheumatism and Backache, Tells Why He Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills.

St. Honore, via Armand, Que., May 27.—(Special).—Mr. Alfred Labbie, a well-known and highly respected resident here, is recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills to all sufferers from rheumatism or backache. He has a reason.
"I suffered from backache and rheumatism," Mr. Labbie states. "I spent much money on other remedies. But it was Dodd's Kidney Pills that helped me. I work now and I am well. That is why I would like all the world to know about Dodd's Kidney Pills."
Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They strengthen the kidneys and enable them to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. Healthy kidneys make a healthy body.
Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not make healthy kidneys.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY HAS 285 MEMBERS ON ROLL

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Horticultural Society, with Dr. Middleton, President in the chair, a report on membership showed 285, which, in comparison with other centres is exceedingly low, and further effort will be made by the Directors in securing additional members.
It will be noted that the Government grant to the Horticultural Societies depends upon the membership, the advantage of which is gained by the membership and city in general. Owing to the considerable decrease in membership last year, the grant for he present year is less than one half of the previous year.
In considering the activities in beautifying the various sections throughout the city, arrangements were made to plant the two flower beds at Central Park and the two flower beds and lawn at the corner of Park and Reid streets. As soon as it is possible or the Board of Works to complete the necessary curbing at the South-west corner of Inverlea Park, the Society will arrange to plant that section.
The proposal to widen the Southwest corner of Burnham and Hunter streets was considered, and a resolution forwarded to the City Council endorsing this proposal and the construction of a triangular safety zone in the centre, and request that the beautifying of this triangular secion be placed under the supervision of the Society.
Particular commendations were made in connection with the tulip beds at Central Park, and it is the intention of the Society in any of its activities to make the best showing with the least possible expense, and it is hoped by the example set by the Society in beautifying the various sections of the city that the citizens in general will take an interest in the activities of the Society, and support it to the fullest extent by becoming members, and also in beautifying their own home surroundings.
Commendation were also made by the Directors on the changes which are being made at St. John's Church which in their opinion, can be made the most attractive church grounds in the city, and without a doubt they are endeavouring to secure the first prize in the church grounds competition.

COLLAPSE OF BOLSHEVISM IS REPORTED

A DIRECT MOSCOW DESPATCH SAYS LENINE ASKED ALL-RUSSIAN CONGRESS FOR RETURN TO CAPITALISM.

COMMUNISTS BANKRUPT

RIGA, May 30. — (Canadian Press.)—According to a direct Moscow despatch received to-day from independent sources, Nikolai Lenine, Soviet premier, delared yesterday that the Communist State was in complete bankruptcy and asked the presiding-officers of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee to approve an unlimited return to capitalism and the recall to Russia of the Constitutional Democrats and other parties to aid in rebuilding the State. The statements are unconfirmed.

CONSTABLE SHOOTS TO SAVE SHERIFF

FARMER, ALLEGED INSANE, HAD GUN AGAINST SHERIFF'S BREAST

OTTAWA, May 30 (Canadian Press). — A tragic shooting took place about five o'clock yesterday in the Township of Caledonia, some 17 miles from L'Original, when Constable Ernest Johnson shot and killed instantly Oliver George Sproule, farmer, aged 27 years, who is said to have been insane.

When Johnson took aim and shot Sproule had a loaded revolver against the breast of Deputy Sheriff S. W. Wright, who, with Johnson, had gone to arrest Sproule.

DROPPED DEAD AT HER CLOTHES LINE

MRS. P. MICKS, PRINCESS STREET, DIED SUDDENLY THIS MORNING.

While hanging out clothes this morning, Mrs. P. Micks, 243 Princess street, dropped dead from heart disease and was not found for some time.

An old umbrella mender, passing the house, first noticed Mrs. Micks lying on the ground, and notified Mrs. H. A. Bonney, a daughter of Mrs. Micks, who lives next door at 241 Princess street. Mrs. Micks, it is believed, had been dead some time before she was found.

Her husband predeceased her some years ago. She is survived by two sons one, David, at home. Mrs. Micks was 70 years old.

The funeral arrangements will later be announced.

He had dilated on his subject for more than an hour and a half, when he was pained to observe what seemed to him inattention on the bench.

It was as he had feared —his worship was unable to appreciate the nice points of the argument.

"Beggin your worship's pardon," he said, "but do you follow me?"

The magistrate shifted uneasily in his chair. "I have so far," he answered, "but if Ithought I could find my way back alone, I'd turn round now."

NO OFFICIAL CONFIRMATION OF REPORT, BUT PREMIER'S WHEREABOUTS OVER WEEK-END UNKNOWN.

WILD SCENES IN DUBLIN

LONDON, May 30. — (Canadian Press.)— The official residence of Lloyd George in Downing street has been inundated with requests for confirmation or denial of reports from Belfast that Eamonn De Valera and Premier Lloyd George had held a conference, but a definite "yes" or "no" to this query is being withstood. Those usually informed of the Premier's movements, however, have been unable to verify his whereabouts during the week end of May 21, which fact is leading some to believe that a secret peace conference between the Irish Republican leader and the British Premier may have occurerd then.

DUBLIN, May 30. — (Canadian Press.)—Wild scenes were witnessed here last evening shortly before the curfew hour. Stone throwing and shooting occurred between civilians and soldiers who were accompanying young women, the civilians trying to separate the girls from their military escorts. Several of the combatants were wounded.

The fatal shooting occurred in Anglesea. As a result of these disturbances there was extraordinary activity of police and cadets, and exciting hold-ups occurring on O'Connell street and O'Connell bridge. Descending from several lorries which accompanied an armoured car, a party of auxiliaries rushed about, hustling young women found on the scene. Women and children ran screaming from the locality. The streets were cleared thirty minutes after the curfew.

EDW. BROWN GETS 5 YEARS

TORONTO, May 30 (Canadian Press).—Five years in the Provincial Penitentiary was the sentence imposed to-day on Edwrad Morton Brown, foreign exchange receiving teller at the local head office of the Bank of Montreal, on his confession of stealing $21,000 from the bank.

Restitution to some extent had been made in the shape of some blocks of shares in Davidson and Sovereign Gold Gains, in which Brown was interested.

NEW HEAD OF GRAND TRUNK BORN, EDUCATED AND RECEIVED EARLIER BUSINESS TRAINING IN PETERBORO

Sir Joseph Flavelle, Bart., who on Saturday was elected chairman of the all-Canadian Board of Directors of the re-constituted Grand Trunk railway, and who is likely to head the entire Canadian National Railway system when consolidation with the Grand Trunk is effected, was born and educated in Peterborough, and until 1887 was associated with his father here in the provision business.

Sir Joseph was born of Irish origin here February 15, 1858, the son of the late John and Dorothea Flavelle, and educated in the local Public and Grammar schools. After a brief period spent with his father in the pork packing and provision business he removed to Toronto in 1887.

During the 34 years since his removal to Toronto, Sir Joseph has made a phenomenal rise and has become known as a capitalist and philanthropist. During the war he was chairman of the Imperial Munitions Board and in 1917 was knighted for his services in this connection.

BRITAIN ASKS ALLIED ACTION

WANTS SUPREME COUNCIL TO MEET AT ONCE TO CONSIDER SILESIAN SETTLEMENT.

FRENCH WANT A DELAY

PARIS, May 30. — (Canadian Press).—A note from Great Britain received to-day, in reply to Premier Briand's recent communication with regard to the meeting of the Allied Supreme Council, insists on the desirability of a meeting of that body this week. Great Britain accepts the principle laid down by France of examination of the Silesian question by a special mission of experts but holds that the Council should meet first and not delay its session until after the experts have reported as France has suggested.

The British Premier in the communication advocates two meetings of the council, one to name a commission of experts and another later to hear the exports report and act. Mr. Briand will appear before Senate to-day where reparations questions are coming up in connection with appropriations for reconstruction work, former Premier Ribot is expected to take part in the discussion, which, it is believed, will develop into an attack on the cabinet. Therefore it is possible M. Briand may reply to Lloyd George that he will be unable to fix a date for the meeting in Boulogne until after the conclusion of the debate in the Senate.

GOVT. REJECTS IRISH SCHEME

COLONIAL AUTONOMY FOR NORTH AND SOUTH WITH ARBITRATION OF DEBT APPORTIONMENT UNLIKELY.

PREMIER STATES STAND

LONDON, May 30. — (Canadian Press.)—Lloyd George announced in the Commons to-day that it was proposed to strengthen the Crown forces in Ireland and that a statement would be made to Parliament on the subject when arrangements were completed. He added that it was not intended to send reservists there. The announcement was made in answer to a question.

Replying to another question as to whether the government would adopt the suggestion of colonial autonomy for north and south Ireland and have the apportionment of national debt submitted to judicial arbitration, the Premier said that even if Parliament approved such a proceeding: "I have reason to believe it would not be accepted by the men responsible for the violence in Ireland, but on the contrary would be regarded by them as weakness on the part of the British government and encouragement to further violence."

Lloyd George said there could be no question of making good out of the British Exchequer the damage to the Dublin Customs House which he said was estimated at two million pounds. Under the law the loss would fall on the local authorities, but it would be within the powers of the southern parliament to make provision for meeting the loss wholly or in part.

These sentences are to run concurrently with those given by Police Magistrate Moore in the County Police Court a few days ago.

STAND BESIDE NOR. GARFIELD UNTIL FINISH

MOTHER AND WIFE OF PRISONER MAINTAIN DAILY VISITATIONS TO THE JAIL.

REGULATIONS STRICTER

WOODSTOCK, May 30th.—(Special to The Examiner.)— Firm in their determination to stand beside Norman Garfield until the end, Mrs. Garfield, the condemned man's mother ,and Kitty, his eighteen year old girl wife, in a spirit that is to be marvelled at, continue their daily visit to Oxford County jail. The movements of Mrs. Garfield and her daughter-in-law through the streets of the city are watched by all who are acquainted with them. Eyes sometimes with a tear follow them as they walk slowly to or from the prison. The girl wife and expectant mother talks more than the mother of Garfield in their walks.

The Examiner to-day saw Kitty Garfield at the Y.W.C.A. She was informed there that a reporter had seen Denton Garfield, brother of the condemned man, recently at Kingston penitentiary. "Did he say anything about Norman?" she inquired with just a touch of heat. When told that he had merely remarked that there were no bad feelings on the part of Denton toward his brother Norman, she replied firmly: "He ought to be ashamed of himself for doing what he did." "Norman," she said, "had never spoken of Denton nor had he written to him, or received word from his brother doing a twenty year term in Kingston penitentiary." She was asked how Norman was when she saw him yesterday. "He seems more worried," was the feeling reply, "and he did not talk much."

The family yesterday were required to talk to Norman over the head of a guard who sat directly in the door of the cell. They were even denied permission to kiss him goodbye, which particularly aroused the mother of the man who has withstood the ordeal with remarkable stoicism. "Surely they will let me kiss him good-bye.. If they don't they will have to tear me away from the bars.' And tears filled her eyes. They were not even permitted to shake hands with Norman, these regulations being enforced through the escape.

Baby clothes, the gift of women in the city, have been received by Kitty Garfield. They include long dresses, knitted jackets and two or three other small articles. One woman in the city even presented Kitty with some of the clothes worn by this woman's children. Despite the girl's condition and the expectancy of the arrival of the child next month, she appears in fair health, although it is said she remains particularly remorseful and untalkative to these in the assertion. Visitors to Mrs. Garfield and her daughter-in-law are few, although invitations to visit homes in the city have been fairly numerous. These are not accepted, however, and the only home they visit is that of Rev. Mr. Gaetz, where they often go for tea. When they visit the jail they usually pass along the same streets the shortest possi-

THE CENTRAL ONTARIO POWER SYSTEM MAY PROVE A "WHITE ELEPHANT" AT PRESENT RATES

PROVINCE PAID $2,700,000 FOR INTANGIBLE ASSETS WHICH NOW PROVE WORTHLESS AND SHOULD MUNICIPALITIES TAKE OVER THE SYSTEM THIS WOULD HAVE TO BE WRITTEN OFF AS A LOSS.

LEGISLATION PERMITTING TRANSFER IN EXISTENCE

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

TORONTO, May 30 (Canadian Press).—What to do with the provincially-owned Central Ontario Power System is one of the problems that is receiving the careful attention of the Drury Government.

The Government finds that the system is not on a proper financial basis, and that unless rates are raised, it may become a white elephant. The Province paid $2,700,000 for intangible assets, which now prove to be worthless, and should the system be turned over to the municipalities that amount would have to be written off as a loss.

The system was purchased on the initiative of the Hydro Commission and the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, but the former approved of the deal on the understanding that the debentures issued would be for forty years, instead of which they were issued for only ten years. So when they run out in 1926, it is expected that the annual interest at once will be increased by $300,000.

Th Hydro Commission submitted a bill for the taking over of the system from the Province, but it was found that this could be done under legislation already existing. There is no evidence that the municipalities are keen to assume the responsibility.

Another reason for th rejection of the bill is the fact that the Government is considering the question whether the Province should not take over the Chippawa Canal and the whole task of wholesaling power, leaving it to the municipalities and the rural power users to provide the local distribution systeus.

WAR CRIMINAL IS GIVEN SIX MONTHS

SECOND HUN ACCUSED OF CRIMES TRIED AT LEIPZIG.

LEIPZIC, May 30 (Canadien Press). — Captain Mueller, the second German soldier to be placed on trial charged with criminal acts during the war, was to-day sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

He was tried on the charge of having practised cruelties on prisoners at Flavy-le-Martel, a prison camp in the Aisne Department of France.

PROSECUTE FOR TAPPING POWER

UTILITIES COMMISSION BRINGS ACTION AS WARNING TO OTHERS.

"Did fraudulently abstract, consume or use electricity, the property of the Peterboro Utilities Commission." This was the charge preferred against a local man by Homer O. Fisk, manager of the Commission in police court to-day.

Two years ago, according to the accused the wires leading into his house were tapped to run a 40 watt lamp and a 660 watt heater. In police court he said he did not think he was committing any wrong, but pleaded guilty to the charge.

The current tapping was first suspected by the man reading meters. He noticed the lamp burning but the meter did not show the usual registration. Then when the heater was found on and the meter still did not register the suspicions of the commission were aroused. An investigation showed the wires were tapped by the accused before they reached the meter.

Roughly speaking $25 worth of electrical energy must have been used by accused Mr. Fisk told the Examiner. The case was prosecuted as a warning to others, E. H. D. Hall, the Commission's scolicitor stated. The Commission did not want accused fined, he said, "The Commission does not want a precedent established. There will probably be other cases of the same nature and we don't want others who may be doing the same thing to think they can get off by paying a fine.

This is the first case of wire tapping which the Commission has prosecuted Mr. Fisk stated that there have been numerous cases reported but before the information could be secured the current stealing was discontinued.

Accused was allowed to go on suspended sentence after paying costs of $11.85 and agreeing to remove the device that was robbing the Commission.

MAJORITIES RISE IN BOTH RIDINGS

HANSON HAS 946 IN YORK-SUNBURY; BOUCHER 1,700 IN YAMASKA.

FREDERICTON, May 30 (Canadian Press).—Returns from Nortondale, which had been unavailable, thus completing the unofficial figures for the York-Sunbury bye-election on Saturday, make the Government party's majority 946.

MONTREAL, May 30 (Canadian Press).—With several polls in the outlying districts of Yamaska constituency still to be heard from, the majority of Aime Boucher, Liberal candidate, was this morning placed at 1,700.

Joseph Lambert, the Farmer candidate, polled so few votes that it is expected he will lose his deposit.

The remaining polls are expected to further increase Mr. Boucher's majority over his next opponent, A. A. Moudou, the Government candidate.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

TORONTO, May 30 (Canadian Press).—Business was very dull for the opening session of the week on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, and prices underwent no material changes. Most of the issues traded in displayed slightly weaker tendency.

Dominion Steel Corporation was firmer, advancing 3-4 to 32 on sales of fifty shares. C.P.R. opened strongly at 130, but sold off a point before the noon close. Brazilian lost a fraction at 31 1-2, while Mackay was steady at 75.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, May 30 (Canadian Press).—The local call market recovered from the dullness which dominated it during the first half-hour later in the morning, and most of the leaders were fairly active.

Abitibi was up half a point at 36 1-2. Brazilian remained unchanged. Brompton was down 1-4 at 35. Laurentide made an advance of a piont to 91. National Breweries was fractionally weaker at 54 3-8. Spanish River was down a point at 71, and Wayagamack a half point at 66 1-2.

MEMORIAL LECTERN UNVEILED IN CHURCH AT BELLEVILLE

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 30. — At Christ Church, in this city, last evening, an oak eagle lectern, a gift from Mr. T. H. Marshall in memory of his wife; was dedicated by the Rev. Dr. Blagrave, of Peterborough, a former rector of the church.

ble. While at home in the Y.W.C.A. they hold little conversation with other women. Mrs. Garfield remains mostly in the solitude of her room, where recently a visitor found her reading the Bible. "I am trying to find consolation in the Book," Mrs. Garfield is said to have remarked. "That is the only place to find it," was the reply.

Kitty, too, spends much of her time in her room. Before the escape of her husband she remained disconsolate and particularly sullen, often lying for hours on her bed. When she learned of the escape the news buoyed her up and as long as he remained at large her spirits were renewed in vigor. But at his capture she all but collapsed. She remains bitter in regards to Trixie Harkness, wife of Denton Garfield, and to-day received a letter from a friend in which was expressed varied opinions of her sister-in-law. Letters also received in regard to her husband, many particularly sympathetic.

Note—The month of June for Kitty Garfield, eighteen year old wife of the condemned Norman Garfield, will be filled with extreme hardship and sorrow. Her husband is to die on the second and her baby is expected some time during the month. Even the girl's birthday occurs on the 16th of the month.

GOVERNMENT AND LIBERALS SPLIT BY-ELECTION HONORS

HANSON CARRIES YORK-SUNBURY FOR MEIGHEN AND BOUCHER WINS THREE-CORNERED EIGHT IN YAMASKA.

FARMER SWAMPED

FREDERICTON, N. B. May 30.—(Special to the Examiner).—Complete returns from the York-Sunbury by-election give Hanson, government, majority of 843.

FREDERICTON, N.B., May 30.—(Canadian Press).—Richard B. Hanson K.C., of Fredericton, candidate for the National Liberal and Conservative party, carried York-Sunbury on Saturday for the Meighen Government by a majority approaching one thousand against Ernest W. Stairs, farmer candidate. With one district to hear from the vote stood, Hanson 7, 170, Stairs 6, 207.

PIERRE VILLE Yamaska County Que., May 30.—(Canadian Press).— With figures subject to rvision, the Liberal candidate, Aime Boucher, took the Federal seat of Yamaska County, vacant through the death of Oscar G. Ladu by 1608 over A.A. Mondu, government candidate, while the farmer candidate, Joseph Lambert, was hopelessly outclassed polling approximately only 350 votes. The vote polled showed the keenness of the electors more than ninety per cent of the total ballots, numbering 8,300 being cast; women voting with the same intensity as men.

1,500 ROYALISTS RELEASED BY PORTUGESE AMNESTY

LISBON, Portgual, May 30. — (Associated Press.) — About 1,500 royalist political prisoners have been set free under the vote of general amnesty for all such men passed by Parliament recently. This vote was taken at the time when all Portugal was paying tribute to the memory of the unknown soldiers whose bodies were brought here for interment in the cathedral at Batalha.

Former Soldier Losing Figure

LONDON TAILORS SAY HE NOW RESEMBLES LETTER "S."

LONDON, May 30. Canadian Press. — The tailors say that the former soldier is losing his soldierly figure. His chest which in wartime was where a soldier's chest ought to be, has now slipped down to where it ought not to be, and his waist measurement has developed extensively. The result is that the beautiful figure of the man of 1919 has become rare and flatness and flabbiness, say the tailors, have taken the place of thinness and muscle.

"It makes my regimental heart many soldiers now carry thembleed to see the sloppy way in which selves," said one who served as a sergeant tailor in the war. "Look at that old tape measure hanging on the wall. Note the finger marks about the 32-inch line. That was the average measurement of the war waist. Compare it with the finger marks on this peace measure which shows that the present waist is from 36 to 40 inches. My customers used to be like the letterI. To-day they are like an S."

FLAVELLE NOW HEADS G.T.R.

EXPECFED TO BE OVER ENTIRE NATIONAL SYSTEM WHEN CONSOLIDATION IS EFFECTED

MONTREAL, May 30.—(Canadian Press).—Sir Jos. Flavelle was yesterday elected chairman of the reconstituted All-Canadian Board of Directors of the Grand Trunk Railway. Howard G. Kelly was reappointed director and president of the Company. Other directors elected were—J. N. Arcisse Dupuis, Montreal; E. L. Newcombe, K.C., Deputy Minister of Justice, Ottawa; and Alfred J. Mitchell, Financial Vice-President of the Canadian National Railways, Toronto.

It is further understood that when consolidation of the Grand Trunk and Canadian National Railways is finally completed, Sir Joseph Flavelle will be appointed chairman of the Board which will direct the management of the combined roads. It is aso stated that the new All-Canadian Board of the Grand Trunk is only temporary, to hold office until consolidation has been effected. It is thought, in consequence of these changes, that the Grand Trunk head quarters will be removed to Toronto with most of executive positions of the road concentrated at the latter city.

PRESCRIPTIONS NOT TO EXCEED FIFTY A MONTH

PHYSICIAN ISSUING MORE WILL RISK LOSING PRIVILEGE OF HAVING PRESCRIPTIONS HONORED.

NEW LICENSE BOARD ACT

TORONTO, May 30 (Canadian Press).—After 1st June Ontario physicians who issue over fifty prescriptions for liquor a month will do so at the risk of their privilege of having their prescriptions honoured.

The Ontario Board of License Commissioners on Saturday issued a new Act declaring that a survey of the average number of prescriptions issued by doctors of the Province indicated that a physician who follows the principle of giving liquor only in cases of actual medicinal need should not require to issue more than twenty-five a month.

The limit has been fixed at twice this amount in order to allow plenty of latitude.

Eyelashes Are Now for Sale

LATEST INNOVATION IN FEMININE ATTRACTIVENESS.

NEW YORK, May 30. (Canadian Press.) Ladies' eyelashes have become salable articles. The dressing table in mijady's boudoir may now be adorned in addition to the numerous other things mere man is supposed to suppose are natural, with artificial lashes that paste on right over the regular ones.

This innovation of feminine attractiveness was on display here at the American Ladies' Hair Dressing Association Exhibition. Other nature savers included a half bobbed wig to cover the old fashioned long hair, thus relieving the necessity of cutting it. A parable in moving picture form was shown, demonstrating how a wife, who had lost her husband's affection regained it by re-juvenating her rose-petal cheeks.

EX-EMPEROR'S CHEF SEEKS WORK IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 30. Canadian Press. Ludwig Urban, who carries credentials showing that he once prepared the food for Charles, former emperor of Austria, is now in New York looking for a job. Urban declared that even a chef suffered when an emperor was overthrown and he was able to travel only third class.

FARMER SAVES G.T.R. TRAIN DURING FLOOD

TRACK WASHED AWAY

TORONTO, May 30 (Canadian Press).—For the second time within a period of a few months, quick thinking and courageous work on the part of farmers has saved Grand Trunk trains on the Midland Division from possible disaster, the latest occurrence being late on Saturday afternoon, when there was an unusually bad flood of water over the tracks, and when a train crew were warned o the condition by a farmer living in the district, who went to considerable trouble to save the crew and passengers from the threatened danger.

The location of the flood was between Gilford and Bradford, and the train from Orillia was in danger.

Owing to the heavy rains, portions of the track became badly flooded, and the engineer was surprised to see a farmer on the track just outside of Gilford flagging the train.

When the train was stopped, it became evident that the farmer had spared no trouble to warn the crew, as he had waded through the water along the track, which reached up to his shoulders.

So far as could be judged, big portions of the track had been washed out so that the danger was serious.

The train was re-routed through Georgetown.

FIGHTING COCKS POPULAR IN IRELAND IN SPITE OF TURMOIL; POLICE MAKE RAID

DUBLIN, May 30. — Associated Press. In the midst of all the turmoil in Ireland, the popular but illegal sport of cockfighting is not being allowed to lapse. There has just been a great assembly of at least 1000 people in an island on Lough Neagh.

Some fights took place, but before they concluded 150 police succeeded in reaching the island. That ended the matches. The spectators were permitted to go free.

Every Merchant His Own Editor

A merchant talking with the writer said: "I consider my Daily Newspaper Advertising to be the most important thing I do each day. It is the only thing I do that the entire community are simultaneously informed about.

"I look upon my advertising space in a somewhat similar fashion, I imagine, to the way the editor looks upon the whole paper. He has so much space and so much copy to use. His job is to make his paper as interesting as he can, to as many people as possible.

"I haven't as much space as he has; therefore, it is doubly important to me to make my space more interesting than his space—IF I CAN.

"Hundreds of people come into my store whom I can never hope to meet personally. So I figure that the next best I can do is to give them a definite impression of my personality through my daily newspaper advertising."

The basis of successful advertising for any local merchant is disclosed in that conversation.

Reason it out.

THE CENSUS.

On Wednesday the work of taking the census will commence, and The Examiner wishes once more to impress upon its readers the importance of this collection of statistics and the desirability of answering the questions promptly and accurately, and thereby assisting in the undertaking. The list of questions is a lengthy one, but not many of them should present much difficulty, and the citizens are urged to have no hesitation in replying, being assured that none of the information so offered will be used to their disadvantage. Not even the Taxation Department of the Government is to be supplied with the statistics secured by the censors, nor will any personal matter be made public. The census takers are sworn to secrecy, and citizens need not have any qualms about supplying all the information asked for.

The taking of the census is no easy task, but the work can be made much lighter with the co-operation of the public.

THE RETROGRADE SENATE.

The Senate has once more demonstrated that it is an enemy to progress and a drag upon the advancement of Canada. The action of the Upper Chamber in killing the Bill creating a National Research Institute shows how little in touch are the Senators with the needs of the Dominion. Here was a measure that had been unanimously endorsed by the House of Commons. Government, Liberals, Progressives, and Independents are approving of the principles of the Bill and appreciating the necessity of such an institute if Canada was to keep pace with other countries along the lines of scientific discovery and investigation. But the irresponsible Senate shutting its eyes to the unquestionable advantages to be obtained from the Bill, calmly killed the measure. Unfortunately, in this case at least, the deliberations of the Senate do not, as a rule, appear in the newspapers, so that the reasons for the rejection of this legislation have not been made public. They would have made interesting reading.

THE SCOTTISH FOOTBALLERS

From Peterborough, as from every centre in Ontario, football enthusiasts travelled to Toronto on Saturday to see the game between the Scottish professional team that is now touring Canada and a picked eleven from the various Toronto teams. It was a great day for many a Canadian citizen born across the seas.

A love of sport is one of the most valuable assets that the men from the British Isles bring with them to their adopted country. They speedily interest themselves in our hockey and baseball, but to many of them football is the best game of all, and their interest in it is a tie that binds them firmly to the land that gave them birth. They have implanted the game firmly in Canada, and enjoy the various fixtures in the local leagues, but ever have they a longing to see the famous professional organisations in action, and always do they follow with keen interest the scores of th Old Country Leagues.

It is no wonder, then, that the coming to Canada of the Scottish team has resulted in new attendance records for football in this country, and to a great revival in popular interest.

THE INEVITABLE END.

The manner in which Norman Garfield was captured shows the folly of attempting to prey upon organised society. Mr. Tracey, the elderly township clerk, who organised the little posse which took the escaped murderer into custody, is probably the ordinary sort of everyday citizen who would hesitate to do anything to contribute towards the death of a fellow human being. And yet he went out and captured Garfield just as he would have capturd a fox that was after his chickens, because he knew that such a man at large was a menace to the public safety. He had no ill feelings towards the escaped prisoner, but he knew that such a man was too dangerous to be allowed his liberty, and accordingly he made plans to apprehend him. It is because the feeling that animated Garfield's captors is to be found everywhere that robs the criminal of any chance of being ultimately successful in his undertakings. The man who deliberately adopts a career of crime should know that there is only one possible end to that career. Organised society is too strong for any combination of criminals.

LLOYD-GEORGE AND POLAND

In a recent interview, Premier Lloyd-George is reported to have expressd the opinion that his policy with regard to Poland and Upper Silesia had been accorded practically the unanimous support of public opinion in the United States. The accuracy of this judgment is, however, questioned by influential newspapers, such as the New York Times and the New York Tribune, representing both of the main political parties. In their view the weight of evidence is all the other way, so much so that the Tribune editorially observes that it is hardly necessary to argue that American opinion does not look with favour on the sacrifice of Polish interests in Upper Silesia to German interests. This Republican newspaper contends that the British Premier's anti-Polish policy has worked injuriously to Poland, and, unfortunately, obstructed a fair peace settlement. It ran counter to the promises made to the Poles, and the Tribune holds that all this unhappy Silesian aftermath, involving grave dissensions among the Allies, is due to the Premier's success in obtaining the reversal of the unanimous findings of the Polish boundary commission.

These findings, assented to originally by the British representative, recommended the allotment to Poland of Dantzic, most of Posen, and the eastern section of Upper Silesia. When Premier Lloyd-George objected to the cession of Dantzic, the Tribune recalls, the British member of the Commission presented a brief countering and refuting the Premier's arguments. It did not avail, however, to remove his objections, and President Wilson's surrender on the point of Dantzic was deplored by his expert advisers.

Professor Lord, chief of the Polish Division of the American Peace Commission, and Dr. Isaiah Bowman, the chief territorial specialist, in the chapters contributed by them to Colonel House's book, 'What Really Happened at Paris," show how little they were in sympathy with Mr. Lloyd-George's efforts to weaken the strength and security of the new Polish nation. The Tribune contends that the withholding of Dantzic crippled Poland to begin with, and that withholding the eastern section of Upper Silesia will still further reduce her resources and her economic independence.

It is difficult to understand why the British Premier should have so stubbornly refused to accept the original proposals made by the boundary commission except by assuming that he feared to create another Alsace-Lorraine grievance in eastern Europe. Perhaps, too, he may have been influenced by a desire not to make Poland too strong, an attitude not compatible with the idea that the recreation of that state would provide one of the keystones in the plan of European defence against the recrudescence of German imperial aggression and a possible future alliance of Germany with Red Russia. Sympathy in Great Britain has always been on the side of the Poles, and the liberation of Poland was universally approved. But whatever his reason was, Mr. Lloyd-George maintained his stand and the problem must be settled under the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles.

Secretary of State Hughes, in his reply to the Polish Government, makes the United States' position perfectly plain. He declares the question to be one of purely European concern, and that the United States will adhere to its traditional policy of non-interference, and he has so instructed the American representatives on the Supreme Council, the Reparations Commission, and the Council of Ambassadors. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The City Council has earned the gratitude of the sporting fraternity by deciding to build a board walk from the steps leading down from the Ashburnham Bridge to the entrance to Riverside Park.

Mr. Mondou will not have to worry about how far he should go in supporting the Government. The electors of Yamaska decided that question for him.

Many figures are being published to show how much further a dollar will go this year than last. But the trouble with many people is they haven't got as many dollars as they had this time last year.

Alexander Graham Bell, the great Canadian inventor, will always be given the credit for the telephone. Bell's work superseded the efforts of Page, whose research was advanced in 1837; Bourseul in 1854; and Reis about 1860. In 1878 Bell's transmitter was itself superseded by Hunning's "granular carbon transmitter"; since perfected by A. C. White, whose "solid back transmitter" has practically displaced all earlier forms.

MOST inventions develop slowly. Here a little detail. There another—and so on, until you can hardly tell when the perfected device finally took shape.

At one stroke—micrometric precision, exact to 1/1000 inch, and these three fundamental discoveries, the Fulcrum Shoulder, Overhanging Cap and Channeled Guard.

The result of the unequalled Gillette experience and resources, developed by nearly 20 years' service to the shaving needs of every civilized people on the surface of the globe.

Even measured against your old-type Gillette, the New Improved Gillette Safety Razor represents an advance of 75% in shaving comfort and efficiency.

To the man who has never used an old-type Gillette, we say this:

Compare the new Improved Gillette with any shaving method or device you know now.

It opens up an entirely new era in shaving — the era of precision, of exact and predictable results.

It is worth any man's money—no matter how attached he may be to his old-fashioned razor or old-type Gillette.

NOTE.—The Gillette Company assumes responsibility for the service of Gillette Blades when used in any GENUINE Gillette Razor—either old-type or New Improved Gillette. But with IMITATIONS of the genuine Gillette, it cannot take responsibility for service of Blades.

Amateur—Well, what did you think of it?

The Chicago school superintendent who recognizes "It don't" and "It is me," as correct forms, and still pretends to have English taught in his schools, reminds us of the story of the little boy, who was viewing a circus menagerie with his mother. Noticing a particularly large elephant, the boy exclaimed, "Say, ma, ain't that a h—— of a big one!" The mother slapped his face vigorously. "How many times must I tell you not to say 'ain't'?"

FRENCH IMPORTS RISE, WHILE EXPORTS DECREASE

U. S. Atache at Paris Reports Construction Inactive.

WASHINGTON, May 30. —(By Canadian Press.)— In his monthly cable review on economic conditions in France the U. S. Commercial Attache in Paris, says that imports are increasing and exports decreasing. There has been a notable decrease, however, in the imports of raw materials. General building and construction activities remain comparatively inactive, although special activity is noted in the construction of lower priced dwellings and hydro-electric projects.

LOVE!

By KATHERINE MOORE

I INVITE AN OLD CHUM TO VISIT.

Chapter 62.

The Russells had put an end to the relaxation of going to the movies so I could not turn to that source of comfort. I did not sleep as well either and the added strain was racking me terribly.

One morning I received a letter from my old college friend, Dorothy Hudson. "Dearest Noreen:" she wrote; "can't you run up here and spend a week with me? The family are all going off bathing and we can have the 'ranch' to ourselves. It'll be just like old times. Forget you are married and come along. Leonard will love you twice as much when he gets you back."

The letter was so characteristic of Dorothy. She always had that irrepressible indifference about everything. She was too spontaneous and modern for Leonard, and he had never been able to understand her.

But I could not be as sure as Dorothy that Leonard would love me more when I got back. I had no intentions of putting him to the test.

I sat down and wrote at once that I would be unable to accept. I had just about finished the letter when I suddenly decided to ask Dorothy to visit me instead. I added another page to the letter and ran out to the post-box on the corner and mailed it.

I had been alone too much. I just had to have someone to talk to.

I was in bed when Leonard came home that night so I had to wait until the next morning at breakfast to tell him.

"Dorothy wants me to come up and stay with her for a week while her family is away," I said, hoping—foolishly perhaps—for a different kind of answer than the one I got.

"Why don't you go?" he spoke without looking at me. Of late Leonard had developed that detestable masculine trait of reading the newspaper at the breakfast table. Now he seemed to be deeply interested in something he was perusing.

At first I had dreaded telling him I had invited Dorothy to spend the week with me. Now I found pleasure in doing it.

"All right," he said, apparently indifferent to whether she came or not. Something about the way he said it bothered me. He closed the newspaper folded it carefully and slipped it down in his side pocket. He did not kiss me good-morning. He had neglected to do so very often of late.

Well, I had invited Dorothy and it was too late now to tell her not to come. I would have to go through with it. I even found pleasurable anticipation as I looked forward to her visit. We could go out and do things together. It would be such a relief to have someone to talk to.

Of course I had no intentions of saying a word or in any way letting Dorothy know about Leonard. That was something I would always hide within the innermost recesses of my own heart. That was my tragic secret and only in desperation and when I found I could bear it no longer would I disclose any part of it to the world. I prayed fervently that I would be spared the necessity.

The next day I received a telegram from Dorothy, saying she would be "tickled" to come and would arrive some time the following afternoon.

I thought it just as well not to speak again to Leonard about it. He knew that she was coming and I would just let him come home on Tuesday night and find her. I hoped he would not be rude or too unfriendly.

Tomorrow—Leonard Keeps Late Hours.

CITIZENS SHOULD ASSIST POLICE

CHIEF THOMPSON MADE GOOD IMPRESSION IN ADDRESS IN WINDSOR.

(From the Border Cities Star)

Chief of Police Daniel Thompson made an excellent impression in his interesting address before the Border Chamber of Commerce yesterday. It was the first opportunity that many of the members had of meeting Windsor's new chief constable. The head of the police department made several excellent points in his talk, among them the following:

A good and efficient police force must have the co-operation of the citizens it serves.

Citizens must not hesitate to give the police information that will lead to the conviction of wrongdoers.

The policeman is the friend, not the enemy, of youth.

His hearers yesterday were particularly struck with Chief Thompson's plea for co-operation by citizens. The chief let it be known that there was a tendency locally against furnishing the department with information necessary to facilitate its work in tracking down offenders. He promised that where secrecy was desired the names of persons giving information would be treated confidentially, but, he added, why should any citizen hesitate to appear in court against an accused person? Mr. Thompson argued, in so many words, that it is the duty of all good citizens to assist the police in every possible way in bringing criminals before the bar of justice and seeing that they are given their just deserts.

Chief Thompson said that he had always been interested in young men and he wanted every young man given a fair chance to make good. He related one or two incidents to show how youth, properly advised and properly treated, would succeed in spite of early difficulties. The policeman, he wanted it known, should be regarded as the friend, not the enemy of youth. The chief has the proper idea. Efficient, tactful police officers can do wonders in keeping boys and young men from going wrong. A kindly word here and a bit of advice there will often produce just the result desired.

CAMPBELLFORD GARDEN PARTY

I.O.D.E. TO HOLD IT ON JUNE 15—REV. J. J. BLACK AT METHODIST CHURCH.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 30.—Miss Jessie Taite, of the Albert College staff, spent the week end with her friend, Miss Winnifred Armstrong, B.A.

The engagement is announced of Jerrine, second daughter of the late J. B. and Mrs. Ferris, Campbellford, to Mr. T. J. Kern, of the staff of the Standard Bank, Vancouver. The marriage will take place quietly in June.

The I.O.D.E. executive met on Saturday and decided to hold a garden party on the evening of June 15th on the spacious grounds of Dr. Macoun, Frank street. The ladies are anxious to make this garden party unique in the line of attractions, etc., and further particulars will be given later.

Rev. J. J. Black, of Burnbrae, preached a very earnest and inspiring sermon last evening in the Methodist church from 1 Kings, chap. 20, verse 28, "Because the Syrians have said, "The Lord is God of the hills but he is not God of the valleys, therefore will I deliver all this great multitude into thine hand, and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

The regular meeting of the Mission Band will be held this afternoon at 4.30 p.m. in the schoolroom of the Methodist church. The annual election of officers will take place.

Rev. H. S. and Mrs. Bennett and Miss Verna Shore attended the Baptist Young People's convention held in Peterborough last week.

Next Sunday morning the Masons will attend divine service in the Methodist church, and the Girl Guides will atend the evening service in a body.

COAL STRIKE IS THROTTLING MANY BIG INDUSTRIES

LACE AND HOSIERY FACTORIES IN NOTTINGHAM MAY HAVE TO CLOSE.

NOTTINGHAM, May 30.— (By Canadian Press.)— The coal strike is having a serious effect on the two leading industries of Nottingham; lace and hosiery. Several factories have already closed down and unless there is a settlement of the strike in the near future other factories will be forced to close down for lack of fuel. In the month of March there was a general feeling of improvement in these industries and the coal strike came just at a time when the lace and hosiery trades were making preparations for extending their operations, and thus furnishing work for many who are now out of emloyment.

THE WEATHER

The heat on Sunday was oppressive, although as a matter of fact the thermometer did not rise very high, the highest being 82 degrees in the shade. The air, however, was very moist, which caused the heat to be severely felt. In other words, the humidity was high. On Friday, the 20th, we had it up to 91 degrees. The heat on that day was not felt so much because the air was dry. A few days previous to that date we had it 86.—W.P.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat If Kidneys Feel Like Lead or Bladder Bothers.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean. The moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

WILL FINISH CHIPPEWA JOB BY SEPTEMBER

SIR ADAM BECK SHEPHERED A PARTY OF NEWSPAPER MEN THROUGH CANAL ZONE.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 28. —"Get through on time? Of course we'll get through." There isn't a man on the great Hydro-Electric Development, from the chief hydrualic engineer down to the lowliest Polack concrete puddler who doesn't swear to it. To-day Sir Adam Beck took a party of newspapermen, together with Mr. P. W. Ellis and Mr. George Wright, of the Toronto Chippawa Development that is to give Ontario ultimately half a million additional horsepower, and in every section of the work the men in charge and the workers under them gave the same confident answer to the pressing question.

The present stage of the vast undertaking, and the rapid progress being made by the never-ending labor of the day and night shifts, seems to put beyond doubt the completion of the work sufficiently to supply power by the beginning of September next. At that time two big 55,000 horsepower generators will be ready for operation, giving the Hydro--Electric Commission at once 110,000 horsepower with another 55,000 within the next few months.

To-day's survey of the work began at the power house at Queenston, which incidentally, does not bear even a scar from the recent fire. Here work is proceding swiftly and surely. All the concrete work on three generator pits has been completed and concrete was being poured into the fourth.

Generators in Place.

The two generators scheduled to operate by September were already partly in place and highly skilled workers were hard at it installing the immense valve that control flow of water through the Penstock. Sections of the Penstock for No. 1 generator were already in place and the big cut into the rock face of the 300 foot cliff was ready to receive the 12 foot steel tubing for the first generator. The power house when completed will house nine generators and will be sixty feet in length. From the power house the party went up to the forebay where a tremendous concrete work is under way. Here within a few feet of the face of the cliff are being built concrete buildings that will carry the water into the penstocks for the 300-foot drop to the power house below. While only a portion of the power house is being completed at this time, all the concrete work at the outlet of the forebay is being finished. The outlets not immediately needed will be shut off at the lock gates.

Well up to Schedule.

Engineers in charge stated that work on the forebay was about 60 to 70 per cent. completed. In view of the fact that perhaps 40 per cent. of the concrete work has been done in the last month, it appear that this part of the big scheme is well up with its schedule. The rock walls of the forebay itself and now being sprayed with granite, a cement preparation that will prevent erosion from the seepage of water through its surface.

The party was taken along the route of the Canal, a large proportion of which has already been lined with concrete. The operations of the sandsucker Cyclone, which is cutting a way through the soft earth section near the inlet, were also inspected.

SHE WOULD WALK THE FLOOR HOURS AT TIME

Toronto Woman Was in Terrible Health Before She Began Taking Tanlac—Now Feels Just Splendid.

"I am now enjoying good health or the first time in years," said Mrs. George Bathgate, 17 Bellair street, Toronto, Ont., "and I owe it all to Tanlac.

"For four years my stomach was so out of order everything I ate formed gas and bloated me up so I could hardly get my clothes on. I had acute pains in the pit of my stomach that just seemed to go clean through me. My sufferings were such at times that I had to use hot applications to get relief. I had no appetite and could only eat the lightest foods. My nerves were shattered and at night I walked the floor for hours trying to get so I could sleep. My head ached like it would burst and frequently I was taken with such a swimming in the head I nearly fell. I got to be terribly weak and while trying to do my housework would often have to quit and lie down.

"But I improved steadily almost from the first dose of Tanlac, and now am as well as I ever was in my life. I have a ravenous appetite, and never suffer a particle from indigestion, headaches, nervousness, dizziness or any other trouble. I am so much stronger it never bothers me to do my housework now. I never get tired o telling my friends about Tanlac."

UNAWARE OF BROTHER'S BREAK FOR LIBERTY

Detnon Garfield, Serving 20 Years in Penitentiary, Will Not Be Told.

KINGSTON, May 30. — Denton Garfield has nt obeen told of the escape of his brother, and will not be told. As is generally known by everyone, it is against the rules of the penitentiary to impart any information to convicts, and the mere suggestion that he would be told is absolutely unfounded. Unless news is brought to him through some underground leak, he will remain in ignorance of the escape of his brother, as not the faintest official inkling will be made to him.

NEW FISHING LAW.

A new fishing law has been passed in New York state under which it will be lawful to take from the St. Lawrence river pickerel fifteen inches long, with the limit at fifteen. Previously the law allowed the taking of pickerel not less than twenty inches, and the limit was twelve instead of fifteen.

HOUSE WARMING AT NEW RESORT ON PIGEON LAKE

NUMEROUS PARTY FROM TORONTO, DETROIT AND WINDSOR AT "KARWATHA INN" OVER WEEK-END.

Spick and span from the efforts of a corps of painters and cleaners, "Kawartha Inn," the new summer hotel on Jacob's Island, Pigeon Lake, owned and conducted by Edward G. Huff ,formerly of Peterborough, now of Detroit, was thrown open by Mr. Huff to a visiting party of prominent Detroiters, Windsorites and Torontonians, with Peterborough and Bobcaygeon also represented, on Friday, and it will doubtless be with reluctance that the numerous party will leave the hospitable abode to-morrow morning. It was a kind of house-warming party, and to say that it was an enjoyable affair in every way is to use a very mild term. A private railway car carried the twenty-five or so business and professional men from Windsor to Bobcaygeon, where they were met Friday by the large launch belonging to the hotel and taken to the island, six miles south on Pigeon Lake. Here they were the guests of Mr. Huff, who proved himself a more-than-attentive host in every regard and with indoor and outdoor sports (not of a very strenuous character it must be admitted), which included boating and fishing such as the Ontario Game and Fish laws permit at this season— hooking mudcats—the week-end passed all too quickly. William (Bill) McElroy, of Windsor, once of Peterborough, was one of the leaders in the party, while one of the leaders in the party. The genial owner, the manager, R. F. Dennis, of Chicago, and the hotel staff, spared no efforts to make the "stag" party a pleasant one and kind memories of all the all-too-short stay at the beautiful Pigeon Lake resort will be retained by each of the guests.

"Kawartha Inn" is a delightful summer resort on a lake that has been till now somewhat neglected in the matter of accommodation for summer visitors. No longer is this true. On June 1 the resort opens, prepared to accept a limited number of guests, with the capacity placed at fifty, through the desire of the proprietor to maintain only first-class service.

The Hotel Manager.

An experienced hotel manager, R. F. Dennis, of Chicago, where he was associated with the Virginia Hotel, is in charge for the summer, and it is felt that those who haunt the lakes in the summer will take kindly to the new establishment. "Kawartha Inn" was, before Mr. Huff purchased it, the summer home of a wealthy American family and was finished in de luxe fashion. It is situated at the point of Jacob's Island, overlooking the water in three directions. It is built in the English plan, is finished throughout in Georgia pine, with hardwood floors, has electric lights, tub and shower baths, long distance telephone and in every way is as complete as a well-appointed city residence. This year the house was completely renovated, repainted and the furnishing completed. Several boats have been provided and there is now every facility for boating and fishing. A powerful launch has been added to provide a direct motor boat service to Bobcaygeon for arriving and departing guests. A bowling green is contemplated and will add another attractive feature to the resort. An excellent bathing beach in which young and old can besport themselves with equal safety, enhances the enjoyment facilities and followers of Isaac Walton will find fishing in Pigeon Lake unexcelled in any of the Kawarthas. Nimrods in autumn can find duck shooting in the feeding and breeding grounds in Pigeon Creek and the hotel is expected to be a favorite resort for gunners.

The bracing air on Jacob's Island is conducive to good health and incidentally hearty appetites, and the fact that most of the food will be fresh from the farm on the island, should endear it as a summer locating-place to lovers of wholesome food, tastefully prepared, however epicurean they may be. The island is one of the largest in the Kawartha Lakes. There is 108 acres, a considerable portion of which is ideally wooded. Jacob's Island is a suitable haven for persons recovering their health or suffering from hay fever or asthma, as it is one of the highest points in the Kawartha Lakes. Situated but 14 miles from Peterborough it is within easy access of the city and the new summer resort is a splendid addition to the houses that serve the summer colony on the Kawartha Lakes and which is maintaining a superior service do much to "boost" Peterborough as the hub of a tourist Mecca besides enduring the financial reaping enjoyed by the city during the summer months.

ARCHDEACON DAVIDSON MEETING WITH SUCCESS

Fellowship Banquet in Midland District Was Largely Attended.

A number of the Anglican community from Midland attended the fellowship banquet and social held by the Church of England congregation at Waverley. Ven. Archdeacon Davidson, forward movement commissioner for this diocese, who has done such a remarkable work in Pentang, Wyebridge and Elmvale parishes, was in charge of the proceedings, and a thoroughly enjoyable evening was spent by everyone present.

After the banquet an informal fellowship meeting was held in the hall above, conducted by Archdeacon Davidson. The speeches of the evening were preceded by several rousing choruses, led by the orchestra. The parish is made up of the three stations of Elmvale, Elmwood and Waverley, and all contributed in making the gathering such a splendid success. It was essentially a laymen's meeting, and anyone called up by Archdeacon Davidson was given no opportunity to shirk.

As a former choir boy in the Archdeacon's church in Peterborough twenty-five years ago, Mr. Frank Brecken of Midland, was glad to be on hand to extend a welcome to his old friend, whom he had not seen for over fifteen years.

Rev. Rural Dean Warren extended a cordial invitation to all resent at a similar banquet when the Archdeacon visits Midland in October.

The national anthem brought to an end a gathering unique in the history of this section, but one which it is confidently hoped will be followed by many others in the near future.—Midland Free Press.

Health

Comes to you and the children if you have Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the house. For "little-ones" and "grown-ups" this old fashioned vegetable tonic and blood-maker is still used by the million bottles every year. It was first used by everybody 50 years ago and is still safe and sane because it contains no alcohol or narcotic. It is made up of Blood root, Oregon Grape root, Queen's root, Stone root, Cherry Bark, without alcohol. Make your blood redder and your health better by going to your nearest druggist and obtaining Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in tablet or liquid form.

CENTRAL BUTTE, SASK.—" I have used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for a number of years, and am pleased to recommend it as a blood purifier. I know it has no equal, as I used it for my boy. My neighbors and friends were surprised with the results; in fact, I do not think he would be alive to-day had it not been for the 'Medical Discovery. I also keep it on hand for coughs, as it differs so from other cough medicines. Instead of upsetting the stomach, almost cough syrups do, it is good for the stomach. I only wish I had known about Dr. Pierce's medicines sooner."—MRS PERCY WOOD.

World Tour For the "Dumbells"

OFFER BEING CONSIDERED BY CANADIANS NOW PLAYING ON BROADWAY.

NEW YORK, May 30.—(By Canadian Press.)—"The Dumbells," the organization of former Canadian soldiers, which is presenting "Biff! Bing! Bang!" at the Ambassador thatre on Broadway, has met with such success that the engagement has been made indefinite, the Shuberts under whose direction they are playing announced recently. The original agreement was for a limited engagement of four weeks only.

Captain Plunkett has announced that an offer for a world tour, to begin at the conclusion of the United States engagement, has been received. Under the proposed arrangement the tour would begin next winter. The company would sail from Vancouver and the first engagement be played in Honolulu. Later they would appear in Manila, Yokohoma, Nigaski, Kobe, Shanghai, Melbourne, Sydney, Queenstown, Wellington, Bombay, Calcutta, Cairo, Port Said and then in Europe where they would travel through Spain, Portugal, Italy, France and Belgium. On the return they would apear in London, England. Captain Plunkett, who manages the company, said the offer was under consideration.

ARE GENERALLY CAUSED BY CONSTIPATION

There are few, if any, complaints more common than hemorrhoids, or piles, as they are commonly called, and scarcely any which cause more trouble, annoyance and misery.

Ninety per cent. are troubled with them at some time or other, owing to allowing the bowels to become in a constipated condition.

Piles are classed under three headings, i.e., itching, bleeding and protruding, and the excruciating pains which accompany them cause misery wrich is beyond description.

Ointments and suppositories may help and relieve for a while, but to get rid of them, it is necessary to have a free, easy and natural motion of the bowels, at least once or twice a day, and by doing this the cause will be quickly removed.

Milburn's Lava-Liver Pills regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the liver and bowels, thus removing the constipation and all of its allied troubles.

They contain no calomel or drastic mineral ingredients, being purely vegetable. They are small and easy to take and do not gripe, weaken or sicken.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all druggists or dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Barnet Refrigerator

Will Be With Us on Tuesday and Wednesday

If you are contemplating the purchase of a refrigerator, it will be to your advantage to have the manifold merits of the Barnet explained to you.

There will be a Barnet on our main floor, filled with a miscellaneous collection of foodstuffs and other articles. In any ordinary refrigerator these foods would become tainted. THE BARNET IS NO ORDINARY REFRIGERATOR—IT IS UNEQUALLED!

The "Barnet" at Victoria

Here is a copy of a letter from the Victoria Health Department:

Victoria, B.C.

This certifies that at 11.30 a.m., October 29th, I opened a "Barnet" Refrigerator, manufactured by The Barnet M'f'g. Co., Limited. 48 hours previously receptacles containing milk, fish, fruits, butter, onions, cauliflower, salt, matches, etc., had been placed inside the refrigerator. The temperature was found to be 36 degrees F. The walls of the ice chamber and other apartments were dry, and the matches deposited would ignite easily when scratched on the inside walls. There were no disagreeable odors, and all the contents were fresh and showed no signs of deterioration.

ANGLICAN YOUNG PEOPLE ORGANIZE DISTRICT COUNCIL

At an enthusiastic meeting of representatives of the Anglican Young People's Associations of Millbrook, Lakefield and Peterborough, held in St. John's Parish Hall on Friday evening, a District Council of Anglican Young People's Associations was formed.

Mr. T. H. Hollingsworth of Toronto, General Secretary of the Dominion A.Y.P.A., occupied the chair, and in a most illuminating address dealt with the work of the Toronto Local Council.

Miss B. Graham of Lakefield, 3rd Vice-President of the Dominion organization, spoke upon the objects and aims of the Local Council and moved the formation of a Local Council in this district, which was unanimously carried.

Patron—His Lordship the Bishop of Toronto.

Hon. President—Miss B. Graham, Lakefield.

President—Miss J. Horsfield, St. John's, Peterborough.

Vice-President—Mr. Robt. Stone, Millbrook.

Secretary—Mr. E. G. Brown, St. John's, Peterborough.

Treasurer—Miss O. J. Johnston, All Saints', Peterborough.

Chaplain—Rev. R. B. Grobb, All Saints', Peterborough.

Executive—Mrs. Waldon, Lakefield; Mrs. Pitt, Millbrook; Miss Stone, All Saints', Peterborough; Miss G. Hood, St. John's, Peterborough.

DO ALL MY HOUSE WORK

Cobourg, Ont.—"For many years I have had trouble with my nerves and have been in a general run down condition for some time. I could not do my work half of the time because of the trouble with my monthly sickness. I was told of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by friends and advised to try it. It has done me good, and I strongly recommend it. Since I have taken it I have been able to do all my own work, and I also know friends who have found it good. You can use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. ELLEN FLATTERS, Box 761, Cobourg, Ont.

Why will women continue to suffer so long is more than we can understand, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For forty years this good old fashioned root and herb remedy, which contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

TRY THIS ON YOUR REFRIGERATOR

The soft drink season is upon us with a vengeance, and there are many other soft drinks—grape juice, loganberry, orange juice, to mix with the ginger ales. So mixed they are very refreshing and more cooling than the alcoholic drinks of yore. I you have never met the juice of an orange in a glass of ginger ale, well iced, with a little ice to clink, you have missed one of the most wholesome and refreshing drinks extant, and one especially good for the young folks.

WELL BABIES' CLINIC WILL RE-OPEN TO-MORROW

Mothers Invited to Attend and Have Babies Examined.

The Well Babies' Clinic, which was closed on the 24th of May, will re-open as usual to-morrow, Tuesday, May 31st, from 3 to 5 p.m., in the G.W.V.A. rooms. As the hot weather approaches, mothers should be especially careful to keep their babies in the best of health. Why not come to the Clinic and have them examined by the physicians in charge there?

SUNDAY CONCERTS ARE SUSPENDED

WILL BE CONTINUED IN OCTOBER AND HELD FORTNIGHTLY.

The eighth and final concert in the series of Sunday evening band concerts which have been running at the Grand Opera House for some months past, was given last evening. The house was filled with young and old. A fine programme was rendered by the Machine Gun Band, and solos were heard from the following: Violin, Joseph Nazimok; vocal, Miss Minnie Allen, Miss F. Harrison and Mr. Ted. Bartley. Major Miller made a short speech at the conclusion of the programme, announcing a continuation of these concerts for the coming season, to be given every two weeks, starting about the first of October. The series this year had been a wonderful success from every point of view, and the crowded houses at every performance were a sure indication of the trend of popular opinion in favor of these pleasant mosical evenings.

BISHOP FALLON NOT COMING TO K.C. CONVENTION

WAS TO HAVE PREACHED THE SERMON AT THE CATHEDRAL ON TUESDAY MORNING—K. OF C. CLUB FLIES WELCOME FLAGS

A profusion of flags and bunting waved a gay and cordial welcome this afternoon to the first delegates who arrived at the Knights of Columbus Club, for the eighteenth annual convention of the Ontario State Council, which is being held here tomorrow and on Wednesday. A marquee tent and other evidences of the hospitality that has been warmed for the visitors added their splash of colour to the scheme.

Early to-day everything was ready for the reception of the delegates, the majority of whom will reach the city to-night. The grounds were decorated by J. J. Turner and Sons, Ltd., and to supplement the seating accommodation of the K. of C. Hall, chairs were obtained from the Salvation Army citadel across the way on Simcoe street. The local committee have their plans complete and ready for functioning, and it is confidently expected that this convention will attain the success that has been set for it.

The news that Bishop Fallon, of London, would be unable to attend, was a decided disappointment. He was to have preached the sermon at the high mass at St. Peter's tomorrow morning, and also to speak at the closing banquet on Wednesday night. The local members were eagerly looking forward to his visit and to the opportunity of hearing on of the most forceful orators in the Catholic church in Canada. Rev. Father Murray of Penetang, will preach the sermon at the Cathedral.

Committees from the Catholic Women's League are generously cooperating in the entertainment of the delegates and their wives. Their assistance in the preparations has been invaluable and as abundant as it has been willing and spontaneous.

The programme for the two days' convention which will bring at least 125 visitors to Peterboro from all parts of the province, is given as follows in the official schedule.

Tuesday, May 31st.

8:30 a.m.—Officers and delegates assemble at the K. of C. Club House, 216 Simcoe street, and march in a body to St. Peter's Cathedral.

9:00 a.m.—Solemn High Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral. Sermon by Rev Murray Murray of Penetang.

10:45 a.m.—Delegates re-assemble at the K. of C. Hall. Civic reception by His Worship, Mayor McIntyre and ex-Mayor Duffus, P. G. K., President of Peterboro Chamber of Commerce.

11:30 a.m.—Convention opened. Appointment of Committees, etc.

2:00 p.m.—Convention called for general business.

8:30 p.m.—Social evening at K. of C. rooms and grounds to the visiting delegates and friends.

Wednesday, June 1st.

9:00 a.m.—Convention resumes.

1:30 p.m.—The visiting ladies will be the guests of K. of C. ladies. A boat trip on the Otonabee will be the feature. Boat leaves George street wharf.

4:00 p.m.—Delegates will join the ladies for a boat trip over the celebrated Lift Lock.

8:30 p.m.—Bridge party for the visiting ladies.

Members and their lady friends are specially invited to attend the receptions at the club on Simcoe street to-night and to-morrow night.

AT THE THEATERS

AT THE ALLEN.

AT THE ALLEN.
MISS FREDERICK'S LATEST STARRING VEHICLE.

Atmosphere in 'Roads of Destiny' New Goldwyn Production Correct to the Last Detail.

The story is one of that famous author's, O. Henry, adapted for the screen by Channing Pollock. Miss Frederick herself is very enthusiastic about "Roads of Destiny," and believes she has found a big theme, which is bound to make an impressive photoplay and one that will not be easily forgotten. She makes her first apeparance in a modest little street costume sauntering in the midst of the laughing, whilrling couples in the barn dance. No matter in what gown or what particular type of individual Miss Frederick may be portraying, she always adapts herself to the character's circumstances, making her role as realistic as possible. In the barn dance she enters the throng, and laughs, jollies and enjoys herself with the crowd of extras as though she were actually living in the olden days when the barn dance with the old fashioned music and surroundings was the regular nightly amusement. The young folks arrive in a big hay rack and the lighting for the hall is furnished by oil lamps with typical glass pendants tinkling from the chains and one can imagine the sweet musical sound as the wind catches them each time the door opens. The atmosphere of this new picture is perfect.

The costumes are of the kind that your grandmothers wore years ago. Every setting in the picture is faithful to the last detail of the country interiors and exteriors. Many of the members of the older generation who see this picture will recognize familiar scenes attended in younger days.

BOTH MARRIED AND UNMARRIED WILL LAUGH

A departure from Mack Sennett Comedy tradition is promised in the Comedy King's latest fire-reel super-production ,"Love, Honor and Behave,' the First National attraction at the Allen Theatre to-day, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Charlie Murray, hero of a million episodes, will be introduced in a role of legitimate appeal. He will impersonate a "grave and reverend" Judge of the Supreme Court, playing the part with dignity and power. This revolutionary role will be revealed in the opening scenes of the story when Justice and Romance will come in contact.

Marie Prevost, a bride, and George O'Hara, her young husband ,appear before "Judge" Murray, carrying to the halls of justice the fragrance of a romance about to die. Here, it is pointed out, is a sincere and authentic picture of dramatic material, treated in a sympathetic and dignified manner, with ever so slight a wink of the eye on the part of the learned jurist. Not long, however, does the plot remain in the atmosphere of staid drama, for the jurist, in order to convince the jealous bride of the innocence of her bridegroom, tells a story of his own experience when he too was a bridgroom; the said story's purport being to discredit circumstantial evidence.

It is this story that forms the bulk of the episodes depicted in "Love, Honor and Behave" — episodes that bring Murray back to his traditional characterization in hilarious fun and thrilling predicaments. Murray's story which is seen on the screen but spoken to her, convince the piquant Marie of the injustice of her suspicions and the integrity of her husband's love. It incidentally bears a moral for the married and the unmarried, but mainly it promotes mirth, unrestrained laughter and genuine thrills.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Capitol Offers a Splendid Picture and Vaudeville Program to-night—The Famous Kiralfy Children in a Novel Specialty.

To-night Tuesday and Wednesday and the usual Wednesday mid-week matinee the program offered at the Capitol should attract capacity crowds at every performance—Calvin and Verona—the Famous Kiralfy children, who have just closed a long engagement over the entire Pantage circuit from coast to coast. Their novel offering consists of songs comedy talk, violin solos and novel and original international dances. Beautifully costumed this splendid act combined with an excellently arranged short reel program of comedies, news weeklies and serial and a very unusual feature Picture Ina Claire, the Belasco stage star, in "Polly With a Past", adapted by June Mathis from the theatrical success by George Middleton and Guy Bolton.

It was this play which brought Miss Claire, for nearly a year now engaged in enacting the principal role in "The Gold Diggers", at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, to stardom. The story has to do with a young girl, come from the country to study for the operatic stage but forced by circumstances finally to be a housemaid. There the friends of Rex Van Zile, in an effort to interest that impressionable young man from another woman they detest, prevail upon Polly Sharon to assume a past of an interestingly brilliant hue. And there properly or perhaps improperly—the story really begins.

In support of Miss Claire are Ralph Graves, as Rex; Marie Wainwright, Harry Benham, Clifton Webb, Louizita Valentine and Myra Brooks. The production, directed and supervised personally by Maxwell Karger, Metro director general was photographed by Arthur Martinelli.

The usual excellent music of the Capitol Concert Orchestra and the splendid ventilating system at the Capitol makes this splendid new Theatre the coolest and coziest spot in the city to enjoy a good show. Fan! Fan!

AT THE REGENT.

"RIO GRANDE" BREATHES THE ROMANCE OF THE BORDER LINE

"Rio Grande," the Edwin Carewe-Pathe feature production on view at the Regent Theatre for three days commencing to-day ,is an outdoor story. It gets it name from the river that separates Mexico from the United States. Across orange-colored, sun scorched deserts, the silvery Rio Grande winds its way, while the purple hills, their peaks forming a jagged silhouette against the blue sky, watch the history of that romantic land.

Augustus Thomas' story of "Rio Grande" concerns itself with the charming love affair of a certain brown-eyed Senorita on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande, and a bold and adventurous Irish-American on the Texas side. Rosemary Theby and Allan Sears were chosen for the leading roles because of their peculiar suitability for the parts, and the remainder of the cast was equally well chosen. Mr. Carewe staged the picture in Texas on the very spot Mr. Thomas wrote about.

Free to All Races

A test of the new way to beautify teeth

This offer is now made almost the world over. It is published in many languages. Millions of people of many races have thus found a way to fight film on teeth.

That dingy film

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. Feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Your tooth brush used in old ways leaves much of it intact.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Teeth not clean

Film-coated teeth are unclean. That is why so many teeth brushed daily discolor and decay. Tooth troubles have been constantly increasing, and film is the cause of most of them.

Dental science, therefore, has sought ways to fight the film. Two ways have now been found. Able authorities have proved their efficiency. Now leading dentists everywhere advise their daily use.

The methods are embodied in a modern tooth paste—Pepsodent. And millions of people now enjoy its benefits.

Acts in 5 ways

Pepsodent does more than combat film. It also fights starch deposits on teeth and acids.

It multiplies the salivary flow. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling and may otherwise form acids. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause decay.

Each use brings five effects which modern authorities regard as essential. It is bringing a new dental era.

One week tells

One week will show you what this new method means. It will change all your ideas on teeth cleaning.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Judge then what is best for you and yours by what you see and feel. Cut out the coupon now.

INTELLIGENCE VS. BRUTE STRENGTH WILL BE TESTED BY CARPENTIER

SAYS HE REALIZES THAT THE ODDS WILL BE AGAINST HIM BUT WILL PIT HIS BRAINS AGAINST DEMPSEY'S BRAWN.

MANHASSET, N.Y., May 28. — Georges Carpentier realizes that in Jack Dempsey he will meet the greatest fighter of his career, and that victory, if it comes to him, must be gained by what he terms superior fighting intelligence, Carpentier's estimate of Dempsey, as revealed in a conversation with a British sportsman, will be interesting to Canadians who are following the training progress of the pugilists.

"I shall face Jack Dempsey, confident that he is the strongest, and fiercest man against whom I have dared to put on the goves," declared the challenger. "There is joy in the prospect of meeting such a man. I will go into the ring with the odds against me. Undoubtedly Dempsey will be the favorite, not because of sentiment or prejudice, or blind partisanship, but because his great strength is at once obvious and unquestionable.

"It is possible that in a trial of sheer, or what you may say brute strength, he would prove to be my superior; but I hold that while power, the ability to hit with almost abnormal force, is a primary qualification, fighting science is also of the first importance. I do not say that these qualities Dempsey does not possess. If I may say so, I have not, at this time of the day, formed definite ideas as to how the fight will shape itself, but all the probabilities are that Dempsey will gamble evertyhing on his splendid physique; if he wins, he will win a triumph for uncompromising fighting; if victory comes to me, it will be because of what, without offence, I would call superior fighting intelligence.

"My physical condition is already satisfactory, for it is not a fact, part from the matches with Dick Smith, Joe Beckett and Battling Levinsky, I have enjoyed a holiday since I finished my life in the army. I have worked hard and incessantly, and I have faith that I shall enjoy perfect physical fitness on the day of the fight. My training will be done as I have always done it—quietly, seriously, away from crowds and as climate and circumstances generally dictate."

LACROSSE NOTES

The Campbellford and Peterboro Juniors will open the local lacrosse group on Thursday, June 23. Hastings is the only other district team represented at the meeting in Hastings on Saturday afternoon, when the junior schedule was drawn up. Havelock could put up a big and fast team in this series, but they preferred to try their chances in the intermediate round which from all accounts they have a good chance of winning.

Eddie Foley and B. O'Connel were Johnny Sutherland's delegates to the meeting of which Harry Tudhope was the convenor. They improved their visit by sitting in on a juvenile game between the youngsters of Hastings and Campbellford, and the way those kids handled their sticks, with the finish and skill of veterans, opened the eyes of the Peterboro pair. They came home convinced that the local juniors must get down to practicing in earnest, and to that end the candidates for the team will be permitted to take their sticks home for use whenever they get the opportunity.

Peterboro juniors are convinced that they can win this district, but they now realize that they will have to work hard and steadily to turn the trick. To that end they have agreed to run from the Y. M. C. A. to the Nicholls Oval on practice nights. This is George Robertson's idea and the boys have promptly accepted it. They have three full weeks for practice and they should make the most of that time. The small town youngsters in this district must not be underestimated. They have been keeping a hand in the game for three or four years, and they play it more regularly than baseball. But at that, the Peterboro juniors have a good chance to take the district, providing they get down to their best work.

June 23—Campbellford at Peterborough.
July 1—Peterborough at Hastings.
July 15—Hastings at Campbellford.
July 29—Peterborough at Campbellford.
August 11—Hastings at Peterborough.
August 17—Campbellford at Hastings.

CHASED BY COPS HE THOUGHT WERE BANDITS, FINED $29.10 FOR EXCEEDING SPEED LIMIT

POLICE WERE ON SILENT SEARCH FOR HOLD-UP OUTFIT IN MONAGHAN WHEN THEY FLUSHED A CAR AND FINALLY RAN IT DOWN.

A case of mistaken identity cost a local young man employed in a garage $20 and $9.10 costs in police court to-day. The police were investigating a reported hold-up in North Monaghan last night when they saw this young man dart out from a dark place in the road at a terrific speed Thinking they had the man they were seeking they gave full chase. On the other hand, the young man thought the police auto contained a gang of bandits so silently did it come up on him. He had $160 of the company's money in his pocket so this added incentive to his flight. Over the country roads they tore and when the police car turned into the Gravel road Chief Newhall said the speedometer showed fifty miles an hour. Still the pursued was leaving them behind. To make a long story short the police car caught him at Frederick avenue, after going 58 miles an hour at the boundary.

Both were more or less nonplussed when they saw each other. He was charged with reckless driving on Charlotte street and pleaded guilty. "I'm going to make a fine so you'll remember it. I consider it a very srious offence," said Magistrate Dumble. You had another life in your car which you endangered." "Yes the results might have been very very serious. It might have been a case of manslaughter" added Crown Attorney Hatton. The police started him on his mad course but the young man preferred to end the affair by pleading guilty. He was fined $20 and $9.10 costs. It is understood a conviction for the same offence in the country will be pressed for by Provincia Constable Stratton.

LAST DAY OF THE PIANO SALE

ONLY ONE MORE DAY TO BUY AN INSTRUMENT AT THE RARE PRICES.

To-morrow, May 31st is the termination of Heintzman and Co's stock-taking sale of pianos, which has been going on for some time past, at clearance prices. This sale has been conducted on conditions that make it very easy and attractive to buyers. The used pianos taken in exchange for new instruments have been thoroughly overhauled and are guaranteed in good playing condition. Parties who have appreciated the rare values offered at this sale in both new and used instruments have not been slow to take advantage of these bargains. The prices are not only low but the terms are made convenient to the purchaser. Some of the instruments have come from fine homes, others have been out on rental. No matter what style, finish or quality you wish for, you will find it at this sale. Do not let this rare opportunity pass. People who consider a new piano beyond their means can have their dreams of "Music in the home" realized by selecting a used instrument at the reduced price to-morrow. Don't delay.

ROTARIANS HAD BREEZY LUNCHEON AT EMPRESS

The regular weekly luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club, held at the Empress Hotel to-day, was a very jolly affair, with an overflow attendance. Rotarian Dr. A. W. McPherson was the speaker of the day, and gave a fine talk on "Germs." The meeting was also addressed by Rotarian Tom Battle, of Niagara Falls, Ontario, and Rotarian W. J. Hickey, an old Peterborough boy, now in Welland. The two latter are attending the Knights of Columbus Convention here. Rotarian Fred L. Roy, president of the local society, occupied the chair.

NATIONAL UNITY

(La Patrie)

Those who have reproached the French-Canadian population for lack of a patriotic ideal, ought to be led to reconsider their judgment after the popular manifestations which marked Empire Day. It is the first occasion that we can recall of the two races having fraternized and united in one patriotic outburst of one and the same sentiment, to commemorate a heroic page in the history of French Canada, and to express new aspirations for Canada's development under the aegis of the British flag. Citizens of the two nationalities mingled together in decorating with flowers the monuments alike of Edward VII., Cartier and Dollard des Ormeaux, and in glorifying the different epochs these names recall to memory. This inspires the thought that national unity, acknowledged to be so essential to the future grandeur of our country, is being gradually accomplished.

GORDON CUP FINAL RE-PLAY IS TO-DAY

The Gordon Cup final replay will be played at Riverside Park to-night, kick-off at 6 p.m. sharp.

The teams of the C.G.E. and Caledonians will both be at full strength and a real battle will be the result.

The executive and all clubs concerned are anxious to make this a financial success, and the winning team will have the entire Peterborough football fans behind them in their encounters in the Ontario Cup finals.

W. Cook, president of the P.F.A., has returned from the Ontario Football Council meeting and will give his report at to-night's executive meeting.

William G. McAdoo expressed the opinion that the day of rehabilitation for Mexico is dawning and that President Obregon and his colleagues are likely to succeed in establishing a new era of peace, order and prosperity.

ROSE'S STEADY PITCHING, THE GREAT FIELDING OF THE SOLOMON CREW AND TIMELY HITTING BY LOWE AND HARRISON TURNED THE TRICK—PRESENTATION TO MANAGER SOLOMON.

A 3-1 victory over Oshawa, a huge crowd, and a presentation to Manager Jake Solomon, of the Petes, featured the local Central Ontario League opening at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon. It was a great crowd, a great game and a great victory.

Oshawa, with their much-heralded left-handed pitching phenom, Danty, from Michigan, via Chatham, and fresh from a holiday victory over Freddy Goyer, expected to win handily agains tthe Petes. Manager Solomon, however, matched Lornie Rose against the visiting ace, and brilliantly supported in the field by his team mates and with the timely hitting of Harrison and Lowe, the Peterborough right hander won the verdict. It was a fine battle, in which Rose allowed seven hits, while six were nicked of Danty's delivery. Rose, however, kept the Oshawa blows widely distributed, while on the other hand the Petes bunched four of them in two innings against Danty and they did a lot of damage. Danty had a wide margin in strike-outs, ten against two, but the visiting twirler passed two men and hit another, while Rose failed to issue a free ticket.

The fact that neither team scored in the last six innings shows that the pitchers had a big edge on the batters.

Danty, Oshawa's new gunner, has a world of speed and a good curve as well, and the hitters around the Central League circuit will not fatten their averages much off his delivery, although Hap Harrison found his offerings to his liking and helped himself to a triple and two singles in four times up.

Peterborough got off on the wrong foot, when Holyman, playing left field, dropped a fly from the bat of Gifford, the first Oshawa batter. Rose wild pitched him to second and Fair promptly scored him with a single, and the visitors had counted right off the reel. But that one was all they were destined to get.

The Petes came right back with a brace in the second. Harrison started it by cracking a single through the box and was sacrificed to second by Swanston. Pinnette hit to Fair, and when the latter tried to get Harrison, Rowden dropped the ball and everybody was safe. Belding very kindly assisted by letting one of Danty's shoots get away from him and Harrison trotted over to third and Pinnette to second. It was up to Stan. Lowe, and he came through with a slashing liner down the left field foul line that sent Harrison and Pinnette home and enabled him to reach second. He was caught off that sack a moment later, but as the game turned out, it really did not matter, for the winning run was already in. A tremendous clout to right field by Harrison, after Murray had beaten out a bunt, gave the Petes their last run in the third. Harrison's triple would have meant two runs if Cherrett had not got caught on the bases on Murray's bunt.

The Peterborough infield repeated their Cobourg performance, working smoothly and confidently behind Rose, and the inner guard of the Petes looks like the class of the league. They have only had one error in two games.

The fixture was replete with neat fielding plays. Cherrett and Ray Rose pulled down line drives in great style. Murray went far out into foul territory to capture a fly, Lowe made a sensational catch of a long drive to right. Fair, the Oshawa third sacker, contributed two or three smart plays and Danty robbed Swanston of a hit by grabbing his screaming liner with one hand.

The Opening Ceremonies.

A pleasing feature of the opening ceremonies was the presentation of a floral horseshoe and a gold watch to Manager Jake Solomon, a testimonial of the appreciation of the fans for his efforts on behalf of baseball. The players on both teams were called up to the home plate and His Worship Mayor McIntyre read the following address:

Peterborough, May 28, 1921.

Manager J. J. Solomon,
Peterboro' Baseball Club:

As a mark of the appreciation of the fans of Peterborough for your feat in piloting the Peterborough team to the championship of the Central Ontario League last season and for your great services on behalf of baseball here, this testimonial has been arranged. We recognize that the splendid revival of amateur baseball in Peterborough has been due largely to your devoted interest in the game and we know that it is because of that interest that Peterborough has been so well represented on the diamond. We ask you to accept these gifts as a silght indication of our regard for you, wishing you and your ball club every success in the present season.

The Fans of Peterborough.

The presentation of the watch was then made by Ald. Nagle Phelan, while little Miss Dorothy Clarke presented the floral horseshoe, which was composed of American beauties. The Petes' pilot acknowledged the latter gift by gallantly kissing the little lady.

Mayor McIntyre hurled the first ball, with Ald. J. J. Turner at the bat and Ald. Phelan doing the catching. The Mayor's delivery did not show much speed, but the best the batter could get was two fouls, so His Worship must have had something on the ball.

BY INNINGS.

First Innings.

Oshawa—Gifford was safe when Holyman dropped his fly to left, and went to second on a passed ball. Fair's single to left sent the run over, but the batter was caught at second trying to get an extra base on the throw to the plate. Cherrett made a jumping catch of Rowden's liner that looked like a sure hit. Thompson skied to Cherrett. One run, one hit, one error.

Peterborough—Cherrett and Murray struck out. Ray Rose rolled to Fair. No runs, hits or errors.

Second Innings.

Oshawa—Dobson flied to Lowe. Lornie Rose tossed out Whattam, and Belding's line drive was gathered in by Ray Rose. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Harrison cracked a single through the box and went to second on Swanston's sacrifice. Pinnette grounded to Fair and Harrison was caught between second and third, but got back to second when Rowden muffed the throw, Pinnette reaching first. The pair moved up on a passed ball and then Stan Lowe cracked a double down the left field foul line, scoring Harrison and Pinnette. Lowe was caught off second, Danty to Rowden. Holyman awlked. L. Rose was tossed out by Belding on his tap in front of the plate. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Third Innings.

Oshawa—Legge sinled to left and went to second on Danty's infield out, L. Rose to Harrison. Gifford fanned. Lowe made a great catch of Fair's long fly to right. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough— Cherrett walked. Murray bunted safely down the first base line and Cherrett was caught trying to go to third on the play, Murray reaching second. He went to third on Rose's tap to Dobson. Harrison tripled to right field, scoring Murray. Fair made a nice play on Swanston's roller. One run, two hits, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Oshawa—Legge singled to left and son, Thompson doubled to right. Dobson rolled to Cherrett, who tossed Thompson out at third. Whattam fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough — Pinnette fanned. Lowe grounded to Fair. Gifford threw out Holyman. No runs, hits or errors.

Fifth Innings.

Oshawa — Belding flied to Ray Rose. Legge hit to Ray Rose and was out at first. Danty singled to right and went to second on a passed all. Gifford singled to right and Danty was out at the plate, Lowe to Swanston, being called out for running off the line in dodging Swanston. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Peterorough—Lornie Rose struck out. Cherrett rolled to Dobson. Murray missed three. No runs, hits or errors.

Sixth Innings.

Oshawa— Fair grounded to Ray Rose. Rowden hoisted to Cherrett. Ray Rose tossed out Thompson. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterorough— Ray Rose missed three. Harrison singled through short, his third successive hit, and stole second. Swanston fanned and Pinnette followed suite. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

Oshawa—Dobson was out on a tap to L. Rose. Whattam popped to Harrison. Belding was safe when Murray missed his roller down the third base line. Murray made a fine catch of Legge's high foul. No runs or hits, one error.

Peterborough—Lowe struck out. Holyman singled over third. Lornie Rose bunted a foul fly to Belding in trying to sacrifice. Holyman stole second. Cherrett's fly in short left was nicely taken by Gifford. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Eight Innings.

Oshawa — Danty doubled over Holyman's head in left. Gifford flied to Pinnette. Fair also hoisted one to the centre fielder and Danty went to third after the catch. Murray gathered in Rowden's roller and got the batter at first. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough — Murray was hit and Cherrett ran for him. Cherrett stole second and went to third on Ray Rose's out; Fair to Dobson. Harrison missed three. Swanston's liner, that looked like a sure hit, was engulfed in Danty's gloved hand, the play cutting off a run. No runs, hits or errors.

Ninth Innings.

Oshawa—Thompson flied to Holyman. Dobson singled over second. Jubb, batting for Whattam, hit to Lornie Rose and Dobson was forced at second. He saved a double play by throwing up his arm in the way of Ray Rose's throw and got away with the interference. Jubb stole second. Belding's high fly near the box was neatly captured by Cherrett and the game was over.

The score:

A WELL-EARNED TRIBUTE

The presentation to Manager Jake Solomon, of the Petes, on Saturday was a fitting tribute to the peppery local pilot.

Manager Solomon, who was responsible for the organisation of the Central Ontario Baseball League and also for the formation of the East Peterborough Baseball League, has always provided the local fans with a hustling, snappy ball club. In his first year the Petes tied with Belleville in the League honours, and last year, after they had lost the first game to Belleville, "Jake" again assumed the managership of the crew, and under his guidance they won nine straight games and the Central Ontario title. And they came within an ace of bringing the senior Ontario championship to Peterborough.

This year he has his club off in front, and if they do not win the pennant, they will be out there fighting all the time.

As a leader, Manager Solomon is as much in a class by himself in the Central Ontario as he is as a drawing card around the circuit. The local players have learned a lot of baseball from "Jake," and he has the knack of keeping his squad interested and trying all the way. In a ball game he fights for every point, argues with the umpire and the opposing team, and battles like "Mugsy" McGraw or Johnnie Evers. But he is never rowdy, never profane or abusive in his remarks during the verbal arguments he is generally engaged in, and off the field he is everybody's friend. He is the life of baseball in Peterborough, and puts "pep" in every game the Petes play.

And in the other League towns he is a magnet that draws fans to the ball park. They go there to see "Jake" in action on the coaching lines, and hopeful of being able to have a laugh at the expense of the Petes' leader if the game goes against his outfit. Sometimes they give him a warm reception, but usually he has had the last laugh as his team has nearly always come through with a win.

The testimonial given "Jake" on Saturday has been richly earned. Without him baseball would never have attained the popularity it has reached in Peterborough. The scrappy leader of the Petes is even more popular with his players than he is with the fans. The whole of Peterborough's fandom is solidly behind him and his clever squad in their attempt to bring the Central Ontario pennant to Peterborough for the second time in succession.

PETES AWAY FOR THREE OUT OF NEXT FOUR GAMES

The Central Ontario League race this year promises to be the most interesting in the history of the organization, with every game a scrap. Manager Solomon has got his Petes off to a flying start by winning the first game away from home and then cutting the comb of the cocky Oshawa crew, but the Petes will have to be on their toes all the way to stay up. They are idle this week, but next week they play Lindsay twice: in Lindsay on the Wednesday and back at Riverside on Saturday. The following week calls for the Petes to play twice on the road, visiting Port Hope on the 15th and Oshawa on the 18th. With three out of the next four games on foreign fields, it will be a severe test for the Solomon crew, but from the Manager down the Petes are a scrappy gang, and are generally at their best away from home.

Saturday was a great day for Stan. Lowe. The Petes' right fielder drove two runs in with a timely double, and followed this feat by cutting off two Oshawa counters, the first by a sensational catch and the second by a perfect throw to the plate.

Danty, the Oshawa twirler, has a style all his own. When he gets the ball from the catcher he walks half way out to second base and then marches back to the rubber and gets ready to pitch.

There was a great gathering of baseball enthusiasts from all over the district to see Saturday's battle. Among those noticed were: Past President Sandy Lockington, of Port Hope; E. Parsons, of Oshawa, vice-president of the Central Ontario League; F. Moynes, of Lindsay, member of the O.B.A.A. Executive, and Coombes and Williamson, of the Lindsay Central Ontario League team.

While Sandy Lockington was watching the Oshawa-Peterborough battle here on Saturday the Cobourg gang slipped into Port Hope and nosed out the Ontarios 6 to 5. It was an unpleasant surprise for the Hopers.

The Lindsay team visit Belleville on Wednesday, and the game will show whether or not Oulette is as good as his seventeen strike-outs against Port Hope indicate.

C.G.E. and Hamilton's clash in a City League game at Riverside Park to-morrow night at 6 o'clock. It should be a lively battle.

	Won.	Lost.
Peterborough	2	0
Lindsay	1	0
Cobourg	1	1
Oshawa	1	1
Belleville	0	1
Port Hope	0	2

Bob Ross was out of Saturday's game at his own request. His batting strength would have been a big asset, but Bob was not feeling up to the mark, and he asked "off" for the day, so he still leads the Petes' hitters with a perfect batting average.

Hap Harrison, in two games, has hit at a .625 clip, and his five safeties include a home run, a triple and a double.

Practice Tomorrow Night

The Peterborough Central Ontario League team will practise at Riverside Park to-morrow (Tuesday) afternoon at 5 o'clock and on Wednesday at 6 o'clock. A full turn-out of players is requested at both these work-outs.

TORONTO, May 30 (Canadian Press).—Giving a wonderful exhibition of Association football, the visiting Scottish team on Saturday defeated a selected Toronto eleven by 4 goals to 1.

The Scots were superior in every department of the game, but Toronto was unfortunate to be without their centre-half for three-quarters of the first half, during which time two of the opponents' goals were notched.

RIVAL TEAMS MEET AGAIN ON TUESDAY

Canadian Generals and Hamilton's should provide an interesting game at Riverside Park to-morrow evening. It will be their second meeting. General having won the first game. Cousins will heave for Hamilton's and Frost for the C.G.E. All three teams in the City League are tied with one win and one loss apiece.

Lock Works and Cressman's are down for the Mercantile League game at Riverside on Thursday evening.

Society

The Rev. Edward R. and Mrs. James, The Rectory, Omemee, Ont., announce the engagement of their second daughter, Louisa Gwendoline, to Mr. Robert C. Harris, son of Dr. A. P. Rawson Harris, M.R.C.S., R.C.P., Tenbury Wells, Cornwall, England, the marriage to take place about the end of June.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Hartshorn, Stewart Street, takes place at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Wednesday, June 1st, at 10.30 a.m.

Miss Olive Conway, Downie Street, was the hostess at a miscellaneous shower given last Friday afternoon in honor of Miss Madelon Parker, whose marriage takes place on Friday, June 3rd. About 25 of Miss Parker's friends were present. Mrs. Jos. Mills was in charge of the tea-table, Mrs. B. D. Hall cut the ices, and the assistants were the Misses Jessie Mervin, Mamie Cottingham and Isabel Nesbitt. Miss Parker also received a number of handsome and useful articles at a miscellaneous shower given in her honor by the Young Ladies' Missionary Circle of Trinity Church at the home of Mrs. Thos. Cruikshank, Park Street, on Friday evening, at which over 30 of the class were present. The different articles were placed in an immense basket, adorned with crepe paper, bridal wreath foliage and tiny celluloid dolls.

Ladies' Wear Store

Wednesday, June 1st

One Door South of Present Fur Store
Barrie Building—Next Custom House

12 Months of steadily shrinking values and successive reductions in prices have been like the tonic of a cold bath.

Back of the critical days of the past year there has been 21 years of contact between "Barries" and its public and 54 years of continuous Fur service since this business was founded in Peterborough by our predecessors. Years of service rendered from the heart and not simply from the eye and lips—putting first in each transaction the interest of the customer—co-operation with everything which goes to make a better community—with an honest pride in Peterborough and its qualifications to be a fine and exceptional residence and manufacturing centre.

No store was ever successful in the true sense of that term whose resources were wholly within itself.

Community confidence and community support, strengthened and deepened in prosperity and adversity, through fair weather and foul, are indispensably requisite to growth in material resources and in the ability to render still better service, for which Barrie's devoutly give thanks to-day.

The future is one we face in confidence, therefore this new LADIES' WEAR STORE! We wish every citizen to come in and see the goods we are able to offer. REPRESENTATIVE PRICES will be given on each article offered—NOT SPECIALS. Our policy is to give new merchandise at old-fashioned prices. Barrie's Quality, Style and Value—to make and keep permanent customers, based on present-day reductions in prices, rather than "special sale" out-of-date garments or cheaply made materials and workmanship.

WORKERS MAKE ANOTHER STEP TOWARD PEACE

RAILWAYMEN'S EMBARGO ON IMPORTED COAL LIFTED AFTER HAVING PROVEN UNQUALIFIED FAILURE.

LLOYD GEORGE'S STAND

LONDON, May 31.— (Canadian Press.)—Another step towards industrial peace in Great Britain was taken to-day when the locomotive engineers dropped their embargo against transporting imported or what has been known as "tainted" coal, in an effort to support the miners now on strike. The embargo was a failure.

LONDON, May 31.— (Canadian Press.)—Following is a summary of Mr. Lloyd-George's attitude on the coal strike as prepared by a London newspaper writer and based upon the British Prime Minister's recent speeches on the strike situation.

The first thing is to get rid of the notion that there are huge profits in the mines and that the grasping capitalists are trying to rob the miners of their share.

The mines are not paying, because prices tumbled down suddenly.

If the price of home coal were increased the cost of every article would go up.

Theer is no conspiracy to reduce wages, but the taxpayers cannot be asked to contribute to keep up the wages of one industry.

Government control has done more to destroy the case for nationalization than a million speeches have done.

If we surrender to threats and starvation and make an improvident peace, we may be irretrievagly damaging the industries of the country.

While a certain amount of damage has been done by a false report that the government intended to compel settlement of the strike by arbitration, notably in Wales, Nottinghamshire and Lanarkshire where the miners voted against accepting the Government's proposal, a denial has cleared the atmosphere and directed attention to the advantages of voluntary arbitration. Secretary Hodges openly declared to-day for voluntary agreement, "even though it means deviation from our original purpose. If the owners have an alternative to the miner proposals let them produce it, quickly for the men are not wedded to words or a particular idea."

URGE STIFFER DRUG PENALTY

IMPRISONMENT WITH LASHES FOR SECOND AND SUBSEQUENT OFFENSES AND DEPORTATION FOR ALIENS.

ASK BAN ON HYPO NEEDLE

OTTAWA, May 31. — Canadian Press. A general stiffening of the penalties for those found guilty of infractions of the opium and narcotic drug act, is being urged upon the Federal health department and the Dominion government by Boards of Trade and City Councils in various parts of Canada.

Some of the penalties suggested include imprisonmtnt with lashes for the second and subsequent offences against the act, and deportation in the case of convicted aliens.

The government is also being urged to prohibit the sale of hypodermic needles, and to make a thorough investigation of the subject of chloral and its derivatives.

CONTESTANTS IN "BLACK BEAUTY"

A STRANGE ARRAY OF DRAWINGS SUBMITTED.

All sorts and sizes of drawings came in for the Capitol Theatre "Black Beauty" competition on Saturday last. Large and small, on white, pink and blue paper, on cardboard and tissue, on wallpaper even, (as one fiery steed appeared), in crayon, encil, pen and ink, and water-color, in faintly-etched outlines or full panoply of heavy black with gleaming eyes and crimson nostrils, shod and unshod, with or without a scenic backgrounds. One grazed by the light of the moon, one fed from a bright green trough, while still another beamed from the side of a fair equistrienne, complete with habit and riding crop. With expressions fierce or frisky or abnormally mild, "Black Beauty" stood or galloped or paused in the act of demolishing a fence. One was equipped with a nose-bag, another had been caught in a sliding posture, still another with large, mild eyes and no ears surveyed the scene with manifest dejection. Many had their tails docked, one was lamentably swaybacked, one very knock-kneed and still another suffered from a bad case of blind staggers. Members of the burro family were here, of the buckin broncho, of the wild prairie horse with shaggy mane and tail, of the Clydesdale, all ready for a heavy load, and of the racer, with abnormally small front legs. Some had evidently been pictured of Black Beauty's gloomier days, when he was a dreary cab horse, others portrayed him as a gay and frolicsome young colt, but the popular conception was of the victorious coal-black racer. One realistic young artist left him in a mid-air leap, with every nail showing plainly in his four shoes, One and all, however, they gave evidence of much thought and care on the part of some of the very young children who "drawed" the pictures, and in many cases of a real talent for drawing, so that it was a matter of considerable thought to make the three awards.

TRAIN CRASHES INTO TRACTION CAR; HURTS 50

FLYER, LOADED TO CAPACITY WITH PEOPLE RETURNING FROM INDIANAPOLIS AUTO RACES, WRECKED.

TWO INJURED MAY DIE

EDINBURGH, Ind., May 31. — Canadian Press.—From fifty to sixty persons were injured, two of them probably fatally, and several seriously, last night, when a Pennsylvania train crashed in the Dixie flyer, a fast Indianapolis, Columbus and Southern traction car, carrying a trailer, at the track intersection here.

An emergency hospital was made out of a physician's office and the injured were taken there for medical attention. All the available doctors were rushed to the place.

Many women and children were among those hurt. Most of the men injured were in the smoking compartment of the head car.

The flyer was en route from Indianapolis to Louisville and was carrying many persons from the automobile race at Indianapolis. The front car was turned over and the motorman's vestibule was torn off and thrown against the side of a building some distance away. Both the car and the trailer were loaded to capacity. The traction line is on the main street here and the accident occurred in the heart of the city.

WEDDING BELLS

THORNTON—JACKSON.

Quietly at Trinity Church on Saturday, May 28th, at 2 o'clock, the marriage was solemnized by Rev. F. E. Malott of Bertha Vilda Jackson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackson, 186 Stewart street, Peterborough, to Mr. L. E. Thornton, son of the late Mr. O. Thornton and Mrs. Thornton of Toronto. The bride, neatly attired in her travelling suit of navy gabardine with hat to match and carrying a shower bouquet of Killarney roses, entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Mr. George King. Miss Alice Jackson was the attendant bridesmaid, frocked in black satin with tulle hat and carrying Ophelia roses, while Mr. Searle Haskill supported the groom. After the ceremony the wedding party returned to the bride's home, where a buffet luncheon was served, during which several vocal selections were beautifully rendered by Miss Ellen Eagleson. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts, among them being a substantial cheque from the Gerlach-Barklow Co. of Stratford by whom she was employed. The happy couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes on the 3.20 train for Buffalo, and on their return will take up residence at 44 Charles street west, Toronto.

OBITUARY

GEORGE WALLACE.

The death took place yesterday afternoon of George Wallace, of Lakehurst ,after a lingering illness. Mr. Wallace was 70 years old and was widely known in Peterborough county. He was unmarried and is survived by one brother, Richard, of Lakehurst and one sister, living at Millbrook.

The funeral will be held at 11 a. m. to-morrow from Comstock's undertaking parlours to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. R. C. Blagrave will conduct the funeral service.

MRS. P. MICKS.

Mrs. P. Micks, who died suddenly yesterday morning at the family residence, 243 Princess street, is the widow of the late J. N. Micks of Warkworth, where the family is well known and respected throughout the district. She is survived by three sons: D. S. at home, J. P. of Chicago, and A. O. of Cannington. One daughter. Mrs. Harold A. Bonney, resides at 241 Princess street. Mrs. Micks had lived in Peterborough for six years and was a devoted and active member of St. James' Methodist church. She will be greatly missed in the church work in which she always took great interest.

The funeral service will take place at the late residence, 243 Princess street, to-night (Tuesday) at 7.30, and will be conducted by Rev. J. F. Chapman. The funeral will be held to-morrow at 9 a.m. to Warkworth cemetery. (Motors.)

GARFIELD CAST BIBLE OUT HIS CELL'S WINDOW

WITH LESS THAN TWO DAYS TO LIVE HE IS STANDING HIS ORDEAL WITHOUF ANY SIGN OF BREAKING.

ELLIS IS THREATENED

WOODSTOCK, May 31.— (Special Despatch to The Examiner.) — With less than two days to live Norman Garfield is showing wonderful self control and appears to be standing his ordeal without any sign of breaking yet. He smokes cigarettes incessantly. He seems to get a great deal of comfort from them and this morning he smoked 25 in succession without hesitation, smoking very rapidly at times and blowing the smoke high into the air.

He arose early to-day and when Sheriff McGhee visited him Garfield was cheerful. He ate a big breakfast. "Garfield has a wonderful appetite," stated the sheriff. "He eats well."

It is another glorious day. The sun shining with pale blue skies overhead. Birds sang merrily away in the trees that surround the jail, and everything seemed peaceful.

When the reporter was at the jail, Garfield looked at the canary that is in his cell, with a sad, weary look and tried to smile. He seemed to be thankful to the little canary for its efforts to cheer him. The canary sang away for ten minutes.

Despite what Rev. Gaetz is doing to prepare Garfield to meet his Maker, the condemned man is showing startling antipathy toward the Bible.

Given a Bible on Saturday, Garfield threw it out of his cell window. The Bible was found on the ground by one of the guards yesterday.

Many people have applied to Sheriff McGhee for a permit to see the hanging, but the Sheriff is only going to issue permits to people who must be present and no one else.

"People must have a peculiar mind that want to see such a thing," commented the Sheriff. "I am sure I wish I could get out of it and so does everyone else."

An anonymous letter came to Sheriff McGhee to-day from Toronto threatening Hangman Ellis. Garfield's mail yesterday contained eighteen religious tracts from different people throughout the province.

DYKE BREAKING IMPERILS FOUR HUNDRED LIVES

PRESSURE TOO MUCH

WOODLAND, Wash., May 31.— (Canadian Press.— The dyke protecting a reclaimed farm area of some twelve thousand acres near here, broke under the pressure of flood waters early this morning. The pumping station at Burch Slough was washed out soon after the break occurred and indications were that the entire district would be flooded. Between four and five hundred farmers live in the section and couriers were sent to warn them to flee.

(Later Despatch.)

WOODLAND, May 31. —It is believed that the farmers and their families have escaped to safety as a result of the warning given. The damage to property was estimated by observers at $300,000. Preparations have been made here for the accommodation of the refugees. The dike was completed this year at a cost of $200,000.

ADMISSIONS OF THE BREAKING OF JAIL RULES MADE AT PROBE INTO NORMAN GARFIELD ESCAPE

"WELL, IT HAD ALWAYS BEEN DONE," THE EXCUSE OF JAIL OFFICER—DEATH WATCH OFTEN LEFT ALONE IN JAIL WITH GARFIELD—KNEW GUARD SHOULD NOT CARRY KEY INTO PRISONER'S CELL.

MOST OF RULES GOVERNING JAIL BROKEN

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

WOODSTOCK, May 31.—Admissions of the breaking of most of the rules governing jails were made in repitition by John Robley, chief turnkey of Oxford County Jail, when the investigation of Garfield's escape began in the same court-room where he was sentenced so dramatically a few weeks ago.

"Well, it had always been done," was the excuse of the jail officer.

Admitting that he knew by the regulations that a guard must not carry a key of any door with him when he entered the prisoner's cell nor go within without a second guard outside the closed cell corridor gate.

At 11.10 a.m., not 15 minutes after the Toronto party, consisting of W. W. Dunlop, Inspector of Prisons; Superintendent of Provincial Police Joseph Rogers, and Arnold Semple, as reporter, arrived, Robley stood confusedly answering the questions put to him by Mr. Dunlop. The Rev. Mr. Gaetz sat alone in the front row on the seats for the public, intently following the evidence, a strange contrast to the crowded days of the trial. Inspector Greer and Sheriff McGhee came in later and sat in front of the jury box on the side.

Mr. Dunlop cross-examined with Mr. Rogers sitting beside him. John Robley, the chief turnkey, now under suspension, was the first witness to be sworn and examined.

Mr. Robley answered to having possession of Garfield and that he had escaped on the evening of the 25th.

"Will you tell us what instructions Sheriff McGhee gave you to being careful with this man Garfield and how carefully they were carried out?"

"That time there was Mr. McCallum, as the day man, and Charles Tyler, the night man."

"We want to know what instructions you got yourself," said Mr. Rogers.

"We were told to be as careful as possible, and there were no definite instructions except that these men were to go on at seven and work for twelve hours."

"Did the Sheriff give you any instructions as to the key?" asked Mr. Dunlop. "He said that there always had to be another guard carrying the key and he must never go into the cell room."

Referring to the admission of Mr. Gaetz into the cell as spiritual advisor, Robley said that he stayed outside the cell-room door while the guard, at first Mr. McCallum, went in and opened the prisoner's cell door and admitted the minister. Later on, Ball, Robley's son-in-law, took Mr. McCallum's place.

Mr. Dunlop: "Did you know that the instructions regarding the death watch were being broken?"—"No, sir, except it was in connection with Mr. Gaetz."

Mr. Gaetz had a little more privilege with Garfield than anyone else.

"He was allowed to visit him alone in the cell. I have let Mr. Gaetz in myself and took him to Garfield's cell. The door was left unlocked but I never left him alone."

"Did you know it had been the practice for the death watch who was on duty in the corridor to come down and spend part of his time in the corridor downstairs?" asked Mr. Dunlop. "Yes, sir."

"Did you know that it was against the instructions?"—"Yes, sir, but I think I can explain a little."

Mr. Robley then explained that often Garfield's death watch would be left alone in the jail while with Garfield. "If he didn't have the key of the corridor door he would be locked in the jail corridor while he attended his other duties outside. Robley said that was why the death watch had the front door key. "My instructions to my men if anything happened was that they were to ring the alarm bell which was wired into my house."

"Did you know the death watch carried the key to the front door?" — "I didn't know anything about that."

Mr. Robley said he did not know he was doing anything wrong to let the Garfield watch have the front door key.

"You could have at any time secured the services of Sheriff McGhee, as Governor of the jail, to relieve you, could you not?" — "I suppose I could."

"Did you ever speak to Sheriff McGhee?"—"No, sir."

"What was your idea of a death watch?"—"Well, they were to look after the condemned man."

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, May 31.— (Canadian Press.)—A firm tone accompanied the resumption of trading on the stock exchange to-day, although industrial developments over the prolonged recess favored short accounts. Some of the rails, equipments ad steels averaged gains of one point, notably Chesapeake and Ohio, American Car, Midvale Steel and Colorado Fuel. Motors reflected further price readjustments in the trade and European Oils retained ther recent heaviness. Preliminary quotations indicated further confusion in the foreign exchange market.

The market lost much of its firmness soon after the opening when the selling of Independent Steels as well as motors, Rubbers, Sugars, and Cheaper oils became more general. Losses of one to 3 1-2 points were made by Crucible, Republic and Bethlehem Steels, Pierce Arrow Common and preferred, Studebaker Kelly Springfield, Ajax and United States Rubber, American Sugar, General Electric, International paper and American Sugar, and American Agricultural Chemical. South Porto Rico Sugar dropped seven points on transactions. The only noteworthy movement among Rails was a decline of 1 1-4 points in Northern Pacific. Call money opened at a seven per cent.

Excepting Rails, which were relatively steady, price tendencies in later dealings were towards still lower levels, especially among Steels, Oils and Coppers. The closing was heavy.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, May 31.—(Canadian Press)—Sterling exchange weak, demand 3.87 1-8; Canadian Dollars 11 1-4 per cent discount.

TORONTO

TORONTO, May 31.—(Canadian Press).—Distinct improvement was shown by practically the entire list of the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning when in a broad and fairly active market, gains were made ranging from small fractions to two points.

Toronto Railway led the advance, jumping 2 points to 70 and remains ing strong throughout the morning Spanish River and Canada steamship preferred gained 11 1-2 points at 71 1-2 and 56 3-4 respectively. Mackey was stronger by 1-2 at 75 1-2 and a similar gain was registered by Canada Cement at 53 1-2; Riordo was weaker by 3-4 at 18 1-4.

MONTREAL

ian Press).—The market this morning was unfeatured by any startling change in quotations. Abitibi was quiet at 37. Brazilian remained unchanged. Brompton advanced a point to 36 while Laurentide declined one to 90. National Breweries did not vary. Riordon went down three quarters more to 18. Spanish River advanced a point to 71.

CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 31.— (Canadian Press).—Anxious shorts in the wheat pit, confronted with the scarcity of offerings and yet facing the last of the month settlement of contracts, run up the price of May delivery 12 1-2 cents to-day.

The difficulty in obtaining wheat for settlement purposes was the surprise in view of the fact that 450 carloads had been received here since Saturday. Aside from the flurry on the part of shorts in May, the market kept within the ordinary channels with the bulls having tre advantage from the continuance of crop damage news despite recent rains. Opening quotations, which ranged from 1 1-4 to 890 12 1-2 cents higher were followed by some further advance for July and a reaction to 1.75 for May.

Notwithstanding the immense receipts of corn the market for that cereal was firm in sympathy with wheat. After opening unchanged to 1-4 higher, the market showed material gains all around. Oats parralled the action of corn, starting a shade off to 1-8 up and then going up grade. Higher quotations on hogs helped to strengthen provisions.

BANK CLEARINGS FOR THE MONTH

Clearings for the month of May, 1921—$4,240,756.
May, 1920—$4,370,357.
May, 1919—$3,356,353.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK

TORONTO, May 31.— (Canadian Press.)—Cattle receipts light, trade slow. Quotations: Heavy beef steerrs $8.50 to $9.00 butcher steers, choice, $8.25 to $8.75; butcher cows, medium, $5.00 to $6.50; calves, $8.00 to $10.00; lambs, $15.00 to $18.00. Hogs, selects, $9.00.

ACQUIT NEUMAN OF SINKING HOSPITAL SHIP DURING WAR

LEIPZIC, May 31.—(Canadian Press).— Trial of former Lieut. Karl Neuman who was charged with sinking the hospital ship Dover Castle while in command of a German submarine during the war has been stayed, it is declared. Preliminary examination of the case resulted in his complete innocence being established.

HERE'S A HOT ONE FOR THE DELINQUENTS.

A coin which had lodged in a Pennsylvania girl's throat for two years was removed by surgeons without the aid of instruments. If any doctor within the reach of Bobcaygeon thinks that he could make some folks we know cough up more of less of the Independent's coin, which has been lodging somewhere about their persons for two yea or more, he can count on a job. —Bobcaygeon Independent.

WON'T EXPLAIN KIDNAPPING OF CHOIR LEADER

NO ONE OTHER THAN MISS LEE HAD ANYTHING TO DO WITH IT, OFFICIALS SAY.

HINT AT HYSTERIA

TORONTO, May 31. Canadian Press. Unless the autorities at Queen's Park alter their decision, it is probable that the general public will have to forget the Palmerston "kidnapping" case without ever getting the debated explanation of that "mystery."

While officially it is stated that the matter has not been closed, it is intimated that the investigation carried on by Inspector Boyd has cleared the matter up to the satisfaction of the Attorney General's Department.

It is not likely that any publicity will ever be given to the inspector's report, but it may be said that it points to the fact that no other person other than Miss Lee had anything to do with the "kidnapping," and that much may be attributed to a form of hysteria.

Since no one is implicated in any way it is pointed out that the best way to deal with the matter is to allow it to be forgotten.

ARE SATISFIED WITH TRIAL OF WAR CRIMINALS

BRITISH SOLICITOR-GENERAL AND INSPECTOR OF POLICE IMPRESSED WITH COURT'S IMPARTIALITY.

THINKS SENTENCE FAIR

LONDON, May 31. Canadian Press. Sir Ernest Pollock, the Solicitor General, has returned to London from Leipzig, where he attended the opening trials of the German war criminals. He was impressed, he said, with the authority of the court, which was equivalent to the British privy council. The president was a man of striking character and impartiality.

British witnesses were examined with complete fairness and their testimony was well interpreted, according to the Solicitor General, who declared that he was satisfied that the court might be regarded with the fullest confidence.

A British police inspector who attended the trial of Sergt. Heinge, thought his sentence of ten months imprisonment was fair in view of the fact that some of the gravest charges were not proved, and in some cases he had much provacation.

SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES LOWEST IN LAST 3 YEARS

$23,959,842 AS AGAINST $62,000,000 LAST YEAR AND $36,000,000 YEAR BEFORE.

ATTACK ON FLAVELLE

OTTAWA, May 31.—(Canadian Press).—The supplementary estimates tabled in the House last night by Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, totalled $23,959,842. This figure is low and indicates close scrutiny of expenditures of the amount twelve millionsc is provided for loans to Provincial Governments to encourage the erection of dwelling houses (in substitution for an item in the main estimates of $10,456,000 which is dropped), leaving less than twelve millions for other purposes current, capitol and demobilization. The main supplementaries last year totalled sixty two millions and the year before thirty six millions.

Sudden Life was brought to the dull days proceedings when the railway estimates were discussed further. The particular item was of eighty nine millions for the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific.

Lucian Cannon (Dorchester) made a vigorious attack on Sir Joseph Flavelle, recently appointed head of the new board to manage the Grand Trunk Railway until such time as it is absorbed completely in the National Railways. Mr. Cannon said the Government had chosen a man who "made millions of dollars out of the war" and was "the greatest war profiteer we have in our country." When it came to placing a man at the head of the Board the Government chose the "worst war profiteer we have in Canada". Mr. Cannon alleged that Sir Joseph Flavelle was interested in numerous companies which have been supplying national railways with many things. The people of Canada were "tired of wste of money" and they did not want eighty nine millions placed with Sir Joseph Flavelle without proper guarantees having previously been given as to its expenditure."

The attack on Sir Joseph Flavelle is unfair and unjust," said Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways, who followed immediately. "There is not a man in the country with a better reputation or higher standing than Sir Joseph Flavelle.

SCHOONER FOUNDERS, HOLDS BLUE RIBBON OF NORTH ATLANTIC

HALIFAX, May 31 (Canadian Press). — The American schooner Esperanto, Captain Tom Benham, foundered yesterday half a mile south of Cape Sable Island, according to a wireless message received here last night by the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

The radio said the schooner Elisia II., Captain Geel, stood by the Esperanto.

HASTINGS AND DISTRICT NEWS

ACTIVITY AMONG THE CHURCHES —VISITORS TO VILLAGE.

HASTINGS, May 31. — Sunday was locally observed as Go-To-Sunday-School Day, the programme being used which was prepared by the Religious Education Council of Canada, and which proved to be very interesting, especially the patriotic exercise, wherethe Canadian flag and the Christian flag were crossed during the recitation.

The offering for the day is the only free-will offering asked each year for the promotion of the Ontario Religious Education Council.

Union services will be observed next Sunday between the Presbyterian and Methodist congregations, the pastor of the Presbyterian Church being absent from home.

The annual gathering and banquet of the congregation of the Methodist Church was held in the basement of the church on Friday evening, and was largely attended. The occasion also marked th close of the whirlwind campaign for increased attendance, the losing side entertaining the winners. Supper was served from seven to eight, after which a miscellaneous programme was rendered by members of the losing side. During the course of the evening the pastor called for reports from the different departments of the church work. These reports were quite encouraging, all the representatives being able to report a balance on hand.

Altogether the evening was one much enjoyed by all .

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Watson and family, of Norwood, spent Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. Hess.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Fleming, of Trenton, have been visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Al. Chalman took a trip to Peterborough on Monday.

The many friends of Mrs. Arthur Knight are pleased to hear that she is improving, and hopes soon to be fully recovered from her recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Beavis and family, of Colborne, spent Sunday with friends in this locality.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Walker, of Colborne, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mr. Walter Humphries.

Mr. J. M. Thomson motored to Peterborough on Monday.

Mrs. Stinson, although in her 94th year, is enjoying good health, and retains her memory wonderfully

Rev. D. A. Thomson attended the induction of Rev. T. M. Wesley as pastor of the Norwood Presbyterian Church last week.

Special services, known as the Forty Hours' Devotion, are being conducted in the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, and are being well attended. The visiting clergy are being entertained by Rev. Father Bretherton, parish priest.

Mr. Carlos Runnels and party motored to Peterborough on Saturday, and called on friends.

Miss Della Plant spent Saturday in Peterborough.

Dr. and Mrs. Wade, of Roseneath, were in town on Monday.

Miss L. Brennan spent Monday in Peterborough.

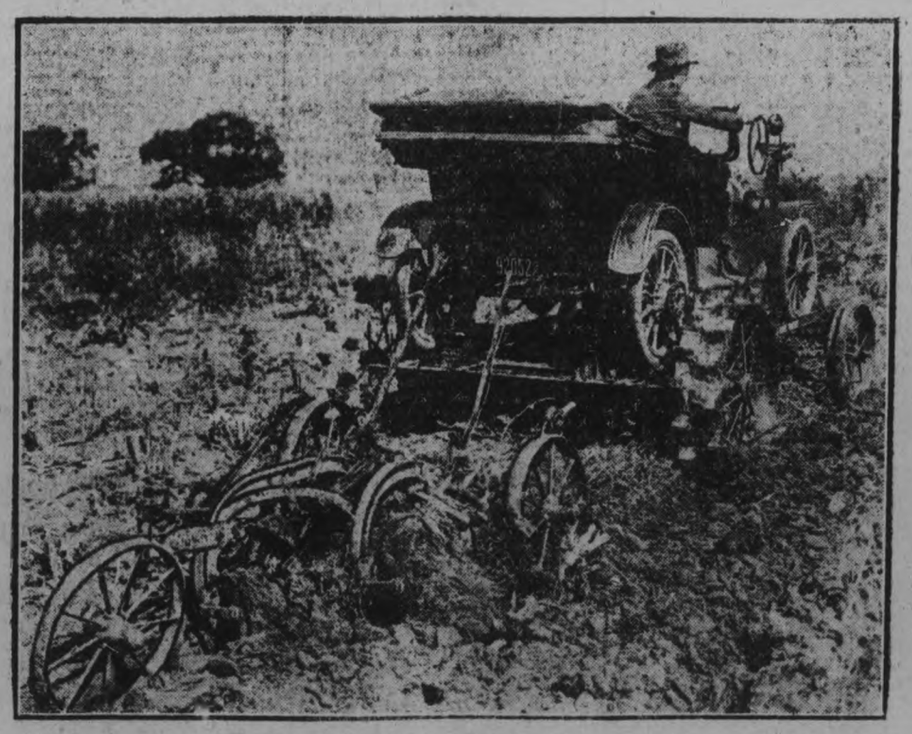
A. B. Cranfield, of Peterborough, made a business trip to Hastings on Monday.

Locals Defeated.

The Peterborough baseball team came down on Saturday, and defeated the local team by only a very small margin. A good game was put up.

There have been 654 automobiles, valued at $1,139,241, stolen in Philadelphia since January 1. Of that number, 201 cars valued at approximately $250,000, have not been recovered.

"Armistice Car" Is Installed in Par is War Museum.— The railroad car in which the armistice, halting the world war, was signed November 11, 1918, being installed in the Museum de Armee in Paris for exhibition. The interior of the car remains just as it was when the German delegation and Marshal Foch signed the armistice documents. The car was used by Marshal Foch as his travelling headquarters.



Turning the Auto Into a Farm Tractor—New Use for a Flivver.—The newest scheme for the farmer is this special built carriage or chassis, on which you mount your auto. The rear wheels of the auto are provided with sprockets which operate in conjunction with the chains, and drives the large rear wheels of the carriage or chassis through the reduction gearing, thus making the wheels of the auto act as a fly wheel. The entire operation consists of driving the car up on the carriage in the proper place, attach the chains, all taking about five minutes. The tractor thus formed is steered by a vertical wheel on one side. A fan in front of the carriage or chassis supplies cooling capacity for the auto radiator. The tractor, by reason of its strength and tread, negotiates the roughest ground with ease.

SPECIAL PARLIAMENTARY COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS PLEBISCITE ON PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION.

IMPRESSED BY SYSTEM

OTTAWA, May 31.— (Canadian Press.)— The Special House Committee on Proportional Representation, reported to Parliament yesterday recommending "that before action is taken, a plebsicite should be taken for the purpose of ascertaining the desires of the electors as to the application of proportional representation with group constituencies.' The committee was impressed with the argument advanced by advocates of proportional representation and believes that the system might be worth further study and investigation by the Canadian people. The committee was not prepared to recommend the application of proportional representation in the next general election.

BUSINESS BAD IN AUSTRALIA

BANKS ENDEAVOURING TO DISCOURAGE IMPORTATIONS AND ARE CALLING IN LOANS.

EXCHANGE RESPONSIBLE

WASHINGTON, May 31.—(Canadian Press)—U. S. Trade Commission A. W. Ferrin in a cable relative to the conditions in Australia reports that the exchange situation shows scarcely any appreciable improvement. While drafts are now being issued in favor of London to a limited extent the banks are endeavoring to discourage importations and are calling in their loans. There have been a number of failures among minor concerns during the past month and two important concerns have been placed under receiverships. The amount of currency in circulation amounts to 59,000,000 pounds sterling which is some 2,000,000 more than a year ago. The government arranged to meet it's bonds maturing May 1, by means of short term loans from the banks. The state of New South Wales borrowed 6,500,000 pounds in London at six and one-half per cent.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She Mixed Sulphur With It to Restore Colour, Gloss, Youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn grey, streaked, and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked, or grey. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time ;by morning all grey hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft, and luxuriant.

TURN ON THE LIGHT.

Citizens residing in the neighborhood of Victoria Park are beginning to wonder if the city fathers have forgotten the matter of illuminating the park—usually the lights are not as to make such complaints justicert season opens, but as there are to be no concerts this summer it is possible that provision has not been made for relieving the darkness. At all events Victoria Park these nights is badly in need of illumination and for the benefit of those who have to make their way through it after dark and in the general interest, the matter should not be neglected. Complaints are being made of the conduct of some of the frequenters there, and the conditions are such been sinners in this respect, does not fiable.

THE FARMERS' PARTY.

The most outstanding feature of the by-elections in York-Sunbury and Yamaska on Saturday was the decisive defeat of the Farmer candidates. There are no indications that the agrarian movement is making any headway either in Quebec or the Maritime provinces. Yamaska is almost wholly rural and yet in a three-cornered fight the Farmer candidate drew only a handful of votes, while in York-Sunbury even with the assistance of many Liberal votes and a sprinkling of Labour votes in the towns the standard bearer of the agrarians was badly beaten. It is evident that the old parties are still firmly entrenched in the eastern urday gave them a fair chance to less for the United Farmers to attempt to foist their policies on the people. The two-elections on Saturned on there until the band contest their strength and the result was decisive enough to show that they are not in a position in the east to make progress against the old parties.

A REASONABLE PROTEST.

Hon. W. S. Fielding's protest against a mass of "undigested legislation being rushed through in the last week of the session of the Federal House is, unfortunately, too well founded. The fact, as he pointed out, that all governments have been sinners in this result, does not make the practice any the more desirable. There are many estimates involving the expenditure of millions of dollars yet to be voted, and if the public business which is involved in these items is to be satisfactorily discussed, it is folly to try to jam through legislation for the consideration of which there is no opportunity available. Many of the bills still to be introduced should be held over until next session, when there will be more time to study and investigate them. Bringing them in during the last few days simply means that they will be given scant consideration. Naturally the Government seeks to lay the blame on the shoulders of the Opposition, claiming that the Liberal and Farmer groups have wasted much time in the early part of the session in useless talking. But the Government is responsible for the legislation and there seems no valid reason why it should be considered necessary to bring down so many bills in the last hours of the session. They should be carried over until Parliament meets again.

A WARNING TO EUROPE.

The Dean of St. Paul's provides the outstanding article of the current number of the Quarterly Review. Europe, he says, goes daily on as ruler of the world, without realising that its days are very possibly numbered. The Asiatic race are far more numerous. They are equally intelligent. They are prepared to do unremitting work for a weekly wage on which the European worker could not live for a day.

So the Dean bluntly tells us that the European worker has no survival value, that he relies solely on a rigid policy of exclusion which can only be maintained by a force he is no longer willing and will not long be able to put forth. Europeans are apparently asked to conclude that they must abandon their policy of social betterment or go under, and that they are considerably the more likely to go under.

The flaw in this argument is contained in one blunt sentence. "It is needless," writes the Dean, "to say in skilled craftsmanship the Asiatic is as good as the European." He probably asserts this because it is in reality so needless to say the opposite that it is seldom considered worth saying. Poor, unintelligent, uneducated workmen can do only unskilled work. It is at least arguable that the Asiatic will demand improved and more expensive conditions in proportion as he approaches the standard of industrial workmanship of Europe and America. Possibly some forms of unskilled work will tend to slip eastward and new inventions and more highly skilled work will take their place in Europe. That would not mean the end of the European ascendancy, but very much the reverse.

SELLING WITHOUT BUYING.

The Emergency Tariff Bill has already come home to roost in Montana. The oil producers of that State held a meeting in Lewiston the other day, and passed a resolution calling upon the Government of Washington to make a trade agreement with Canada whereby Montana oil could find a market in the Dominion. Canada needs the oil. Montana has it to sell, from its gushers at Cat Creek and elsewhere. What more natural than that the Montana producers should seek a near-by market instead of having to accept the price for crude oil fixed by the refineries in the East? But the Emergency Tariff has been enacted for the express purpose of interfering with what is natural.

> If you lived in Canada, would you throw down the bars for American, including Montana, oil, while a fence a mile high stared you in the face, keeping you from trading your surplus products for your neighbour's surplus oil?

That Montana paper went on to remark that unless the Canadians differ markedly from Americans, they will drive as good a bargain for themselves as they can. This is highly unreasonable in them, from the protectionist viewpoint. It puts Canada in the class of that ill-mannered animal which defends itself when it is attacked. Tariff reprisals were from the first an almost certain consequence of the Emergency Act. Yet, far from believing that they would come, or taking measures to avert them, Congress went ahead with the Tariff Bill in the fatuous expectation that other countries would not mind its effect upon them and would even be glad to do us special trade favours.—New York Times.

PITTSBURGH IS STILL WRAPPED IN GLOOM.

Some Mills Are Said to Have Bid Below Cost Just to Have "Something to Run On."

PITTSBURGH, May 31 — The Chicago district has been ignoring the Pittsburgh basis price of 2.10c on steel bars in a number of cases lately, sales being made at delivered prices that figure back to 1.90c, Pittsburgh, while one sale is rumored equal to 1.87½c. For territory near Pittsburgh the 2.10c Pittsburgh price is not disturbed as representing the general market, there being in essence a separate market for the West. The Western mills, however, do not come out openly and quote on a Chicago basis, presumably from policy. The local iron mills have a nominal quotation on iron bars, understood to be the old price of 2.75c, but that figure has been high and dry for a long time, the Pittsburgh market for quite a while past being quotable on the basis of Eastern bars — 2c, Pittsburgh, for Eastern shipment, and 2c, mill, for Western shipment. Now some Eastern mills have made a reduction of $2 a ton, so that the market for iron bars delivered Pittsburgh is quotable at 1.90c, f.o.b. Eastern mill, plus freight of 35c per 100 pounds, making 2.25 delivered Pittsburgh.

Despite the relief by the wage reductions of 10 or 15 per cent., or possibly more, it remains doubtful whether the roads will this year take and pay for all the rails they ordered for the year's delivery. An outside estimate of the cost of all the rails ordered would be about $75,000,000, relatively a small sum for railroads with normal income of say $6,000,000,000 and a pay-roll recently running at something like $4,00,000,000. Mills making light rails from new steel adhere, however, to their recently adopted price of 2.20c. The war control price was 3.00c. No sales of light rails have been reported of late.

The business in sheets is confined to carload orders, and even these are far from plentiful. The conclusion of the trade is that the sheet market is in for still duller times. The market is quotable generally at the old figures of 3.10c for blue annealed, 4.00c for black and 5.00 for ganvanized.

Demand for pipe mill products has materially decreased in the last ten days, and the lead of this over other finished steel products has practically been wiped out. Demand for boiler tubes shows no material improvement. Distribution of standard steel pipe through the jobbers is not large, only fairly good in the light of industrial conditions generally. Jobbers are only piecing out stocks. This makes the work much harder for the mills, as they cannot maintain stocks to fill orders without frequent replenishings in sizes. fljU$flse 8 7bu2se flp (fse (...d6m')

LOVE!

By KATHERINE MOORE

'LEONARD KEEPS LATE HOURS

Chapter 63.

If I had anticipated any unfriendliness or displeasure on Leonard's part, my fears were speedily nullified. He was perfectly agreeable and acted unusually pleasant toward Dorothy. Almost I felt that he was glad to have her with us. I soon saw the reason why.

He took this opportunity to be away from home more than ever and to remain out a little later. So this was what he had had in mind when I told him I had invited Dorothy! This was why he had said, "All right," so amenably.

It hurt me and made me angry, too, that Leonard would take advantage of me because I had company. Also it made me wonder if just the fear of what I might do or say had been holding him. The fact that he now took advantage of Dorothy's presence showed me plainly he was willing to hide behind the chance that I would not care to create a scene before my company. My lips would be sealed for the present. He knew it—so he was acting accordingly.

The joy was taken out of Dorothy's visit. I found myself wishing I had not invited her. It just meant some one else to act up to and try to delude. All my actions had to be forced and adroitly deceptive these days. It was so much safer to be alone.

Then, too, I felt that Dorothy was not one to be easily fooled. She had always teased me about Leonard's and my lover-like devotion. Only blindness could hide certain things from her now.

Almost I wished I might break through my wall of sensitiveness and tell her of my trouble. It would help so. It might be a safety valve to my feelings. But a wife diligently guards the heart wounds of her married life; and doubly so from the unmarried friend of her girlhood. The sympathy of a single woman friends holds an unanswerable sting for the unhappily married.

I could not tell Dorothy. I could only try to keep a brave front and hope she would not observe too much.

Dorothy was anxious to see some show that was playing in New York. We went in town and tried to get tickets for the matinee, but it was late when we got there and the house was sold out.

"Let's try for tonight," she suggested eagerly. "Leonard won't mind, will he?" she added.

I was only too sure that Leonard would not mind. I wondered a little if Dorothy knew it also when she asked the question.

"All right—let's see if we can get seats," I responded, willing to do most anything.

We were able to get two good ones in the orchestra. Fate had decided for us. We had a wonderful evening. We dined at a small French restaurant where the women smoked and the voices around had a blending of foreign accents. One felt transplanted and agreeably removed from the monotonous.

The theatre was fascinating; the show alluring.

We arrived home late but decidedly satisfied. It was after 1 o'clock when we went upstairs to bed.

Dorothy came and knocked on my door. She was ready for bed and had on a pink kimono and slippers to match.

"I'm not a bit sleepy," she told me. "Let's chat for a while."

She curled up at the foot of my bed. We talked of our impressions of the show, and then the conversation turned to school days and doings.

"It's later than I, isn't it?" Dorothy said, as the clock interrupted our conversation. I looked at my wrist watch.

"Goodness, Dot—it's 2:30!" I ejaculated. We said goodnight and Dorothy turned at the doorway.

"Why, isn't Leonard home yet?" she asked suddenly. I knew the next minute that she regretted having spoken.

Dr. Harrigan's Advice to Thin, Nervous People

It's worth your while to read what a New York specialist has to say about the nerve and brain cell builder that McDermid & Jury and other leading druggists sell so much of these days. He writes:

"Let those who are weak, thin, nervous, anaemic or run-down, take natural unadulterated substances such as Bitro-Phosphate and you will soon see some astonishing results in the increase of nerve energy and strength of body and mind."

Bitro-Phosphate is a pure organic phosphate such as good physicians prescribe to increase weight and create abundant nerve force.

CAUTION: Although Bitro-Phosphate is an excellent aid in relieving weak, nervous conditions, its use is not advised unless increased weight is desired.

MEIGHEN'S WEAKNESS A HOPELESS MINORITY

British Liberal Writer Also Sees Charm in Our Premier's Pessimism.

LONODN, May 30. —(Canadian Associated Press Cable.)— Charles Masterman, one-time Liberal staesman under Mr. Asquith, writing to the Daily News on the conference of British premiers heer in June, says that Right. Hon. Arthur Meighen is "high minded, conscientious and honest. His pessimism gives him a kind of charm. His great weakness is here; he represents a hopeless minority in Canada, which may also be the case with other representatives to the English conference, and which will diminish the moral authority of decisions come to under such circumstances.

Mr. Masterman, speaking of Premier Hughes of Australia, refers to the "ghastly mess he made of his English tour during the war, with his ombined truculence concerning militarism and tariff reform. Mr. Masterman says Mr. Hughes will meet a very different race in England now to the one he "lectured to death" during the war.

SPEED RECORDS IN LITERATURE.

Some Geniuses Who Had Quick Action.

"Crossing the Bar" Written in Ten Minutes.

Tennyson wrote that exquisite lyric, "Crossing the Bar," in a few minutes. He said to his son, the present Lord Tennyson, 'It came in a moment."

Burns composed what Carlyle characterizes as the greatest of all battle odes, "Scots Wha Hae," whilst riding through storm and darkness across a lonesome moor. One of the very greatest productions of poetic inspiration, Kent's justly famous "Ode to a Nightingale," was written in the course of one afternoon in the poet's garden at Hampstead, and his great sonnet on "Chapman's Homer," was the product of an hour.

While visiting at Minto, Thomas Campbell went to bed early one evening, his mind full of a new poem. About two in the morning he suddenly awoke, repeating, "Events to come cast their shadows before." Ringing the bell, he summoned a butler, who found the poet half in and half out of bed.

"Are you ill, sir?" asked the butler.

"I was never better!" replied the poet. 'Leave the candle, and bring me a cup of tea."

Seizing his pen, and changing "Events to come" to "Coming events," he not only coined one of the best-known lines in English poetry, but went on to finish the first draft of "Lochiel's Warning."

Cowper composed and memorized the whole of his humorous masterpiece, "John Gilpin," during a sleepless night. Hayley, the poet's biographer, tells the story:

"It happened in those years when his accomplished friend, Lady Austen, made a part of his little evening circle, that she observed him sinking into increasing dejection; it was her custom on these occasions to try all the resources of her sprightly powers for his immediate relief. She told him the story of John Gilpin to dissipate the gloom of the passing hour. Its effect on the fancy of Cowper had the air of enchantment.

"He informed her the next morning that convulsions of laughter, brought on by his recollections of her story, had kept him awake during the greater part of the night, and that he had turned it into a ballad. So arose the pleasant poem of 'John Gilpin.'"

Sir Arthur Pinero must be included in any list of rapid writers. His "Two Hundred a Year" was the work of a single afternoon, and "The Money-Spinner" was written with almost equal rapidity; whilst "Lords and Commons," a big work, cost only ten days' toil.

Of course, Byron worked as fast as the fastest. He said of himself that he was like a tiger—if he missed his first spring, he had to go grumbling back to the jungle. Two rainy days at Ouchy produced "The Prisoner of Chillon," and it has been said that he wrote it at one sitting with one pen; and the first sketch of "The Bride of Abydos" was written in four nights.

Longfellow's fine ballad, "The Wreck of the Hesperus," one of the most familiar poems in the language, came to him as he sat cosily by the fire during a violent storm which made the windows rattle. Like Cowper, he went to bed, and, finding himself too pre-occupied to sleep, finished the poem before morning.

Charles Kingsley returned home one night rather dejected because a sermon he had preached that day in London had proved a little too "socialistic" for the incumbent. Instead of going to bed, he paced back and forth in front of the fire, and his wife, knowing he was composing, left him, and retired. In the morning he recited to her that moving lyric:

"Three fishers went sailing out into the west,
Out into the west as the sun went down."

There is a tablet in the porch of Wrexham Church to the memory of Bishop Heber, which records that the most popular of all missionary hymns was composed in the town. Reginald Heber, who was then vicar of Hodnet, happened to be staying at the vicarage with his father-in-law, Dr. Shipley, dean of St. Asaph's who was to preach a missionary sermon on the Sunday.

Heber and other friends were assembled in the library on the Saturday, when the dean asked his son-in-law if he could write something for the service next morning. Heber retired to the farther end of the room for the purpose, and at the end of fifteen minutes he read the first three of the four verses of which the famous hymn, 'From Greenland's Ice-Mountains," consists.

His hearers were all very delighted, but Heber said the sense was not complete, and devoted another five minutes to the fourth stanza.

OLD HOME DAY AT LAKEFIELD.

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS.

LAKEFIELD, May 30.—Mr. Bruce Ridpath, who has put Lakefield on the map with his canoe stunts, will be in his old home town for the celebration on July 1st and will probably give an exhibition. This will be Lakefield's "Old Home Day," and a monster celebration is planned. The Reeve has contributed a splendid cup to be competed for, and other prizes will be offered.

The Community Hall will be opened formally that afternoon, before the regatta. At present there is no definite programme of speakers for the opening of the hall, but arrangements are on foot, and the Reeve and Council will arrange for some outstanding figure, probably a returned soldier, to open the hall.

POLICE BREAK UP BERLIN CAVE-DWELLING MOVEMENT

BERLIN, May 31.— (Associated Press.)—The colony of cave-dwellers of Berlin, which took the back-to-the-land doctrine so literally that scores of men, women, boys and girls dug caves for themselves in the banks of the Spree just out of Berlin and discarded all modern wearing apparel, has been dispersed by the police. The colony's leader, Dr. Heinrich Goldberg, argued before a magistrate that the experiment was a simple solution of the housing and cost of living problems.

The cave-dwellers began by discarding hats and shoes, but soon decided to do away with clothing altogether and in this fashion disported themselves in the waters of the Spree, or sat about their cave doors munching black bread and sausages, apparently oblivious to the crowds of sight-seers which began to frequent the vicinity.

Dr. Goldberg from his abode in the "Cave of Zarathustra," issued circulars discussing the Nietzschean philosophy, anarchy, Communism, the faults of the present civilization and asking the rent-weary and the work-worn to "watch this colony grow."

Somebody spoiled the experiment by complaining that the brotherhood was having a deleterious effect upon public morals and calling attention to the doctor's career, which was said to have included efforts to reform England, Russia and Poland.

The colony has disappeared, but its leader has become a familiar figure upon the streets of Berlin, wearing long hair and going barefoot.

The U. S. Senate has decided to impose an import duty of 2 cents a pound on Cuban sugar and 2½ cents per pound on sugar from other countries.

MOORISH TRIBES FIGHT SPANIARDS DESPERATELY.

TETUAN, Morocco, May 31 (Associated Press).—Two of the Moorish tribes who are fighting the Spaniards seem determined to fight to the death for their independence. They are the Bocoyas and the Beni-Urriaguels.

The Bocoyas are the most numerous, every man being a warrior and a fearless fatalist. The Beni-Urriaguels have been engaged in most of the rebellions against the Spanish rule in Morocco which have taken place in the vicinity of Alhucemas.

The latter tribe is well supplied with arms, munitions, and money, for they have evaded all the vigilance of the Spanish coastguard vessels, and have been carrying on an active trade with British and French blockade runners in wool, silk, wax, skins, eggs, and almonds.

Even when the Sultan was supreme in Morocco, his forces were never able to dominate these two tribes, who had their refuges in the almost inaccessible fastnesses in the vicinity of Alhucemas and Penon, from which they still harry the Spanish troops.

WIFE OF GARFIELD'S VICTIM WONDERS AT ALL THE SYMPATHY FOR MURDERER

BEN JOHNSTON'S WIDOW

WOODSTOCK, Ont., May 30. — "I don't understand people any more —once I thought I did, but not any more. It seems that only the people who go wrong are\to be sympathized with, and petted and excused for what they do. Garfield in jail for killing my poor husband, has flowers and chickens sent to him every day, by the good people, too. No one ever sends me chickens. It's up to me to work and keep the home together, and look after my two little fatherless boys."

Mrs. Ben Johnson was sitting in her parlour-sitting room in the humble flat over the confectionery store in which her husband met his death. Garbed in widow's black, she carried herself bravely. Her brown as one perplexed. "I've lost my man head, is streaked with threads of white. They were not there when the tragedy clouded her life.

"Almost Reproached."

"I don't understand things," she confessed, not complainingly, but reproached me. 'If Ben had only and that seems such a small thing to every one that they sympathize with the man who killed him. They have even come to me and almost want him to be let live till he can stepped back,' they have told me, 'he would never have been shot . Garfield never meant to shoot him.' But he had come into our place to rob it; to take things we had been working hard for to pay for our little home. Ben slipped under the arm of one of the others, to defend his own, as any man would, and Garfield shot him dead. 'Take that, you ——,' he said, it was testified to a t the trial. And yet they say that Garfield did not mean to hurt him. He had come to rob and he brought a loaded revolver with him.

Misplaced Sympathy.

"Now, they are sending a petition to Ottawa asking them to put off his punishment. Nine of the jurymen signed it, I am told. They want him to bee lt live till he can see his baby that is to come. They never think of my two little boys. There is always some story in the papers about the little girl wife—a girl that was an incorrigible at thirteen and put in a refuge by her father because he could do nothing with her. Then she ran away and her father never heard of her until the Garfield case came up. That was how he found her again. It is the bad girls that get all the sympathy these days. Nobody seems to be interested in or have any sympathy for the girl who works hard, goese right, and hlps her man all she can.

Husband was Provident.

"I am not wanting anything from anyone," she hastily said. "Ben did his best for me. He had $5000 life insurance and $500 accident, and we had the store. We were paying for our place, and had it mostly paid for. I will just have to work a lot harder and keep it going. My boys have got to be brought up to be the right sort of men. But my sort of life does not interest people. It is the wild women that get sympathy and are petted.

Little Boy Worries.

"Teddy worries me. I don't know what has come over him. He always was such a cheeful little chap. Then, when his father was killed he seemed to change so. He was very fond of him, and he has not been himself ever since. He won't mind me at all—poor little boy.

"It sickens me, all this mawkish talk about Garfield loving his wife so much, and wanting so much to see his baby when it comes. It isn't like his sort of men. They don't think much about the babies before they come or afterwards. He never thought of my boys. It seems to me just a play for sympathy, and a farce. Does a person always have to be bad for people to show any feeling for them?"

Mrs. Johnson gathered her youngest to her, smoothed his rumpled hair, straightened his little jacket, the while he struggled. "Come, be a good boy now," she said coaxingly. "Say good-bye to the gentleman nicely. He really is a good boy," she added, with a gentle smile "and I've got the two of them yet."

Mr. and Mrs. W. Rose and children of Havelock spent Sunday at "Bellview".

Sunday last was observed in the local church as Canadian-Go-To-Sunday-School Day. Many of the young folks were present.

Those Nasty Little Pimples

That Come on the Face Are Caused By Bad Blood

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face is sadly marred by the unsightly pimples and various other skin troubles, caused wholly by bad blood.

Many a cheek and brow cast in the mould of a beauty, have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost, and the possessor of the "pimply face" rendered unhappy for years.

Their presence is a source of embarrassment to those afflicted as well as pain and regret to their friends.

There is an effectual remedy for these facial defects and that is Burdock Bitters, the old reliable medicine that has been on the market for over 40 years.

It drives out all impurities from the blood and leaves the complexion clear and healthy.

Mrs. James Williams, Waterford, Ont., writes: "My face was covered with pimples for nearly a year. I used different kinds of remedies to get rid of them and finally thought there was no relief. A friend dropped in one day and told me I should try Burdock Blood Bitters. I did so and used three bottles and found the pimples were all disappearing from my face and now I have a clear complexion again."

WANT TO SIT DOWN TO CRACK STONES

HAMILTON, Ont., May 30.—Becaue they were not permitted to sit while cracking stones for the city in connection with relief work to 100 "jobless" men, the hundred went on strike Saturday. They returned to the City Hall, where they became so noisy that special police were called to subdue them. They were getting 55 cents an hour.

KRUPPS EMPLOYING 12,000 MORE THAN BEFORE THE WAR

ABSORBING OTHER FACTORIES AND REACHING IMMENSE PROPORTIONS

NEW YORK, May 31.—(By Canadian Press.)—A correspondent of the Guaranty Trust Company, writing from Berlin, reports that the Krupps are employing 12,000 more workmen now than in the month immediately before the outbreak of the war. This total does not include workmen in five other manufacturing undertakings which are controlled by, or work in alliance with the Krupps. At Essen, in addition to the casting and rolling operations formerly carried on, 73 different kinds of machines, apparatus or technical articles are being produced. The Krupps cast steel works have been extended from a pre-war area of 242 acres to 1,400 acres, and the construction of railway material has reached enormous dimensions.

The Krupp concern has now absorbed the Rhine Metalware and Machine factory and that great war plant is now engaged in the manufacture of agricultural machinery and enamelware. Krupps control the Ernemann Works, Dresden (large manufacturers of cameras and moving picture apparatus), and also are specializing in the manufacture of cash registers, textile machinery and oi land sugar refining machinery.

PRINCESSES WORK AS STENOGRAPHERS.

Nothing Unusual in Riga Since Europe's Crash.

RIGA, LATVIA, May 31.—(Associated Press)—It is nothing unusual in Riga to have a Russian princess as your stenographer. At least, a business man can acquire the service of a countess in that capacity Almost every diplomatic or consuler mission in Riga has at least one princess or countess working as a typist.

If the supply of princesses and countesses fail, there remains a large number of other well-educated peope, most of them unaccustomed to work, but now anxious to do anything to save them from starvation.

Men who have ben general managers of big Russian factories are now glad to take any kind of decent honorble employment to earn their living here.

The condition of these Russian refugees who have found shelter in the infant Baltic states shows how complete has been the financial downfall of the Russian nobility.

In Riga, Reval and other Baltic towns, princes, barons and counts and their families, accustomed for decades in Russia to lives of luxury, are living a hand to mouth existence. The possessions which they once had and that escaped confiscation by the Bolsheviki clutter up the shelves of second hand dealers in these cities. Diamonds, other jewels, fine tapestries and the countless costly nick-nacks of a luxurious civilization have been sold by these refugees to get bread.

The correspondent was present a few nights ago at an entertainment for the benefit of some of these refugees—all members of the old Russian or Baltic nobility. Some of the more fortunate had saved their evening clothes. They were in sharp contrast to those that had not.

Here and there men in coats of one color, trousers of another and tan shoes or high boots. They danced with women as variously clad—some chic, in latest modes, some in shirtwaists and skirts; still others in frocks so obviously homemade or remade that the poorest shop girl in New York would sniff at them.

The casual stranger dropping into Riga or Reval for a day or two would never find this poverty. Instead, he would find cafes, open all night, where foreigners, lucky because of the low rates of Latvian or Esthonian exchange, and local profiteers, tossed fat bank ralls of almost worthless rubles or marks to waiters who count only in hundreds of thousands.

An American correspondent who advertised in a Riga newspaper, for a translator able to read, write and speak fluently English, Russian and German and with some knowledge of Lettish, received 51 replies by mail. The corridor before his room in the hotel was filled with men and women seeking to apply personally for the position. Most of them were so well educated that they could qualify not only on the four languages mentioned, but in others as well.

They were either out of work, or receiving such small pay in their present employment that they were anxious to change.

Among the applicants were a former colonel in one of the most aristocratic Petrograd guard regiments, a dozen other former officers, two men who had been managers of big Russian factories, and many other well-educated people.

The Dread Pyorrhea Begins With Bleeding Gums

Pyorrhea's infecting germs cause many ills. Medical science has proven this.

Diseased conditions, which not long ago doctors were unable to trace to a cause, are now known often to be the result of Pyorrhea germs that breed in pockets about the teeth. Rheumatism, anaemia, nervous disorders and other diseases have been traced in many cases to this Pyorrhea infection.

Don't let Pyorrhea work its wicked will on your body. Visit your dentist frequently for tooth and gum inspection.

And watch your gums yourself. Pyorrhea, which afflicts four out of five people over forty, begins with tender and bleeding gums; then the gums recede, the teeth decay, loosen and fall out, or must be extracted to rid the system of poisons generated at their base.

Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea—or check its progress, if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's keeps the gums hard and healthy—the teeth white and clean. Start using it today. If gum-shrinkage has already set in, use Forhan's according to directions and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

G. N. GORDON IN BUDGET DEBATE

SPEECH, AS REPORTED IN HANSARD, CONTAINS SOME INTERESTING FIGURES AS TO THE MAGNITUDE OF PETERBORO'S EXPORT TRADE AND OUR ABILITY TO COMPETE WITH U.S. MANUFACTURERS IN THEIR OWN MARKETS.

Following is the Hansard report of the part which G. N. Gordon, M.P. for West Peterborough, took in the Budget debate last week:

Mr. George Newcombe Gordon (Peterborough West): Mr. Speaker, I wish to address myself briefly to the subject under discussion this afternoon, and to make an appeal partcularly to the Minister of Finance (Sir Henry Drayton), who has introduced this proposed legislation which will seriously affect all the milling interests in the industrial centres. The Minister made his maiden political speech in the city of Peterborough a few months ago, and on that occasion he assured the people of that city that he had a very affectionate regard for their interests. Therefore, I feel that I have a right to appeal to him not to forget the assurances that he gave us a couple of months ago in the city of Peterborough, and that he should now seek to avoid what will cause a great deal of loss and unemployment to those at present employed in the cereal mills in that city and in Eastern Canada. To show in some small way the amount of export business going through the city of Peterborough, I have taken the figures from the American Consul's office in that city. In 1920 we exported to the United States wheat flour, rye flour, and other cereal products to the extent of over $1,000,000. We manufactured and sent to the United States milker parts, cream separator parts, of the De Laval Co., to the extent of about half a million dollars and competed successfully in the American market against American manufacturers. In addition to that, we exported to the United States, wood and wood products to the extent of 1,475,000. In the first quarter of this year we have exported to the United States from the flour mills $655,000 worth of breadstuffs, and if we can continue at that rate during the year, that will mean that we will continue at thatm mean that we will export to the United States $2,6[illegible],000 worth of those products from that district. The export of wood manufactured products has increased largely, too, and if we can continue at the same rate during the present year, our export business to the United States in that line will be over $2,000,000. That indicates what some of these industries are, and it also shows that some manufacturers, in the city of Peterborough at least, can compete successfully in the United States with American manufacturers.

In th city of Peterborough, there is a large number of mills, flour mill sor cereal mills. It is said that the most modern mill in the world is located in the city of Peterborough, namely, the Quaker Oats mill. The capacity of the mills in that city is something like 10,000 barrels a day. Within the last few years nearly all of the products of these mills, breakfast and other foods, with the exception of flour, and, in some cases, I think, flour also, are put up in small packages. In fact, that business has developed to such an extent that I think the major part of the "Quaker Oats" business is that of putting up the good in packages.

Mr. Lemieux: How many men do they employ?

Mr. Gordon: They are capable of employing and do employ, I think, all the way from 500 to 1,000 or 1,200 employees, the number depending largely upon the quantity of export business, because it is an export mill. The small package is sanitary, clean, wholesome; it suits the purse of the workingman; the goods do not deteriorate, because it is done up in waterproof paper. A trade has been established in these lines of goods; hundreds of thousands of dollars have been expended in the development of this class of trade; the trade names of the package goods are registered; they are known by the various brands advertised, and a market has been devloped for them during all these years. If the legislation which the Minister has introduced imposing this taxation is passed, the paper box industry and the labour connected with it will be seriously injured. The Nashua Gum Coated Paper Co., Ltd., a company that was established only three or four years ago, and which is capable of employing many hundreds of men, will close its doors. Labour will be injured and seriously affected in this plant and the milling plants because in this package business, a large quantity of labour is employed for the purpos of doing up these goods in packages. The result will be that "barrel" quantities will be sold, and the grocer will attempt to sell from the barrel as he did in the old days. The situation is so serious, and it strikes the city of Peterborough to such an extent that it is feared there that there will be a great deal of unemployment for some time to come unless this proposed legislation is varied in some way. The reason why this package business has been established and such a market developed for it is that the products put up in this way are perishable and they need to be hermetically sealed. They also need to be hermetically sealed so that they cannot deteriorate or become tainted as frequently takes place in the case of foods done up by other methods. The purchase of food by the average family has altogether ceased, for the simple reason that it did not pay them to continue that method of purchasing. The prices were fixed and they could obtain these package goods whenever they desired them. In this way there has been developed throughout Canada, in the last six or eight years, a trade in package goods which is the surprise of every one. It is true that the small unit costs more initially; but goods done up in packages are cleaner, healthier, and freer from taint, and the possibility of adulteration is obviated. Therefore, in the long run the small unit of flour or any other cereal product is the proper and economical unit. This proposed sales tax legislation on flour, rolled oats, oatmeal, and corn meal, when purchased in quantities that practical experience has demonstrated to be best suited and most economical, as well as practiable for the people as a whole, s unsound and ill-advised. I submit that it has not been arefully considered, or it would not have got to the stage it has now reached. The standard of this package food is high. As the reputation of these concerns is at stake, they must necessarily keep their products up to a proper standard; there can be no adulateration, because these great concerns stand behind the food they are selling to tne people. The grocer, however, has no difficulty in bagging this material and selling it as he sees fit, and there may be cases amongst the grocers where adulteration will take place.

The flour and cereal milling business in Canada, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, had an output last year of $263,000,000, on a $78,000,000 capitalisation, and had a $30,000,000 greater production than any other industry in Canada; so the milling industry is the largest industry in Canada, outside of agriculture.

The difficulty in taking the food of the people in packages or parcels under 48 pounds is that nearly all of it comes in the small package. If these products are delivered from one wholesaler to another, the tax is pyramided by 1½ per cent. each time. Now, that affects the small mill, because it cannot establish its own sales offices, but sells first of all to a large wholesaler, perhaps in Toronto or Montreal, who in turn sells to a smaller wholesaler, located at Brantford, Peterborough, or some other of the smaller cities, and that wholesaler in turn sells to the retailer. Each time the article is turned over, 1½ per cent. is added to it, which the consumer pays. The tax is fixed upon the cost plus the freight from the terminal elevator to the mill in the East, or from the country elevator in the West to the mill, and I would just like to indicate to the minister how that works out. Take ploughs, for instance—and I think the hon. member for Brantford (Mr. Cockshutt) will appreciate this illustration. The Cockshutt Plough Company, let me say, sells a plough f.o.b. Hamilton at $100. Now, if the company sells the plough to a jobber who has no connection with that firm, the jober in turn must sell f.o.b. his warehouse, and pay the tax on the price to him, which is $100 plus the freight to his warehouse. The Cockshutt Plough Company, could sell direct to the consumer f.b. Hamilton, while the jobber could not do that. Now ,the large concerns have warehouses in the various centres, whiue the small concerns have not, and that applies also to the small mills. The small plant must sell through the jobber, because it cannot establish and finance its own sales branches in the various centres in Canada. Dealing with the matter and how it affects Ontario labour, Quebec labour, and the Ontario and Quebec mills, take the price of bran, say ,at Calgary ,at $16 a ton. There is a three per cent. tax on that, which amounts to 48 cents. At Montreal the price, plus the cost of transportation, would be $31. The sales tax is fixed on the price of the bran, plus the price of the transportation to Montreal. At 3 per cent. that makes 93 cents, or a difference of 45 cents a ton, or a difference on a 25-ton car of $11.25 in favour and to the advantage of the Calgary mill. In other words, the Montreal consumer could purchase from the Calgary miller and save $11.25 per car, as he would pay no tax on the transportation cost on bran, from Calgary to Montreal, for there would be no tax on that. That means that the western miller, finding that the prices down East would be very much higher than they are in the West, would send his product East, to the ultimate cost of the consumer in the West, who would eventually be compelled to pay a higher price for the miller's product there. A miller in the Calgary zone can buy wheat on the Calgary price, which is the Fort William price, less the freight from Calgary to Fort William but the Ontario or Quebec miller must pay on the Fort William price, plus freight to his mill. Upon that freight and the Fort William price a tax of 3 per cent. is imposed. So he has to pay a tax on transportation cost, which may mean when the product reaches Montreal, as I have said before in the case of bran, twice the price in the Calgary zone.

The difficulty, I submit, with this proposed legislation is the manner in which this tax is imposed. The tax is imposed on the shipments f. o.b. the point of shipment of the miller, so as in the case of the figures which I have given the tax is imposed not on the actual cost of the raw product to the miller, but piled on top of that is the high transportation costs, which have reached a higher point than ever before, and from which it seems to me there is little relief to be expected. I therefore think that a wrong principle has been adopted, and that the Minister of Finance should vary this tax which he seeks to impose on the free food of the people, so that it will not directly have included in it a tax on the transportation cost, which is not, as a matter of fact, or should not be, a part of the actual cost to the ultimate consumer. At present an undue preference is given to the West. It puts a premium on western business ,and injures to a very serious extent Ontario and eastern mills. The western miller can sell his mill product at the cost of the grain, freight, labour, and a reasonable profit, plus the tax. There is no freight in the Calgary zone to speak of, but when the product comes east, there is pyramided on that cost, the freight cost, which may amount to almost the same value as the goods, and this tax is imposed upon the two. This is confirmed by the regulations that have been issued by the Ministers of Finance, and which have been released ,I think, within the last 48 hours. At page 7 of the regulations, under the heading "Value for Excise Taxes," it is stated:

The sales Tax on domestic sales must be computed upon the regular (open) market value at point of shipment, provided, however, that the excise tax must in no case be collected on less than the actual net selling price of the goods.

When goods are sold at a delivered price and estimated or actual freight charges have been added to the price f.o.b. point of shipment to arrive at such delivered price, the actual charges so added may be deducted from the gross invoice value to ascertain the value upon which to compute the sales tax.

These regulations, which have been issued this week, and have gone out to the trade, will it seems to me seriously affect the employment of men in the large cities, where we have already so much unemployment. The miller must make a considerable computation, and he will in turn charge to the consumer the cost of that extra clerical assistance in computing the tax under so complicated a system. But if there were a simple turnover tax of, say, one per cent, he would require no extra clerical work. At the end of a week or a month he would know what his turnover was, and could readily compute it, and there would be no cumbersome and difficult work in connection with it.

Corn flour is taxable in 48-pound lots or less, while cornmeal is taxable in any quantity. Now, cornmeal is the food of the workingman and is sold to a much greater extent than corn flour does. Corn flour is really used by the man of greater means who can afford to pay for it, and why it is not taxable in the same way as cornmeal, I am unable to understand. If the food of the people in these industrial centres and, for that matter, in any part of the country, is to be taxed, we are failing to reduce the cost of food, and that in turn will have its effect on the cost of labour. I think that in taxing the food of the workingman we are simply keeping up the cost of living, just at a time when we should do our utmost to bring it down. The manufacturer says that he must have reduced costs, and he cannot get it if we tax the food of the men whom he employs, because they will necessarily demand wages to meet the cost of living. Reducing the cost of food would certainly reduce the manufacturers' cost of labour, and to do this we must avoid taxing the people on the necessaries of life. A tax such as this on cornmeal, for instance, is a discrimination against the workingman who has a large family, and if there is one class of taxation that should not be imposed, it is taxation on food. For three and a half years we have avoided the imposition of an income tax in this country but this has not been through any fault of the present Minister of Finance (Sir Henry Drayton); it was due to a former Minister of Finance. There are men living in western Ontario, men who we know made enormous profits during the war, and the minister in those years might well have taxed their incomes He should have told them: "Our boys have their service overseas and while they were fighting you promised that you would give your last dollar. Now we went you to carry out that promise." When the Minister goes to the city of Peterborough again, and expresses his interest in the people of that city and his affectionate regard for them, I suppose he will announce on the platform that diamonds are fre. And so they are; they are free from the luxury tax and the customers tax. Of all the useless and worthless modes of investment, when money is so badly needed, and the indulgence in jewellery of this kind is the most reprehensible. In strenuous times like these, why in the world should the purchase of expensive jewellery be encouraged? Was there ever a time in the history of the country when it was more imperative that we should discourage that sort of thing, and when we should do everything possible to enable the workingmen in the industrial centres to bring up their families on a decent plan of living? I say, Mr. Speaker, that the taxing of foodstuffs in this way discriminate against the workingman, and the workingman alone. He is the man who buys these goods, who lives in the small house and cannot put in any large quantities of goods because he has not sufficient capital; and even if he could afford to buy things in large quantities he has no room. It seems to me that we are going back to the days of the Corn Laws in England, because this Budget simply proposes to tax the food of those people who are least able to bear taxation. When men are toiling and suffering from the conditions that are being created in the present readjustment; when everything is settled and unemployment is rife; when men in the city of Peterborough, as elsewhere, are out of employment for months and months, the great industries very much concerned over this proposed legislation, and they are protesting in the most vigorous manner against it, because it will probably cut off business that would amount to millions of dollars in favour of what they call the "barrel" business—I do not mean since the referendum, but before that.

Ladies' Wear Store
Wednesday, June 1st
One Door South of Present Fur Store
Barrie Building—Next Custom House

12 Months of steadily shrinking values and successive reductions in prices have been like the tonic of a cold bath.

Back of the critical days of the past year there has been 21 years of contact between "Barries" and its public and 54 years of continuous Fur service since this business was founded in Peterborough by our predecessors. Years of service rendered from the heart and not simply from the eye and lips—putting first in each transaction the interest of the customer—co-operation with everything which goes to make a better community—with an honest pride in Peterborough and its qualifications to be a fine and exceptional residence and manufacturing centre.

No store was ever successful in the true sense of that term whose resources were wholly within itself.

Community confidence and community support, strengthened and deepened in prosperity and adversity, through fair weather and foul, are indispensably requisite to growth in material resources and in the ability to render still better service, for which Barrie's devoutly give thanks to-day.

The future is one we face in confidence, therefore this new LADIES' WEAR STORE! We wish every citizen to come in and see the goods we are able to offer. REPRESENTATIVE PRICES will be given on each article offered—NOT SPECIALS. Our policy is to give new merchandise at old-fashioned prices. Barrie's Quality, Style and Value—to make and keep permanent customers, based on present-day reductions in prices, rather than "special sale" out-of-date garments or cheaply made materials and workmanship.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

DR. YOUNG'S SALARY INCREASED TO $2,000 BY PROPERTY COMMITTEE

BUILDING BY-LAW NEEDED

Instead of buying the estimated 150 tons of coal required to heat the City Buildings, the Police Station, and the Isolation Hospital from one dealer, it seems probable that the city's order will be split amongst several of the coal men.

The Property Committee sat last night to consider the tenders received. There were seven. A. Low & Co. quoted coal at a lower price than any of the others. Mr. Low offered egg and nut for $15.50 and pea at $15.00. The others—Robert Hicks Co., J. E. A. Fitzgerald, W. Scott & Co., McCarthy & Johnston, and H. B. Taylor & Son—all quoted the same prices: Egg $16.25, nut $16.50, and pea $14.00, except that to deliver to the Isolation Hospital H. B. Taylor & Son asked 25 cents more per ton. Low was the low man, but the committee was a trifle leary of the coal. With four of the tenders identical, the Councillors smelled collusion amongst the coal men.

"It looks to me as if they had a council," said Ald. Whitehouse.

"Sure they had," declared Ald. Hay.

"They always do it, Frank, so far as that's concerned," was Ald. Hamilton's remark.

If Low's coal was good quality, the committee felt inclined to give him the contract, but as there was some doubt in their minds, Ald. Hamilton called up A. Low, and asked him about the coal. When the information was given that the coal was dull, the members practically made up their minds that they did not want that grade.

Ald. Crowe saw a soltuion in splitting the contract amongst them all.

"I think we can go on and talk this thing over all night. We had better leave it to the discretion of the chairman," declared Ald. Whitehouse.

Ald. Jones at first protested against shifting the burden upon him, but later acquiesced when Ald. Hamilton moved, seconded by Ald. Crowe, that he and the Mayor consider the tenders and make recommendation to the Council.

M.O.H.'s Salary Increased.

Dr. Young's request for an increase in salary as M.O.H. came up last night. In September, when his duties commenced, Dr. Young stated that he understood his salary would be $2,000, the same as Dr. McPherson received. Instead, it was cut to $1,800, and accordingly Dr. Young asked that the increase be given to date from 1st January.

Ald. Crowe attacked the demand for more money, arguing that when Dr. Young was appointed other doctors could have been secured at $1,500.00. He had only been on the job a short time, Ald. Crowe stated, but in his demand for higher pay he was like all other officials, seeking an increase shortly after they were in office.

Ald. Whitehouse and Ald. Hay defended Dr. Young.

"I think we have a good man," said Ald. Whitehouse, going on to commend the work Dr. Young had accomplished, and referring briefly to his service during the war.

Ald. Hay spoke similarly, pointing out that in many other centres the M.O.H.s had been given increases as high as $600.00. Even in Port Hope they paid the M.O.H. $1,800 a year, Ald. Hay said, when Ald. Crowe started in to elucidate an interjection that few places paid as much as Peterborough.

The chairman and Ald. Hamilton felt that Dr. Young could apply to the County Judge for an increase if they refused to grant it, and themselves favoured the increase to the old scale which Dr. Young believed he was getting.

On the motion of Ald. Hay and Ald. Whitehouse, the increase was granted.

Ald. Crowe made a last effort to forestall the increase by an amendment that they go before the County Judge to have a fair salary fixed, but had no support.

"I won't stand for it," said Ald. Crowe.

The motion carried.

Building By-law.

It was decided last night that the chairman and city engineer proceed with the revision of the draft building by-laws for the city, and make recommendations to the Council, and on the urgent advice of Ald. Jones, decided to paint the smoke stack on the incinerator.

A complaint from the electrical wiring inspector of the Hydro-Electric Commission that the wiring in the City Buildings is a dangerous condtion was passed on to the City Trust by the committee. The wiring is old, and the letter condemned the entire wiring system. It seems probable that the City Hall may have to be completely rewired in the near future.

There is no well-informed European who does not know that Germany is already preparing for the next war. Her propagandists are everywhere.

BARN DOOR KILLED CHILD.

KINGSTON, May 30.—When the wind blew a sliding barn door off its track on Saturday afternoon it fell upon the one-year and four-months-old son of Richard Arthurs, a farmer living near Latimer, and crushed him so badly that he died two hours later.

IT COST $3,500 TO CALL ALTAR BOY "TOUGHEST KID."

New York Youthful Chorister Proved He Was an Exemplary Lad.

NEW YORK, May 31.—It will cost the Russell Sage Foundation, the Survey Association, Inc., and Pauline Goldman $3,500 for calling William McCue "the toughest kid in the street." Willie is an altar boy in St. Ambrose's Church, and, besides this presumption of respectability, he was able to produce witnesses in the Supreme Court, in his suit against those he alleged held him up to scorn, contempt and disgrace, to prove that he was a boy of exemplary character.

The defendants published Willie's picture in a book, entitled "Boyhood and Lawlessness," which dealt with the training of boys, the result of environment and other data of sociological interest. The altar boy also was labeled as the sort of boy who becomes a criminal. Willie complained that he was grossly libeled, and the jury took the same view.

McCue told on the witness stand how he had been tricked into having his picture taken. He said the photographer told him he was taking Boy Scout pictures, and that it was to be used in connection with the work of that organization.

Justice Ford denounced the action of the defendants in denying their motion to set aside the verdict of the jury. There was not the least mitigation, said the court, for the libel on McCue.

"There is not a scintilla of evidence that he was tough at all," said Justice Ford. "In the light of the text accompanying the picture, the boy is put in the category of juvenile criminals. The picture was taken in utter disregard of the rights of the boy. It is a wicked libel. That is the great trouble with these movements. They think where there is poverty there must be criminality.

Praises Humble Homes.

"As a matter of fact in those humble little homes in the section pictured in this book will be found more Christian piety, more devotion to real duty, more of the sterling qualities of humanity, than will be found in the mansions along Fifth avenue.

"These people, from their great heights of self-conscious righteousness and superior excellence, peer down on and discuss these humble beings as though they were so many cobblestones in the street, without any regard at all for their feelings or their rights in the community. It is a most unmitigated wrong upon this plaintiff and I think the jury has been fair and the verdict is not excessive."

A BIG CHANCE.

The lady at 23b Poppings Court was regarded by her neighbors as rather swanky, especially when she had a family photograph taken.

One morning she passed it over the back fence to the lady at No. 23a, who was bursting with envy really. "But do I know them?"

Preserving Kettles 79c and 89c
Water Pails 49c

The Water Pails are seconds, but they will hold water just the same as first, because they have no holes or thin places in them. The enamel finish has been put on rather uneven and they are not as sightly as first quality Pails. Their capacity is 10 or 12 quarts.

The Preserving Kettles are FIRST QUALITY. The 79c line has a capacity for 10 quarts and the 89c ones will hold 14 quarts.

$4.50 Large Size "Triumph" Bedspreads At $2.59

"Triumph" bedspreads do not require any introduction to Peterborough housekeepers. They are large, full double bed size, with a satin finish. Hemmed and ready for use. Our previous shipment sold at $4.50. To-morrow's purchasers will benefit greatly.

LEADER

They are made of a heavy twilled cotton with a military style collar. We have them made-to-order and see to it that the sizes are not skimped. The cotton alone is worth the price we offer them for. Sizes 14½ to 18.

Boys' Summer Jerseys, 43c

Boys' "Zimmerknit" Summer Jerseys with white bodies and blue or red trimming. Also, some that are all-white. Sizes 22 to 32 in short-sleeve style and sizes 28 to 32 with long sleeves.

Girls' and Children's $3 to $5 All Wool Coat Sweaters and Pull-Overs $1.59

A price that will bring many people to our door before the store opens at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning. There are sizes for little tots and girls up to 14 years. They were made to retail at from $3 to $5, but the Annex buyer cleared the lot at a remarkably low price. Some of the colors are Nile green, Copenhagen, strawberry, moss green, old rose, etc.

NEW SHIPMENT

White and Ecru Curtain Nets, 29c Yard

This is the lowest price of the year for this good quality Curtain Net. There is a selection of neat conventional and stripe designs. The widths are 36 to 39 inches. If bought in the regular way, we would have to sell them at 45c and 50c a yard.

Yard-Wide Drapery Cretonnes, 65c to 79c Values, 39c Yard

Real pretty patterns in a good range of colors. The quality is surprisingly good. You will find patterns suitable for any room in the house, and we daresay to suit any decorative scheme you have in mind.

Women's $1.65 Fine Nainsook Night Gowns, $1.19

Most women will approve of the style of these Gowns. They have a round neck and short sleeves; the latter are finished with torchon lace. Across the front is a yoke effect finished with embroidery and beading. The lengths are 58 to 60 inches. Good liberal sizes.

Women's 75c Mercerized Black Lisle Hose, 49c Pair, 2 Pairs 95c

The greatest testimonial of the good value of these Stockings is the great number of pairs we have sold. They are fashioned to form without seams and have been dyed with a fast dye. Sizes 9, 9½ and 10.

Women's Summer Knit Combinations, 59c

This price is much less than actual wholesale cost. There are medium and large sizes and the Drawers have double knees and crochet lace edging and the Vests are sleeveless "Opera Style" with wash ribbon bands. They are really just half price.

"Fleet-Foot" Sports Shoes in Children's Sizes

This is a leading brand of Sport Shoes and they are first quality. We mention this because the prices might lead you to believe that they are inferior goods.

Children's, in sizes 4 to 10, $1.29 pair.

Time-Limit Sales!

11.30 A.M. TO 1.30 P.M.

Women's Black Cotton Stockings, 15c Pr.

"Perfection Brand" hose. These stockings are made with extra heavy heels and toes. They have the quality and the finish to make them wear well. When the sale commences there will be sizes 8½ to 10. 'Phone orders will not be accepted and not more than six pairs allowed to one customer.

No "Seconds," Positively "Firsts."

4.30 TO 5.30 P.M.

600 Yards, Yard Wide 39c Prints, 23c Yard

It is a good print and it is a yard wide. Just think—only 23c a yard. You can have navy blue and light and medium colored grounds; stripe and figured patterns. A rousing good value for One Hour Only.

Women's Special $1.25 Silk Hose, 79c Pair, 2 Pairs $1.50

These are great value. We know it because we have sold hundreds of pairs and we keep on selling them. You can have mid grey, dark grey, sand, gun metal, champagne and white. Not every size in each color, but a complete range of colors in the lot.

JUST ARRIVED

1500 Yards of Hazel Ginghams, 19c Yard

"Hazel," a good quality dress gingham in a splendid assortment of new colorings and patterns—mostly attractive plaids and neat checks. We have made to-morrow's Annex price very low so they will sell with a rush.

50c White Piques at 29c Yard

You have choice of three widths of cord—fine, medium and wide. The quality is good and suitable for women's skirts and middies and children's dresses and rompers. The width is 27 inches.

39c Striped Galatea 27c Yard

Galatea Shirtings in a range of China blue and white striped patterns. An excellent wearing and washing cloth, suitable for dresses, blouses, aprons, skirts, etc. The width is 31/32 inches.

75c and 65c Striped Cambric Shirtings, 33c Yard

Cambric Shirtings of an excellent quality in a variety of colored stripe patterns. They are 36 inches, and we sell a great many yards of them for men's shirts and pyjamas and women's tailored blouses and sport dresses. They are part of a clearing lot from the mill. If we bought them in the regular way, we would have to sell them at 75c and 65c yard.

Mill Remnants of White Goods, 19c Yd.

If they were our own remnants we would be selling them very low, but when they are mill remnants you can rest assured that the price is down to rock bottom.

They come in lengths from 2 to 10 yards. We will cut the pieces. The materials are Mid-dy Twills, Beach Cloths, Gabardines, Dimities, Crepes and Vestings. Mostly all are 32 inches wide.

Extra Heavy Factory Cotton, 40 Inches Wide, 25c Yard

It is an extra heavy weight, and until we received this shipment we had to sell it at 43c yard. On Wednesday we will sell it at half the former price.

Children's White Cotton Drawers, 39c

Girls' Drawers made of a splendid quality white cotton. They are embroidery trimmed. A good range of sizes, and they are regularly worth 50c and 65c, according to sizes. Wednesday's price is the lowest in years.

200 Pairs First Quality Largest 12-4 Size Flannelette Blankets $2.59 Pair

Made-in-Canada Flannelette Blankets of the very best quality, and they are the largest 12/4, extra double bed size. You can have white or light grey with pink or blue colored stripe borders. We also guarantee every pair to be absolutely perfect. An especially low price for to-morrow's Annex buyers.

FIRST BATTALION OF BRITISH HAVE REACHED SILESIA

ENTHUSIASTICALLY RECEIVED BY POPULACE IN OPPELN.

OPPELIN, May 31. Canadian Press. The first battalion of the Black Watch arrived here yesterday and was met by hundreds of children who threw flowers at the British soldiers. They broke into the marching squads trying to hold the soldiers' hands, and shouted gleefully as the bagpipes screeched the music of the march.

The residents of the place lined the sidewalks smilingly, and the men doffed their hats as the kiltie troops passed. The Scotsmen were pleased at the reception and patted the children's heads and exchanged greetings with the crowd.

The German green police stood at rigid salute until the whole column was by, then went laughing about their duty. The Italians appear eager to cooperate with the British in driving out the insurgent Poles. An Italian officer remarked: "It is high time that they let us loose on these fellows."

Box cars of a new type with hoppers in the bottom that open and discharge the load when a pin is withdrawn have recently been placed in service on the Canadian Pacific Railway.

CENSUS FORCES START TO-MORROW.

All Questions in the Schedule Must Be Censured.

Every detail is completed for the taking of the sixth census, which will commence to-morrow morning. Classes of instruction have been held by Col. G. Mills, Commissioner for Peterborough West, and by Major T. D. Johnson, Commissioner for Peterborough East. Great care has been taken in importing the necessary instructions to the enumerators. The public can co-operate to a great extent with the Commissioners by giving the enumerators the information asked for as promptly and correctly as possible. In any case all questions asked on the schedule must be answered.

Secrecy of census information is provided for every person connected with the work of taking the census, from the Minister down is sworn to secrecy; so that the public may be assured that no information regarding their affairs will ever be made public or used to their disadvantage in any way.

WOULL RAISE VALUE OF ENGLISH PENNY.

MANCHESTER, May 31.—The Manchestr Chamber of Commerce has discussed a proposal to raise the value of the English penny so that 10 pennies would equal 1 shilling. The suggestion, it is pointed out, would obviate the necessity for any newcoinage and the Decimal Association has expressed itself as in favor of the idea.

Let Us Have the Pleasure of Showing You the "Barnet" Refrigerator

A Representative from the Factory Is Here

We have a display of this best of all refrigerators on our third floor, and would like to have the privilege of explaining its many exclusive features—whether or not you intend to buy.

We would like to show you why the Barnet beat the three best refrigerators made in the United States in a five-day test. The Barnet is an all-Canadian product—invented by a Canadian, made by Canadians in a Canadian factory, by a Canadian company.

We would like to show you why it saves the ice, why it is so easily cleaned with its seamless porcelain lining, and why the ventilating and circulating systems keep the interior absolutely dry and odorless.

SPECULATED WITH WIFE'S DOWRY, RETURNED HER AND DOWRY TO HER FATHER, MAKING 4,000,000 CROWNS

BUDAPEST, May 31.—(Associated Press).—A remarkable story of how a young Hungarian made a profit of 4,000,000 crowns by speculting with his wife's dowry and then sending her and her dowry back to her father has just come to light here.

Four months ago Joseph Klein, a young merchant of Budapest of small means, married a Transylvanin girl and received with her a dowry of 2,000,000 Rumanian lei (worth at present exchange rates about one and one-fourth cents per lei.)

The bridegoom quickly changed his wife's dowry into Hungarian currency and received in exchange 14,000,000 crowns, the crown then being quoted seven to the lei.

After the honeymoon the young husband found that his good opinion of both the Rumanian currency and of his wife had declined, and that the crown was now only five to the lei.

Mr. Klein thereupon bought back his wife's dowry for 10,000,000 crowns and sent her and her dowry back to her father. By that transaction Klein made clear profit of 4,000,000 crowns and is now said to be on the lookout for another wife.

This is an example of how the marriage market here has been affected by the fluctuation of exchange values. When the Hungarian crown sank very low, the value of Transylvania, South Hungarian and Slovak girls backed by good Rumanian lei, Jugoslav dinars and Czecho-Slovak sokols, rose considerably in the eyes of the Hungarian youths and at least as many matches were made on the exchange as in heaven.

Slowly, with the improvement of the Hungarian money, the demand for girls from the lost provinces abated and Magyar girls are again very firm in the market. Former marriages with foreign currency girls are now being cancelled for the sake of Huhgarian women.

THOUSAND BRIDGES IN CONSTRUCTION.

Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Public Works, estimates that over 5000 people directly and indirectly are being given employment at the present time on Government road work.

"The paving being done," said Mr. Biggs, "more than equals the entire Hamilton-Toronto highway. It includes small sections west of Hamilton, east of Brantford, south of Guelph, east of Ottawa, west of London, east of Sarnia, east of Windsor, west of Chatham, and to the north of Stratford. The work is spread over the entire system.

"There are one thousand bridges and culverts under construction."

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL ASKS THAT PORT HOPE-PETERBORO ROAD BE BUILT DIRECTLY OVER HILL AT SPRINGVILLE

BELIEVES IT WORLD BE EASIER TO MAKE GRADE ON HILL THAN ON CURVE AND WOULD IMPROVE ROAD'S APPEARANCE.

North Monaghan Council held its Court of Revision in the Town Hall Monday. All members were present with Deputy-Reeve Wilson in the chair.

An appeal and a sworn declaration was presented by Frank Peters that his dog had been destroyed. The motion was passed that his dog tax be struck off the assessment roll. This was the only appeal presented and a motion was passed that the assessment roll be accepted and confirmed.

The Council then proceeded with its regular business with Reeve Jno. MacIntosh presiding. Archie Patterson was appointed road commissioner for Road Division No. 5.

A motion was passed that Thomas Arnot, school attendance officer, be paid his annual salary, $40.00.

It was moved by Mr. Lillico, and seconded by Mr. Dobbin, that a petition be addressed to the Department of Public Works, requesting that the Peterborough - Port Hope provincial highway be constructed over the hill at Springville instead of deviating around it, because it would be easier for a vehicle to make the grade on the hill than on a curve, and because it would improve the appearance of the road.

Bert Sanderson, assessor, was granted $20.00 for postage and extra work on the assessment roll.

A grant of $5.00 was made to the National Cemetery Association.

The meeting then adjourned.

The next meeting will be held at the Court House, Peterborough, on Monday evening, 13th June, at seven o'clock.

LETTER FROM MR. BURNHAM

Sir: The urgent necessity of reforming the old Liberal-Conservative party, as proposed at the coming gathering of the old-timers on June 10th, ought to be plain to all, after the Yamaska election of Saturday last. The Globe states that the keynote of the election was the resolve of the French-Canadians in Quebec to resist all aid to Great Britain. When we know how patriotic those French-Canadians are who dwell amongst us, it is hard to understand the hatred of the Empire so rampant in Quebec. The course being pursued by the Meighen government in that province is surely a most dangerous one. Mondou, the Meighen standard-bearer, was the most ferocious Nationalist of them all, and to cap the climax, he called Meighen a hangman, and refused to take it back. What the Meighen government means by such desperate tactics as the nomination of such a man as their candidate it would be indeed hard to make out. If all parties were being done away with, there might be some excuse for asking the old Conservative party to forget its great and glorious traditions, but what is behind this movement to destroy it, when there are more parties in the field, not fewer? The coming meeting is purely a gathering of the old boys and their sisters, of the grand old party to decide if they are to commit suicide, because Quebec does not like them as they are, and on account of their war record, or if they are to reform themselves into an association in West Peterboro, as is being done freely elsewhere, for the purpose of notifying traitors to the old flag, the old policy, and the old man, that "British subjects we were born and British subjects we will die."

J. H. BURNHAM.

PERMITS ISSUED AT CITY HALL

Although there were many more building permits issued at the City Hall during May than in April, they were practically all for small amounts, and consequently the total does not approach that of April, when there were several large ones issued, notably that for $37,000 for the alterations to the Bank of Toronto building. During May permits to the total of $31,960 were issued as compared with $69,945 in April. The total building permits issued this year represent in aggregate $121,565.

CROP OUTLOOK IN DISTRICT AROUND CITY NOT BRIGHT

SOME CROPS HARDLY THROUGH THE GROUND, FARMER SAYS.

With the growing season well advanced, many crops are hardly through the ground, and the crop prospects in this district are far from bright, a farmer told The Examiner this morning.

In spite of the comparatively early spring, crops had been backward, he said.

BROTHERS MIXED IT IN A FIGHT

Magistrate Dumble believes in brotherly love, and for this reason he promptly dismissed an assault charge laid by one John upon one Norman in this morning's police court. They are two brothers, but there has been hard feelings between them for years. John in the hope that his brother would be more kindly inclined, called upon him Saturday evening. Old quarrels instead of becoming mellow, seemed to ripen with age and the friendly visit ended in a fight, in which brother John was severely cut by brother Norman, who was armed with an iron bedleg.

"You're both two children and two fools. You both ought to be put in jail. I dismiss this case, the costs to be paid by informant," said Magistrate Dumble, after severely rebuking both men for their filial unaffection.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

How HEARTS Can Be BROKEN by Great JOY

THE shock of a great grief or a sudden joy literally can break the heart and produce instant death. This startling statement is based on the assertion made in a lecture on "The Healthy Heart," by Dr. J. Strickland Goodall, an eminent heart specialist of London.

The most astounding thing about Dr. Goodall's discovery is that hearts are more often literally broken by joy than by sorrow.

"The ordinary, everyday emotions of life produce more wear and tear on the heart than work," Dr. Goodall says. "The heart is protected from overstrain in a variety of ways. Fainting, with the subsequent rest of the heart, is one of these." This may explain the method in the madness of the girls of grandmother's day who were so accustomed to fainting.

Thus that old explanation, "died of a broken heart," long regarded merely as a figure of speech overworked by sentimental novelists, sob sisters and emotional gossips, is an actual physiological possibility, according to solemn medical testimony.

"There is no doubt," continues Dr. Goodall, "that a broken heart is a physiological possibility and that the records of such disasters so common in fiction have a definite excuse in fact.

"Broken hearts occur not only among human beings, but among animals, and probably are more frequently caused by sudden emotions of joy than by sudden grief. I, myself, have known an animal to rupture its heart through joy. Indeed, I have seen this as it happened.

"The disaster is not caused by grief, the emotion, nor by joy, the emotion, but indirectly. It is the result of the presence in the blood of a chemical substance poured into it as the result of one of those curious reactions of which we know so little. Grief, joy, worry, love—all these emotions and probably all others produce definite chemical reactions resulting in the generation of actual substances. Hate, for example, produces a chemical poison, which affects the blood of him who hates. And so for all the other emotions. Those that are produced by joy seem most likely to 'break' the heart. The fatal result is caused by an overstimulation of heart nerves.

"It is emotion rather than work which produces the greater portion of wear and tear upon the heart. Climbing a flight of stairs may make a heart beat far above the normal, but it will not produce an effect more notable than sudden fright, fit of anger, attack of grief, emotion or great joy.

"The average man's heart before he starts running for a train is doing at the rate of 152 foot pounds. By the time he has caught the train—or missed it—his heart is doing, usually, 360 foot pounds. What engagement is worth so great a risk as a strain of that kind must entail, especially in the case of the weak through age, illness or physical unfitness? No fat man or woman ever can afford to start late for a train."

Dr. Goodall also brings out some other interesting and unusual facts about the heart. For example, he calls general attention to the fact that a pain in the heart must be accepted as a beneficent and not an unfortunate thing, as the pain is nature's warning that care must be exercised and less strain placed upon the heart.

"That both men and women die of broken hearts is literally true," declares Dr. Halton. "The explanation lies in the peculiar construction of the heart muscles, and in their almost instant response to poisons coming from the brain through the blood.

"The heart muscles are non-striated, that is, they are not under the control of the will. The muscles in your arm are striated; you can make them pick up a pencil from your desk or do any other act within their power to perform, at the bidding of your conscious wish. But the heart muscles expand and contract without this conscious direction. Also they are most interestingly constructed; one fits into the other exactly like the parts of Chinese furniture, which is dovetailed together without the use of nails.

"When a person is ill of pneumonia and yet is said to have died from heart failure, it means that the poison of the disease has so worked on the heart as to pull apart these dovetailed muscles and break the heart's fibres—thus keeping the organ from doing its work and sending the blood through the body.

"Exactly the same effect may be caused to a susceptible heart by a severe emotional shock such as intense grief or equally intense joy. The impact of this emotion on the brain may generate a poison similar to intense fatigue poison, which quickly travels through the blood to the heart and breaks apart the muscles and fibres."

In Dr. Halton's opinion there is at least a chance that the girl who learns her lover has jilted her may die of a broken heart.

"Personally," says Dr. Halton, "I think death from a broken heart quite as likely to occur in the case of the girl who has fished for a young man five years or so and finally landed him. The shock of joy might well be too much for her!

"Intense emotional shock sometimes has another fatal effect on the heart. It may paralyze the nervous system and thus prevent the nerves of the brain from controlling the circulation of the blood through the heart. This has happened to women who believed their husbands killed in the war and to whom these husbands suddenly reappeared alive and well."

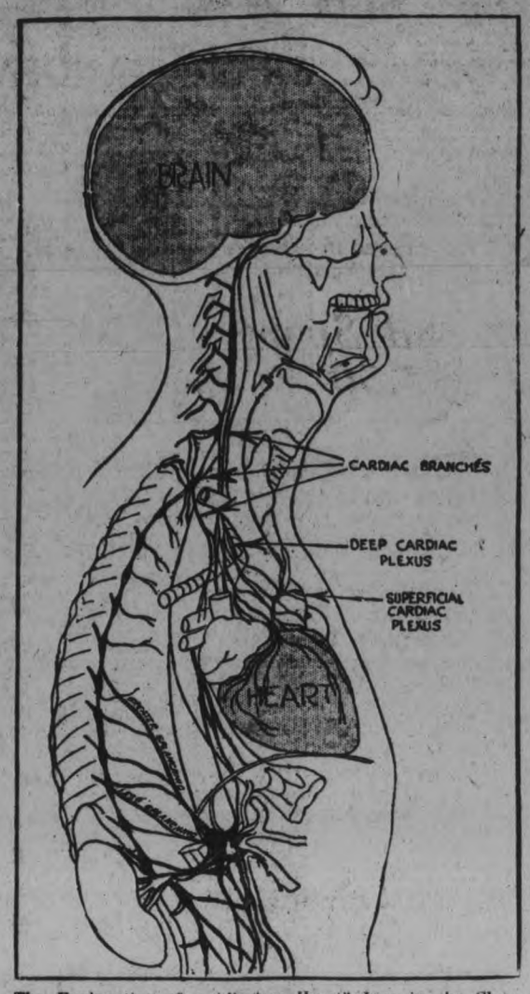
While both men and women are likely to break their hearts, Dr. Halton says it is not for the same reasons.

"When a man dies of a physiological broken heart," explains Dr. Halton, "it is very likely due to over-strain in athletics. As for the effect of love on his heart—well, you remember what Shakespeare said: 'Men have died and worms have eaten them, but not for love.'

"A woman's heart is far more susceptible than that of a man to emotional shocks. The modern woman has more emotional resistance than her grandmother, since she has a broader and more interesting life, yet even today her heart is more likely to be broken by overpowering emotion than the heart of a man."

Dr. Halton offers the comforting knowledge that it is possible to mend a heart that literally has been broken.

"When a person drops under an emotional shock and the heart muscles pull apart," says Dr. Halton, "there are three methods of treatment which should be applied at once. Hypodermic stimulants should be given; there should be massage of the arms and legs, working upward from the hands and feet, to help the blood to circulate in some slight degree; and the pulmotor should be used to promote artificial respiration. With this combined treatment nature is given a chance to reassert herself. Dr. Alexis Carrel and others have proved that life will return even after the heart has almost stopped functioning for a long period."



The Explanation of a "Broken Heart" Lies in the Close Connection Existing Between the Brain and the Heart, as Shown in the Diagram. Great Emotions, Scientists Say, Produce Chemical Reactions Often of a Poisonous Nature. These Poisons Are Carried from the Brain Through the Blood to the Heart with the Frequently Fatal Result of a Sudden Overstimulation of the Heart Nerves.

FROM WATCHES TO WIRELESS

WATCHES and wireless may at first thought seem to have little in common. Any connection they might have would appear to be that of telling the exact time a message was sent or received. Yet two watches which would not agree were the direct cause of one man becoming a nationally known radio amateur and the recent purchase of the International Radio Company by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

Some years ago Frank Conrad, assistant chief engineer of the Westinghouse company, and a friend, also an electrical engineer, were in the habit of lunching together every day. Both were very particular about their watches, as technical men often are, being careful to point out the merits of their respective time-pieces to all their friends. It was their custom to stop every noon in front of a master clock and compare their watches with the large intricate mechanism. First one and then the other would be more nearly in accord with the master clock, which afforded the winner of that particular day an opportunity to indulge in some good-natured "joshing" at the other's expense.

This went along for some time, neither one gaining much advantage, until Conrad's rival decided to get a high-priced watch and thus settle the argument. This he did, proudly exhibiting a shining new watch, whose works were guaranteed by one of the best watch manufacturers in the United States. Conrad said nothing, as some time before this he had also purchased new works, but placed them in his old case, so had to all outward appearances the same aged "turnip." Still the watches would not agree with the master clock.

The man with the new watch even went so far as to plot a curve of seconds showing exactly wherein his time-piece varied with the seconds of the master clock. It is said this curve plotting cost the watch manufacturers three new works before the engineer could be satisfied as to quality.

Conrad's watch still varied so much that he began to suspect there was something the matter with the master clock, so he decided to get some new source of time. He thought the government time signals sent out nightly from the U. S. station at Arlington would be just the thing to get absolutely correct time and so make the discomfiture of his rival complete. With this idea in view he set up some "tin cans and a bit of wire" with which he was soon able to get some "buzzing" out of the air. For some time all the signals Conrad obtained were from a neighbor scarcely twenty blocks away, but he persevered, being rewarded soon by messages from Arlington.

Thereafter, every night he set his watch according to the time sent from Arlington, and comparing his time next noon with that of the master clock was able to be in almost perfect accord with it. His rival was not able to tell for a long time how Conrad was able to get his watch so that it varied seemingly not one-tenth of a second, but when he heard the method acknowledged defeat.

MYSTERIES of SENSE of SMELL

WHAT is scent? A fraction of a grain of musk will scent a room for years, and at the end of that time its weight is not diminished by the smallest fraction. And why is it that scent "lies" at some times and not at others?

Man—civilized man—has largely lost the keen sense of smell which his ancestors possessed, but some less civilized races are still extraordinarily keen scented. The half-savage Ainu of northern Japan can track game, like a dog, by nose alone.

Occasionally a member of one of the white races is found who possesses an almost perfect faculty of scent. The blind deaf-mute James Mitchell could recognize his friends when they came into the room simply by their smell, and Dean Buckland, the celebrated English geologist, when riding with friends, and the party had lost their way and were benighted, got off his horse, picked up a handful of earth, smelled it, and at once declared that they were near Uxbridge.

Scientists have discussed this problem without coming to any definite conclusion. It is true that hounds are usually better able to follow a fox on a dull, damp day than on one of bright sun and dry air, but even as to this there is no hard and fast rule.

Scent may be good in the morning, bad in the afternoon, or the case may be exactly reversed, and hounds which have been constantly at fault in the morning may run hard later in the day.

The powers of scent of sporting dogs, such as setters and retrievers, are very marvellous. Yet these, too, vary greatly at different times. One hunter relates a case in which on a September afternoon no fewer than ten partridges were running wounded at one time and his retriever could not find one of them.

He waited until the cool of the evening, brought her back to the spot, and within ten minutes she had tracked down and retrieved every one of the birds.

Why, for instance, are cats so strangely fond of valerian? Why are rats so keen on aniseed and rhodium? Why are stoats and weasels attracted by oil of musk? And, finally, is it a kind provision of nature that a vixen with cubs leaves hardly any scent behind her?

Some carbide of calcium had been thrown out on a rubbish heap, and the reek of acetylene which rose from it was plain at a distance of several yards. Yet three or four hens scratched and pecked over the heap and seemed quite unconscious of anything unpleasant.

How WILD GOOSE Suggested Newest TYPE of AIRPLANE

AN airplane with wings that flap like a bird has been patented by Thomas J. Bird, of Hampton, Va. The inventor claims his machine can get up from the water as well as it can from the land. This new model is different from the rigid winged airplane, which receives its impetus from a rapidly revolving propeller. In several tests the machine has proved that it can fly and it is claimed by the inventor and government experts that it will probably prove a much better flyer than the present-day airplane.

The inventor claims that no difficulty will be experienced in developing an engine revolution of 160 to 200 per minute, and a speed of 175 to 200 miles per hour.

Mr. Bird says his machine in the "take off" and flight through the air does not create or require a vacuum, as does the present-day airplane. Mr. Bird, who is a marine engineer, several years ago took a course in aviation at San Diego, Cal., and became a regular licensed aviator. His idea was to do away with the present propeller and construct a machine with wings or planes that would flap like any winged creature of the air.

To attain this end he made exhausitive studies of and observed the flights of wild fowls, especially the wild goose and the eagle. His observations of the sustained flight of the wild goose convinced him that that fowl is one of the swiftest of all winged creatures. He secured two enormous eagles and by many tests on them made with strong but light tackle attached to their bodies, he enlarged his understanding of the art of flying.

The motive power necessary for the propulsion of the mechanism of Mr. Bird's flying machine is a gasoline engine or engines. The most essential mechanism is, first, the universal joint bearing boxes, which connect the wings of the flying machine to the body, and wherewith the wings are caused to swing, flapping like those of a bird in the air; and, second, the wing guiding disc that causes the wings to move downward and upward in an oblong circular movement similar to that of an oarsman rowing a boat. This eliminates all jerking motion in the wing.

It is the constant aim of mechanical engineers in the construction of gasoline engines in operation to hold down the speed revolutions to keep the heat produced by gas combustion and friction at a temperature that will prevent distortion of the engines. For the type of airplane now in use the propellers must revolve very rapidly and, consequently, the engines are speeded up very near the danger point, especially if a speed of 96 miles per hour is maintained continuously for many hours. This is the speed of the wild goose.

In Mr. Bird's flying machine, with wings like those of a wild goose, the wings will be propelled eight revolutions per minute to attain this speed, whereas the propeller airplane will require 1400 per minute.

The wings or planes in this invention are formed from overlapping slats, and are so constructed as automatically to close on the downward and forward thrust of the wings and open as the wings rise or recover, thereby permitting the air or water, as the case may be, to pass through without retarding the movement of the wings.

HOW to HYPNOTIZE a LOBSTER

HYPNOTIZING a lobster (not the human species) is quite the scientific joke of the moment. Although scientists and fishermen have long known that the lobster is highly responsive to sensory impressions, the credit for making the general public acquainted with this fact is due to Mr. Martin F. Duncan, librarian of the London Zoological Society, who recently carried out such a further demonstration with these crustaceans. The lobster is sent into a kind of hypnotic trance by stroking it or by rapping a stick along its carapace. The nerve-centres under this hard shell are extremely sensitive; gradually the lobster passes off into a trance, and if stood on its head will remain there for five or seven minutes until the hypnotic state has passed.

For the purpose of his experiment Mr. Duncan used a wild, uneducated female lobster, selected at random from a fishmonger's slab. There could therefore be no question of a trained confederate or of collusion. The lobster selected was a big one of three pounds four ounces, and the hypnotist elected not to cut the string binding her claws, as it showed considerable liveliness.

The lobster "bucked" just like a mustang as Mr. Duncan tried to spread out the tail flat on his desk. He performed some rhythmic passes up and down the lobster's polished black back, and it grew more docile, permitting the tail to be unfolded. Then for two minutes the operator lightly massaged the lobster's back with the tips of his fingers until the lobster lost its expression of annoyed anxiety and relaxed into a trance.

Then came the crowning moment. Mr. Duncan lifted the hypnotized shellfish and stood it on her head. With the two claws and nose as three points of support it stood, upended and motionless, for five minutes. After that the hypnotic sleep grew lighter and passed away a few moments later, leaving a normally angry lobster.

Dr. Chalmers Mitchell, F. R. S., secretary to the London Zoological Society, watched the experiment with keen interest, but could suggest no explanation. Mr. Duncan points out that some important nerve centres lie just under the shell of the lobster's back, and these may have something to do with the phenomenon.

He made this queer discovery when gathering specimens for the Marine Biological Laboratory at Plymouth, England. On trying to prevent an active lobster from crawling out of the boat his wet hand slipped several times on its back and the creature grew quieter. He repeated the rubbing movement and produced a hypnotic trance.

Why SOME SEAS Were NAMED for COLORS

THE Black sea, to the south of Russia, is not really black, as might be inferred from its name. Its water has about the same greenish-blue cast as other large bodies of water. It was so named by the Russians, it appears, because of its southerly position relative to them, in contrast to the White sea in the north. If the latter had been named "North" sea, they probably would have named the former "South" sea if they had adhered to the same principle. To the Greeks and some of the other older European peoples the Black sea is the Hospitable sea, a name applied to it centuries ago by Greek discoverers.

With this exception the names of the color seas are all appropriate and truly descriptive. The White sea, in reality a gulf of the Arctic ocean, is actually white during a large part of each year. The climate of that region is cold and the surface of the sea for months at a stretch is covered with a thick sheet of ice which like the surrounding land is hidden under a heavy mantle of snow.

The water of the Yellow sea is stained yellow by the great quantities of mud carried in by the rivers of China. This sea is comparatively shallow and the yellow sand and clay of its bottom accentuate the yellow color of the water for a considerable distance from the shores.

The bed of the Red sea consists largely of reefs built up by the coral insect. The red color of this formation shows plainly through the clear water, making it appear red. Some regard the name as having been derived from that of the ancient town of Edom (meaning red) which stretches along its shore. It is quite as reasonable, however, to assume that the town was named for the sea as that the sea was named for the town.

Using a NECKLACE of COLORED BEADS in Order to PREVENT MIXUPS in BABIES

MIX-UPS in babies are things of the past in a maternity hospital of New York City. This particular institution has adopted a system for identifying new-born babies which in the opinion of experts has proven the best so far invented. It has been "christened" the "Nursery Name Identification Necklace System," and is being adopted by maternity hospitals throughout the country. There is said to be no chance of a mistake when this system is used.

The first thing a new-born baby will wear is a string of beads—pink or blue, according to the sex.

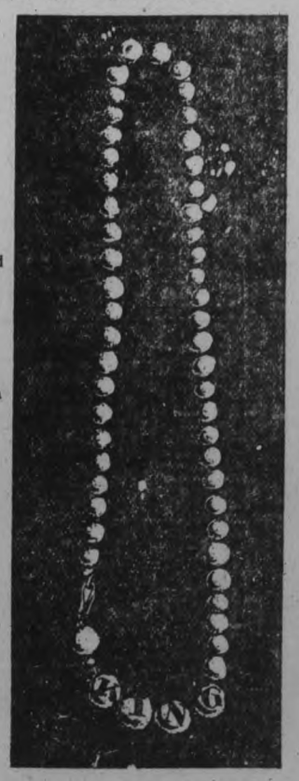
As soon as the baby is born the nurse in charge forms the mother's name with the white beads, lettered in black on two sides. These lettered beads are strung on one end of the line in proper sequence and a stop-knot placed after the last bead. The necklace is then placed around the baby's neck, and the ends of the line tied with a knot, and the two ends sealed together with a small lead seal. This is worn by the baby as long as it remains in the hospital, the name being always accessible and quickly read.

Old-fashioned mothers may say that the proper place for a baby to be born is in the home of the mother. But this is an age of specialists, and the small apartments of the present day are not designed to afford comfort, to say nothing of safety at this all-important time. The maternity hospitals are equipped with the latest scientific appliances and aids, and also have the advantage of the best experts in obstetrics, always ready for any emergency.

There has been talk of foot-printing of infants, but it is said there is no positive proof that the lines of a baby's foot do not change with its growth. Besides, it is not every one who can read such a print. If babies became "mixed up" in a hospital the mothers would be kept in anxious suspense while the city was searched for an expert to read the prints.

Many systems of marking have been experimented with. It has been found that wristlets become blurred or are liable to slip off. Adhesive plaster stuck on the baby's body becomes blurred or drops off and is unsanitary. Metal necklaces discolor or irritate the neck. Some hospitals have marked the name of the baby with dyes, but mothers object to this as reminding them too much of branding cattle.

The necklace of lettered beads has been proved to be simple and rapid in adjustment, is sanitary and indestructible, and satisfies the most nervous or sceptical mother that her baby cannot get mixed up with any other in the institution.



As Soon as the Baby Is Born the Nurse Forms the Mother's Name with the White Beads, Lettered in Black on Two Sides. These Lettered Beads Are Strung on One End of the Line in Proper Sequence and a Stop-Knot Placed After the Last Bead. The Necklace is Then Placed Around the Baby's Neck, and the Ends of the Line Tied with a Knot, and the Ends Sealed Together with a Small Lead Seal.

THE DOUBLE STORE
GEORGE ST. PETERBORO

The hon member for Shelburne and Queen's (Mr. Fielding), has stated the situation clearly in the words of the proposed amendment.

That the aim of the fiscal policy of Canada should be the encouragement of industries based on the natural resources of the country, the development of which may reasonably be expected to create healthy enterprises giving promise of enduring success.

Those enterprises which we hope will have enduring success, based on the natural resources of this country, includes the industries which depend upon the wonderful electrical energy which we possess all through the province of Ontario That energy gives to industrial Ontario an advantage over all American concerns, such as, for instance exist in Bridgeport, Connecticut, an industrial centre which pays something like $20 a horse-power more than we do in Peterborough. If we are given an opportunity to develop these industries to a greater degree than we have reached it will mean a great deal of wealth for the country, but we cannot hope for any success if we tax the food of the people, thus increasing cost of manufacturing. If you increase the cost of living to the workingman by taxing his food, he must in turn remand a decent wage from his employer, and the cost of producing will accordingly be increased, so that in the end the consumer must foot the bill.

Diamonds, however, are free, and while the minister may think that this fact will help him in any way, when he goes to Peterborough, I have my doubts.

The other day, because some of us presumed to express some different opinions from the Prime Minister's, that right hon. gentleman must needs taunt those sitting on this side of the House with being tools and minions; but his taunt is just about as effective and valuable, and goes just about as far as the taunt of the school boy who sits on the fence and makes faces at the passers-by. We have a right to our opinions, and in this free Parliament we have the right to voice them; and we resent such aspersions as the Prime Minister saw fit to cast upon hon. members of the House.

Then he makes a plea for consistency. Well, those who have read the utterances of the Minister of Immigration (Mr. Calder), will recall that he has given expression to the same great principles which we have always espoused, and I should like to quote from the Official Debates of the session of 1919. Let me read very briefly from page 70, where the Minister of Immigration expresses himself very well, as he usually does.

Just let me say that when I joined this Government I joined as a Liberal, and I am a Liberal to-day.

That declaration has an honest ring to it. He goes on:

More than that no person can make me anything else. There may be those who would like to drive me out of the Liberal party, but they cannot do it.

He will not let them drive him out of the party, let alone leave it on his own accord.

Mr. LAPOINTE: It would be very hard to drive him out.

An hon. MEMBER: "Far, far away."

Mr. GORDON: (reading):

I care not whether I am in the organization or whether I have any part in the organization—that means very little in times like these. I have had letters from my friends out West saying: For goodness sake Calder; come over while there is time—as somebody said to-day—or it may be too late.

Mr. RINFRET: That is a great speech.

Mr. GORDON: (reading):

The question of party is a very small thing at the present time, in my judgment. There is something bigger at stake than mere politics at the moment.

It would be rather interesting for us to know what the minister had in mind when he said there was something bigger at stake. I think there was more than a single meaning to that.

We have bigger, more important work to do. When the time comes later on there may be those who desire to play politics in this country. Well and good; let that be done when the time does come. Just now we have something else to attend to.

And then he continues in some very interesting statements which I will briefly quote from Hansard of 1919, page 3340:

The time has arrived, I believe, when a thorough study should be made of Canada's economic situation in order that we may have a general revision of the tariff.

Mr. LEMIEUX: Who is speaking?

Mr. GORDON: The hon. the Minister of Immigration.

Mr. LEMIEUX: Again?

Mr. GORDON: Yes, again; in 1919. He goes on to say:

The existing tariff, in my judgment, has outlived its usefulness. It was made for a period some ten or twelve years ago, and it is chock-full of all sorts of anomalies which should be straightened out. A thorough investigation and inquiry, as forcasted by the Minister of Finance, should be made with a view to having a general revision of the tariff.

The minister follows that up with a further statement which I will briefly quote:

When I joined the Government in 1917—

—I did so for very definite specific reason. I did so because I believe the proposals that were put forward at that time set out the only policy that would enable Canada to see this war through, so far as our part in it was concerned. Now I believe it to be my duty to stay with the task assumed until demobilization has been completed and our soldiers are returned.

They are back to Peterborough I know.

An hon. MEMBER: He means demobilization of the Government.

I do not purpose to allow any temporary changes in the tariff to divert me from my duty in that respect as I see it.

The Prime Minister has charged hon gentlemen on this side of the House with inconsistency. Does it lie in his mouth to say that we on this side have not been quite as consistent as some in his own family circle? Now Mr. W. F. O'Connor opposed the present Government in the Peterborough election. Mr. O'Connor was the High Cost of Living Commissioner, because while he was commissioner the cost of living went up, and when he resigned it came down.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Hear, hear.

MR. GORDON: As I say, Mr. O'Connor opposed this Government in the Peterborough election; he was on the platform of the Labour candidate and supported him against this Government. Yet the Minister of Militia, when the Bankruptcy Bill was being considered by the House in Committee of the Whole, had Mr. W. F. O'Connor sitting in front of him in this chamber and assisting him. So Mr. O'Connor is still in the employ of the Government and was in its employ at the time referred to in the city of Peterborough. There is another sample of the consistency of hon. gentlemen opposite.

Now this jockeying of the tariff question cannot go on very much longer. The manufacturers demand and require something to be done to change the situation, which has not been varied, I may say, to any degree, or to any material extent, since 1911. The manufacturers want it, the business men want it, and the consumer is entitled to it. This thing as the Minister of Immigration and Colonization said, has been going on for all these years. My hon. friend complains very bitterly about that, and I agree with what he says. I hope when the vote on this amendment is taken the minister will remember the statements I have just quoted to him and will not forget his duty to the people he represents

The Minister of Finance a short time ago expressed the hope that this unrest, this disturbance, this discontent would be removed and the people would be relieved. I agree with him as to the desirability of that if such a state of affairs exist But the returned man is at his forge, he is working at the lathe, he is employed at the bench—he has filled in his place well. There has been no disturbance on his part —he fitted in as naturally and well on his return from war as if he had returned from a visit of a lengthy period to his friends, he has found his place It is not the returned man who is causing unrest, it is not the working man who is causing discontent.

In this House one afternoon, the postman's bonus was cut 25 per cent. Their life at that particular class of work is limited to a few years on acount of the heavy mails they have to distribute in all kinds of weather, over the hard pavements of our cities. Many cases occur where these men early in life are discarded, like an old horse turned out to pasture, in account of their inability to carry on their work. These poorly paid civil servants suffered a cut of 5 per cent in their bonus, and it was done in a pretty short way by the right hon. gentleman who occupies the Prime Minister's seat. An hour after that the second or a third reading of a bill was moved by the Prime Minister whereby the Chief Justice of Canada was appointed administrator at a salary of $5 000 per year on top of his $10,000 as chief Justice, and in addition to that h was given exemption from income tax on $10,000 of that $15,000 income. That also breeds discontent, unhappiness and unrest. It is not the returned men who are causing unrest, it is those who in high places are assuming to do what they have no right to do. We need big business, it is necessary with our developed civilization to have big business, but we want big business to be fair, and we want men in high places with great means to share honestly and fairly their profits with those who are entitled to participate in them. And no man has a right to take from those who are unable to defend themselves, as was done in the case of the minority shareholders of this company what he has no moral right to take.

The charge is laid that we are inconsistent and unfair. I do not know what the Prime Minister's ideas of sportsmanship are, but I know that in the games we play it is not considered the best of form to attempt to steal one of the other fellow's players. Some believe in those methods, but I think that the best of Canadian manhood does not believe in them whether in political life or in sporting life. The Prime Minister knows the overtures that have been made not only here but in West Peterborough. I think he knows the situation because when the hon. member for West Hastings (Mr. Porter) and I met the Prime Minister about the power situation in the Midland part of Ontario, the latter was good enough to say to me that he had heard of me from a certain gentleman who was supposed to head the Round Table group in Toronto, a well known and prominent lawyer there. This same well known and prominent lawyer was busy for a long while and finally it developed that overtures were made to various Liberals that if they would succeed in defeating a former supporter of the Government —Mr. J. H. Burnham—the Government would not put a candidate in the field but would assist them to that extent. The hon. member for Parkdale (Mr. Mowat) knows that. He happened to be present one night when the executive of the Liberal association in Peterborough was meeting. The Prime Minister must have had some knowledge of what was going on, because he held the writ for a sufficient length of time to let these things be developed. So I say it does not lie in the mouth of any member of the Government to charge members on this side of the House with inconsistency.

The inconsistency of taxation which has been developed by the Budget is one of the most dangerous to the consumer of milled food products that has ever beeen imposed in this country. It means unemployment, it means increased cost of living, it means that the people will have to pay more, because their food is taxed the same as the food of the people used to be taxed in England, for the benefit of those who had great wealth, that they might accumulate more. As I said before, the Minister of Finance has brought us back to the days of the Corn Laws in England. If the present unemployment is aggravated by the taxation that is now sought to be imposed, which will force these great mills to absolutely discard one method of packing food, he can blame his proposed taxation. There is an easy and a fair taxation to impose, which means that the man in the Calgary zone does not get his milled product for half of what we require to pay between Peterboro and Montreal. That can be done, and the milling industry of this country will not be injured. The great mills of the Midland district of Ontario, and those in Peterboro particularly, will not be affected. But if this measure goes through in its present form, and this taxation is imposed, it will simply add to the numbers of the men who walk the streets day after day looking for positions, and are turned away, like beggars on the street, because unemployment is being created by the direct act of this Government. —Hansard.

MUSICAL EVENING.

(Contributed.)

A number of the piano and vocal pupils of Mr. F. E. Walden gave a fine programme last night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. G. Walter Green, 570 Water street.

The spacious rooms were well filled with those taking part. Many expressions of appreciation were heard on all sides at the close of the programme, and those taking part may well feel complimented.

Mr. H. J. McCannon and Mr. Clarke each gave brief but interesting speeches.

Mr. Green also assured the audience that he had enjoyed the programme, and gave all a most hearty welcome. He suggested that Mr. Walden have another just such evening of music at his home whenever convenient.

The names of those taking part in the evening's programme were: Miss Lillian Green, Miss Crocker, Miss Ethel Kennedy, Miss Cora Clarke, Miss Margaret Clarke, Miss Maddon, Miss Watt, Miss Williamson, Miss Webber, Miss Gillespie, Mrs. Walter Byers, Mrs. Hughes; Messrs. James Turnbull, Will Turnbull, Court Miller, Hugh Merton, Verne Fuller and Kenneth McCannon.

LOCAL POWER RATES WILL BE INCREASED IF THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT REPUDIATES BECK

SHOULD RENEW THE 4 PER CENT. BONDS FOR THE CENTRAL ONTARIO HYDRO SYSTEM WHEN THEY MATURE IN 1926.

ROBERT HICKS EXPLAINS

"The ratepayers will find in the report in last night's Examiner dealing with the financial condition of the Central Ontario Power System, one of th major reasons why the Utilities Commission has delayed the construction of the proposed sub-station and new street lighting system," said Mr. Robert Hicks, the chairman of the Commission, this morning.

"The information in that article may have been a surprise to many of the citizens, but the Utilities Commission and all the municipalities in this district which have been urging the Government to transfer the Central Ontario system to them were fully aware of the facts. When Sir Adam Beck proposed the purchase of the properties that comprise this system, he intended that the bonds should be issued for forty years, but when the Provincial Government stepped in, they made the bonds for only ten years. In 1926 their term expires, and as stated in the report it is expected that the annual interest charge on the system will be increased $300,000.

"Because the Utilities Commission saw that possibility, and also because construction costs were abnormally high, we decided to defer the building of a sub-station and lighting system until we were sure of our ground. I think the public will agree that the Commission took the proper course, although many were inclined to criticise our inaction."

Government Should Accede.

Mr. Hicks stated that in all fairness to the municipalities in the Central Ontario Hydro System, the Government should accede to the petition of these municipalities. This was presented a short time ago, and yesterday's report indicates that the Governmnt is struggling with a problem, the solution of which will be eagerly awaited by many of the towns and villages in Central Ontario. They desire to secure possession of this utility on the same basis as that on which the Western Ontario Hydro scheme is operated. At the end of a certain period, the Western municipalities will co-operatively own their entire system.

That is also the aim of the Central Ontario group, and if the Government will fully carry out the plans of Sir Adam Beck, this section of the Province will be satisfied. If those plans are not implemented and the Government follows the course hinted at in the report from Toronto, there will be no escape from an increase in power rates throughout the district. The Government should renew the four per cent. bonds for thirty years, said Mr. Hicks.

GORDON CUP FOR CANADIAN GENERAL, WIN THE FINAL FROM CALEDONIANS

WINNERS WILL REPRESENT PETERBORO IN THE ONTARIO FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION SERIES, MEETING ST. CATHARINES HERE ON JUNE 11TH.

The C.G.E. team are the first holders of the Gordon Cup, and Peterborough representatives in the Ontario Football Association series, as a result of their 2—1 victory over Caledonians last evening at Riverside Park. It was a replay of the tie game of Victoria Day, and 700 people were on hand to see the old rivals battle for the Cup.

Although their margin of victory so far as the score was concerned was the narrowest possible, and they did not get the winnin ggoal until the game was almost over, C.G.E. would have been a very unlucky team to have failed to pull of a victory. They were within scoring range much oftener than the Caleys, raiding Wright's citadel time after time, especially in the second half, and for long periods the battle chiefly lay between the C.G.E. attacking division and the good defence of the Caleys. The excellent work of Wright, the losers' goalie, the steadiness and judgment of Ralston, left-half for the Caleys, all through the game, and of McMillan in the first half, and the magnificent playing of Moir at centre half for the Scots, saved the Caledonians from a much worse defeat, for the C.G.E. forwards, well fed by their half back line, were always aggressive and dangerous and while their shooting was admittedly ragged, it took clean-cut defence work to keep them from running up a score. Despite occasional individual efforts the Caleys' forward line were rarely in the picture as compared with the persistence of the adavnce guard of the winners, who never let up until the final whistle.

Perhaps the chief credit for the C.G.E. success should go to Manders, for the speedy outside right of the winners dashed down the side time after time and swung the ball over to the goal mouth, giving opportunity after opportunity for a close range shot. Had his centres been handled as well as they were sent over, or had the Caleys' defence been less accurate in their work, the scoring sheet of the C.G.E. would not have stopped at two. Next to Manders, Parkins was the most effective forward for the winners, and his constant trying was rewarded finally b yhis scoring the winning counter. The C.G.E. half line were consistently good and McDonald and Maso nwere u to their usual standard, while Griffin, as ever, performed cleverly in the nets.

The outstanding feature for the Caleys, and perhaps the most effective player on the field, was Moir at centre half. Alawys cool and steady he seemed to be everywhere, tackling with success, intercepting passes and placing the ball for his forwards with accurancy and judgment.

The Gordon Cup was presented to the winners immediately after the game by Ald. Frank Whitehouse, on behalf of Mr. Gordon, who was unable by reason of his parliamentary duties, to be present in person. In doing so Ald. Whitehouse heartily ongratulated the C.G.E. team. Captain Turner received the trophy, and there were cheers for the donor and the winners.

The teams were:

Moir for the Caleys, won the toss and elected to defnd the south goal. The C.G.E. were the first to put on the pressure. Gash shot past the uprights. A little later Parkins and Gash again broke through but Wright kicked out of danger. Manders got away for one of his solo dashes and passed neatly to Hotston, whose shot was wide. Then the Caleys took a hand at attacking and they were dangerous several times. Calder twice over-ran well-placed centres and the C.G.E. supporters heaved a sigh of relief. Mann and Gash collided and both C.G.E. men were hurt, Mann having to retire to have his face patched up. Caleys pressed again, and when Calder blocked a kick from McDonald they had a good chance, but Mason relieved brilliantly. Play shifted to the Caley territory and Moir stopped Manders on a dangerous raid. C.G.E. came right back again, however, and the Caleys' defence was well beaten and a goal seemed certain when Bartley let drive for the open side of the net after Wright had saved from Gash. McMillan averted a counter by stopping the shot with his hands. A penalty ,of course, was awarded against the Caleys, but Wright made a fine save of Hotston's hard drive. C.G.E. continued to press and Bartley was through, only to be pulled up for offside, and then Hoston lost a pass from Parkins at close range. Ralston relieved with a long kick and Caleys took a turn at attacking, eventually bagging the first counter. Moir placed the ball beautifully for Burgess, and the outside left beat Mason and his shot bulged the net.

The reverse acted as a spur upon the C.G.E. ad they came on harder than ever. Caleys' defence stood them off for a while, but finally a pass from Parkins to Gash gave the inside left an opening and his swift shot gave Wright no chance to save. They had a good chance a little later when Bartley kicked over. Caleys came back with a determined raid and McDonald kicked the ball over the fence into the river and another one had to be used. Just before the half ended Griffin prevented the Caleys fro mtaking the lead when he stoped a lightning shot from Calder. The ball fell at his feet, but he saved brilliantly from a flockof blue shirts.

C.G.E. were early on the attack in the second half, despite the fact that Gash's bad ankle gave out shortly after play resumed, and although he tried hard he was of very little service afterwards. Manders' runs down the side were a constant menace. Hotston lost a fine chance on one of the outside right's centres, kicking over the cross bar. A moment later he had another chance, but Wright saved cleverly. Ralston, Moir and McMillan were working desperately to hold off the fast-coming C.G.E. forwards, but it was only occasionally that the play shifted into C.G.E. territory. The Electricians nearly went out in front when Manders swung a beautiful pass across the goal mouth and Parkins headed over. Ralston relieved and Burgess and Hannah got away only to have Griffin save. Then McMillan and Bartley got into a wrestling match, and Calder, swinging his fists vigorously, declared himself into the fray. It looked like a general mix-up for a few moments, but order was restored, and Referee Howarth sent McMillan, Calder and Bartley off the field for the rest of the game, leaving Caleys playing nine men against ten.

In spite of this handicap they were more dangerous in the next few moments than at any time in the half. Several attacks from well-placed kicks by Moir were dangerous, and Griffin made a couple of clever saves. Then the C. G. E. took command again and finally, on a neat centre from Manders, Parkins beat Wright in a race for the ball, tipping it past the Caleys' goalie as he ran out to save, and then driving the ball into the net for the goal that meant the Gordon Cup. Caleys, undismayed by this ill fortune ,tried until the finish, and for a few minutes it looked as if they would equalize, for the C. G. E. perceptibly let down after taking the lead. Griffin and the backs, however, prevented a score and the final whistle found the blue and white team victors.

"SANDY" LIKES PETE'S INFIELD

SATURDAY'S GAME ONE OF THE BEST EXHIBITIONS IN HISTORY OF CENTRAL LEAGUE, SAYS PAST PRESIDENT.

Peterborough defeated Oshawa on Saturday afternoon by a score of 3 to 1, in one of the best exhibitions of ball ever witnessed in the Central League. Both teams had loads of pep and the spectators were given an exciting time for two hours. Peterborough's victory was due to their stonewall infield, and try as hard as they could, Oshawa was unable to drive the old sphere past them. With Harrison at first, Rose at second, Cherrett at short and Murray at third there is a quartette that can't be beaten and indeed it would be hard to equal them. They cover every space of that infield and throw with speed and accuracy. All the Oshawa players hammered the ball, Rose having only two strike-outs. Dainty, the slab artist for Oshawa, was in his usual good form and ten of the Peterborough men were victims to his benders. Had Dainty been given the same support as Rose the score board would have a different story to tell to-day.

TOMMY MILTON WON AUTO RACE

INDIANAPOLIS, May 31.—Tomy Milton, world champion speed racer, yesterday piloted an American car to the finish line first in the ninth renewal of the international racing classic, the 500-mile dash around the Indianapolis speedway. Milton's victory came through a beautifully driven race, which was won after Ralph De Palma, popular favorite for the victory, had set such a terrific pace during the first 250 miles that all but one of the foreign-made cars, including his own, were forced from the track through mechanical troubles or minor accidents.

Of the 23 entrants, only eight completed the 500 miles, and seven of these were American-made machines. Ralph Mulford, driving another American-built machine, was awarded ninth position without finishing, after all the others had dropped by the wayside.

Milton established a new track record for cars of not more than 183 cubic inches piston displacement by completing the 500 miles in five hours 34 minutes and 44.05 seconds, for an average of 89.62 miles per hour. The fastest time ever made in the speedway races was but 20-100ths of a mile faster per hour, this mark being made by De Palma in 1915.

The victory brought Milton nearly $36,000 in prize money, $20,000 for first place, $6,200 in lap prizes, and the balance in special prizes given by accessory companies.

Less than four minutes behind Milton came Roscoe Sarles, who had fought a bitter race with De Palma in the early hours and who held second position most of the way.

TY COBB SECOND IN HITTING LIST.

Increased Average Several Points Last Week.

CHICAGO, May 31.—Managing a ball club seems to be conducive to heavy hitting, for Ty Cobb, pilot of the Detroit Tigers, and Tris Speaker, manager of the Cleveland Indians, are giving Harry Heilman, of Detroit, a terrific fight for the batting leadership of the American League.

Cobb boosted his mark from .395 last week to .411 for this week, according to averages released to-day, which includes games of last Wednesday, while Speaker raised his last week's average of .378 to .408. Heilman, although he suffered a batting slump, is fourteen points ahead of Cobb, with .425, as compared with .455 a week ago.

Grimes, first baseman of the Chicago Nationals, struck his batting stride during his first invasion of the east and climbed from 15th place to fifth in the National League race. Most of last week's leaders went into a slump, Rogers Hornsby, the St. Louis star, dropping from .457 to .435. However, he is safely entrenched at the top of the batters of the league who have participated in twenty or more games. Snyder, New York catcher, is runner-up to Hornsby, with an average of .365, while McHenry, of St. Louis, who was in seventh place a week ago, is batting .360, for third position. Maranville, of Pittsburg, dropped to fourth place, with .359. Grimes, who last week hit .326, is pushing "Rabbit" with .358.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE ALLEN.

Jane Novak, the beautiful blonde girl who has won a large following through her screen work with William S. Hart, Charles Ray, Tom Mix and others, has been selected to play the part of "Ann" in the new Goldwyn Picture, "Roads of Destiny," starring Pauline Frederick which comes to the Allen Theatre for 2 days, commencing to-day. As "Ann" she holds the steadfast love of "David" no matter in what environment she is placed, while "Rose," played by Miss Frederick, is destined to be the unhappy, storm-tossed soul who can find no peace or happiness. The screen version is from Channing Pollock's adaptation of O. Henry's famous story and seeks to show that Fate rules the universe and that man cannot escape his destiny no matter what he takes. The same characters appear in four widely different settings ranging from Mexico to Alaska.

AT THE ALLEN.

It would seem that Mack Sennett is determined to help in reducing divorce in the world. His "Married Life" it will be remembered, showed the folly of most marital misunderstandings, Ben Turpin being the agent of reconciliation. "Love, Honor and Behave," a First National Attraction which we saw yesterday at the Allen Theatre, shows the folly of most suspicions. Charlie Murray being the agent in this reconciliation.

In "Married Life" it was jealousy on the part of the husband who wrongly suspected his wife. In "Love, Honor and Behave" it is jealousy on the part of the wife who wrongly suspects her husband. They are but bride and groom and this is their first quarrel. The bride, Marie Prevost, appeals to "Judge" Murray, whom she interrupts while he is seated in his robes at Court. The suspected bridegroom is George O'Hara and this part of the Sennett production is portrayed in high distinction ,it being legitimately done, the roles being played straight and the whole affair carried off with dramatic power and conviction.

Persuaded of the innocence of the bridegroom, "Judge' Murray proceeds to relate to the unhappy pair an experience of his own in order to prove that circumstantial evidence, such as that possessed by the bride, is dangerous testimony, invalid, scandalous and false. The picture here takes up Murray's narrative and immediately the beholder is plunged in a sea of hilarious humor with every once in a while a cut-back to the "Judge's" chambers showing him continuing his story to the rapidly melting bride.

The leading lady in Murray's narrative is Phyllis Haver. The promise she held forth in "Married Life" is amply fulfilled in "Love, Honor and Behave," her role being that of the deceived wife of Ford Sterling in which part the pretty Phyllis is called upon for frequent displays of authentic emotional acting. This she accomplishes with grace and authority while the lighter scenes are carried off in a typically gay and merry manner. Altogether Miss Haver appears a rapid comer over the horizon of the movies.

Murray's comedy lends its climax in a lion's cage. One of the most thrilling episodes ever screened. The fact that the Celtic comedian really encountered the ferocious beast is apparent in the picture. No double exposure could properly yield the realism of this episode which is one of the many thrills provided by Mr. Sennett to supply the necessary contrast to the laughter that mainly prevails.

Billy Bevan, Kalla Pasha, Eddie Gribbon, Fanny Kelly and others round out a veritable all-star cast in an entertainment that like Mack Sennett's "Down on the Farm" will appeal with equal force to the old and young. It is a tonic in five reels for the theatre-goer.

INA CLAIRE WINS IN GAY PICTURE

If one had seen only the latter part of the pitcure at the Capitol Theatre last evening, "Polly With a Past," one might be impelled to the conclusion that if more of our young girls went in for pasts, it would make them infinitely more charming. Ina Claire as "Polly" certainly would have been classified by the most conservative card-indexer as deserving of the "bewitching" division. And she had a past.

But unfortunately for this movement for fancy pasts for plain girls, Miss Claire proved equally pleasing in the earlier parts of the story, and so, somewhat sadly, we must admit that it wasn't the past that did it. Polly came to the big city to study voice and found herself suddenly forced to be a housemaid. Then, to save a young man no one but herself knew she was interested in, she assumed a personal history which made no mention of a succession of Sunday school picnics. And then again, things began to happen; and kept on happening.

The star was fortunate not only in a delightful play but in having in the infield and outfield of her cast what the sporting writers call a strong and capable aggregation of players, including Ralph Graves, Marie Wainwright, Harry Benham, Clifton Webb, Louiszita Valentine and Myra Brooks.

Maxwell Karger, Metro director general, directed and personally supervised the production, a photoplay adapted by June Mathis from the Belasco stage hit by George Middleton and Guy Bolton .Arthur Martinelli supplied the photographic art and L. J. Vermilyea the special settings.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Capitol Theatre has a bright bill for the first three days of the week. Last night, the famous Kiralfy children delighted a large audience. These are clever children, and have an amusing repertoire. As a little newsboy and the girl as a street urchin, they have a line of jokes and a couple of songs. The boy played some delightful selections on his violin, including "Souvenir," "Humoureque,' and Beethoven's "Minuet." This was followed by the appearance of the pair as stately little types of long-ago fashions, the girl in pink muslin and lace cap, the boy in satin suit with lace ruffles and three-cornered hat. They danced a delightful measure to Paderewski's "Minuet," and then went through a modern bit of jazz dancing to a whirlwind of syncopated music. With the girl in a saucy, abbreviated flame-coloured dress and the boy in a blue and white gypsy costume, the entertaining little programme concluded with a rollicking tambourine dance as bright and merry as its tinkling accompaniment.

The feature picture, with Miss Ina Claire as "Polly With a Past," is very good, and something out of the ordinary. The transformation of the maid with operatic ambitions into the startlingly-gowned French "vamp" with a lurid background, is exceptionally entertaining. With patches and feathers, a wonderful wardrobe, and a foreign articulation, she agrees to enslave the love-lorn swain whose rigid sweetheart is more interested in reforming outcast humanity than in her suitor's proposals of marriage. The plan seems to be working out nicely, when Mr. Cupid intervenes, and causes the hero to fall out of love with his obdurate sweetheart and become enraptured with the dainty little "vamp," who has consented to the scheme for the sake of the money that will send her to Europe to study grand opera.

BASEBALL NOTES

Members of the Peterboro Central Ontario League Club are reminded of the practice at the Riverside Park at six o'clock to-morrow night.

The Roy studio secured some splendid action pictures of the Oshawa-Peterboro ball game on Saturday. They were made with an exposure of one one-thousandth of a second and are remarkably life like. The pictures are on view in the window of Eddie Wright's cigar store and are attracting much attention.

Mr. Eddie Wright, always an enthusiastic supporter of baseball and other sports has again shown his interest by presenting a magnificent silver trophy for competition in the East Peterborough League. It is a splendid cup and should materially increase the interest in the League race.

Let us cease making further commitments to countries that are unable or unwilling to pay the interest on the existing loans.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS CORDIALLY WELCOMED BY MAYOR M'INTYRE

PRELIMINARY FELICITIES

Rev. Father Murray of Penetang, clinched the civic welcome extended by Mayor McIntyre to the visiting Knights of Columbus at the opening of their convention this morning, in the K. of C. Hall, by relating a personal experience he met with last night.

"I don't think I should let this occasion pass without telling you of the spirit of Peterboro as I found it before I had been here many minutes," said Father Murray. "I was walking up town last evening when a man stopped me and asked me whether I was a Knight of Columbus and a delegate to the convention. I told him I was. He said "I am not a Knight of Columbus; I am a Presbyterian and I would be glad to have you stay at my place until the convention is over.'"

A burst of applause drowned Father Murray's concluding words, and a moment later Mayor McIntyre was departing to the universally appreciative "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and its accompanying song of good nature, "See Him Smiling."

In the preliminaries of welcoming the delegates, Mr. W. S. Merrell, Grand Knight of Peterboro Council, introduced His Worship Mayor McIntyre. "This is the second time the convention has been held in Peterboro," said Mr. Merrell. "The first time was in 1902. There were then only four councils in the Ontario jurisdiction, and that meeting was held in the law office of Mr. Daniel O'Connell. The delegates could have been counted on the fingers of one hand. Since then 51 councils have been formed with a membership of 15,000 in the province."

On behalf of the Peterboro members, Mr. Merrell extended to them a hearty greeting and welcome.

The Mayor's Address.

Mayor McIntyre's address of welcome was as follows:

"I had the pleasure last year of sending on behalf of the council and citizens of Peterboro ,an invitation to you to hold your annual convention this year in Peterboro, and I am pleased to now have the honor of giving you a hearty welcome to this city.

It is a gratification to us to receive visitors to our city. We wish to be, and we think we are, hospitable and our gates are always wide open to those who will come here to visit, and to hold conventions ,such as you have come to attend. We believe that we have a city which while not as large as those from which some of you come, will favorably impress you. The manufacturing industries carrying on business here are quite large in numbers, and of considerable importance, as well as varied in character, and the mercantile establishments and other facilities for business, are we believe, not surpassed. At the same time we have tried not to neglect the religious, educational and social requirements. Our church edifices are capacious and handsome, and our schools are of a high character, in buildings, equipment and staff, and in our parks and other facilities there is provision for rest and recreation and social intercourse and enjoyment. This handsome building in which you are assembled is an evidence of the spirit of our people in that direction.

We are endeavouring to build up a city that will be evenly developed and that will contain prosperous, intelligent and contented citizens, an we are pleased to have visitors see the measure of success that we have achieved.

"In any community, as in our whole country, the cooperation of all the people is needed. In order to build up a community and a nation that will be progressive, respected and stable a unity of spirit must be felt and manifested, and all sectional feelings or prejudices that would cause disunion must be completely eliminated. We are citizens of one country and subjects of the same king, and because we love our country and have confidence in its resources and its future, we will unitedly work for its success and the happiness of the people. In this spirit we give you a hearty welcome and hope your stay amongst us will be most enjoyable, and that you will carry away such pleasant recollections that it will not be long before you will come back.

"As an evidence of your welcome, and that you may have perfect freedom while here, we present you with the key of the city."

The mayor handed to State Deputy O'Connor, a mammoth key emblematic of the freedom of the city.

From the Chamber of Commerce.

"When Mayor McIntyre gives a welcome you may be assured that it is from the bottom of his heart, and of the hearts of the citizens," said J. J. Duffus, who as president of the Chamber of Commerce, supplemented the greetings to the delegates. "His Worship is one of the broadest minded citizens on all questions, and in his long service as an alderman and now as Chief Magistrate, he decides question from the broad standpoint of the greatest good to the greatest number."

Mr. Duffus said he believed in speaking well of a man while he is living and not delay praise until he is dead. In that connection he would speak of Mayor McIntyre as their fellowship in the service of the city. It was particularly gratifying that it fell to his old associate in the council to join in welcoming the delegates to this convention. In a summary of Peterboro's features as one of the premier industrial communities of the smaller cities of Canada, Mr. Duffus overlooked few of its advantages in assembling an imposing array of facts, including the statement that the present population of Peterboro, including the suburbs, is 29,900. A seven roomed house can be lighted for 90c a month, and the industries are so diversified that theer is never extreme industrial depression here. Mr. Duffus referred to some of the leading manufacturing companies, and also to the pleasure resources offered to the people in the beautiful Kawartha Lake district.

Mr. O'Connor's Acknowledgment.

Replying to the expressions of welcome, State Deputy L. V. O'Connor of Lindsay, mingled pleasantry and seriousness in an effective appreciation. On behalf of the delegates he thanked Mayor McIntyre, and the citizens, including the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and the Knights of Columbus, for the kind and cordial reception. The prime objects of the Knights of Columbus, were love of God, love of neighbours, and love of country.

"I think you will admit," he continued, "that the first principle was well exemplified this morning. We feel that our first duty was to attend the holy sacrifice of the mass, and ask God to bestrow his grace and assistance on our deliberations while in your midst. The second principle is exemplified in the daily life of every good Knight of Columbus. The third was established most recently in the enlistments of our members during the war, in the providing of the Catholic Army Huts, and across the border the even more extensive work by the Army Huts there. The fame of Peterboro has spread far and wide. We have even heard of its million dollar bridge. And its prosperity may be explained by the fact that it has as its nearest neighbour that progressive and aggressive town of Lindsay. Speaking seriously, Mr. Mayor, you have a city that is famed for its large heartedness and broad mindedness. If these qualities would only spread throughout Ontario and Canada they would make for us a country worth living for."

At the Cathedral.

The High Mass at the Cathedral this morning was celebrated by Rev. C. J. Phelan, asisted by Rev. Father Gascom of Chapleau, and Rev. Father O'Neil of Port Dalhousie. Rev. Father Cantelon was Master of Ceremonies, and Rev. Father Costello, of the Cathedral ,and Rev. Father McAuley of Enismore ,also attended in the sanctuary.

A very eloquent and forceful sermon was preached by Rev. Father Murray of Penetanguishene. "The mission of the Knights of Columbus," said the Rev. speaker, "is to visualize in all its immensity the great theology of Jesus Christ, to make that theology live, and to make the spirit of chivalry in the 20th century the source of resurrection that Thomas A Kempis promised it should be." "You are not gathered together in the sense of mere social pleasure. You are gathered as the disciples of Jesus Christ, on a high and lofty mission, and you must realize to-day that something must be done in your council chambers to carry on, as it should be, the love of the blood of Jesus Christ."

By living Christian lives, by professing and acting according to the virtues of faith, hope and charity, the reverend speaker exhorted the Knights of Columbus to receive as a message, a renewed exhortation to unity of mind and chivalry of spirit.

CONVENTION NOTES.

Word was received at the convention to-day that Past Grand Knight Horey, of St. Catharines, who was to have attended the convention, died suddenly at his home last night.

Three newsaper men are delegates at the convention. They are: R. A. Jeffery of the Arnprior Chronicle, Daniel Jones of the Pembroke Star, and Tom Begley of the Lindsay Post.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE.

The Canadian Woollens football team will practice on Nicholls Oval to-morrow evening at 6.30.

'VARSITY STUDENTS WRITING BY PROXY MAY BE PENALIZED

TORONTO, May 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Nineten 'Varsity students in the faculties of Arts, Medicine and Applied Science have been summoned before the Varsity Caput following attempts to win their annual examination by proxy. The students who undertook to write the examinations will also suffer. The penalty will probably be suspension for a session and repetition of their present year should they return to 'Varsity.

CABLE SHIP LEAVES MIAMI.

Had Waited for Months for Permission to Connect Barbados Line.

MIAMI, Fla., May 30.—The cable layer Robert C. Clowry, held at this port for months by the Western Union Telegraph Company with the hope that the United States Government might consent to the landing of the company's Barbados cable here, has steamed out of the harbor and headed north. The master of the vessel, Captain W. Smidt, stated he had orders to proceed to New York.

The Clowry was followed out of the harbor by United States subchaser 154. Naval vessels have maintained a close watch over the Clowry since her arrival here and several times prevented an attempted landing by the Western Union cable.

PERHAPS NOT.

"Oh, Mr. Grouch, do you fox-trot?" asked the sweetly enthusiastic young thing.

"No, I don't fox-trot," growled the grumpy one. "Neither do I bear-track, kangaroo-jump, elephant walk, hippopotamus-snort or snake-crawl. As a matter of fact I'm not acquainted with animal dances."

"You don't seem to be acquainted with the talk of a gentleman,either," observed the girl.

RAPID GROWTH.

Mr. J. H. Ferguson, who conducts a grain business at the G.T.R. Station, reports that on the farm of Mr. A. Reynolds, North Monaghan, a stalk of peas was secured, measuring 34 inches in length, and the peas were in blossom. The peas were planted on 7th April.

About 20 of the members of the tennis club of St. Andrew's Young People's Guild had a very enjoyable time at the Oval last evening. After playing a few games, the party enjoyed a very dainty tea.

While the courts are available for play every week evening, the officers of this club would like the members to attend every Monday or Thursday evening, if possible.

UNCLE SAM'S CHANCES NOT TOO BRIGHT IN INTERNATIONAL SPORTS

NEW YORK, May 31.—Uncle Sam lost his first brush of the season to John Bull when the amateur golfers were defeated.

Next on the list of international skirmishes comes the woman's golf championships, which started yesterday.

America's greatest hope is the Atlanta girl star, Miss Alexa Stirling. The very first round of the championships may decide her fate, however, as the draw brought her against Britain's greatest, Miss Cecil Leitch.

America, of course, expects much of the brilliant Atlanta girl, but too much should not be expected, as she has a titanic task by having to beat the opening round.

the very best of her opposition in The same conditions that were faced by the amateur golf team will be encountered by the American entries in the open championships, starting June 20. The American "open" team is not much better than the amateur team and they will face just as stiff opposition as the amateurs faced.

Fine prospects for success in the international polo cup contests, perhaps the premier event of the whole season, have been darkened by injuries. Louis Stoddard, one of the American stars, was hurt in the practice matches and he may not be able to ride. Captain Devereux Milburn is also in bad shape with a crippled knee. He was hurt last winter and the old injury was brought back in the practice games.

The British team has been showing brilliant form. They will be a tough four to beat.

Big Bill Tilden offers some sunshine amongst the clouds, however. The tall Philadelphian, who won the British tennis title last year at Wimbledon, has excellent chances to repeat.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory will have no easy time in winning from the sensational French girl, Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen. They will meet in the French championships.

AN EVEN BREAK FOR THE LEAFS

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 31. — Larry Doyle's Leafs fought hard yesterday, getting an even break with the Tribe in the holiday doubleheader. The visitors won the morning game, 6 to 5, in a great uphill fight, knocking Sam Post out of the box and overcoming a five-run lead to turn the trick. Cy. Morgan, who was chased on Saturday, came back in the afternoon game and pitched Stallings' club to victory, 9 to 4.

Both games were enlivened with continual wrangles with the umpires, and Augie Moran was escorted from the field by a squad of policemen at the end of the morning game. Moran aroused the wrath of the crowd by a weird decision on Merkle in the eighth inning, when Rochester apparently had a chance to tie the score. Merkle was on first base and McCabe on second, with none out, when the disputed play came up. McMillan hit a long fly to right, and Jimmy Riley made a sensational one-hand catch. The ball was so far out that both McCabe and Merkle had time to advance after the catch. Moran ruled that Merkle had not touched first base after the catch, and allowed a double play. The game was held up for a few minutes while the Rochester players raved and argued and Moran was showered with pop bottles.

BRITISH PAIR WIN IN MIXED DOUBLES

ST. CLOUD, May 30.—(Associated Press.)—Miss Holman and J. T. Baines, of England, defeated Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory and William T. Tilden, the United States champions in the mixed doubles in straigrt sets, 6—1, 7—5.

Mademoiselle Cousins, of France, defeated Miss Edith Signourney, of Boston, in the women's singles, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3.

LADIES GOLF COMPETITION

Thursday next will be field day for the local lady golf players. Commencing at 2 o'clock, a driving, approaching and putting competition will be held, and all lady members of the Golf Club are requested to be present.

SPORT NEWS

Dave Prosser, the Westclox backstop, will umpire this evening's City League game between Canadian Generals and Hamiltons.

An effort is being made to have two of the East Peterboro Baseball League teams play a game at the Summer Fair, here next Thursday.

Y.M.C.A. could do very nicely with the services of Fred Rutherford but that player will likely be found with Cressman's.

Frank Lafave has been asked to don a baseball uniform again, and he may play in the City League game next Saturday afternoon.

Alex. Kay and Jake Solomon will take part in the opening of the Trent Valley League to-morrow afternoon.

In the E.P.B.L., Norwood plays at Keene to-morrow afternoon and Douro plays at Lakefield on Thursday afternoon.

Generals will have to beat St. Peter's next Friday evening to keep in pace with the Bankers, who look to be the team to beat for the honors of the Juvenile series.

With "Duke" Neary in good form, Lock Works will give Cressman's a merry battle in the mercantile League next Thursday evening. A win for the lockmakers will tie up three teams.

As a result of playing the Gordon Cup final at Riverside Park, the Executive collected a tidy sum to help the winning team in it's travels for further honors. The attendance last evening went over six hundred.

THIS TIME LAST YEAR.

Boston took the lead in the American League away from Cleveland.

Perry and Dugan, Athletics, hit homers, making 18 in 10 playing days on Shibe field.

Hendryx, Red Sox, made two doubles and two singles in four times to plate.

Grimes batted in two runs that helped Brooklyn beat Pittsburg, 3 to 2.

ACCIDENT, SAYS JURY OF DEATH OF DR. RANKIN

WITNESSES TESTIFY DEAD MAN WAS INTOXICATED AND IN DRUNKEN RAGE SMASHED THROUGH GLASS DOOR.

FOUR HELD RELEASED

MONTREAL, June 2.—(Canadian Press).—The Coroner's jury which investigated the death of Dr. Ramsay Rankin, of Stratford, from wounds in the Western Hospital yesterday, brought in a verdict of accidental death this afternoon.

After being warned by Coroner McMahon that as he might be suspected by the police of being in some way responsible for the death of Dr. Rankin, his brother-in-law, Roy William McEachern, Toronto, announced at the inquest that he was anxious to tell everything he knew of the tragedy Tuesday night.

He testified that he went to James Gunn's Apartment, St. Catharine Street, to discuss the sale of some Alberta land leases which Mr. Gunn told him Dr. Rankin had promised to place with a number of doctor friends of his in Montreal. He found Dr. Rankin there very intoxicated, and in no condition to talk business. He decided to leave to keep another appointment, and the doctor, wanting to go also, he tried to persuade him not to.

The doctor then asked him to lend him some money, and McEachren said, to humor the intoxicated man, he laid it on the floor, Rankin laying his beside it. Mr. Gunn then picked up the money, and the doctor accused them of trying to steal his money. He began rolling up his sleeves, saying he would clean out the place. Witness said he was called away to the telephone, which happened to announce the arrival of the taxi he had ordered. He evaded Dr. Rankin, running down stairs, with the doctor after him. Fearing that Rankin would catch him if he tried to enter the taxi, witness declared he ran to his hotel, just around the corner. He heard the crash of glass just as he reached the street. Going to the Claridge Restaurant with his friends, McEachren stated he did not hear of what had happened until early next morning.

James Gunn testified that prior to McEachren's appearance, Rankin had been drinking heavily. The doctor wanted to go to a party, and asked him if he knew any girls. He said he did not. The doctor went into the hall and saw a lady entering Apartment 10, and on returning, he called her up on the 'phone, and was, witness said, promptly shut off. Later McEachren called and they were all in a friendly mood. While in the kitchen he heard the crash of glass, and, running out, found the doctor bleeding in the hall. He then called for help.

The two ladies, Miss Clothilde and Miss Margaret Amyott, testified they knew nothing of the affair beyond hearing the crash of glass. They lived in Apartment 10. They did not know any of the three men.

Dr. MacTavish described the wounds on Dr. Rankin's body. He said undoubtedly the wound in the abdomen was caused by glass, because portions of the window of the apartment were found in it. He would not swear that the other injuries were caused by a knife or by the glass. After the jury's verdict, Witnesses Mr. McEachren, Mr. Gunn and Misses Amyott, who had been detained by the police, were discharged.

OUT FOR A SPIN

"BREAKING IN" A BATTERY OF THE NEW DOMINION DUSTLESS STREET SWEEPERS.

Considerable local interest was created in the city yesterday by the appearance on George and Aylmer Streets of three of the new improved Dominion dustless street sweeping machines. These machines had just came out of the factory for the first time; and, as is customary with all heavy motor-driven machines, were undergoing a preliminary working out of the new motors and traction parts in order to relieve the stiffened condition of the new metal connections and running parts. To accomplish this "finishing off" operation, the machines were run over the streets during yesterday afternoon, resulting in a smoothing up of the bearings to a considerable extent. To-day the machines were again sent out over the streets with skilled drivers, and were observed to spin along with greater freedom and speed, the result of the "limbering" they had received the previous day. This process may be kept up on the streets for several days, in order to remove all tightness and stiffness, previous to making a practical test of the sweepers.

HON. F. C. BIGGS WAXES WARM OVER CHARGES MADE IN FEDERAL HOUSE ABOUT "ROADS THAT BIGGS BUILT"

TORONTO, June 2 (Canadian Press).—"Gross ignorance and misrepresentation, deliberate lies, political capital," thus the Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Public Works and Highways, to-day characterised the charges made against his administration by Gordon Wilson, M.P. for Wentworth, at Ottawa last night.

—"I intend to challenge Mr. Wilson to meet me on a public platform, and to make him prove his statements or retract them," the Minister declared.

HON. MR. ROWELL, REPRESENTING METHODISTS, PLEADS CASE FOR A UNITED PROTESTANT CHURCH

NEW SPIRIT FROM UNION

TORONTO, June 2.—(Canadian Press).—A vigorous and eloquent note in support of a union of the Protestant Churches was struck by Rt. Hon. N. W. Rowell, when he appeared this morning with Chancellor Bowles of Victoria College before the Presbyterian General Assembly to convey greetings from the Methodist Church.

Mr. Rowell said he had recently visited Halifax and had found there a large new union church which was taking the place of the old Presbyterian and Methodist Churches which had been blown up, in the recent disaster. This church, he felt, was a testimony to the spirit of brotherhood betwen the rank and file of these churches, a spirit which was now actually an embarrassment to the leaders of both churches in Western Canada.

Home Missions.

The department of Home Missions and Social Service of the Presbyterian Church in Canada is one of the most important in that denomination in the scope and diversity of the work undertaken. The report of the year's work as presented to the General Assembly, now in session, is a revelation of the many-sided nature of its programme. Reduced to statistics, the Church maintains a thousand Home Mission centres in the Dominion, 309 being augmented charges, where the local contributions are supplemented by grants from the Church funds; and 690 other Home Mission fields. As marked on the map of the Dominion these mission stations are found in every province, and extending from the extreme east of Cape Breton and the boundary line between Quebec and Labrador to the far flung western areas of the Peace River country and the Yukon. Presbyterians are strong believers in Home Mission work, and the seed-sowing of its pioneer "sky pilots," such as John Black, James Robertson and others, is bearing rich fruit. A small army of home missionaries, 325 in number, have been recently appointed to student fields for the coming summer.

The Church has a sympathetic attitude towards the New Canadian and the non-Anglo-Saxon, and has forty-seven special Missions for their benefit alone. These serve a wide range of races and nationalities, not only in the chief cities but among the foreign communities, both urban and rural, in the west.

This outline of Presbyterian service does not, however, cover all. The report shows thirty-three educational centres, including school homes in Quebec and the western provinces, which provide home influences for hundreds of youths, mostly of foreign birth, who attend public or high school in the locality. Specially promising are the Ukrainian boys and girls who are thus being served.

The Presbyterian hospital work is one of its choicest expressions of Christian service, there being twelve hospital centres in which thousands of patients are annually treated. Most of these hospitals and the auxiliary hospital units are found in the outlying parts of the western country, long distances, in some cases, from medical or hospital help. In this and similar work, the Women's Missionary Society render most effective service.

The Presbyterian Social Service programme is likewise an important and helpful one, including five settlement houses, in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, in which a wide range of activities is carried on for the benefit of

SAYS KING TO OPEN ULSTER PARLIAMENT

LONDON, June 2. — (Canadian Press.)—The Belfast News Letter says to-day that it has learned on very good authority that in all probability King George will visit Belfast for the purpose of opening the Ulster Parliament in State on June 21. The Irish Office stated to-day that it was unable to confirm the report. Parliament will meet next Tuesday for the election of a speaker and the swearing in of members. The proceedings will be of a purely business character, although the Lord Lieutenant will attend.

MAIL CARRIERS' CASE PLEADED

POSTMASTER-GENERAL PROMISES INVESTIGATION TO DEPUTATION REGARDING RURAL MAIL CARRIERS.

G. N. GORDON A MEMBER

OTTAWA, June 2.—(Special to The Examiner).—Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P., attended yesterday with several members of the House of Commons, before the Postmaster-General, Hon. Senator Blondin, asking him to give better working conditions to the rural mail carriers.

Mr. Gordon, who was the first speaker, claimed that the rural mail carriers should have at least Christmas and New Year's for holidays, and that the mail boxes should be placed on the right hand side of the mail carrier's route, so that they would not be open to the danger of accident from motor vehicles when travelling at high rates of speed at times when the mail carriers have to stop on the left side of the highway when delivering mail to the boxes on that side of the road.

The high prices of fodder during the last three years, Mr. Gordon claimed, has put many rural mail carriers at so great an expenditure that they had carried mails at a loss, which they could not stand.

Senator Blondin promised an immediate investigation, and upon a report being made, he would then give favorable consideration to the matters drawn to his attention.

HALF HOLIDAY AT THE CITY HALL

The City Hall staff, excepting the Tax Collector's Office and the Utilities Commission, got their first Thursday half-holiday to-day. This morning in the City Clerk's, City Treasurer's, and City Engineer's Offices there was considerable rejoicing over the summer freedom. Upstairs in the Assessor's and Sanitary Inspector's Offices the half-day was accepted with relish. The Tax Collector and the several girls getting out the tax bills had no respite, and Plumbing Inspector A. Metherel did not take the half-day, as the plumbers are not closed, and his services are in demand.

INDUCTION OF A NEW RECTOR AT ST. LUKE'S

REV. GEORGE J. BOUSFIELD INDUCTED LAST EVENING WITH IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES.

MANY CLERGY PRESENT

With formal ceremony the induction of Rev. George J. Bonsfield, B.A., as Rector of St. Luke's Parish took place yesterday at 7.30 p.m., with a large number of the congregation present. The Rt. Rev. William D. Reeve, D.D., Assistant Bishop of the Diocese, officiated. Rev. R. C. Blagrave, Rector of St. John's Church, was Bishop's Chaplain. Other clergymen of the Deanery present in the chancel were: Rev. R. B. Grobb, of All Saints' Church; Rev. W. R. Courage, of St. George's Church; Canon F. J. Sawyer, of Cobourg, and Rev. George Bonsfield, Rector of St. Margaret's, Ottawa, father of the newly appointed clergyman. The preacher was Rev. Rural Dean Clarke, M.A., Rector of Campbellford.

Presented Keys.

The service was of the formal induction nature. Following the Bishop's charge to the Rector and the congregation, the church wardens, H. A. Perry and T. H. Adams, presented the keys of the church to Rev. Bonsfield, acting on the mandate of the Bishop. After the prayers and the reading of the mandate and the reading of the Bishop's license and a signed declaration of the Rector that he would abide by the Canons of the General Provincial and Diocesan Synods, the Rector was taken to the font by the Bishop and his Chaplain and to the prayer desk, lectern, pulpit and altar, where portions of Scripture were read and a short exposition of the various duties performed at these places was given by the Bishop and a response made to them by the newly inducted clergyman.

The Sermon.

Rev. Rural Dean Clarke preached from Paul's Epistles to the Ephesians, chapter 4, verses 11 and 12: "And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers. For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ."

"A Good Mixer."

It was an impressive sermon for the occasion. Rev. Clarke spoke of what should constitute the true clergyman and destroyed the common ideas of the necessaries to a successful ministry. People, he said, generally believe a clergyman must be a good mixer, a good preacher and a good financier. If he has these qualities he must survive, they believe. Continuing, however, Rev. Clarke beautifully spoke of the dangers in putting too much emphasis upon these subtle qualifications, and he went on to speak of Paul's conception of the work of the Church as shown in the text and context. "The work of the Church," he said, "is to build up men and women from the isolation of selfishness into the unity of a Christian fellowship until God has perfectly expressed Himself in mankind. The ministers' part in this work is expressed in Christ's commission to St. Peter by the Lake of Galilee, after the miraculous catch of fishes."

Love For Christ.

"The ministers are pre-eminently shepherds and teachers, consequently the ideal priest must have, firstly, a great love for Christ, and, secondly, a love for his people such as the Eastern shepherd had for his sheep. The work of the minister is to tend and feed human souls with the truth of God."

In closing the eloquent sermon, Rev. Clarke referred to his association with Rev. Bonsfield at college fifteen or twenty years previously. He was a good athlete, a man who played the game with all his heart and soul, said Rev. Clarke. Besides his athletic honors, Rev. Bonsfield was given the signal honor of being elected by his fellow-students, the senior man of the university, an honor which showd their trust and affection for him.

Closed With Prayer.

The induction service closed with prayer, said by the Rector at the altar, and blessing by the Bishop. The church choir took part in the service in the accustomed manner.

A brief social time was spent in the Rectory after the service. The clergy and their wives, members of the parish executive and their wives and the choir were introduced to the Rt. Rev. William D. Reeve, and a very pleasant time was spent.

Previous Charges.

Rev. G. J. Bonsfield comes to Peterborough from Christ Church, Albion, N.Y. During his ministry he has had many charges, and has been a popular minister. While his father has been for many years

Book of Hymns and Scripture Verses is Garfield's Last Gift

GIVES LITTLE BOOK TO WIFE, CONTAINING PENCILLED MESSAGE, EXPRESSING HOPE THAT IT WILL HELP HER WHEN DESPONDENT AS IT DID HIM—SIMILAR GIFT TO HIS MOTHER.

REV. GAETZ EXPLAINS BIBLE INCIDENT

(Special Despatch to The Examiner.)

WOODSTOCK, Ont., June 2. — The spirit of Norman Garfield during his last few hours on earth, were related by Rev. Mr. Gaetz, his spiritual advisor, in a specially accorded interview with the Examiner this morning. At 1030 o'clock in the presence of Messrs. Hubert and Claude Garfield, brothers of Norman Garfield, Rev. Mr. Gaetz showed the reporter two books which Garfield had read and which are now handed over to his mother, Mrs. Louisa Garfield, and his wife, Kitty. The first volume is "Daily Food," and the sub-title explains its contents: "A Promise and Scripture verse and a hymn for every day in the year." Inside the fly leaf of the book, Garfield pencilled his last message to his wife, which reads:

"My Darling Little Wife: This is my last gift to you. It is not of much money value but it has helped me, and if you ever get despondent or down hearted, just turn to the corresponding day in this book, and I feel sure it will comfort you and may be the means of our being reunited in the better world. God bless you, as a true and loving wife. I have only eight hours to live here but then I start in a real life. Good bye.—Norman."

Garfield pencilled this in the early hours of this morning.

"Prayers for To-day," by Samuel McComb, is the other book which his mother received. This book which was given to Garfield by Rev. Mr. Gaetz, has in writing on the fly leaf, done at 11 o'clock last night: "My Dear Old Mother: Just a little r emembrance. I have found comfort in this book and I hope that you will do the same. Rest assured mother I shall be waiting for you at the pearly gates, when God says to you 'Well done.' Good bye.—Norman."

The writing is fairly legible but done in a rough hand. The books will be taken to Toronto this afternoon by Mr. Gaetz and handed over to Mrs. Garfield and Kitty.

Rev. Mr. Gaetz also explained to the Examiner that he wished to have the incident regarding Garfield's Bible cleared up. The Bible was first given him by his brother Hubert, and also contained a lock of the hair of his wife, Kitty. When he escaped the Bible was taken from the cell, but on his return the Bible had gone and in its place he was given a different one. Consequently, Mr. Gaetz explaied, Garfield evidenced dissatisfaction at losing the first Bible and the lock of hair, and threw it up on the table disgustedly.

Early yesterday afternoon Garfield requested Sheriff McGhee that Mr. Gaetz remain with him during the night, and this was granted. Consequently Mr. Gaetz first visited him at 8:30 and remained until 10 o'clock, leaving for an hour, and then staying until midnight.

Mr. Gaetz again returned at 2:30 this morning and remained with Garfield until the execution. "He was happy when I returned at 2:30," said Mr. Gaetz to the Examiner, "and he chatted with me pleasantly and in the liveliest mood, with his peace made with God—happy in the consciousness that there was nothing between himself and his Maker."

"His belief was firm as he spoke to me. He placed his hand on the Bible and offered a prayer to God for Christ's sake, and forgiveness for it all. He did not fear the scaffold. He went to it unflinchingly as a soldier on parade manfully." Mr. Gaetz' voice here filled with emotion. "He chatted just as freely during the last few minutes as at any time I was with him, with every sign of composure and self possession. Garfield was the most remarkable man," continued Mr. Gaetz, "that my mind could conceive of. His heart was tender; his spirit was sweet and lovable, his courage and strength as a soldier on parade."

Rev. Mr. Gaetz then recounted that he had asked Garfield if the condemned man had anything to say to the public before he died. Garfield then declared: "I would say of course I never intended to take the life of the man who was killed, and it was not a case of deliberate murder." At an early hour this morning Garfield was asked if he had anything to say regarding his brother Denton who is now serving a 20 year term in Kingston. Garfield's reply was: "Denton will see Trixie to-day; he will see me also, and he can choose between us." Rev. Mr. Gaetz was particularly impressed with this last statement.

The farewell with his family, according to Mr. Gaetz was to be marvelled at. Claude Garfield in the course of the interview here remarked, "He told us all he loved us all and not to worry about him. He particularly requested us to look after his little wife."

This was at 5 o'clock this morning, half an hour before he was led to the scaffold.

"He was most affectionate," observed Mr. Gaetz, "and tender. He controlled himself and maintained self possesion. He asked them not to worry and do their best for his wife."

Hubert Garfield on behalf of the Garfield family, requested that all their friends be thanked for the interest manifested in his temporal comfort and on behalf of his spiritual welfare. Mr. Garfield especially thanked the officials of the Y.W.C.A. who so carefully cared for Kitty and Mrs. Garfield during their trying hours. "He had no words of criticism, no harsh thoughts, no words of censure," wee Mr. Gaetz' concluding words.

Rev. Mr. Gaetz emphatically declared that he was adverse to capital punishment, although he declined to enlarge further on his assertion. He characterized scafold's as "an instrument for such punishment as a relic of a semi-savage age, having no place in a Christian civilization."

UNEMPLOYMENT CAUSE IS LACK OF CONFIDENCE

SENATE COMMITTEE ASCRIBES SITUATION LARGELY TO LACK OF CONFIDENCE ON PART OF EMPLOYERS.

IS SLIGHTLY IMPROVING

OTTAWA, June 2. — (Canadian Press.)—The general want of confidence on the part of manufacturers, producers, middle-men and the consumer is at the base of unemployment situation in Canada, in the opinion of the Senate committee on unemployment, which has reported through its chairman, Senator J. A. McDonlad (Shediac). The committee presented to the Senate a summary of the evidence of witnesses representing bankers, manufacturers and working men of the Dominion and stated that it had not sufficient time to thoroughly investigate the situation and make a comprehensive report.

The evidence of F. A. Acland, Deputy Minister of Labor, showed two hundred thousand fewer men employed in April last than there were in January 1920. The worst situation in the last two years had been reached at the end of April and conditions had improved from that time. Vancouver and Toronto were stated to be the two cities which had fared the worst in regard to unemployment.

BUILD NEW SIDEWALK WHERE BADLY NEEDED

The Board of Works Department is constructing a new sidewalk on the east side of Park street just below the junction with Rubidge street. It swings some distance to the east of the present walk and when completed will be greatly appreciated by the citizens of the south-west ward. Representations were made to Ald. Whitehouse and City Engineer Parsons early this season, pointing out that the old sidewalk was lower than the road and that during the spring and in rainy weather it was deep in mud. The improvement is now in progress between Albert and Rink streets.

PARTED 28 YEARS, AGED COUPLE REWED

Bridegroom 75 and Bride 72, Who Had Been Divorced, Reunited by Friend.

TRENTON, N.J., May 31. — An estrangement of twenty-eight years ended here Saturday for Mrs. Rachel Davis Wells Ellmore, of Philadelphia, 72 years old, and Henry Clay Wells, 75 years old, when they were remarried by the Rev. Charles P. Hughes, pastor of the Pilgrim Presbyterian Church, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson, 518 Princeton Avenue.

James Simpson, of 1,244 Genesee Street, who was responsible for bringing the aged couple together only last Wednesday, was best man. Mrs. Anderson was bridesmaid. When the ceremony was ended the bridegroom kissed the bride with the same spirit with which one of 21 years might be expected to kiss a blushing bride of 20.

The first wedding of the couple took place in 1868 in Philadelphia. In 1896 there was a quarrel which Mr. Wells now admits he caused, and an uncontested divorce followed. Mrs. Wells then was married to George Ellmose of Philadelphia, and lived with him until his death six years later.

Mr. Wells recently told Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, who are active workers at the City Rescue Mission, of his love for his former wife and arrangements were made to bring the estranged couple together. This was accomplished last Wednesday and then followed a short courtship, the procuring of a marriage license and the wedding.

Friends of the aged couple tendered the "newly weds" a shower at the home of the Andersons.

NORMAN CARFIELD HANGED AT WOODSTOCK

WALKED TO THE GALLOWS SMOKING A CIGARETTE, WHICH HE KEPT IN HIS MOUTH TO THE LAST, WHEN, SPEAKING HIS LAST WORDS, HE ASKED REV. GAETZ TO REMOVE IT.

DIED AT 5.40 IN PRESENCE OF FEW

Special despatch to the Examiner)

WOODSTOCK, Ont., June 2.—Showing the same cool nerve as he did when he hunted men for their money Norman Jerome Garfield of Toronto, went to his death at 5.40, standard time, when he was hanged in the jail. He paid with his life for the slaying of Ben Johnson, the Woodstock confectioner, who was shot down in his store on January 20, when the Garfield brothers attempted to hold him up.

Garfield walked on his last journey puffing away at a cigarette unconcernedly. He walked up on the scaffold with the cigarette in the corner of his mouth.

When Ellis was about to drop the black cap over his head, Garfield asked Mr. Gaetz to remove it, and he did.

He was only on the scaffold nine seconds when Executioner Ellis sprung the trap. The body was not taken down until 14 minutes later, when Dr .Andrew McKay, the jail-surgeon, stated that pulsation had ceased.

Ellis announced that Garfield's neck had been completely broken, and death had been instantaneous.

Garfield's brother Hubert of Detroit, and his brother Claude, and brother-in-law George Guy, both of Toronto, were with Garfield till five minutes before he was led from his cell. But they did not witness the execution. They stayed inside the main jail building.

Mrs. Garfield, the mother, Kitty, Garfield's wife, and Mrs. Eva Guy, his sister, went back to Toronto last night.

Garfield left his death cell at 5:35, after Ellis had handcuffed his wrists behind his back. He was flanked by his death watch guards, with Rev. Wilfred Gaetz, his spiritual advisor, and Sheriff McGhee leading the way. Walking as he smoked, Garfield appeared to be the coolest man in the party and walked with a steady stride. He came down the winding stairway (the same steps he came down when he escaped, with steadiness to the main floor, and then turned out into the yard, and walked to the shed.

Garfield was wearing his vest but no coat, and had his collar and tie on. He wore the boots that he came back from Georgetown in.

Mounted Scaffold without Hesitation.

As he entered the dark shed and looked at the scaffold, Garfield never faltered and ascended the steps to the scaffold without any hesitation. He stood directly beneath the noose and Ellis moved him over a little to correctly adjust the noose. During these brief seconds, Garfield never uttered a word. As Ellis was adjusting the trap he asked Rev. Mr. Gaetz to repeat the Lord's prayer.

Mr. Gaetz started off slowly, "Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy——" when Ellis sprang the trap and Garfield vanished.

Mr. Gaetz with wonderful self control continued to repeat the prayer till he finished it.

"It seems an unceremonious way to rush a man into the presence of his Maker," the reporter said to Rev. Mr. Gaetz afterwards, and Mr. Gaetz commented that it seemed to be a poor system as a preventive to suppress crime and make the old world better.

"Take that out of my mouth," were the last words of Norman Garfield as he stood awaiting the fall of the death trap by Executioner Ellis, his hands held tightly by the pinion straps at his back.

Garfield stoicly stood erect blowing smoke as it curled upward toward his eyes, and as it burned nearer his lips, he made the request to Rev. Mr. Gaetz, who stood near by on the platform, by Executioner Ellis. Rev. Mr. Gaetz reached upward, took the cigarette from his lips and flung it away.

Ate Breakfast Cooly.

The coolness with which Garfield went to his death is marvelled at by those who witnessed the affair. His breakfast consisted of toast, tea and preserved fruit, and was taken to him at a quarter to five, by Jailer James Clarke. Rev. Mr. Gaetz who had been with him all the night, watched him eat. After he had finished it, he continued smoking.

His brothers arrived about five o'clock, were immediately shown to his cell, and remained with him until five minutes before the execution. Garfield then lay down on his bed until the arrival of Sheriff McGhee, shortly after 5:30.

"We are all ready now," were the words of the Sheriff, accompanied by Executioner Ellis.

Garfield arose from his bed, stood erect while Ellis placed the straps about his wrists. The cigarette remained in his lips. He was then moved into the corridor, surrounded by his three death watch guards, in the presence of the Sheriff, Mr. Gaetz, and Executioner Ellis. No words were passed by any of the group, while downstairs in another room were closeted the twelve coroner's jury.

"Ready," was the only word, and it came from Ellis.

Garfield continued his march to the scaffold, out of the corridor and down the winding stairs which had carried him to freedom a week ago, led by Sheriff McGhee, and in turn the prisoner, Rev. Mr. Gaetz, Executioner Ellis, and Dr. McKay.

No one spoke during the walk, through the kitchen, and out into the jail courtyard. They left his cell at 22 minutes to 6, and were on the death platform at 20 minutes to 6.

Nine seconds elapsed before Executioner Ellis moved the trap, and the body was cut down by the executioner in fourteen minutes, a normal time for a hanging, it is stated officially.

Garfield never moved, not even a twitch, after the trap was sprung. He wore trousers, an ordinary cotton shirt, vest, and boots.

This is one comment from a man who has witnessed more hangings than any other person in Canada: "He went so unconcerned that it is almost unbelievable a man could meet his death in the state he was in, and without a tremour. He showed a tremendous amount of self-control."

Nine persons witnessed the hanging: Executioner Ellis, Sheriff McGhee, Dr. McKay, Coroner McKay, Rev. Mr. Gaetz, one press representative, and three guards. He walked seven steps up to the scaffold.

Garfield weighed 185 pounds, stood 6 feet, and took a drop of 6 feet 3½ inches. He was given an injection of morphine by the jail physician in view of his extreme pallor.

Eleventh Execution This Year.

The execution of Garfield is the eleventh performed in Canada by Executioner Arthur Ellis this year. He is one in a number of over four hundred performed by Ellis during his many years of executions in Canada and England. His previous execution was two weeks ago tomorrow, at Sudbury, when Antoine Delepo was hanged.

Executioner Ellis leaves Woodstock this afternoon for Toronto, and then on to British Columiba, where, in two weeks' time, five men will be hanged on one day in New Westminster.

No Unseemly Curiosity.

No unseemly curiosity was shown by the people of Woodstock. Not a sign of life was visible in the houses facing on the jail square as the sun came up. Sheriff McGhee had been careful to spread the information that the execution would take place far later than it did. Not more than fifty people, principally from the country, by automobile, scanned the jail walls morbidly expecting to see the uprights and the bar of the scaffold above the wall, but not from any high point of vantage could they see a trace. In the comments heard, everybody especially noticed this, comparing it favourably with the crowds when Birchall was hanged.

Executioner Ellis left the Oxford Hotel, accompanied by a few reporters, at 4.30 a.m., crossing Dundas Street, and along Graham Street to the jail, amid a glad chorus of birds, of which the glad flutings of the robins were the predominating notes. On the bowling green beside the southern jail wall, between the Court House and the back gate, dozens of robins, their red breasts brightly contrasting with the green dew-moistened grass, were pulling up the early worms. Then the big automobile hearse belonging to Paul & Bedford suddenly appeared at five o'clock. It crept slowly along the cinder road outside the back wall to the entrance arch. The big gates swung open, and it disappeared into the court yard, as they almost silently closed.

In a hushed silence everybody suddenly pointed to a pigeon that arose from the central cupola of the jail, circling over it in the early sunlight as if it were going to light on the round, galvanized iron ball on roof. Somebody connected it symbolically with the prisoner and peace. The bird wheeled and flew away towards the east. What was going on in the court yard must have frightened it from its ledge. For a few minutes later a dull thud was heard. Some of the newspaper men hauled out their watches. It was exactly twenty minutes to six.

Fifteen minutes later the gates opened, and the jury, followed by the two doctors, then at an interval Chief of Police Moore, and the Sheriff, last of all, walked across the cinder path by which the Garfields had been brought from the jail during the trial to the back court house door, and passed in to deliberate.

Mr. Ellis had come out by the front entrance at the same time, and went directly to his room at the hotel.

Later on, the gates opened for the last time, and the hearse took the body to the undertaking parlours here.

Rev. Mr. Gaetz accompanied the two brothers and the brother-in-law, of whom Norman was very fond, on the Grand Trunk train which left at 10.08.

Heart-rending Farewell

The farewell of his mother and wife who have stood by Garfield from the start—and his sister, Eva—yesterday afternoon, is said to be the most heart-rending in the history of Oxford County Jail. In his whole life, said one of the guards, he had never witnessed such a scene. He was overcome, too.

"It was worse than the scenes I saw in France," the guard commented, while Sheriff McGhee said it was something he hopes never to witness again.

Coming back from the jail to the Y.W.C.A. Mrs. Garfield was seen to be weeping and had to be supported by her daughter and son. Kitty, who said goodbye and later refused to ride back to the hotel in a taxi and was a pitable sight as she walked along crying hysterically held up by her brother-in-law. The strict regulations that were imposed on Garfield after his recapture were relaxed yesterday and he was allowed out of his cell into the corridor where he chatted with his relatives. Altogether he smoked over a hundred cigarettes in twelve hours during the day.

Outside the jail last night a large crowd watched a soccer game in the park. The cheers and happy voices could be heard in strange contrast to Garfield's last few hours on earth.

SIR SAM HUGHES IS GREATLY IMPROVED

OTTAWA, June 2.—(Canadian Press). — Sir Sam Hughes has held his own against another set-back this week. The condition of his blood, which has been the principal cause of anxiety from the first, is wonderfully improved, both transfusion operations having been quite successful. While he is not yet able to get up, much is hoped for within the next three or four days in progress toward recovery.

BIGGEST LOAN EVER BY ONT.

MAY HAVE TO FLOAT IT IN NEW YORK BECAUSE OF HOME MONEY MARKET'S CONDITION

TORONTO, June 2.—(Canadian Press). — Within the next two or three weeks Hon. Peter Smith, Provincial Treasurer, will go into the money markets for one of the biggest loans the Province has ever had to make. It is estimated that from twenty to twenty-two million dollars will be needed to carry the administration for the balance of the Provincial year, which ends on October 31, and in view of the ease with which the Treasurer disposed of the last loan, he is confident that the needed money will be secured at a favorable price. Since the home money market has not entirely absorbed the last loan, and City of Toronto Bonds are making a bid for funds, Hon. Mr. Smith intimated yesterday that he would probably find it necessary to go to New York for the big loan. The great bulk of the funds to be secured by the big loan will be used for Hydro-Electric purposes.

ONTARIO ROAD POLICY UNDER FIRE, COMMONS

HOUSE TALKS FOR THREE HOURS OF "THE ROADS THAT BIGGS BUILT" AND CRITICIZES EXTRAVAGANCE.

SAY HE SHOWS FAVOR

OTTAWA, June 2.—(Canadian Press).—For three hours last night the House talked on "the roads that Biggs built" by Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Public Works and Highways for Ontario. It was a discussion charged with severe criticism of Mr. Biggs' highways policy in Ontario with counter claims from the Opposition that the Dominion Government, in granting Federal assistance to highways, was partially responsible for any extravagancy. Two Government members in the ardour of their attacks burst into rhime.

Among charges made against Mr. Biggs were those of extravagance, that the roads were not being distributed across the Province, but that expenditure was being centralized in the district surrounding the farm of Mr. Biggs and his relatives. Dr. Clark, of Red Deer, argued that the attacks on Mr. Biggs were equally attacks on the highways policy of the Minister of Railways. Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways, observed that the Federal Government had so far paid out very little of its forty per cent. share of the cost of the roads. A careful check would be maintained. There was no need for the Dominion to share in any undue expenditure. The vote under discussion, one of fifty-three thousand to pay for the organization and payment of the staff of the Commissioner of Highways, was passed and the House again took up the Grand Trunk loan.

CHARLES WILL TRY A GAIN FOR THRONE

BERLIN, June 2.—(Canadian Press).—Charles, formerly Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary, has notified the Swiss Government of his intention to withdraw parole he has given that Government and to leave Switzerland because he proposes to repeat the attempt to regain the Hungarian Throne which he made last March. His new effort will be made in the middle of next August, it is reported from various good sources.

HE BOUGHT WATER AT PRICE OF WHISKEY?

Port Hope Guide: A well-known resident of Cobourg has a grievance against the Government liquor vendor in Toronto. He sent for a bottle of Scotch whiskey, with the usual price, and received a bottle a few days later. The liquor was 49.2 per cent. under proof, instead of only 20 per cent. The customer complained to the vendor and he at first blamed the express company, but when it was pointed out the vendor's stamp was intact, they promised an investigation and adjustment. Buying water at whiskey prices is not a paying business, and, further, the vendor should know with the wide experience of those Cobourg chaps, that it would be impossible to fool them in the proof strength of whiskey.

CHURCH UNION IS ADVOCATED BY MODERATOR

PROF. BALLANTYNE, RETIRING, SAYS THE TIDE SWINGING TOWARD UNION AND PRESBYTERIANS MUST RIDE THE TIDE.

RALPH CONNOR IS HEAD

TORONTO, June 2. — Canadian Press. — At the opening of the 48th annual session of the Presbyterian General Assembly, which was held last night at St. James' Square Church, it was freely admitted that the one big problem which will come before the convention is the question of church union, and some slight indication of the feeling of higher officials with regard to this was thrown out in the address of the retiring Moderator, Professor James Ballantyne of Knox College, who in a very carefully worded message, left the impression that the time had come when the Presbyterian church of Canada must swing in with the popular tide within certain limitations, and that the church cannot afford to set any lower ideal of unity for itself than it is expecting from the League of Nations in world wide affairs. The message of Professor Ballantyne, together with the election of Rev. C. W. Gordon, who is none other than Ralph Connor, one of Canada's leading novelists, as Moderator for the coming year was the feature of the opening exercises.

In approaching the question of church unity, Professor Ballantyne pointed out that the tide is flowing in that direction and that unless the

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The message sent by President Harding to the British people in connection with the unveiling of busts of George Washington in St. Paul's Cathedral, in the Town Hall at Liverpool and at Sulgrave Manor, the ancestral home of the Washington family, was a renewed pledge on behalf of the American people of friendship for Great Britain. The President's references to the common inheritance of the two nations in language, institutions, customs and sympathies and to the common elevation of those ideals of liberty, humanity and enlightenment, which have ever been the inspiration of both, will be appreciated by every citizen of the Empire, although they contain little comfort for the German-Americans and the other British-hating elements in the United States whose favourite amusement is attempting to twist the tail of the British lion—at a safe distance. President Harding's message is the real voice of America.

THE NEW SOCIETY.

Whether or not any actual benefits will arrive from the formation of a League of Nations' Society in Canada, at least no fault can be found with the objects of the new organization, or with the ideals that were responsible for its springing into life. Its first aim is to promote international peace, and there can't be too much of that kind of thing. Next in the list is the furnishing of information about the League of Nations and its principles, organizations and its work. Of the need of such an educational campaign there is little doubt. The inner workings of the League of Nations are a complete mystery to the average Canadian. The new Society aims, too, at fostering "mutual understanding, good-will and habits of co-operation between Canada and other countries." All these are commendable objects; how they are to be accomplished, however, is not so easily seen. The Society is officered by well-known Canadians who deserve credit at least for an effort to arouse public interest in the big problems of to-day.

SHOULD BE CENTRALIZED.

The circumstances surrounding the Garfield case supply a convincing argument in favour of having all sentences of capital punishment carried out at Kingston Penitentiary, instead of in the county jails. Immediately a prisoner has been convicted of murder he should be removed to the Penitentiary, where it is a much simpler matter to guard him and where the chances of escape would be reduced to a minimum. The expense and anxiety involved in taking care of a condemned murderer in the average county jail are in themselves sufficient reason for warranting a change in the system. At the same time much of the morbid curiosity that an execution causes would be done away with if hangings were centralized at the Penitentiary. The effect of the carrying out of the death sentence in a community like Woodstock is unhealthy and depressing. There is no logical reason why the whole terrible proceedings should not be held in the Provincial Penitentiary, and undoubtedly public opinion is strongly in favour of a change in the present law.

THE WAR MEMORIAL.

The splendid contribution of $1,500 from the Trustees of the regimental fund of the 57th Regiment towards the amount required for the erection of a war memorial in Peterborough should arouse fresh interest in this movement and result in a new impetus being given to the campaign. The city of Peterborough, whose young men gave her an enviable record from a recruiting standpoint, has been very slow in honouring the memory of the men who gave up their lives in the World War. Many smaller communities have already discharged part at least of their obligation to the unreturning brave by the erection of handsome monuments, and in other towns and cities memorial projects are well under way. Peterborough cannot allow it to be said of her that while her sons were among the first to go and, in proportion to population, were greater in numbers than those of nearly every centre in Canada, she was among the last to recognize her duty in the matter of honouring those citizens who made the supreme sacrifice in the struggle against Prussianism. The handsome sum contributed by the old 57th should be the means of filling the citizens with a fresh resolve that Peterborough must speedily erect a fitting memorial.

THE GERMANS AND THE BLACK WATCH.

Judged by Anglo-Saxon standards, the German is a pusillanimous individual. No proper estimate of his conduct or probable prophesy as to his future course can be arrived at without taking this little peculiarity of his into account. His pusillanimity was never better exposed than durng the last days of the war. Who imagines, had a British army stood where Ludendorff's forces did, that they would have so completely and irrecoverably collapsed under the hammering of the well-nigh exhausted Allies? But the logical German reasoned that the war was lost, and that there was no sense in him getting killed for nothing.

Then his abandonment of his Kaiser was another example of congenital pusillanimity. He was all for his Kaiser when the Kaiser policy looked like winning. Mr. William Hohenzollern would have been raised forever to the German Valhalla if he and his coterie had been able to "put it over." But when his cause failed, the Kaiser had to fly for his life from the very bosom of his own army. Under similar circumstances misfortune would only have made a British monarch more popular.

To-day the Germans are fawning on the Black Watch. Presumably the Black Watch can neither prevent nor appreciate it. The Black Watch is entering Silesia—not to fight the battles of Germany—but to see that justice is done to all concerned and that the Treaty of Versailles is not treated as "a scrap of paper" by any nation under the sun. Still because it happens to be injustice to local Germans which the Black Watch seeks to prevent, the Germans hail their recent enemies with a welcome that is just a trifle nauseating.

* * * *

We call attention to this quality in the German character—not for the sake of making a point against a beaten and sufficiently disliked enemy—but in order to throw into relief a feature of the European situation which makes Germany dangerous in a way that is seldom considered. We cannot calculate upon Germany acting in the way that we would act under similar conditions. She has her own code of ethics and standards of behavior. She is an exceedingly "practical politician" when it comes to playing the game to win. Germany will not spend an hour nursing national hatred or sulking over defeat. She might very easily go to war again to recover coal fields or iron deposits, but any such issue as "Alsace-Lorraine" would never set up the impassable and unforgettable barrier between her and the nation holding her "Alsace" that it did in the case of sentimental France. She has forgotten already, we imagine, the names of the Allies who brought her to ruin. She would join enthusiastically with any one of them to-morrow to gain an immediate material advantage.—Montreal Star.

ACREAGE OF POTATOES REDUCED THIS YEAR

PRESENT LOW PRICES DISCOURAGES PLANTING—FALL WHEAT GENERALLY IS LOOKING FAIR.

The following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Recent showers with warmer weather have been pushing along growth in a wonderful way in both field and orchard.

Sweet clover especially has made remarkable growth. Victoria reports some fields as standing nearly two feet in height. Essex reports that some has already been cut for hay. In many counties the cattle are pasturing upon it. Corn and roots are now being put in in a satisfactory manner. The drought until a few days ago had made the ground practically unfit for this work. A fair acreage of potatoes has been planted but the general areas will be much smaller than of last year as the present prices are discouraging.

Fall wheat generally is looking fair, although perhaps somewhat short in staik, and the clover fields have greatly picked up with the recent rains.

Halton reports that the cabbage root maggot is very prevalent and that much injury has already been done.

Norfolk states that a few crates of the first local picking of strawberries were shipped during the latter part of the week, bringing 40c a box, and that they will be on the market more generally next week.

Prince Edward says "Last year considerable more farm produce was canned by the factories than there was a market for, and as a consequence the acreage is being reduced this year."

Peterboro reports that heavy horses appear to be gaining more popularity as there are some sales made at exceptionally good prices.

Cattle appear to be doing well on the grass, both for beef and milk. Only a few beef animals are moving to market as the prices are not inviting. Lambton says that some of the drovers would like to take a chance of exporting cattle if shipping space could be arranged.

Simcoe states that fresh dairy cows are selling at from $75 to $110.

The supply of milk is unusually full for the time of year—practically in mid-June condition.

Brant says: "The dairy industry has received a severe blow in this county owing to the extremely low prices being offered for milk. One prominent dairyman is feeding the milk to his pigs, while it is reported that others are putting calves on the cows rather than milk them and sell at $1.25 a cwt."

The price of cheese has tumbled greatly during the past few weeks. Frontenac reports sales on the board at 15 1-8c and Prescott and Russ. 1 goes still lower, namely 15c a lb.

Hogs have been selling at from $8.30 to $8.75 a cwt. Little pigs now bring from $8 to $10 a pair.

Lenox and Addington quotes a local egg dealer as saying that it would be a good thing to observe a "rooster day," and have all the surplus eggs in the country marketed, which would do away with the fertile eggs that cause so much loss on the market.

Dufferin states that a larger extent of repairing is being done to farm property this season than for some years.

A Floor Varnish That Stands Rough and Scuff

It is heavy in body, covers thoroughly and gives complete protection to the floor. Dries hard, but will not crack even though the wood is dented. And it is easy to apply—does not drag on the brush.

Durable Floor Varnish does not have that cheap "shiny" look, but gives a deep, rich gloss effect.

Water—boiling hot or freezing cold—does not affect it. It is a varnish we recommend for your floors. It is made just for that purpose.

LOVE!

By KATHERINE MOORE

LEONARD SEEKS TO AVOID ME.

Chapter 65.

Leonard's and my relationship took another turn for the worse. After Dorothy went home he made a point of trying to avoid me. He never came home now to dinner. I would be in bed, but seldom asleep, when his key finally jingled in the lock.

In the morning he would be up unusually early and finished with breakfast before I got down stairs.

When we did meet and were forced to speak to each other about necessary things, he was gruff and cold. But most of the time hw eas taciturn and cruelly distant.

I was not so stupid and my heart so dulled but that I could analyze his actions. The good and bad in him were in deadly combat. The bad was strong and was pulling him from me. But the best in him told him it would be a sacrilege to go near to or to touch that which his love had injured. That which love makes dear it also makes sacred.

This was the wall of gruffness and silence which he now stayed behind. He could not break through or come to me and tell me everything. And I could not help him to do so. With the super-sensitiveness of a woman's feelings I helped to build the wall between us.

During these terrible days I tried to arrive at some solution. I tried to think of what I had better do. I wondered if I had better go away somewhere, but I knew absence would not separate me rom him. Nothing could really ever separate me from him. It was more than will or purpose—it was my life to stay.

Duty did not enter into my feelings. It was not my duty to Leonard that held me to him; it was my love. My love forbade me to do anything else.

If I had not loved my husband so deeply I don't know what I might have done. So perhaps I did not deserve much credit, after all.

If love could be so strong and hold your devotion to another in spite of all things, then what might the absence of love cause one to do? Was there love on my side and absence of love on Leonard's? Even the intu tion of a woman cannot bridge the chasm of this fine point of difference between the code of a man and woman's sense of right and wrong—between love and absence of love.

It is a terrible sorrow—the sorrow of women who have wished to be first in the love of the men they love. They only ask for what they give. Can any man ever know? Does a man realize what it means to a woman when a principle of love is involved? Does he dream what it means to woman to sacrifice herself as men often require them to do?

And Leonard was growing thin and ghastly white because of all this.

"Won't you take better care of yourself?" I begged him compassionately. It pained my heart terribly to see him looking so badly. "Please! Leonard," I begged, breaking my reserve and catching at his arm as he tri d to brush past me without speak ng.

But if my pleading touched him at all, it only showed by a deepening of the lines of pain around his mouth. He did not answer me—perhaps he could not.

And because he didn't answer I was not hurt. My experience with pain did not include such trivial wounds.

For a long time after the front door had closed behind him I stood there again t the wall and stared into space.

My life was an empty void—a huge vacuum. Inside everything was dead and had been removed. I could only wait and wait for the pressure from outside to increase, to grow stronger, and stronger. When the pressure became too great the explosion would come. The vacuum would break and that would be the end of everything. All I had now was the thin shell around the void.

Tomorrow—I Case Darning—and Leonard Buys Socks.

THIS WILL INTEREST STOMACH SUFFERERS

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion are nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, waterbrash, or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important it neutralize he acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with Ltha and sodum phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thouand of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

FALL WHEAT MAY BE LIGHT

RECENT RAINFALL HAS HELPED THE CROPS.

With periodical rainfalls the spring crops have been hurried along and farmers to-day advised the Examiner that the spring grains were looking unusually well. The ground is now well moistened and with abundant sunshine the next week should see a continuance of fast growth, they say. Just as the spring crops look so fine, the fall wheat and clover look quite as bad, at least this is true about Lakefield, said the farmer the Examiner was talking to. However, throughout practically all the country the fall wheat is below the average and the crop will be light. Peas, the farmers say, have grown extremely fast and unusual lengths of stalk are reported from various sections of the country.

SAYS U. S. CROPS ROT BECAUSE OF CAPITALISTS.

RIGA, June 2. — (Associated Press.)To the hungry millions of Moscow and Russia generally, William D. Haywood, Secretary-Treasurer of the Industrial Workers of the World, who recently fled from the United States to Russia, through a two-coloumn interview seriously printed by the Pravda, pictures the United States as a place where the yields of potato fields, apple orchards, rich plantations and other full crops are deliberately allowed to rot because of "a capitalistic conspiracy to hold up prices and starve the workingman into submission."

America, says Haywood, is passing through its greatest economic crisis, due to "the vast conspiracy of a group of capitalists against the working class as a whole."

"From all sides in America," he adds, "one can be easily convinced that the capitalists of the United States, who are the owners of the land and industrial undertakings, are as ready to destroy the workmen for their own benefit as to destroy na-

How to tell when your Battery has a Glass Arm

Get that examination NOW!

THE battery graveyard is filled with batteries that died before their time. Their owners either neglected them, or prescribed the wrong medicine.

Don't take that responsibility on yourself when there are Prest-O-Lite Service Stations everywhere you drive, equipped for and experienced in battery life-extension.

That's the Prest-O-Lite Service Station's job, no matter what make of battery you now have. If a little distilled water is all your battery needs, distilled water is what you'll get.

We won't try to sell you a new battery until your present battery is actually dead and ready for the soft music. When you do need a new battery, you'll be glad to know that Prest-O-Lite is back to pre-war prices and that an allowance will be made on your old battery. Get that examination now.

Not the Motor Alone Makes the Chalmers a Great Car

The Chalmers motor is a good motor. But it is not the motor alone that makes the Chalmers the wonderful car it is. Rather, it is the fundamental soundness and goodness of the entire construction. Without doubt, the thing that gives Chalmers' owners their greatest satisfaction is the smallness of the repair and replacement bills.

Long Periods of Continuous Service

Their cars run for long periods without shop attention. They save money. They miss the inconvenience of having the car laid up.

Much of this is naturally due to the general mechanical excellence of the Chalmers. Much again to the principle of the Chalmers motor.

Pre-Heated Fuel Improves Performance

Pre-heating the fuel, as the Chalmers does by means of the hot-spot, accomplishes complete combustion in the cylinders. This results in more power from less gasoline. Smoothness of running is increased. Acceleration is quicker. Ordinary engine troubles are avoided.

There is no doubt in our minds that the Chalmers is a wonderful car. Nor in the minds of Chalmers' owners.

We suggest that you check Chalmers' upkeep and performance records.

WAR VETERANS PELT C. B. WHITE, THE WIFE BEATER, OUT OF TOWN

VEGETABLES AND STONES THROWN AT EX-PREACHER WHEN HE GOES TO MARLBORO IN AUTO—CITIZENS HOOT AND JEER—FULL DETAILS OF HIS TARRING AND FEATHERING—THE WIFE'S STORY.

MARLBORO, N. Y., June 2.—Fuller details of the tarring and feathering of Charles Bouck White, self-styled pastor of the "Church of the Social Revolution," for ill-treating his young French wife, together with subsequent happenings to this champion of social unrest at the hands of irate loyal Americans, may serve as an object lesson to those in this country who are preaching revolution—social and political—with a view to undermining the American constitution. When White chose Memorial Day to drive down to this town, following his punishment on Monday night, he found the tree-lined streets just filling with veterans of American wars preparing to do honor to the men who had died for the flag, and White was hooted out of the village.

Fleeing in his flivver at top speed the pastor of the "Church of the Social Revolution" was pelted with decayed vegetables, tin cans and stones, thrown to the accompaniment of catcalls and yells from ex-soldiers and civilians alike.

At 9 o'clock in the morning, having driven the three miles from his shack on the mountainside, White put on the brakes in front of the village cobbler's. On his way down he had passed the Marlboro Mountain House where William McElrath, the proprietor, is sheltering Mrs. Andree Emilie Simon White, the radical preacher's 20-year-old French bride, who has sued for annulment of her marriage.

The cobbler's shop is on the main street. Up and down blue-coated soldiers of Antietam and Gettysburg were sauntering, awaiting the signal to fall in back of those who fought in Flanders or in Cuba.

Groups Form as White Arrives.

The arrival of the man accused of beating his young wife, whom the whole countryside seems to hate because he is rated "not a real American," was noted at once.

Groups formed, and as White went into the shop a party of small boys became possessed of New York newspapers telling of the tar and feathering episode and of the girl wife's story of cruelty.

When White emerged with his usual self-confident smile and a pair of mended shoes, he found his car plastered with the newspapers, the headlines out. He threw the shoes into the machine and laughingly removed the posters. While he was doing this a Civil War veteran shouted something at him—something about the flag.

Then from all angles came a barrage. Potatoes and even bunches of asparagus whistled around the disciple of revolt. He disregarded the attack until one well-directed tuber took his hat off. Then he hastily climbed into his machine and went off as speedily as his antique conveyance would permit.

With his departure, however, the resentment against him increased rather than diminished. To-day the residents of Marlboro, judging from their conversation, are not sure that "enough has been done to him," and there appeared to be reason to expect that the solitary man on the mountainside might be the target for further punishment.

Further Details.

While White was attempting to ignore the angry mood of his neighbors in the belief that he would be able to "talk them out of their attitude," further details concerning the visitation of Monday night were disclosed, also the first interview with Mrs. White, who said the radical leader had proposed marriage to her three days after he obtained an impromptu introduction in the streets of the Paris Latin qurter.

When the party of twelve Marlboro men appeared in front of White's home, equipped with a can of tar and a bag of feathers, they did not make their capture easily. White, according to an ex-soldier who admitted being in the party, put up a hard fight. He succeeded in knocking down one of the visitors and, said this man, it was necessary "to tap him on the head with the butt of an automatic."

After the whips had been used and the tar, and feathers had been applied, the raiders carried their victim down to Orange Lake, eight miles west of Newburgh. There they took him from the automobile and ducked him twice. Thence the autoists proceeded to a lonely road—"where the chance for a lift would be less"—and turned him loose to walk the thirteen miles home.

Bride Tells of Her Romance.

The news of this walk through the empty, forsaken back roads, clad only in the tar and feathers, appeared to please Mrs. White more than anything else in the punishment of her husband. She literally beamed to-day when she was told of the affair.

"Ah, it was coming to him," she said through an interpreter. "My marriage to him was not a dream—it was a nightmare. Shall I tell you of myself and him? Well, I was born on Nov. 21, 1900, in the Latin Quarter of Paris. When I was 6 years old we moved to Rheims, where my mother, Mrs. Pauline Simon, had been born. We lived there until 1916, when the German push brought the Krupp guns to our gate.

"Our home was ruined by the shell-fire and my father, who had been rich up to then, lost all he had. We were forced to become refugees and we finally made our way back to the Latin Quarter of Paris. I was entered as a student in the Lycee d'Enelon as a student of chemistry. Studying and living the life of any young girl, I grew up.

"On Feb. 1, 1921, there was a Mardi Gras festival in our neighborhood. It was a time of great festivity and everybody was in the streets. A friend of mine, a Mrs. Carman Levy, and I were walking down a crowded street. I was near the Palais Royale. A man accidentally jostled me in passing. He stopped, tipped his hat and was profuse in his apologies. He engaged in conversation with Mrs. Levy about the festival and then she introduced me.

White Visits Her Home.

"It was Mr. White, of course. He seemed to be much attracted to me and asked permission to call at my home. I told him he would have to see my parents. He came to our house the next day. My father and mother were profoundly impressed with him. They said 'He talks so well.' They said he would make a very eligible husband. When he left he sought permission to repeat his visit and my mother agreed.

"Three days later he called again He had been in the house only a few minutes when he proposed. I told my parents and they urged that I accept him. So I did. Mr. White was eager that we should be married at once, that very day, but my parents suggested that we wait for two weeks.

"In the interval between my engagement and my wedding Mr. White was at my home constantly. Naturally we had many conversations and he came to tell me about himself and his plans.

"He told me that he had come to France in order to organize a company to take parties of Americans for tours of the battlefields. I believed him when he said that, but I seldom have believed him since. I think he is not sincere, not even in his radicalism. I think he is a hypocrite.

"Another time he told me that he was in Paris as the representative of an American hotel. He said, if I remember correctly, that he was an agent for the Hotel Holley in New York City. He had little to say then about his political or economic views, but I recall that he said that war was wrong; that he said that was terrible, and that he could not understand why the United States or France had ever consented to joining it.

Predicted Revolution in U. S.

"Again he once predicted to me a great revolution in the United States. He did not say how this revolution was to take place, but he did say that he expected to be one of the leaders.

"While in Paris he introduced me to many of his American friends there. I do not recall their names except that one was a Mrs. Friend who was, I think, the correspondent for an American fashion magazine. They never discussed social problems.

"Then came my marriage in the American Episcopal Church in Paris. I am a Catholic, but at Mr. White's request, my father gave his permission to have the ceremony performed in a Protestant church. My father did not attend the wedding. My brother, Henri, was there as his representative. That night we went to Cherbourg where we went aboard the 'Aquitania' as second-class passengers.

"The trip over was fairly pleasant and Mr. White still continued to submerge his real personality. Only one incident marred the trip. On the fourth day out we were at dinner—my husband, myself, an Italian and a German. Somehow the conversation turned to the proper sphere of woman.

"'A woman should lead a very secluded life,' said Mr. White, in his usual positive way. I and the Italian disagreed. Mr. White seemed furious that I should offer an opinion in the matter and there were high words, but the matter finally passed off. Later, however, in our cabin he gave me a terrible scolding and cautioned me never to 'embarrass' him again with any of my views. I said:

"'I have always lived a free and unhampered life and I say to you now that I always expect to.'"

Entertainment in New York.

In New York, she continued, White installed her at the Hotel Holley. During the eight days they stayed in the city, White offered his bride the following entertainment: One trip on a Fifth avenue bus and a walk up Broadway at night.

"No, he did not take me to the Aquarium," she said. "He did not take me to any theatres."

Many friends came to visit them at The Holley, she said, and among them was Kilburn Scott, whom she described as an English artist. It was from Scott, the French girl added, that she first obtained suspicions that:

"Mr. White's politics were not the politics of Americans."

Scott, she said, had not given her any information, but she had gathered from his questions that "politically at any rate, my husband was not popular. No, he did not tell that he had been arrested, but I learned that later.

"During the afternoon of the eighth day," Mrs. White said, "he said that he thought he would take me up to his summer place. So we arrived at the station in Marlboro. Two men were there, and Mr. White said he had hired them to do the work around the place. We drove out and the men took one look at the place and walked down the road. They never came back.

"I was amazed,"—Bouck White himself corroborated the latter—"I could say nothing. I cried. What a place to go to from my beautiful home. I went inside, and it was filthy. I cannot tell you how dirty it was. It was dreadful.

"'How do you like it?' Mr. White asked.

Ordered to Arise at 6 A. M.

"I sat down on the one chair and cried. I cried most of the night, and at 6 o'clock in the morning Mr. White said to me:

"'Get up.' It was an order, but I thought he was jesting. I could not think any one got up with the dawn, wut he insisted. I laughed and then he was very angry. He finally dragged me out and ordered me to clean up the place.

"'You are my servant,' he said, 'and when you don't do as I wish I'll use you as a cow.'"

For two days, the girl continued, she endured "this animal life," and then came the alleged beating and her escape to the home of McElrath.

"As for my future," she added as a last word, "I like America. I want to stay here. Perhaps I can support myself here—for a time at least, for my mother must be grieving for me. Perhaps I can tutor in French or be a governess. I don't know what—but I like America and some Americans."

White, who was busy to-day cementing the walls of a fieldstone pump house he is adding to his estate, again attributed all his troubles to the incompatibility of the French and American temperaments. Also to overalls. He was wearing a pair, and as he glanced down at them he said:

"It was these overalls that were largely responsible for the separation. She didn't want me to do any manual labor. I tried to tell her that I was a working man and that I had to, but she insisted that I had to wear city clothes and a white collar all the time."

White Now a "Municipalist."

White indulged in further exposition of his views on large topics, and announced that she "shunned" Bolshevism, socialism and the Lenin brand of communism. He said he was a "municipalist." This he defined as a person who was endeavoring to awaken the civic conscience of the cities. He again denied the story of his tar and feathering, and also declared that he never had mistreated his wife.

It was learned to-day that on May 9, the day Mrs. White fled from him, Justice Doyly Hutchins of Marlboro issued a warrant for his arrest on a charge of assault, after his wife had told her story to the Justice.

The next day Mrs. White and Deputy Sheriff William McConnell went to White's house, but the warrant was not served, because after a talk Mrs. White agreed to withdraw her charge. Then Bernard F. Cecire, a Ploughkeepsie attorney, entered his case and White agreed to pay $400 to his wife as passage money back to France. He paid $3 in cash and gave her a check for $21, said McConnell, and since then has paid nothing.

DUMMER SUNDAY SCHOOLS HELD A CONVENTION

MEETINGS HELD IN THE 9TH LINE SCHOOLHOUSE—THE ADDRESSES.

WARSAW, June 2.—The Dummer Sunday school convention was held in the 9th Line schoolhouse on Monday afternoon and evening, Mr. J. A. Crowe presiding. The good-sized schoolhouse was filled at both services. Between sessions a bountiful supper was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Patterson. Mrs. Patterson opened the whole lower floor of their comfortable farm house to the guests.

The convention was one of the best ever held, except that reports were very scarce and even those given were very meagre.

The afternoon session was opened by prayer and singing "Revive Us Again." Mr. Crowe gave a very short address. Mesdames Taylor and Crapp sang "Rose of Sharon." Mr. J. Hawthorne read the minutes of last meeting and the financial statement. The reports were then called for. Rev. Mr. Ferris, the outside speaker of the day, spoke on "The Religion of Adolescents," and outlined the work of the Tuxis boys. Christ is the centre of all the work. The school children sang, "Jesus has you on his heart." Mr. E. Hawthorne gave a most interesting address on Sunday school work in general. All then sang "To the Work." Rev. J. Knox gave a missionary address. He had seen the motto, "Pray, study, give, etc," and these words suggested his subject.

Some excellent questions were asked at the round table conference. Some seemed to fear Christ would be forgotten in the Tuxis boys training, when it really is training and service, you and I for Christ. Christ in the centre.

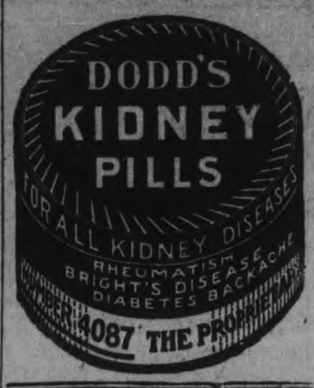
The Nominating committee, viz.: Messrs. E. Hawthorne, T. Patterson, R. Somers, Darling; Mesdames J. A. Crowe, Wm. Forsythe, E. Hamblin, met immediately at the close of the afternoon session and nominated the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. David Miller; Vice-Pres., Mr. Thos. Patterson; Sec.-Treas., Mr. J. Hawthorne; Supt. Children's Dept., Mrs. Wasson; Supt. Boys' Dept., Mr. Henry Batten; Supt. Girls' Dept., Mrs. Geo. Taylar; Supt. Adult Dept., Mrs. E. R. Hamblin; Supt. Home Dept., Miss Clara Payne; Supt. Teachers' Training, Mrs. Stephen Miller; Supt. Missionary Work, Mrs. J. A. Crowe; Supt. Temperance Work, Mrs. Wm. Forsythe. The next annual meeting will be held at Bethel.

The evening session opened with prayer by Rev. G. Graham, and all singing, "Oh Where Are the Reapers?" Mr. Henry Batten sang "Bearing His Cross."

The report of the Nominating committee was confirmed and adopted. Rev. Mr. Vose gave an interesting talk on Sunday school membership. The school sang, "Would You Believe." Rev. Ferris' talk on Evangelism in the Sunday School was most helpful. Rev. Mr. Rich gave a very thoughtful and helpful talk on trying to work with inequalities. Good and bad cannot work together. Rev. Mr. Vose sang "The Saviour Stands." Rev. G. Graham talked on "Bible Lives and Home Influence." Meeting closed with prayer and singing.

BRIBERY ALLEGED.

On the charge of attempting to bribe Mr. W. F. Kerr, county attorney for Northumberland and Durham, Benjamin Hopps, a well-to-do farmer of Seymour township, has been committed for trial. It is said that Hopps, whose son Joseph is charged with a serious offence sent by letter to Mr. Kerr, two $50 bills so that the Crown Attorney would be as lenient as possible with his son. The accused was admitted to bail in himself for $1,000.



BASEBALL IN CAMPBELLFORD

SINGLE MEN DEFEATED THE MARRIED MEN—PERSONAL MENTION.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 2. — The young men of Campbellford played the married men at baseball on Tuesday evening. The line-up was:

Single—B. Kerr and R. Weston, p.; L. Philips, c.; Weston and Nancarrow, 1b.; H. Dunk, 2b.; E. Bayes, 3b; J. Storie, l.f.; H. Sanders, r.f.; F. A. Burger, s.s.; Weston, m.

Married—A. Wood, p.; C. Holmes, c.; P. Kelly. 1b.; A. J. Meyers, 2b.; J Birmingham, 3b.; A. Brewster, l.f.; J. Hay, r.f.; P. Denyes, s.s.; V. Farrel, m.

Umpire, Wm. Sarginson.

A large number turned out to see the game. Mayor A. J. Meyers opened the game by pitching the first ball and afterwards emulated Babe Ruth by making a home run. The stars of the game were Meyers, Weston and Burger. The score was 8—3 in favor of the single men.

Mc-Culloch-Watters Nuptials.

The marriage was solemnized on Wednesday morning, June 1st at ten o'clock by the Rev. C. F. MacIntosh, B.A., B.D., of Annie Etta, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Watters, Campbellford, and Mr. Reginald Carman McCulloch, eldest son of Mr. Archie McCulloch, of Seymour West.

The bride wore a gown of white crepe de chene with veil and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Little Miss Ruby Townsend made a charming flower girl in white organdie with pink trimmings. During the signing of register, Mrs. C. F. MacIntosh sang "Because," accompanied by Miss Gladys Plumpton, who also played the wedding march.

After partaking of the wedding breakfast the happy couple left on the 1.30 train for Toronto and Niagara, the bride travelling in a navy blue tailored suit with a blue mohair hat. Among the out-of-town guests were: Miss Margaret Anderson of West Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Foster of Bloomfield, Ont.

During the previous week two showers were given the bride, at which she received a lot of beautiful and useful gifts.

Quick Service.

Mr. T. E. Morton received a truck load of plate glass from a company in Toronto on Saturday morning. The truck left Toronto on Saturday morning, drive to Campbellford and installed five sepaarte sheets and returned to Toronto last evening.

Personals.

Mr. Jas. Irwin and his mother, who have been visiting the latter's brother in Coffeville, Kansas, have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack McCallum have returned from a visit in Kingston.

Miss Audrey Rowe of Stanwood, is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Clark Johnston.

Mr. Percy Morton, son of Mrs. W. J. Morton, of Stirling, formerly of Campbellford, has successfully passed his examinations at the College of Pharmacy.

According to information supplied by the Minister of Foodstuffs, 33,000 tons of wheat will be shipped shortly to Greece from America, whilst another 35,000 tons will be purchased presently, which should cover the total requirements of about three months.

INCOME TAX HAS YIELDED NEARLY FORTY MILLIONS

SIR HENRY DRAYTON TELLS COMMONS YESTERDAY AFTERNOON —MAY REDUCE PENALTIES.

OTTAWA, June 2.— Hon. C. J. Doherty, minister of justice, moved yesterday afternoon that the compromise reached in conference between the Commons and senate with regard to the amendment offered by the latter body to the judges act be accepted. The amendment submitted by the senate prohibited judges from sitting on commissions or boards. Under the compromise they will be permitted to sit on boards of conciliation, or provincial commissions.

Thirty-nine million dollars have already been collected in income tax returns during the present year. This interesting statement was submitted by Sir Henry Drayton, minister of finance, upon the introduction fo a bill to consolidate the income tax act yesterday afternoon. This bill, said Sir Henry, proposed to reduce certain of the penalties imposed for non-compliance with income tax regulations.

Sir Henry contended that Canada's collections compared favorably with those of Australia and New Zealand. During the first year, when the income tax was in force in Canada ,the sum of $9,000,000 had been collected during the first year, when it was in force in Australia, $18,000,000 had been collected, and in New Zealand's first year $327,000. In her second year Canada had raised $20,000,000, Australia $27,000,000 and New Zealand—

In the third year Canada collected $46,000,000. Australia collected $34,00,000 and New Zealand $437,000.

During the first year when income tax was in force in Canada the amount collected per ratepayer was $200, while in Australia it was $76. During the second year in Canada it was $207. In Australia $105. During the third year in Canada it was $244. In Australia $110.

Before the orders of the day were called, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux called attention to a report to the effect that because of the Young tariff bill in the United States, Canada was putting on countervailing duties on certain commodities such as wheat, wheat flour, potatoes, etc. Had the government been doing so, he asked?

Sir Henry Drayton replied that there were certain provisions in the customs tariffs of Canada which were reciprocal in character and which provided that if certain Canadian products were allowed free into any country, similar products should be allowed free entry into Canada. This applied to products such as those mentioned by Mr. Lemieux. But just as soon as the United States placed a duty on Canadian products the old duties automatically applied to similar products coming from the United States.

There was no other change than this, he said.

Ernest Lapointe, of East Quebec, enquired this afternoon whether in view of despatches from England to the effect that the question of co-operative naval defence would be the most important topic to be discussed at the forthcoming premiers' conference there had been any change in Premier Meighen's determination as expressed to the house recently.

"Namely that Canada's intention was that no such subject should be discussed."

"I am not agreeable to the expression used by the honorable member," said Mr. Meighen. I may say, however, that there has been no change whatever either in my own intention or that of the government with respect to the forthcoming conference."

ONE OR TWO BODIES ARE WASHED ASHORE DAILY

BUDAPEST, May 31.—(Associated Press.)—Much mystificaiton and considerable alarm have been caused in Budapest by the fact that one or two bodies of human beings bearing unmistakable traces of violence, have been washed ashore daily for two weeks at a point on the Danube river.

Some of the victims had their feet bound together with wire, others bore many wounds and, in some cases, the bodies of two girls with stones tied to their necks.

None of the bodies have been identified. Detectives say that it is evident that passengers on the Danube river are falling victims to murderous hands.

ALL WORRIED WOMEN NEED RICH BLOOD

IF THE BLOOD IS NOT KEPT PURE HEALTH WILL BREAK DOWN.

It is useless to tell a hard-working woman to take life easily and not to worry. To do so is to ask the almost impossible. But, at the same time, it is the duty of every woman to save her strength to meet any unusual demands. It is a duty she owes herself and family, for her future health may depend upon it.

To guard against a complete breakdown in health the blood must be kept rich, red and pure. No other medicine does this so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This medicine strengthens the nerves, restores the appetite and keeps every organ healthily toned up. Women cannot always rest when they should, but they can keep their strength by the occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Among those who have found benefit from this medicine is Mrs. Cora Conrad, Broad Cove, N.S., who says: "My system was very much run-down, and my blood poor and watery. I suffered a great deal from headaches and dizziness; my appetite was poor, and I tired easily. I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and have every reason to be glad that I did so. Soon I felt better, and under the continued use of the Pills the headaches and dizziness were gone, and my blood seemed in a better condition than before. For this reason I recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CHURCH UNION IS ADVOCATED

Presbyterian church chooses to ride on that tide now ,the time may come when it will be too late.

Dealing with the Lambeth conference appeal Dr. Ballantyne made the striking admission that the Presbyterians had no deep rooted hostility to Episcopacy, and said that while the Presbyterian form of church government might be best for a small town like Geneva, or a small country like Scotland or Holland it may not be best for a land of vast distances like Canada. He suggested that force of circumstances might lead to the adoption of Episcopacy again as the best for this country.

Madeira Linens For Households New and Old

Truly, fine and lovely are these Madeira pieces. Basket, scroll and rose effects abound and they are worked on such fine linen fabrics that one cannot help but admire them, but how much better it is to possess them. The price should not stand in the way.

Lunch Cloths

Thirty-six Inch $8.95
Forty-five Inch ..... $13.95, $15.25, and $32.50
Fifty-four Inch ..... $19.50 and $21.50

Centres

Eighteen Inch $2.50
Six Inch ..... from 35c to 50c
Nine Inch ..... 50c to 98c

Madeira Ovals, in the Twelve-inch size, come at 85c.

Madeira Serviettes, in an assortment of patterns, with scalloped edges, are $10.75 a dozen.

Club Bags and Trunks

for the Going Away Occasion

A Bag of Genuine Black Cowhide comes at $33.00. It is worth every cent of it. The frame is stitched on, and the hardware is nickel-plated. The length is twenty inches.

An eighteen-inch Bag of Dark Tan Cowhide, with brass hardware, sells at $30.50.

Others as low as $4.75, and many at in-between prices.

More people would own Wardrobe Trunks if they knew what a great convenience they are. Even for a brief visit they are worth while.

At $35.00 we have a splendid one that has a box for a Hat, two drawers, and one spacious side with Five garment hangers. The end of this section is on a hinge, and simplifies the removal of the garments. The entire interior is lined with a Blue and Grey floral fabric.

Trunks of ordinary dimensions from $10.00 to $55.00.

If She Is Saving That Fine Old Silver Plate "1847 Rogers Bros."

then we have it in three of the most pleasing patterns — "Old Colony," "Cromwell," and "Louvain."

The latter is the latest pattern from the factory of these famous makers. It is somewhat similar to the "Cromwell," the difference being that a fine leaf design relieves the severe simplicity that is characteristic of the "Cromwell."

"1847 Rogers Bros." has been tested and found worthy as a good investment for more than seventy years. It is attractive and will last.

At Last! Dotted Swiss Muslins and They're "Stoffel's"

We have searched far and wide for genuine Swiss muslins with dots. We could have bought all we required, but we considered the prices too high. At last we learned of a Swiss mill with an agency in Canada. That's how it comes about that we are able to sell this much-wanted dress material at a reasonable price.

The widths are 30|31 inches, and the dots are pin-head size and close together.

At $1.95 they are obtainable in Alice Blue with White, Pink and White, Orchid and White, Mrs. Harding Blue with White, Navy and White, and Black and White.

At $1.75 you can have White grounds with dots in the following colours: Pale Blue, Pink, Orchid, Navy, or Black.

Golfer's Gloves for Women

The designer of these Gloves must have been a Golf enthusiast, otherwise she could not have designed them so well and practical.

They are of Chamois, and fasten on the back of the wrist with a dome. The fingers are perforated to allow freedom of the hands and ventilation, and where each knuckle comes there is a round hole as large as the knuckle itself. This permits the wearer to flex the fingers and grip the club as securely as though she were bare-handed. Brown points and piping. Priced at $2.75.

New Valenciennes Laces with Insertions to Match

Very much in demand are such fine Laces as these. They will play an important part on an Organdie Frock or fine Undergarments.

Priced at 20c, 25c and 35c yard.

Some Novel Collar and Cuffs and Other Arrangements for the Neck

A set of Copenhagen Blue, with a round collar, is of Organdie, tucked in cross bars. Priced at $1.50.

A set of White Dotted Organdie has a Tuxedo collar and a diagonal row of hemstitching across the ends. The edges are scalloped. Price $2.25.

Very lovely is a set of Ecru coloured Organdie. It is a checker board of eyelet work, with six eyelets to each block. The collar is round. Prie $1.50.

Vestees in Lace or Net are very inexpensive, yet very effective. Some of the Nets have a coloured thread edging each frill. Priced as low as 57c and as high as $1.25.

Recently we received several pieces of that heavy, deep Ecru Lace that many like so well for around the neck and cuffs of Dresses. They are priced at $2.25 yard.

Fine Lace for the same purpose, and in petals, is priced from 85c to $1.00 yard.

THE CENSUS OFF TO A GOOD START

NAMES OF THE ENUMERATORS FOR CITY AND COUNTRY.

The 13 enumerators who are taking the census in the seven townships in West Peterborough are as follows: Cavendish Township, Stanley Higgins; Ennismore, W. A. Crough; Galway, Robert White; Harvey (South), Gal Elliott; Harvey (North), James Ingram; Harvey (East), Stanley Higgins; Monaghan (North), Allan McNabb; Monaghan (North), J. E. Clark; Monaghan (South), T. W. Hibbert; Smith, W. W. Blewett, Percy D. Idy, J. E. Millburn and Bruce Fitzgerald.

The 21 enumerators who yesterday started work in the city are: John Watt, M. J. Allan, Miss T. B. Taylor, Miss J. Evans, H. Wood, V. B. Lyle, S. Whitehouse, T. Rutherford, L. J. Stewart, Mrs. L. Spriggs, George Tenton, Thomas Shields, A. P. Elson, F. D. Rutherford, W. Fisher, J. Bucham, R. H. Perry, James Pearson, Miss B. Morgan, M. McGill, T. W. Brian. In addition to these, Governor H. Nesbitt is enumerator at the County Gaol, D. S. Campbell, Superintendent at the County House of Refuge, and R. J. McCamus at the Mud Lake Indian Reserve.

The census-taking got away to a good start yesterday. Col. J. Mills stated. Everywhere the enumerators went they were cordially met and much of the desired information was carefully prepared for them, greatly speeding up the work. If the celerity with which the work proceeded yesterday continues, Col. Mills said he felt safe in saying that the work in the city would be completed in ten days. The "piece work" system by which the men are paid offers no incentive to them delaying the work. The compensation in the city. The Examiner was informed, would average about $70 to each enumerator.

BODY BROUGHT HOME TO-DAY

The body of Peter McMurray, son of John McMurray, of Douro, who died from injuries received while employed on the Welland Ship Canal at Niagara Falls yesterday morning, arrived in the city to-day, and the funeral will take place to-morrow morning from the family residence, Concession 1, Douro, to Douro Church and Cemetery. Peter McMurray was 23 years of age, and had only been working at Niagara since May 5. He is survived by his father, five brothers at home, Thomas, Frank, Garret, Jeremiah and John, and six sisters, Mrs. McMahon of Douro, Mrs. McCauley of New York, Mrs. Michael Cain of Peterborough, Margaret, Emma and Dorothy, at home. He was highly respected in Douro, where he had always lived.

Rector of St. Margaret's, Ottawa. Rev. Bonsfield attended Trinity College School, Port Hope. Going to Bishop's University, Lennoxville, Quebec, he had a stellar career both in sports and studies, graduating with Arts degree in 1904, and in 1906 in theology. It is a coincidence that Rev. Clarke, of Campbellford, who preached the induction sermon last night, and who attended university with Rev. Bonsfield, where a fast friendship was formed between the two, is located at Campbellford.

School Athletics.

Rev. Bonsfield took a prominent part in school athletics, playing right scrim on the Rugby team, and he has never relinquished his interest in clean, healthy sport.

In 1905 he was ordained deacon, and priest in June, 1907. After serving as missionary in the Diocese of Ottawa for a number of years, he went to Calgary as assistant to the Cathedral. Later he returned east, and was in charge of Christ Church, Niagara Falls, Ontario, when the Rector was overseas.

TURNBULL STORE A PRIZEWINNER

Winning first prize in an advertising contest and honorable mention in another window display competition the J. C. Turnbull Company's consistently attractive publicity work has received the rewards it has well earned. This morning's mail brought a letter from the Marshall Ventilated Mattress Company of Toronto announcing that the Turnbull Link-up advertisement has been awarded the first prize of one Marshall felt mattress. The following is an excerpt from the letter of congratulation—"it is interesting to note that the statement of Mr. S. H. Howarth of Toronto, who was the judge for the ad-writing. We pass on to you the following paragraph in his letter—'In judging the various newspaper advertisements submitted in your Marshall month competition I must say that the general excellence of all the advertisements submitted made it very difficult to award the first and second prizes. Your customers are to be congratulated upon the splendid showing which they have made in the competition, and we feel sure that the results in the sales of mattresses must have been most gratifying both to them and to yourselves."

The honorable mention was from the Canadian H. W. Gossard Co., for a photograph of a window display of Gossard corsets in a competition recently held among the trade. Mr. Charles Lapp is in charge of the Turnbull Company's window display and advertising.

hundreds of families and thousands of members, many of whom are of foreign birth.

There are also seven redemptive homes in various centres, which annually touch the lines of hundreds of needy girls with results that are most encouraging. Regard is also had for the immigrant, through the Department of the Stranger, in which the Women's Missionary Society also co-operates. Nearly 20,000 individual immigrants were ministered to through this department during 1920.

The Board of Home Missions and Social Service takes a keen interest in moral and social reform, and annually presents, through the Assembly, resolutions on temperance matters and other subjects of legislation, and the relationship between capital and labor. Its work is therefore national as well as distinctly religious, and its influences extend far beyond its denominational boundaries.

The Department of Evangelism also belongs to this Board. Several campaigns were carried on in different parts of the Dominion, including a special series of meetings conducted by Dr. Campbell Morgan and Dr. Robert Johnston.

To-night will be Home Missions night at the General Assembly. It will be one of the great sessions of this Presbyterian parliament, when stirring addresses will be given, based on the facts above reported, and dealing with the larger implications and the ever-extending programme of Home Missions and Social Service.

"IS BEST IN THE WORLD," SHE SAYS

Toronto Woman Says She Wouldn't Think of Ever Being Without Tanlac.

"I have already recommended Tanlac to many of my friends, and don't hesitate to say it is the best medicine in the world for indigestion and rheumatism," said Mrs. J. B. Gallen of 106 Galt avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

"For years I had to diet myself on light foods, and even after every meal I had terrible pains in my stomach and often felt so bloated and stuffed up I could hardly get my breath. I suffered from constipation and headaches a great deal of the time and often got so dizzy I could hardly stand up. I had rheumatism in my left foot, and at times my arms and legs also hurt terribly.

"But on my second bottle of Tanlac I noticed my troubles were leaving, and now my appetite is fine and my stomach acts just like a new one. Tanlac has done me so much good I wouldn't think of being without it."

TRADES COUNCIL HELD A MEETING

DISCUSS LOCAL CONTRACTS AND BREAD PRICES.

At a meeting of the Trades and Labor Council held last evening, with President F. Mesley in the chair, Mr. R. Hicks, chairman of the Utilities Commission, spoke of the work done by the Commission relative to the filtration plant and electrical supply. He said the Commission had adhered to the most stringent regulations in regard to the tenders for the construction of the plant, which were called for en bloc, or in four parts. The tender of the Esson Wyss Company of Switzerland, had been accepted for the pumps required, connected with Canadian General Motors, as these were guaranteed to the highest standard of efficiency, and the tender was $2,000 lower than any of the others. The Esson Wyss Company was financed by capital of other nations, with a big share of British capital interested. In connection with the rates, he explained that large corporations would pay the same rate as smaller ones, but no meters would be installed in dwellings at present. A unanimous vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Hicks for his address.

Union Music.

A number of delegates spoke in favor of union music, and of operators' slides being put on at the local theatres. A communication from the American Federation of Musicians was received, stating that Peterborough Musicians' Local Union No. 191 was a duly authorized organization and affiliated with the A. F. of Musicians.

High Price of Bread.

The high price of bread in Peterborough, compared with other places, received a generous supply of critcism. One delegate remarked that if familiies would do their own baking, the cost per loaf might be appreciably reduced.

A number of very appropriate mottoes were received from the Ontario Safety League.

A RECITAL

The pupils of Mrs. Lenora James Kennedy and Miss Laura Newman gave a vocal and piano recital at the Conservatory of Music last evening, before a large and keenly appreciative audience. Many of those taking part have been studying for some years, and their progress from season to season is exemplified in these charming recitals which are given at the conclusion of the teaching year. Miss Newman, who is a member of the teaching staff at the Toronto Conservatory of Music, and Mrs. Lenora James Kennedy, of the Hambourg Conservatory, and a soloist in one of the largest Toronto churches, are splendidly equipped for the teaching of instrumental and vocal music, and their pupils gave a fine exhibition last night of expert training. The programme was as follows: Vocal duet, "Barcarolle" (Tales of Hoffman), Misses L. Eastwood and L. Corbett; instrumental, (a) "Swan Song," (b) "The Witch," Miss Edyth Killaly; vocal, (a) "The Weathercock," (b) "Thoughts Have Wings," Miss Edna Burbidge; instrumental, Rondo Capriccioso, op. 14, Miss Olive Johnston; instrumental, "Etude Mignon," Miss Mary Harstone; vocal, (a) "The Daisies," (b) "When Swallows Fly Low," Miss Lillian Eastwood; instrumental. Romance, op. 28, No. 3, Miss Agnes Logan; vocal, "The Cry of Rachael," Miss Lillian Corbett; instrumental, "A la bien Aimee." Miss Gladys Graham; vocal, "My Redeemer and My Lord." Miss Ina Allen; instrumental. Rhapsody, No. 8, Miss Agnes Logan.

SAY COL. J. W. ALLISON SUED FOR COMMISSION

Sought $300,000 on Contracts Said to Have Been Placed Through His Influence.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, June 2.— An Ottawa paper prints a news item which says:

"Col." John Wesley Allison, who became famous here during the war in connection with the investigation of war contracts by the Meredith-Duff Commission, was unsuccessful recently in an action brought by him against the Remington, Small Arms Company for $300,000 commission, which he claimed on orders he is supposed to have secured for the company from the British government. The case was heard during May in the supreme court of the state of New Jersey.

The facts date back to the days when Brig.-General Sir Sam Hughes was minister of militia, and Col. Allison was a figure in the munitions business. Mr. Allison held honorary ran kas colonel in the Canadian army. He based his claim to the $300,000 commission on the contention that the large orders secured by the Remington, Small Arms Company were the result of his influence with Sir Sam Hughes, and thus with the British government.

The courts dismissed the action on the grounds that the contract, if any, between the company and Mr. Allison, was not such as could be enforced by a court of law.

It is understood here that Mr. Allison will appeal the case.

HUNGARIAN SENTIMENT APPROACHES ANGLOPHOPHIA

BUDAPEST, June 2. Associated Press. Sympathy for England has always been very strong in Hungary but the last few years it has been approaching anglophobia. Attempts have been made lately to transplant to Hungary the conventionalities of British Society.

A "League for the Propagation of British Etiquette" has been formed, which is trying to reform some of the modes of Hungarian intercourse.

The League first concentrated its efforts to abolish the customary shaking of hands and long conversations inevitably following the casual meeting of two persons ad to replace it by a simple "How do you do?" With this object the members o fthe league are strolling the whole day along the streets yearning for opportunities to instruct the public in the new way of greeting and parting.

When any unsuspecting friend with the smiling anticipation of a conversation on his face, nears the Anglo-maniac, stretching out both his hands warmly, the members of the league stiffly bows his head, and cries "How do you do?" and hurries away before the thunderstruck individual has time to recover.

"We have done our best for the introduction of this good old English manner of greeting, but with little result," stated Baron John Bornemizza, president of the league. "Somehow short greetings do not agree with our society. I just met a friend and when passing him, I said the new 'How do you do?'

"Would you believe me that man stopped me, clun gto my coat sleeve and with wet eyes expressed his gratitude for my interest in his personal welfare, and entered into a detailed description of his ill-health.

"At that moment another member of our League approached, and unsuspicious of any harm said his cheerful 'How do you do?' I escaped, leaving the Hungarian clinging to my colleague's sleeve, reciting the same tale from beginning to end.

"No," concluded Baron Bornemizza "My hopes are not very bright that the short manner of greeting will prove a success in my country."

Milkweed has for ages been known for its medicinal qualities.

ADVISED CATHOLICS TO TAKE DEEPER INTEREST IN ALL COMMUNITY AFFAIRS

GUY R. ROACH, AT KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS BANQUET, DECLARED THAT INDIFFERENCE MIGHT BE WRONGLY INTERPRETED BY OTHER CITIZENS.

FINE MUSICAL PROGRAMME

In the outstanding address at the Knights of Columbus banquet in the Empress Hotel last night, concluding the 18th annual convention of the Ontario State Council, Mr. Guy R. Roach of Toronto, declared that the Catholic people and the Knights of Columbus, in particular, should take a deeper and livelier interest in all public affairs, and community movements. He reminded the audience of more than 150 men that the pioneer settlers of Canada were Catholics, and that in this province Catholics had largely assisted in the clearing of the land and developing Ontario to the splendid, flourishing province it is to-day.

"I believe we are as good Catholics as were our ancestors," he said. "We, too, have progressed in numbers and wealth, but have we progressed consistent with the intelligence we have and without numbers? We are too prone to chase after things that in the end amount to very little. Look at the movements that are under way for the betterment of our province, and of Canada. Where are the Catholic people in these movements? Too many of them are at lacrosse or hockey matches, or they remain at home reading the papers, or are engaged in some other recreations. If there is a public meeting in any town, suppose there are one hundred citizens present. It may be that we are bound by whatever they do. If we are not properly represented there these other citizens may say that Catholics don't take an interest in their country. We are not here on sufferance or by a privilege."

If any question arose involving the interests of the Catholic people they should act, not in a fighting manner, but by presenting their case to fellow citizens. Mr. Roach had faith in the great body of broad-minded Protestants in Ontario. "I come from a city that is wrongly described as a bigoted city," Mr. Roach continued. "Toronto is not a bigoted city as is evidenced by the honour in which the Knights of Columbus are held there. I venture to say that if any man here had predicted the result of our appeal for the Catholic Army Huts he would have been laughed at. Well, we did go out and more than $200,000 was handed to the Knights of Columbus, by the Catholic and Protestant people of Toronto. And if that is true of Toronto, it is true of every community. Of course there are some men who see red when the name Catholic is mentioned, but I have found that they don't count for much. Let us have an intelligent discussion of our difculties with our fellow citizens of Ontario. If we explain to them that we are not justly treated, from my knowledge of the Protestant men of Toronto I say they will give us justice."

Rev. Father O'Neill of St. Catharines, in proposing the toast to Canada, exhorted the Knights of Columbus, to remember that in the performance of their duties of citizenship they were looked upon as Catholics and should therefore be worthy of their church and of the Order to which they belonged. "Let us leave this convention with the intention of being a splendid type of Catholics; exemplary Knights of Columbus—and thereby true and loyal citzens of Canada."

Mr. L. V. O'Connor presided as toastmaster and gave the toasts to the Pope and the King. "Our Order," was proposed by Mr. George Hanrahan, of Windsor, and responded to by R. A. Jeffery of Arnprior. "Our Visitors," was proposed by Rev. C. J. Phelan, and replied to by F. J. McCartney, of Fort William, and responded to by Dr. J. J. McCann, of Renfrew; "Our Hosts," proposed by J. R. Donoghue of Sarnia, Mr. J. R. Corkery and Mr. V. J. McElderry, replying.

The concluding toast to the ladies revealed a humorist in E. J. Ryan, of London. Mr. George L. Bush of Guelph, responded.

The delegates were profuse in their grateful and also graceful compliments to the Knights of Columbus of Peterboro, the ladies who had so bountifully assisted them, and to the citizens as a whole.

In the arrangements for the convention W. S. Merrell and J. J. Duffus were particularly congratulated for the completeness with which every detail had been anticipated, and provided.

The musical programme for the banquet was assumed by Jules Brazil of Toronto, who delighted the gathering with songs and other features, including a series of old songs which everybody sang. The choruses brought out the inevitable tenors, and the other touches of close harmony without which a banquet "sing-song" would be strangely amiss.

Enjoyed Boat Trip.

The trip in the "Stoney Lake" steamer over the Lift Locks and on up above Nassau, which was provided for the delegates and theer wives yesterday afternoon, was enjoyed by nearly 200 out of town visitors and their Peterborough hosts. The weather was ideal for such an outing, and the party had a very jolly time. On their return, the men went directly to the banquet at the Empress, while the ladies were entertained by the wives of the local Knights of Columbus at a very dainty supper at the Society's club house. The large front room was filled with little tables, charmingly decorated with flowers, and about 80 of the ladies partook of the bountiful repast provided for them. Mrs. F. Fairen and Mrs. Richard Sheehy, Sr. Mrs. G. White, Mrs. Jno. Coughlin, Mrs. J. E. B. Paquette, Mrs. W. R. Hunter, Mrs. R. McQuaid, Mrs. J. K. Sheehy, Miss May Sullivan, Miss Mollie Young, Miss Josephine Gordon, Miss Mabel Morrow, Miss Grace Primeau, Miss Genevieve Garvey, Miss Marguerite Merrell, Miss Lillian Kelly and Miss Jeanne Girard were attendants in the dining room.

Bridge, five hundred and euchre was played by the ladies during the evening.

DOES IT PAY TO WORRY ABOUT APPENDICTIS?

Can appendicitis be guarded against? Yes, by preventing intestinal infection. The intestinal antiseptic, Adler-i-ka, acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing ALL foul, decaying matter which might start infection. EXCELLENT for gas on stomach or chronic constipation. It removes matter which you never thought was in your system and which nothing else can dislodge. One man reports it is unbelievable the awful impurities Adler-i-ka brought out. STILLMAN CASE RESUMED.

Wife Fails to Gain Desired Week's Postponement.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., June 2. —Secret hearings in the Stillman divorce case were resumed here shortly before noon. Efforts of attorneys for Mrs. James A. Stillman and her son Guy, to postpone the case for a week, apparently were fruitless.

Mrs. Stillman because of illness, was unable to be present. She had not recovered from a cold which threatened last Sunday to develop into pneumonia.

Mrs. Stillman's counsel had sought postponement because their chief, John B. Stanchfield, was forced to appear in a New York case. John E. Mack, the boys guardian, also pleaded pressure of other business.

MOTHERS QUARREL.

LINDSAY, June 2.—As a result of a wordy battle between two Lindsa ymothers over trouble with children, one woman was fined $5 and costs in the police court yesterday. Knowing the record of one of the families, Police Magistrate Bradford found little difficulty in adjudging who was to blame in a quarrel replete with highly seasoned language.

Former Peterboro Resident Figures In "Canadian Women In Public Eye"

Under its heading, "Canadian Women in the Public Eye," The Toronto Saturday Night of a recent date has a rather lengthy article on Margaret Scott of Winnipeg. This is the lady who has been "imprinting her name on the hearts of the sick and the poor and the erring, the mothers and the old people, and the squalid, bewildered stranger within our gates, by deeds and words of mercy and cheer and light, during more than two decades of time."

A quarter of a century ago Margaret Scott, who had been Margaret Boucher of Colborne, lived here in Peterborough, where her husband was a well-known Q. C. and member of the Ontario Legislature for West Peterborough. She was widowed at the age of 24, and began to be self-supporting in the office of the Midland Railway here, sorting tickets at a salary of $25 a month. Within two years she was in the audit office of the Grand Trunk Railway in Montreal, in charge of the work of 30 girls and the conduct of 50.

In a few years her health compelled her to seek a different climate, and she went to Winnipeg, to find a position in the office of the Dominion Lands Commissioner, and later, in the law firm of Hough & Campbell. Her thorough study of shorthand and of the typewriter made her a stenographer of usual thoroughness and ability. She gave the use of her stenographic ability to the Rev. Mr. Owen in the foundation work along the lines of what we now call social service, and thus drifted into the work herself, first in the coffee house established to aid in the work, and then in the Margaret Scott Nursing Mission, whose nurses last year paid over 13,000 visits to the sick poor of Winnipeg, to whose service over 100 doctors contribute gratuitous assistance, and for whose support no dollar has ever been asked except by prayer, answer and support always coming most surely, often from the most amazing sources.

"For the potent force that God gives Margaret Scott in return for what she gives His people reaches the universal heart. Women of wealth and fashion, men of distinction and ability, workingmen and workingwomen young men atoning for riotous living, city and Provincial Governments, butterfly girls, sweet-eyed children, rescued women, anonymous friends, little milliners, folk a-drift across the West, from these comes offerings and assistance and unfailing revenue."

There is a pretty custom in Winnipeg of naming schools as they are built after men and women whose works follow them in the nation, the Province or the city. When the newest school came into life recently at the corner of Arlington and Alfred streets, it was called "Margaret Scott," and, after speeches by the Trustees and the Mayor and the President of the Board, two little girls, Jew and Gentile, laid a tribute of roses in the hands of a frail little woman in black, a woman grown frail in the service of a city that "kneels in heart at the gentle, fragrant name of Margaret Scott."

Children's Orchestra at Conservatory

One of the most praiseworthy undertakings on the part of a young lady which Peterborough has to boast of just at present is the Children's Orchestra at the Conservatory of Music, conducted by Miss Edwina Palmer. This is an aggregation of about twenty little boys and girls who are taking violin lessons and go to practice for their orchestra once a week. Violins are the only instruments which have been attempted so far, and there are firsts and seconds, with their small fingers running up and down the difficult strings and their bows ascending and descending in unison on either side of their young leader. Great attention is paid to time, one of the most important factors in orchestral playing, and they keep a watchful eye on the little black baton. This is a splendid training for the study of the violin, in tone qualities, time and unison playing, and it is refreshing to see these serious and earnest little faces paying such strict attention to their pleasant task.

On Kindness

In the apostle of Christ kindness, besides its innate tractiveness, is a kind of visible demonstration of the truth of religion; it seems to present all problems ready solved.

Dumas tersely, but very clearly, sets for this apologetic value of goodness: "Not even genius avails to explain what God is; but the kindness of men is a proof that He is." And that angelic soul, Madame Swetchine, who herself by sheer force of kindness ruled so many, expresses herself admirably: "The practice of virtues, lovable virtues, is the sole language of faith that can inspire any respect for religion in unbelieving, or all but unbelieving minds. Hence, we are wrong, and very wrong, in not preaching God in the only manner in which He can be understood." And she adds: "If good people were kinder people, there would not be so many sinners." The conclusion we may put, as St. John Chrysostom put it: "Throw the net of charity, bait it with kindness. Remain always a lamb and you will always be a conquerer."

In setting forth the excellency of kindness we have shown that alone it makes the kind man perfectly happy; that alone it conquers the souls of men and makes an apostleship fruitful. Truly, Montaigne was right when he insisted that "every other science is hurtful to him who is not versed in the science of goodwill to his fellowmen." And with him we may add: "Even if I could make myself feared, I had far rather make myself loved."—Gilbert.

Liberal Women

At the annual meeting of the Eastern Ontario Liberal Association, held in the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa to-day, the chief item in the proposed amendments to the Constitution to be presented for consideration is the admission of women to full and equal authority and responsibility in the affairs of the Association. Women will be elected to positions as follows: One President, seven Honorary Vive-Presidents, seven Vice-Presidents and two representatives from each of the 23 ridings on the Advisory Council.

As the Constitution has not yet been amended, a motion will be submitted that the members of the Ottawa Liberal Women's Committee who have taken an active part in preparing for this annual meeting be ex-officio members of the Association during the present gathering. They will join with the delegates elected by the Ottawa Reform Association and the other riding associations in the whole proceedings.

For one hour after the afternoon session the delegates, as the guests of the Liberal women of Ottawa, will be treated to a motor drive, and, at the luncheon, which is also under the direct supervision of the ladies, speakers will be introduced by both men and women. The speakers at the evening gathering will be introduced by the two new Presidents of the Association elected during the afternoon.

The officials who drew up the programme for this annual meeting did not take any chances on difficulties regarding time. In every case where an hour is mentioned in standard time, the corresponding hour in daylight saving time is also recorded.

On Sincerity

There is nothing which will add so much to one's power as the consciousness of being absolutely sincere. If your life is a perpetual life, if you are conscious that you are not what you pretend to be—that you are really a different person from what the world regards you—you are not strong, be you man or woman.

There is a restraint, a perpetual fighting against the truth going on within you, a struggle which saps your energy and warps your conduct. If there is a mote at the bottom of your eye, you cannot look the world squarely in the face. Your vision is not clear. Everybody sees that you are not transparent. There is a cloudiness, a haze about your character, which raises the interrogation point where you go. Character alone is strength, deceit is weakness, sham and shoddy are powerless, and only the genuine and the true are worth while cultivating.—Selected.

On Cheerfulness

Have you ever seen a more pleasant picture than a cheerful countenance? Like a calm, confident being, a cheerful person radiates light wherever he is found, and the effect of his presence is duly felt on his companions. A company of individuals cannot be otherwise than agreeable if one in their midst is of a sunny, cheerful temperament.

As sorrow weighs the heart down, so does cheerfulness bear it up. Many think that a long face and a sad-weary smile gain sympathy, perhaps so; but a sunny disposition gains friends. Can there be any two ways of choosing between them. Who does not prefer friends to the doubtfully sympathetic words of a chance listener.

"A merry heart goes all the day,
A sad heart tires in a mile."

Those who worry are constantly uder a strain. Worry leaves its marks on the face of its victim and is ever seeking to dispel the trace of happiness to be found. To meet the trials and tribulations of life with a smile and to have no fear of or solicitude for the future, and to help others by a kind word or pleasant smile—that is true cheerfulness.—Christian Home and School.

On Good Cooking

A wise man said: "Tell me what you eat and I will tell you what you are." More and more in our modern civilization the people are realizing the importance of wholesome food properly cooked. The science of cooking has a prominent place in our Public schools and colleges, and we have pure food laws; our women, young and old, are proud to say: "I can cook a good meal, one you will really enjoy." That is as it should be. To the kitchen may be traced many of the successes or failures of life. Many a child has failed to make his grades at school from lack of strength of mind and body because so little intelligence was practiced in the kitchen.

Many a man and boy has failed to hold his job because of poor food badly cooked. A great deal is said about economy in the kitchen. What is true kitchen economy? It is to provide, not necessarily the expensive food, or the cheapest food, but the purest and best material, and then to properly cook them.—Thrift Magazine.

C.G.I.T., Course

The last meeting of the leaders' training course for Canadian Girls in Training work took place at the Young Women's Christian Association last evening. Miss Florence Johnson, who was appointed President for this six weeks' course in training, occupied the chair. The same enthusiasm which characterized the initial meeting for the series was evidenced in the closing hours. Group and departmental meetings took place last evening, and Miss May Gemmell of Toronto gave a splendid talk on "The Lure of Leadership."

At a meeting of the Executive held after the general assembly took place, it was decided to call a meeting for next week of the Board, when arrangements will be made for a three months' programme.

Aids To Beauty

A modern writer says that women have gained a great deal of common-sense through the centuries in regard to their use of aids to beauty. He says that in Japan women used to gild their teeth, while in the Indies they painted them red. In Guzerat, wherever that may be, they blackened them. In Greenland they colored their faces blue and yellow. The fashion of patches came from Arabia, probably beginning with the astrological signs, but drifting into conceits like small ships cut from the black court-plaster worn at the courts of the Louis, and in the time of Louis Fifteenth women even went so far as to paste on moles in eyebrows. But we still have a number of feminine conceits with us.

For instance, there are bobbed heads, and silver wigs, and the turned-down stockings and turned-up skirts, which compel the fair owners to rouge their knees, and the bleaching of hair white to impart an air of mysterious sorrow to young faces, and removable eyelashes that paste right on over the regular home-grown variety. And pumps and silk stockings in frigid weather, with a fur choker for wear in the summer months. No, the age of reason has not yet arrived, and the 20th century hasn't very much on the days of long ago.

Fat of this sort is the best ever for frying potatoes or any kind of frying-pan frying. In the course of a year one can save many a pound of lard.

Recipes

Summer Soup.

The hearts of six lettuce cut in pieces, two large onions, two cucumbers pared and sliced, four pints young green peas, chopped parsley, three lumps crushed sugar, three tablespoons butter, salt and pepper to taste. Chop the vegetables fine, stew all together, except the young peas, for about 10 minutes; add peas with about three pints of water and simmer about one hour; add a sprig of mint just before the soup is taken off the fire. This is most nourishing soup.

Asparagus and Chicken Soup.

3-pound chicken, 1 carrot, 3 stalks celery, 1 medium-sized onion, salt and pepper.

Choose an old chicken if you are planning to use it only for soup. Wash and cut up. Put in a kettle with 6 cups of cold water, onion and carrots, diced. Bring slowly to a boil and let simmer 3 or 4 hours. At the end of an hour and a half add salt. Make a thin white sauce of 2 tablespoons of butter, 1 tablespoon of flour and 1½ cups milk. Strain chicken broth into sauce. Add 1 cup of cooked asparagus tips. Serve very hot.

Meat Loaf.

2 pounds of lean meat, ¼ pound of salt pork, 2 tablespoonfuls of shortening, 1 tablespoonful of lemon juice, 1 tablespoonful of onion juice, 1 cupful of stock or hot water, 1 cupful of crumbs, an egg, salt and pepper.

Run the meat through the chopper and mix both with beaten eggs and the other ingredients. Bake in a greased mold, covered, for one hour. Baste occasionally with a little melted fat or butter.

This may be served hot with a tomato sauce, or kept on ice and served cold in slices.

For a hot day meat loaf cut in small squares and served with lettuce and diced potatoes in the shape of a salad is a complete one-piece meal, substantial and easy to serve.

Scalloped Onions.

Take 5 or 6 onions, peel them, and cut into slices and boil. When onions are done put about half of them into the dish in which you intend to bake them, add a layer of bread crumbs, then more onions and bread crumbs until dish is filled, with crumbs on top. Cover with milk the same as for bread pudding. Put slices of butter on top. This is delicious for a side dish.

Spinach Salad.

To one cupful of spinach chopped very fine add 1 hard-boiled egg that has been ground in the food chopper, ½ teaspoonful butter, ½ teaspoonful salt, a little cayenne pepper, ½ teaspoonful celery seed, 2 tablespoonfuls vinegar and 1 cupful of the liquid from the spinach. Mix well together and bring to boiling point. Add 1 tablespoonful gelatine soaked in ¼ cupful of water. Pour into molds to set. Garnish with hard-boiled eggs and serve with French dressing.

Finnan Haddie a La William Smith.

Steam the Finnan haddie with Spanish onion sliced very fine. Have it covered with a light cream. Sprinkle with a little salt and paprika before serving.

Tomatoes a La King.

1 can tomatoes, ½ cup stoned, chopped olives, 2 tablespoons of chopped green peppers, 2 tablespoons of of chooped pimento, ½ small chopned onion, 1 tablespoon of butter, 4 tablespoons of dried bread crumbs. Heat the butter in the sauce pan, add the chopped onion and green pepper, and fry light brown. Then add the bread crumbs, tomato and other ingredients and heat thoroughly. Pour over toast or crackers.

Green Peas.

Fresh green peas are best cooked in the simplest way. Shell the peas, place in salted, boiling water, and cook for 25 minutes. Drain, place in a hot dish for serving, dot with bits of fresh, sweet butter, and sprinkle lightly with pepper and salt.

The water in which the peas have been cooked should not be thrown away, but kept in a cold place if it cannot be used at once. It is an excellent stock to add to cream soup or sauce.

Canned peas may be prepared the same way, except that they should be cooked in cold water added to whatever juice there is in the can. Canned peas are excellent for purees and in combination with other vegetables.

Strawberry Shortcake.

Clean and hull one box of berries, setting aside the large, choice ones whole. The remainder mash and mix with sugar to sweeten. Spread between hot layers of shortcake and set aside to cool. Before serving spread the top layer with whipped cream and garnish with the whole strawberries. Other berries—blackberries, raspberries, currant, blueberry—may be prepared the same way, as other fruits also, like bananas and peaches. Canned fruits and dried, cooked fruits may also be used, seasoning with sugar or lemon juice as required.

Bananas and Strawberries.

2 bananas, 1 pint berries, 2 tablespoons honey.

Slice bananas. Wash and hull berries. Put a layer of berries in a fruit dish, add sliced bananas, pour over honey. Serve with or without cream.

Spring Rice.

¾ cup rice, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 eggs, 2 pounds spinach, paprika. Wash rice and steam or boil. Arrange on a fire-proof platter, making four little wells. Into each well slide an egg. Season with salt and paprika. Put in oven and bake until eggs are as firm as desired. Surround with cooked spinach. Be sure the rice is well seasoned in the cooking.

Tea Biscuit.

2½ cups flour, ½ cup cornstarch, ¾ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons lard, 2 well-rounded teaspoons baking powder, milk to make a soft dough.

Sift the ingredients together till thoroughly mixed. Rub in the lard with the tips of the fingers or with a fork. Pour in milk gradually, moistening only part at a time. When all is moistened, cut all together.

Toss lightly onto floured board. Pat out about ¾ of an inch thick and cut with biscuit cutter. Bake 12 to 15 minutes in a rather hot oven.

Maple Buns.

A cupful of maple sugar grated or cut in bits stirred into an ordinary quick biscuit dough will give a novel sweet cake. The biscuits are then cut as usual and baked quickly; the sugar melts during the cooking and glazes the outside.

Strawberry Custard Pie.

Crust for pie: ½ pound lard, ½ cup of water or more, a little salt, flour enough to make a stiff batter.

Custard For Pie.

3 yolks of eggs, 3 tablespoons sugar, ½ cup milk or cream, 1 cup mashed berries.

Bake until done, then cover pie with a meringue made with the whites of eggs beaten with a tablespoon sugar. Return to oven until a light brown color.

Peaches or raspberries may be used instead of strawberries. Whipped cream is very good on this kind of pie.

BED BUG POISON

There are dozens of preparations recommended to destroy bed bugs. But the preparation that gives the best results is POST'S BED BUG POISON.

A few applications of this poison will soon wipe out the pest. It is composed of corrosive sublimate methyl-hydrate and carbolic acid, and as it is very poisonous it should be kept out of the reach of children.

Post's Bed Bug Poison is sold at Lynch's drug store, 168 Hunter St.

A pinch of cornstarch in the salt cellar will prevent the salt from growing hard.

Hints For Salads

For plain lettuce salad, use tiny leaves taken from the centre, add French dressing or salt and pepper, and garnish with a ring of green pepper.

Sliced tomatoes placed on a bed of lettuce and served with mayonnaise is a popular dish.

A very pretty lettuce and beet salad may be made by placing in a nest of yellow celery leaves, tiny red beets, garnished with pepper rings and crowned with a spoonful of mayonnaise.

Celery, green peas and beets make a very delicious salad. Combine and marinate combination with mayonnaise. Take deep glass dish, line with celery leaves and pile mixture in it.

Fill tomatoes with marinated spinach, and for a garnish sprinkle over the top a little powdered yolk of egg.

With larger beets, cut out centre, taking care not to come too near the surface, fill with chopped celery marinated with mayonnaise, garnish with parsley and place on lettuce leaf. This makes a very pretty, delicious, individual salad.

The most digestible way in which cabbage can be used is in its raw state. Shred the cabbage leaves, taking care to first cut out the thick part and pass through the mincer. Marinate cabbage with French dressing. Place this on lettuce and garnish with pepper.

Cut pimento in little strips and dice fine; add green cucumber pickles and combine with coleslaw. Place on lettuce.

PRACTICAL NOTES.

To clean piano keys wash them with a soft cloth wrung out of cold soapy water. Wipe dry with another soft cloth.

The vinegar from home-made pickles is better than ordinary vinegar for making salad dressing.

There is sure to be some water in the fat and this must be removed. As long as the fat sizzles and sputters in the hot pan there is water in it. When the sputtering stops, drain the fat into the crock in which the drippings are kept.

A window shade fastened to a set of open shelves makes a fine curtain to keep out the dust.

Strawberry shortcake to be really appreciated should not follow a hearty meal. The shortcake furnishes a large amount of nourishment and is a heavy dessert.

When coloring an article at home, if it is anything to be made over, color two spools of thread or silk at the same time. It will then be sure to match color.

SPORT COMMENT

Hughie Fullerton, sporting editor of the New York Evening Mail, devoted considerable space a few days since to telling his readers what a great game soccer was, and how it was bound to gain a place among America's most popular sports. A baseball fan undertook to explain to Fullerton that it would never be classed as one of Uncle Sam's great pastimes, but that only drew the following from Fullerton:

"It is good to get to write an answer to that reader, because for the good of his own soul, he should know that of all the games men play, soccer is the one universal game, unless boxing be counted. Every race of people in the world, so far as I can discover, play soccer.. It is the only game the rules for which are universal and understood in every land and in every port.

"The game, as a game, originated in Scotland, but the Scots could not long hold a monopoly on it. For some reason it became a game much indulged in by sailors, especially by Navy men. Almost every warship in every fleet of every nation has its soccer crew. In friendly ports the teams from warships of differnt nations go ashore to meet at soccer.

"In Italy, for instance, the seaport cities maintain strong soccer teams which entertain visiting teams from any ships that touch the port. It is as near being the national game of France as any game can be. Germany, prior to the war, had some of the strongest soccer teams in the world.

"The game never has become popular in America until within ten years. Even then we were slow in taking it up. Our warships have had strong teams for many years, but as a civilian game it did not make much progress until six or seven years ago, when the boom commenced. The colleges took up the sport. It remained for the war to bring the great boom to soccer. Our troops in France and Belgium saw the possibilities of the game, quickly organised teams, and began meeting French, British, Belgian, Australian, and other teams.

"Their return fro mEurope added impetus to the soccer boom, and the game is going great guns. As for not being an American game—several players from the United States and Canada are playing with the leading British teams this year, and our teams are holding their own with the best of them."

Georges Carpentier was back at work to-day after a complete resteyesterday, which he spent in observing Memorial Day and looking over Tom Gibbons, the St. Paul heavy.

The Frenchman's programme called fo rhis usual walk through the woods, his regular bymnasium exercises, and a few rounds with Italian Joe Gans and Journee.

Next week more sparring partners will join the camp, according to Gus Wilson, his trainer. Wilson is not telling the names of the new acquisitions, but he would not deny that the star addition would be Billy Miske, who is expected to "wise up" the challenger on Dempsey's style.

Willie Lewis, former middleweight and one-time teacher of Carpntier, is now a member of the Frenchman's "board of strategy." Lewis will join the camp permanently in a few weeks.

Carpentier was greatly impressed with the Gibbons brothers. He called Mike "a wonderfully smart and clever fellow." He did not comment on the younger Tom, but he watched every move he made in the ring against Jack Clifford, late sparring partner of Dempsey.

Dempsey Under Rest Orders.

Following a hard workout yesterday for the big crowds that oflcked to his training camp the world's champion put away his gloves until Saturday. He will work only enough to keep himself in condition.

His eye, which was opened on Saturday in a sparring bout with Jack Renault, is almost healed ,and is not expected to give him any trouble.

Manager Kearns is greatly pleased with the work of Larry Williams and aJck Renault, the two big sparring mates.

"They are giving the champion the finest of workouts. In fact, they are a little bit too good for this early stage of the training, and we had to cut down the work to keep Dempsey from getting his edge too soon," he said.

PETES ARE TO PLAY THE C.G.E. OUTFIT SATURDAY

In order to keep the Petes on edge for next week's games with Lindsay a game has been arranged for Saturday afternoon between the Central League team and the C. G. E. City League outfit, the latter crew to have the opportunity of strengthening their line-up by using players from the other City League teams. It was expected that Tweed would be here, but the Trent Valley Leaguers were unable to make the trip. The C. G. E. outfit have been playing snappy ball and they will give the Petes a merry battle on Saturday. The afternoon's doings include a City League game between Y.M.C.A. and Hamilton's, which will be played at 2 o'clock, the Central League-C.G.E. game being scheduled for 3.30, and the two games should draw a big crowd across the river.

The Central Ontario team will practice at Riverside Park at 5 o'clock to-morrow (Friday) evening.

LACROSSE PRACTICE.

A junior lacrosse practice will be held at the Oval to-night at 6.30, in uniform. A meeting will be held at the Y.M.C.A. after practice to settle some matters of business.

The ermine is the only animal which becomes white in winter.

KEENE WON GAME IN LAST INNINGS

NORWOOD PUT UP A HARD BATTLE TO WIN AWAY FROM HOME.

Keene nosed out a victory over Norwood in Keene last evening, in the East Peterborough Baseball League, the score being 10 to 9. Norwood opened strong by sending over a quartette of runs in the first inning. Keene came right back with three runs and for the next six frames it was an exciting battle, with the outcome always in doubt. The visitors took a run lead in the fifth, to which the homesters responded by getting three runs and a one-run margin. In the seventh Norwood turned in another score, tieing it up again. In their last half Keene slipped in the counter that won the game. Edgar LeBar handled the game in good style.

By innings:

Norwood	4020201— 9
Keene	3030301—10

Batteries — Andrews, Green and Andrews; Barraclough and G. O'Dette.

Mercantilers This Evening.

There will be plenty of excitement at Riverside Park this evening when Lock Works and Cressman's come together in what should prove to be a well played game of ball. A win for Cressman's will give them the honors of the first half of the schedule.

Juvenile Series Friday.

Generals and St. Peter's will serve up the entertainment in the Juvenile City League series to-morrow evening at the ball lot. The youngsters are playing good baseball.

MOTOR LEAGUE BADGES ARE AVIALABLE NOW

Mr. Leon Fraser, of the local branch of the Ontario Motor League has just received a sample of the badge of the Association, which may be adjusted on any part of a car. It is a most ornamental little fixture of aluminum, aboutthree inches long, the circle surmounted by a tiny beaver and based an a clusterof maple leaves. Artistic in design and finish, it is quite inexpensive, costing only fifty cents for badge complete with aluminum pins for adjusting. The word "Peterboro' is the most outstanding feature of the badge, being very prominently placed, thus enabling the owner of the car bearing this insignia to do some advertising for his home town where ever he may go.

REMOVED TO ASYLUM.

OTTAWA, June 2.—Filip Konowal, V.C., who was recently tried on a charge of murder at the Hull Assizes and found not guilty on the grounds of insanity, will be removed to the asylum for the insane at Longue Pointe, Montreal, to-day.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE ALLEN.

"Try for the stage first," is Hobart Bosworth's advice to aspirants for a screen career. The star of "His Own Law," which comes to the Allen Theatre to-day under the auspices of Samuel Goldwyn, had a sensationally successful stage training before he became a cinema devotee and he believes that one should graduate from the school of the legitimate drama if one would attain the highest ideals of the silent stage.

BOSWORTH A PAL OF JACK LONDON.

Actor Close Friend of Famous Author—First to Portray His Roles.

Hobart Bosworth, star of J. Parker Read, Jr.'s production of "His Own Law," which comes to the Allen Theatre to-day for 3 days; introduced the early film fans of the country to the great characters in Jack London's red-blooded stories. In fact it was Mr. Bosworth, for many years a close friend of the novelist, who converted Mr. London to the motion pictures as a medium of expression through which he could reach millions of persons who never read books.

The star won his first great fame on the screen through his impersonation of the brutal sea captain, Wolf Larsen, in "The Sea-Wolf." Others have acted that role on the screen but none of them have approached in virility and physical dominance the interpretation given by Mr. Bosworth. He was also the first actor to portray the role of the skipper in London's "The Mutiny of the Elsinore" and other of his vigorous tales. "His Own Law" gives the star one of the virile, sympathetic roles in which he excels.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Capitol offers a wonderful show to-night—the popular melodrama, 'Mickey," and the Three Minstrel Girls, a big vaudeville act direct from Lowes Theatre, Toronto.

One of the many charming features in "Mickey" to be shown at the Capitol to-night is a pet squirrel who will go straight to the hearts of all the children. And "children" serves a good alibi for Ma and Pa, for most of these things that are "for children" are like the toy, railroad which little Johnny gets for Christmas and never gets a chance to play with because his father has it all day.

The squirrel does a comedy scene with a pet bulldog that is delightfully natural. Mickey's bull terrier makes one dive for the squirrel and Brer Squirrel stands not on the order of his going. He beats it for dear life. Mickey wears boy's clothes during the first part of the play and the squirrel sprints up her trouser leg.

The hero tries to save the lady from the squirming squirrel, and his gallant efforts look very peculiar to Mickey's foster father, who hastens up bent on murder and sudden death. And then he sees the squirrel and joins the rescue party.

And, by the way, Mickey ought to get the Iron Cross for her courage. Pshaw! Any girl might lead an army like Jeanne O'Arc, or just save children in burning houses, or jump off cliffs, or any little thing like that. But to let a rat or a squirrel run up your clothes! Ooooo! If there were a call for volunteers to save the country by letting rats run up dresses, the only answer would be a yell fading away in the distance.

Besides this splendid feature picture in seven big reels a programme of extra good comedy and short reel subjects will fill out a bill of extraordinary quality. The public also remark on the cool and comfortable atmosphere in the Capitol on the very warmest weather. It's certainly the coziest spot in town to enjoy a good show.

AT THE REGENT.

TOM MIX AT THE REGENT THEATRE

Tom Mix in the saddle, at the wheel of a racing car, doing stunts with the aid of his horse Tony and leaping a river in his car—in addition to winning the hand of a pretty girl—will be the attraction at the Regent Theatre to-day in his latest William Fox western picture, "The Road Demon."

This thrilling, speedy comedy of western life is declared to be the best Mix has made—which is saying something for the clever Fox star. He begins by swapping his horse (not Tony, of course) for a broken-down auto on the desert, and, finding the steering gear broken, he uses his lariat to guide the pesky thing. He finally gets it going. He rides back to the ranch. He can't stop the car. He rides through a fence and then a barn, and at length he yells to his cowboy friends to shoot a hole in the gas tank to make it halt.

The pace set in the opening scenes is maintained throughout the picture He wins a road race with the car. But the finish comes after thrilling stunts. He does some rescue work that is hair-raising—and he wins the hand of pretty Claire Anderson, his leading woman.

Others in the cast are Charles K. French, George Hernandez, Lloyd Bacon, Sid Jordan, Charles Arling, Harold Goodwin, Billy Elmer and Frenk Tokawaja, Lynn F. Reynolds wrote and directed the story.

LINDSAY TEAM AND PETES ARE TIED FOR LEADERSHIP

The surprising defeat of the Belleville Grand Trunks on their own grounds by the Lindsay team yesterday in a Central Ontario League game, is another proof of the Examiner's prediction some time ago that every game in the League this year would be a battle. It is the first Central Ontario game that Goyer and company have lost on their own diamond since the League was organized, and must have been a painful shock to the Belleville gang. Lindsay are now tied with the Petes for the League leadership, and the two games next week between the two teams will sparkle with excitement. The Scugog crew have not been regarded as serious contenders but their victory over Belleville yesterday put them right in the running, and means that the Petes will have to be at the top of their form for the two battles with Lindsay. They play in Lindsay on Wednesday and on Saturday the Lindsay gang come here for the return game. There will be a big crowd of Peterborough fans in Lindsay for the game next Wednesday.

The League standing:

	Won.	Lost.
Peterborough	2	0
Lindsay	2	0
Cobourg	1	1
Oshawa	1	1
Port Hope	0	2
Belleville	0	2

SURPRISE FOR BELLEVILLE; LINDSAY BEAT THEM 5-3

BELLEVILLE, June 1.—The first Central Ontario Baseball League match played in this city this year took place this afternoon, the home team being defeated by 5 to 3 by Lindsay Greybirds.

This being the first half holiday, business generally was suspended, and the attendance at the game was exceptionally large.

Previous to the commencement of the game the spectators were treated to an exhibition of how the game should be played. Mayor Hanna was in the box, Mr. J. D. McMillan, divisional superintendent of the G.T.R. the batter ,and Rev. D. C. Ramsay, catcher.

The game proper was staged between the G.T.R. team of this city, and Lindsay. The latter team secured a lead in the first inning by scoring two runs and repeated the performance in the sixth. The final run was in the eighth inning. The G.T.R. scored two runs in the third inning and one in the fifth. Goyer had twelve strike-outs to his credit, and Ouelette six. Mr. Wilson, of Oshawa, umpired on strikes and Mr. Fahey, of this city, on bases. The line-up:

The score:—

Lindsay.....200002010—5
G. T. R.....002010000—3

Batteries— Ouelette and Logan; Goyer and Mills.

SPARK SET THE ROOF ON FIRE

Damage estimated at $25 was caused by a brisk fire on the roof of a frame house owned and occupied by A. O'Dette, 39 Crescent Street, at 12.03 p.m. to-day. A spark from the chimney started the fire. The alarm was rung in from Box 13. Some difficulty was encountered by the firemen with the chemical tank, but two lines of hose were laid and the fire extinguished in about 15 minutes. The roof had to be cut through to get at the fire, as there was no entrance to the third story from the house.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 22.— (Canadian Press.)— Under the lead of Rails, Equipment, Oils and Tobaccos, stock market prices were mainly higher at the opening of to-day's session. Early gains of one to almost two points were made by Canadian Pacific, International Harvester and Sumatra Tobacco. The list soon became unsettled, however, on further selling of Crucible Steel, which added 1 1-2 points to yesterday's loss of 3 1-2 points. Sentiment was again adversely influenced by the weakness of Liberty Bonds, 3 11-'s falling to 86.52, the lowest price of the year recorded for that issue.

Aside from some of the food specialties, notably American Sugar, which fell two points, the market rallied irregularly before noon. High grade oils, including Standard Oil of New Jersey and the Mexican group were fairly active at gains of one to two points. Studebaker, Kelly-Sprinfield, General Electric and American Woolens rose one to 1 1-2 points and Transcontinental Rails Rails, especially Great Northern and Northern Pacific, were sustained by the strength of Canadian Pacific. Dealings were light, however, and largely in the nature of short coverings. Liberty 3 1/2's sagged steadily to 86.10. Call money opened at seven per cent.

Some of the Steel, Equipment, Oil and Food shares registered further re-actions at mid-day, when call money rose to 7½ per cent., but the trend otherwise was towards increased steadiness. Liberty 3½'s made another decline to 86, but soon rallied.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 2. — (Canadian Press.)—High price records for the season were again outdone to-day in the wheat market. Upturns, however, were moderate compared with those which have been witnessed of late. Bullish factors continued to be the scantiness of the visible supply, the shrinkage of the prospective 1921 yield and the unabated export demand. Rainy weather failed to give much relief to bears. Opening quotations which ranged from 1-4 to 1c. higher were followed by a moderate reaction and then by an ascent higher than before.

Corner was firmer with wheat. Country offerings were light. After opening 1-4 to 5-8 higher, the market eased a little and then took another advance. Oats duplicated the action of other grains, starting 1-8 off to 1-4 higher and making slight general gains later. Provisions sagged owing to the absence of any special demand.

FOREIG NEXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, June 2.—(Canadian Press.) — Sterling exchange weak, demand 3.88 1-4; Canadian Dollars 11 1-16 per cent. discount.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 2.—(Canadian Press).—Heavy buying of Toronto Railway, which advanced 3½ points, enlivened proceedings on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, but the buoyancy of this stock was not reflected in other prices, the tendency being mainly downward.

Toronto Railway opened at 72½, and was soon run up to 75½, at which figure it closed. Transactions amounted to over eight hundred shares. C.P.R. lost a point at 127, while Canada Steamships Preferred declined a substantial fraction to 55 3-4. Spanish River failed to recover from yesterday's bad decline, and sold unchanged at 69. Riordon was down 3-4, and Steel of Canada lost ¼ at 16¼ and 56 3-4 respectively.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, June 2.—(Canadian Press).—The local market rallied after the first half hour and trading was fairly brisk. Abitibi, Atlantic Sugar and Brazilian remained unchanged and closed at their opening figures. National Breweries lost half a point to 54, while Riordon sagged a point to 17, as did also Spanish River to 68½. Toronto Rails, which was the feature of the trading, closed at 75¼.

CARPENTIER HITS HARD IN WORKOUT

IMPRESSES CRITICS, SPARRING WITH JEANNETTE AND GOLDBERG.

NEW YORK, June 2.—Georges Carpentier is the proud possessor of a right hand which will cause considerable trouble for Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, when the pair clash in their world's title bout. The French heavy demonstrated this yesterday afternoon in his workout at his training camp. Manhasset, L.I. Carpentier went through the workout in snappy fashion, devoting himself to four rounds of boxing.

"Joe" Jeannette, colored heavy of Hoboken and "Jack" Goldberg, an ambitious middleweight from Panama, furnished the opposition. Carpentier boxed two three-minute rounds against each of his partners and through both made a special effort to hold himself in check. Nevertheless, there were occasions when he impulsively and unintentionally surcharged his blows. Goldberg was on the verge of a fistic sleep after absorbing a right-hand crack on the jaw in the second round. Jeannette too, showed the effects of "Carp's" terrific hitting powers.

LEAFS OUTHIT BUT LOSE 4-3

TOSSING AWAY SEVEN CHANCES TO WIN, DROP GAME TO BUFFALO,

TORONTO, June 2.—Chalk up against the Leafs another defeat in a game that would have been won had they been able to do any timely hitting, for at the Island Stadium yesterday they lost to Buffalo by 4 to 3 after tossing away several good chances to break up the game The visitors were outhit 9 to 7, but they bunched three of the safeties in the fourth inning and aided by a close decision at the plate, scored all of their runs. Winters was practically invincible in the remaining innings that he worked but Boehling, who pitched the last frame was fortunate not to be scored against.

The Leafs are travelling a rocky road these days — six defeats in seven starts—and to cap the climax "Tommy" Thompson, who has deserted the team, was one of their best pitchers. Thompson a threatened to play independent baseball, and if he does he will be barred by organized baseball and the Toronto cub will be out considerable money which they spent on the southpaw while he was recovering the use of his arm.

POLICE SEIZE RACEHORSES

'MOONLIGHTER" IS IDENTIFIED AT THORNCLIFFE PARK AS GOLDEN ROW.

TORONTO, June 2.—There was more variety than usual to the racing at Thorncliffe Park yesterday, the seizure of two horses by the association and their turning over to the custody of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police under Major Aitcheson featuring the day. The horses in question are Moonlighter and Ogden Girl, said to be the property of one George Wilson, who brought them to Thorncliffe Park. Moonlighter has ben identified as Golden Glow, which has been the medium, it is claimed, of unsuccessful attempts at "ringing" elsewhere.

George Wilson claims to be the owner of the horses, and says that he bought Moonlighter in California in 1919 and raced him in the West. He brought him to Wheeling, W. Va., this spring, and after attempting to start him had his entry refused pending investigation as to the identity of the animal. Eventually the Wheeling stewards were satisfied that the horse was as represented and permitted him into start. In three races was second once and unplaced twice. Moonlighter and Ogden Girl were thereafter shipped to Chagrin Falls, near Cleveland. It is said that Golden Glow was taken to Laurel, Md., not long ago and entered under another name, but the identity of the horse was established and the attempted coup frustrated. The Thorncliffe Park officials find that the horses' markings are not those of the original Moonlighter.

SUMMER FAIR.

The different committees in charge of Father Phelan's Summer Fair, which takes place at the Exhibition Grounds on Thursday next, June 9th, are working hard to make this event as successful as the Fair held last year about this time. The programme anticipated promises a day of enjoyment for all. There will be races in the afternoon for the children, a baseball game between a Keene team and one of the city teams, to be picked by Mr. Jake Soloman, and a game between the boys from St. Peter's. A mid-day meal will be served for all desiring to attend, with special attention to business people,also a supper. There will be a country store, booths for all sorts of light refreshments, a band concert in the evening, and drawings for the list of excellent prizes donated by merchants of the city.

BARRIE'S OPEN NEW STORE FOR READY-TO-WEAR

BEAUTIFUL FITTINGS CHARACTERIZE NEW ESTABLISHMENT.

Soft grey and rich mulberry are the color-tones for the new ladies' ready-to-wear store which Barrie's Limited, have just opened adjoining their fur establishment on George street. The woodwork, the show and wall-cases, the furniture are all carried out in the pretty gray, the walls are done in grey and white, with a stencilled design in dull blue, while the soft, thick carpet, the hangings, the curtains drawn over the side wall-cases, the pretty cushions, are carried out in the rich, dark mulberry hues, a combination which gives a wonderfully pleasing, Frenchy effect to the entire large show-room. The effective arrangement and color scheme was worked out from the ideas of Mr. Barrie himself, and nothing could be more pleasing or attractive than these quiet, immaculate quarters for the very latest modes in all sorts of ladies' ready-to-wear garments. Dresses, suits, negligees, silk underwear, blouses, white wear, separate skirts, utility coats, rainsters, filmsy dancing frocks, everything that Miladi requires is ready for instant showing in the tall, glass-doored wall cases, or in standing show-cases for the display of dainty accessories. The most up-to-date styles and the very latest colors will be on view here in the most modish materias. Beneath a frosted-glass, latticed partition at the rear are several electricaly-lighted separate booths, for the disposition of the most perishable of such dainty goods, and a fitting-room, all ready for the most exacting of customers. Long, luxurious mirrors and a soft, overhead lighting reflect the customer from every angle, tall palms and lovely green ferns make a pleasant spot of color, and from above, a large grey owl looks down to help the uncertain woman in a wise choice of dress, or blouse, or filmsy negligee.

WEDDING BELLS

HAMLIN—HUSTON.

On Wednesday, June 1st, at St. Andrew's Manse the wedding was solemnized of Edyth Alberta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Huston, Otonabee, to Mr. Walter S. Hamlin, of Peterboro, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. James Rollins.

The bride, who was prettily attired in a suit of navy with hat to match, was attended by her sister, Miss Verda Huston, and the groom was supported by Mr. D. Graham of Toronto.

The young couple left on the 3:20 train for a short honeymoon in Toronto, and on their return will reside in Peterboro.

HUFFMAN—CLARK.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday, June 1st at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Clark, Maple Dale, Ennismore, when their daughter, Cora M., was united in marriage to Mr. Francis L. Huffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Huffman, 526 Sherbrooke street, Peterborough, the Rev. E. R. James, of Omemee, officiating.

The bride looked very charming in a gown of ivory silk jersey with a shower bouquet of white roses and the customary bridal veil. Her sister, Miss Mildred Clark, acted as bridesmaid, wearing pink silk jersey with bead trimming, with corsage bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Albert A. Huffman, of Peterborough. Miss Olive Webster, niece of the bride played the wedding march. About fifty friends were present at the ceremony. The wedding dinner was served in the dining room, which was very charmingly decorated with flowers and white ribbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Huffman left on the 5.40 p.m. train for a trip to Toronto and Rochester and on their return will reside at 523 Bolivar street.

Many useful and valuable gifts were received by the young couple, among which was an embroidered silk and linen serviette set from her sister Greta, who is a missionary in Honan, China.

FAIRBAIRN—SARGENT.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday, June 1st at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Sargent, Otonabee, when their only daughter, Vina Mae, became the bride of William A., only son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fairbairn, Smith.

Immediately at one o'clock the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, entered the beautifully decorated drawing room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. W. N. Girven. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. E. Ross, pastor of Mark street Methodist church.

During the signing of the register, Mr. W. H. Girven sang very sweetly, "O Promise Me," after which the guests retired to the dining room, where a tasty luncheon was served at which all did ample justice.

Amid showers of confetti the happy couple left on the 3.20 train for Toronto and points west. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Fairbairn will reside in Smith township.

A LETTER OF CONDOLENCE

Mr. Thomas Hickey has received the following letter of condolence from the employees of the Quaker Oats Company:

To Mr. Thomas Hickey,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Friend,—We, your brother-employees of the Quaker Oats Co., desire to express to you and your family the heartfelt sorrow with which we learned the death of your beloved wife, and wish to convey to you and your children our deepest sympathy in this the hour of your sore bereavement. We are well aware that the common places of condolence cannot assuage the grief so deep, but we trust that this expression of our sympathy may be to you some slight source of comfort.

He Who is too wise to err, too good to be unkind, has seen fit to transplant your loved companion into His own Paradise, and hence bid you follow. May you be able to see in this the Hand of God and put your trust in him. And the same Providence which has removed your loved one hence is willing and able to heal the broken hearts with the oil of His everlasting love.

Signed on behalf of the Employees of The Quaker Oats Company.

TWO PROPOSITIONS REGARDING CHURCH UNION PLACED BEFORE THE PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY

REV. DR. CLARK'S RESOLUTION PROVIDES FOR CONSUMMATION OF UNION WHILE AMENDMENT WOULD PLACE MATTER BEFORE PEOPLE.

VIGOROUS DISCUSSION

TORONTO, June 3. — (Canadian Press).—Vigorous discussion leading to action by the Presbyterian General Assembly on the question of organic union with the Methodist and Congregational Churches was opened to-day by the presentation of the report of the Church Union Committee, which was unanimous in placing before the Assembly two propositions differing materially in their application to the question at issue. The committee recommended that the vote of the delegates be taken in order to register the "mind of the Assembly on the matter."

The resolution of Rev. Dr. W. J. Clark, of Westmount, declared that whereas the General Assembly had already expressed itself by a large majority in favor of organic union, and that this General Assembly take such steps as may be deemed best to consummate organic union with the above-named Churches as expeditiously as possible."

On the other hand, the proposition put before the Assembly, as represented in the amendment of Rev. Principal D. J. Fraser, of Montreal, declared that it was the expression of previous Assemblies that the union of the Churches to be real and lasting should carry with it the consent of the entire membership, and that the result of the submission to the membership showed approximately only one-third in favor of union, the second vote showing increasing opposition.

"This amendment recommended that in order to keep faith with our people, the Assembly at no time seek the consummation of the organic union without a clear and unmistakeable mandate from the people."

NEW MASSACRES ON BLACK SEA COAST

LONDON, June 3.—(Canadian Press).—The Athens correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company, says under date of Thursday that it is reported from Constantinople that new frightful massacres of Christians have occurred at Samsum and Trebisond on the Black Sea coast of Armenia. The streets are strewn with the bodies of Greeks, he adds.

ARRESTS AFTER SIXTEEN MONTH INVESTIGATION

THEFT OF $10,000 FROM THE MAILS YEAR AGO LAST FEBRUARY FINALLY TRACED TO POSTAL EMPLOYEES.

NOW AWAIT SENTENCE

OTTAWA, June 3. — (Canadian Press.)—An excellent illustration of the persistency of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police is found in the tracing, arrest and conviction of H. J. Danis, a former post office employe at North Battleford, Saskatchewan, and G. R. Salisbury, a mail carrier of the same place, on a charge of stealing ten thousand dollars belonging to the Bank of Commerce from the mails.

The robbery was committed in February of last year and for sixteen months detective staff sergeant Jackson, of Battleford, followed every clue and investigated every suspect until sufficient evidence was secured to arrest the guilty last month. The investigation included a minute search into the intimate lives of train crews, mail and baggage clerks, bank clerks, postmasters and even the lives of men and women inclined to white lights and who may have been spending more money than usual. The evidence pointing to Danis and Salisbury was secured through a dispute between the two men as to when the spoils would be divided and spent .They are now awaiting sentence.

PROVINCE AND HYDRO AT ODDS ON POWER HERE

HYDRO WON'T ADMIT THAT CENTRAL ONTARIO SYSTEM IS NOT ON A SOUND FINANCIAL BASIS.

SAYS ASSETS $13,000,000

(Special Despatch to the Examiner).

TORONTO, June 3. — The view expressed by the Drury Government that the Central Ontario system of the Hydro is not on a sound financial footing is not admitted by Hydro officials. Yet the Government, which has title to the system, is considering whether it should not write off, as a dead loss, the sum of $2,700,000 that was paid for intangible assets. The allowance for intangible assets was made on recommendation of Hon. C. Howard Ferguson, and not of Sir Adam Beck.

Although a total of $10,258,398 has been put into the properties, the Hydro claims the assets are now worth $13,244,480, and that while a deficit of some $85,000 is shown in operation since 1916, the reserves for renewals, contingencies, etc., total $844,000. The sale of power also has increased from 16,000 to 30,000.

As to the amount paid for intangible assets, it freed the streams of Eastern Ontario and the Trent Canal from control by 22 private companies dominated by the Electric Power Company of Montreal, and it is unreasonable to argue that these water powers and franchises are worthless because the Province is not getting a reasonable return on its money, is the stand which the Hydro takes.

FIRE CHIEF TO WAIT FOR CAR

MATTER ALLOWED TO REST IN PEACE UNTIL AFTER FIRE CHIEF'S CONVENTION IN AUGUST.

MORRISON WANTS ACTION

With Ald. R. Morrison in the chair, the Fire, Water and Light Committee met last night. Mayor A. A. McIntyre, Aldermen G. L. Hay, F. Whitehouse, J. Crowe, N. Phelan, and J. J. Turner were present. An additional light on Hilliard street, was asked for and referred to the chairman with power to act.

The chairman and the Fire Chief were authorized to dispose of a set of sleighs and dishes no longer required and on motion of Mayor McIntyre and Ald. Whitehouse, Ald. Morrison and the Chief were appointed to attend the convention of the Canadian Fire Chiefs Association at Three Rivers in August.

"What about the Chief's car"? We've got the money. Its in the appropriatons." With these words Ald. Morrison before the meeting closed brought up a subject dear to his heart but stale and bitter to most of the other city guardians.

"I thought we disposed of that. Let it go for this year", said Ald. Crowe curtly.

"Well if it's in the appropriation I'm in favour of getting it," said Ald. Whitehouse decisively.

"It might be well to wait till next year," counselled the Mayor.

"They are coming down, I'd like to hear the chairman report in August, when he comes back from the convention. Surely there will be some cars on cuts of cars for that purpose exhibited", said Ald. Turner. His opinion prevailed.

"Well, I'm satisfied with whatever the committee says. With apparent reluctance Ald. Morrison dismissed the subject which will now rest in peace probably till after the Fire Chief's Convention.

FAREWELL FROM HOUSE TO DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE

ADDRESS PASSED BY COMMONS —STANDARDIZATION OF DAIRY PRODUCTS GRADING DEBATED.

SEXSMITH TAKES PART

OTTAWA, June 3 (Canadian Press).—The address to the Duke of Devonshire on the occasion of the approaching termination of his office as Governor-General, was passed unanimously by the House to-day at the opening of the first morning sitting of the session.

The motion for the address was made by Premier Meighen, and seconded by the Leader of the Opposition.

The Prime Minister said that Canada had been singularly fortunate in the men who occupied the post of constitutional representative of the Crown in the Dominion. Of all who had occupied the office, there was none who had lived more closely up to the higher traditions of the office nor left a warmer place in the regard of the people than the Duke of Devonshire. He came among us at a time of war, and his example and his assistance had been an inspiration during the difficulties of a time that would not be soon forgotten, while his services had been no less valuable during the period of re-adjustment which followed.

The Hon. T. A. Crerar and Sir Robert Borden supported the motion.

A Bill to standardise the grading of dairy products was discussed at some length.

The Hon. Dr. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture, said the Bill had been introduced at the request of the National Dairy Council, and also of the conference of the Provincial Deputy Ministers of Agriculture which met in Ottawa last year.

Dr. J. W. Edwards (Frontenac) said the time had come when it was essential to give Canadian butter a national reputation if it was to compete successfully with the products of other countries.

Replying to questions, Dr. Tolmie said the proposed grading regulations would apply to exports only. The Dairy Commissioner, he added, estimated that it would take a year for the campaign of education necessary before the system could go into operation.

The proposal met with some opposition from T. H. Thompson (East Hastings) and J. A. Sexsmith (East Peterborough).

Mr. Thompson said that a similar system to that now proposed had been in force in New Zealand some time. Yet Canadian cheese sold at a higher price than New Zealand cheese.

Mr. Sexsmith knew farmers were opposed to this new system. The Bill would be ruinous to the dairy industry. Cheesemakers were absolutely opposed to it, and the Bill should stand over until next session.

Dr. Tolmie gave the assurance that the points where grading would be done might be arranged for the best convenience of the producers.

The Bill was reported from the Committee without amendment, and given the third reading.

PREMIER DRURY SAYS HE WILL GO TO THE PEOPLE IF NECESSARY ON ISSUE OF CONTROL OF LAKE OF THE WOODS

CUSTOMS BILL THROUGH AFTER HARD SLEDDING

PASSED COMMITTEE STAGE AT FOUR THIS MORNING AFTER ALL NIGHT SITTING IN FACE OF STRONG OPPOSITION.

THIRD READING IS NEXT

OTTAWA, June 3.—(Canadian Press).—The Customs and Excise Bill was put through the committee stage in the Commons shortly after four this morning after an all night discussion and now stands for the third reading. The cause providing for valuation for duty in no case lower than the wholesale price of the products caused considerable opposition. The clause regarding profits and valuation was attacked as insane legislation. At three o'clock there was still considerable opposition to some clauses of the bill, but Sir George Foster informed the House that the government intended putting it through all the stages before adjournment.

EAST PETERBORO U.F.O. MEETING

ELECTION OF OFFICERS—THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

The annual meeting of the East Peterborough U.F.O. was held in the Town Hall at Norwood, yesterday, June 2, with a large and interested attendance. Mr. Wallace Anderson, president of the society, occupied the chair. It was decided that the ladies should organize separately, and their election resulted as follows: President, Miss Pearl Petrie; Vice-President, Mrs. S. F. Redmond; Second Vice-President, Mrs. J. Rorabeck; Secretary, Mrs. S. J. Buck; Treasurer, Mr. Barrie of the U.F.O.

The ladies then joined with the men in annual convention ,and united in tendering a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Anderson, the retiring president, for his two years' service. The election for the men resulted as follows: President, Mr. J. T. Galvin, Lakefield; Vice-President, Mr. Chas. Brown, Douro; Secretary, Mr. W. G. Barrie, Norwood; Directors, Mr. M. E. Smithson and Miss Pearl Petrie.

Mr. E. N. McDonald, M.P.P., addressed the meeting, reviewing the legislation passed in the recent session. There were short addresses also from the officers and from Mr. W. R. Shield, director for West Peterborough, who asked to have East Peterborough co-operate with West Peterborough in holding a county picnic, at which it is expected that Premier Drury, Hon. S. A. Crerar, and Secretary J. J. Morrison will deliver addresses. It was decided to hold a combined county picnic, probably at Lakeefild.

The meeting then adjourned and re-convened as the East Peterborough United Farmers' Political Association, Mr. Andrews in the chair. Directors were appointed as follows: Otonabee, Mr. Fred McIntyre; Douro Mr. J. V. O'Connor; Dummer, Mr. R. Payne; Asphodel, Mr. G. A. Brethren; Norwood, Mr. Wm. Robb; Lakefield, Mr. Thompson, Braden; Belmont, Warden Griffith; Havelock, Mr. Jos. Johnston. Directors to be appointed later from Chandos, Burleigh and Anstruther.

The convention passed a resolution, endorsing the selection of Hon. S. A. Crerar as leader of the Progressive Party, and also protested strongly against East Peterborough being jerrymandered out of existence, as the convention stated had been predicted in the local press.

The political situation locally was not discussed, but will be considered later by the Board of Directors of the Political Association.

CRITICISM OF HANGING IRKED ARTHUR ELLIS

SAYS MINISTER "SCARED"

(Special Despatch to the Examiner).

TORONTO, June 3. — Arthur Ellis, the official executioner, is very wrothy over the comments made by Rev. Wilfred Gaetz upon the hanging of Norman Garfield in Woodstock yesterday. "The fact that Gaetz, while upon the scaffold, had to be sharply reminded by me that there was such a thing as the Lord's Prayer," said Ellis, in speaking to the Examiner, "shows about how much value should be put upon his pronouncements respecting capital punishment. In my opinion, he was the most scared man there, absolutely dazed, and he should be the last man to make any criticisms."

In commenting upon the fact that he finally had to pull the trap before Rev. Mr. Gaetz had completed the Lord's Prayer, Mr. Ellis pointed out that this was the only humanitarian thing to do, since if he had delayed any longer, it would have only prolonged the harrowing suspense for the prisoner.

Mr. Ellis further thought that the manner in which the minister used to leave his hat behind in Garfield's cell should further detract from any value that might be placed upon the views expressed by Rev. Mr. Gaetz.

Garfield Buried in Toronto

TORONTO, June 3.—(Canadian Press).—The body of Norman Garfield was buried early this morning in Prospect Cemetery. There was a preliminary service at the undertaking parlors attended by all his relatives.

The remains were accompanied on their last journey by the male relatives only, and by Rev. Wilfrid Gaetz, spiritual advisor of Garfield since his conviction.

SUGGEST CIVIC HOLIDAY FOR THE BRIDGE OPENING

FAIR DIRECTORS CONSIDER TIME TOO SHORT FOR CELEBRATION ON JULY 1.

Although the date of the official opening of the Hunter street bridge has not been announced by the City Council it was understood at the meeting of the Exhibition Board last night that the Council had suggested Dominion Day for the event. In connection with proposed celebration the directors signified their willingness to co-operate as fully as possible with the civic authorities but they felt that the time was too short to arrange for any adequate holiday programme for July 1st. The members of the Exhibition Board considered that for various reasons it would be preferable to defer the official opening of the bridge until Civic Holiday. This is Peterboro's own holiday, and although it is usually marked by anything but half-hearted attempts at a celebration, this year's Civic holiday could be made a big event by the Council and the Fair Board and the citizens generally working together. Back of the idea is the intention to tell the world about Peterboro's splendid bridge without obtruding the costs accentuated by war conditions. Mr. R. H. Turner presided last night in the absence of Mr. Roland Denne.

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT WILL STAKE ITS VERY EXISTENCE IN FIGHTING FEDERAL GOVERNMENT IN COURTS AND ELECTION.

GOVERNMENT IS AROUSED

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

TORONTO, June 3. — The Ontario Government is going to stake its very existence in fighting to keep control of the waters of the Lake of the Woods, by passing legislation declaring those waters to be for the general advantage of Canada. The Federal House has aroused Premier Jury and his colleagues for a battle that will in all probability end in a general election in the province.

Speaking to the Examiner yesterday, Premier Drury said "that legislation must be contested. We must do everything in our power to have the measure repealed, and we are going to make this an issue. It will either be a legal issue, an election issue or both. Reports are being gathered now in preparation for action in court."

"And if we lose in the legal battle,", he continued, "then we shall most certainly go to the people of the province with the control of our waters as an issue."

The Premier did not say much of the legal aspects of the case, preferring to leave that ammunition for later on, but he was very emphatic in pointing out the inconsistency of the Meighen forces.

"For two years, while private interests had control of the Norman dam, which regulates the flow into the Winnipeg River, the Federal Government kept still and did nothing. But just as soon as Ontario obtains absolute control of the Norman dam, the private interests cry is raised. It is so inconsistent."

"Just how has Ontario Absolute control over the Norman dam?"asked the Examiner.

"First, the agreement whereby Mr. Backus leases the White Dog Rapids, provides that we get that control. He concedes that for the privilege of White Dog. Then there was a verbal agreement between Mr Backus and myself last fall, that no matter what happened, even if he were to lose White Dog rapids, he was to hand over the Norman dam. And last week at my request Mr. Backus sent me a letter confirming that verbal agreement.t

"Was Manitoba aware of this?"

"Why, most certainly. Premier Norris knew that as far back as last fall.'

"What would be the result were the Province to take a passive attitude in the matter?" inquired the Examiner.

"Oh, the results would be far, far-reaching. That word 'navigable' may be carried to almost any limit. Why, the control of the waters in the Severn River might just as easily be taken over by the Federal Government because it touched the Trent. And we have two important developments on the Severn.

"And, further, it will mean this. Our Department of Lands and Forests will have nothing to say about the waters that rightfully belong to us. All applications will go direct to Ottawa. Even the Hydro will have to negotiate with Ottawa if it intends to develop up north."

For a week, the Premier will nurse his voice. Then he will start speaking all over the Province with the Lake of the Woods Legislation as his main topic of discussion. Other members of the Government are to help, and a whirlwind campaign will be carried out to give the public a knowledge of every angle of the situation.

Hot shot was poured out by he Premier for Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, who was described as getting to his feet in the pit and expressing the deepest concern that Provincial rights should be taken away, but who since has sat back without a word, as the Federal House does the very thing he feared.

THE WEATHER

The rainfall of last night and to-day will be of incalculable value to the country. The descent while gentle and continuous, allowing the rain to soak into the parched ground, was quite heavy also. Up to 6 o'clock this morning it had amounted to .64 of an inch, not counting what has fallen to-day.—W. P.

NORWOOD COUPLE CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

MR. AND MRS. WM. ROGERS THE PRINCIPALS—MANY PRESENTS.

NORWOOD, June 3.—Celebrating their golden wedding Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. William Rogers were the happy recipients of many presents, including two $20 American gold pieces, a diamond sunburst, gold chain, and cheques for substantial amounts.

All of the family but one son, Thomas, of Michigan, were present, and, together with a few intimate friends to the number of thirty, sat down to a tasty anniversary dinner at 6.30 p.m. In proposing the toast of the evening, Rev. A. J. Terrill, pastor of the Methodist Church, conveyed to the aged couple congratulations from that congregation, and referred to the twenty-two years the local church property has been in their care. Their service had been a labor of love, Mr. Rogers being now regarded as a part of the institution.

The family connections gathered together on this occasion were: William, of Williamsport, Pa.; Alfred, John, Mrs. T. Ridyard and Mrs. A. Mullins, of Norwood, and ten of the grandchildren. Mrs. Edith Smith, of Toronto, neice of Mrs. Rogers, was also in attendance.

Although having passed the allotted span of years, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers are enjoying the best of health. They have been resident in Norwood over fifty years.

LONDON WOMEN SMOKE PIPES.

LONDON, June 1.—A pipe suitable for women smokers has been put on the market by Mr. Alfred Dunhill the well-known London pipemaker, who is of the opinion that the time has come when both sexes should enjoy equal privileges as regards smoking as in other things.

In a paper he read at the Tobacco Exhibition, Mr. Dunhill claimed that pipe smoking for women is not at all a new idea. The ladies of the Court of Louis XIV., were regular pipe-smokers, though not in the presence of the King. The Dauphin once found a full company of them blowing full blast in their private room; they said they had borrowed the pipes and tobacco from the Swiss Guards.

If, argued Mr. Dunhill, the innovation makes headway, the ladies' pipe will be no more an offence against model deportment than the ladies' cigarette.

eDaling with pipes and tobacco on the historical side, Mr. Dunhill said that tobacco was first known in the West as an offering to the Great Spirit, as myrrh and incense were offered up in the East. At first the whiff of tobacco smoke could be given only by the medicine man to sick men.

The rite developed into a call to war by the passing round of a reddened pipe, and then into a call to peace by the passing round of the calumet. In this country the first pipes were of clay. Meerschaum followed, and it was by the accident of a shoemaker holding a meerschaum in his wax-stained fingers that the secret of colouring these pipes was discovered. Then came briars, wich are really not briars at all, but the root of the bruyers, which grows only on the shores of the Mediterranean—a low bush, with a root as large as that of an English forest tree.

The Argentine Government purposes to pass a Bill providing for the nationalization of all insurance concerns in Argentina.

The Federal Reserve Board will probably attempt to use all its powers in the coming months to stabilize prices on a new level.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENT NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE THAT—

1. The Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, intends to construct as a local improvement, a sewer on Lansdowne Street, from Park Street to George Street, and intends to assess the cost upon the lands abutting directly upon the said works.

2. The estimated cost of such work is $9,394.03, and the sum with respect to such work which is to be paid by the Corporation, is $4,475.15. The estimated special rate per foot frontage for such work is $2.95. The special assessments are to be paid in thirty annual instalments.

3. A petition against the said work will not avail to prevent its construction.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Clerk.

DEPARTMENT OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS, CANADA.
TRENT CANAL.

Notice to Contractors.

SEALED tenders addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for construction of Hamlet Bridge substructure, and contingent dredging, Trent Canal," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon, on Thursday, June 16, 1921.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on or after this date at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterborough, Ont.

Copies of plans and specifications may be obtained from the Department on the payment of the sum of twenty dollars. To bona fide tenderers this amount will be refunded upon the return of the above in good condition.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $5,000 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into contract for the work at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective Contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
J. W. PUGSLEY,
Secretary.

TULSA RIOTING PROBE STARTS; 30 KNOWN DEAD

MILITARY COMMANDER SAYS AN IMPUDENT NEGRO, A HYSTERICAL GIRL AND A "YELLOW JOURNAL" REPORTER TO BLAME.

$1,500,000 DAMAGE

TULSA, Okla., June 3.— (Canadian Press.)—District Judge Biddison called a special grand jury yesterday as the final step in the investigation of the Tulsa race riot which broke out Tuesday night and, extending well into Wednesday, resulted in many casualties and much property damage.

According to the latest authentic reports nine whites and twenty-one negroes are known to have been killed during the race clash. An estimate places the property damage at a million and a half. All this, according to Gen. C. F. Farrell, commanding the State troops called here to maintain martial law, was incited by an impudent negro, a hysterical girl and "a yellow journal" reporter.

WINNIPEG IS TOUCHED BY A SPURIOUS HEIRESS.

Pretty Young Woman from U. S. "Does" Prairie City in Style.

WINNIPEG, June 2. — A career, in which, it is alleged by the police, leading Winnipeg banks, hotels, and department stores were victimised, was brought to an abrupt close today when Mabel Howard, 25 years old, of Sioux City, Iowa, was arraigned in Court on several charges of passing worthless cheques.

She was granted a remand in order to secure counsel, but was not allowed bail.

Posing as a "wealthy American heiress," it is alleged, this girl with no capital beyond a pretty face, a stylish spring outfit, and unlimited nerve, "worked" Winnipeg for the last three months.

CONVINCING PROOF

That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Extraordinary Healing Power in Cases of Woman's Ailments

Columbus, O.—"I suffered very much pain during my periods and felt weak and all run down. I tried many remedies and the doctor said I would have to have an operation. Then before my baby was born I had terrible pains in my sides. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me wonderfully. I have had two children since I began taking your medicine and did all of my own work including washing. You may use this letter as a testimonial if you wish." —Mrs. THOMAS L. CHRISTY, 704 West Mound St., Columbus, Ohio.

Such a condition as Mrs. Christy was in points directly to a deranged condition of a woman's system, and by following her example taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, women may be relieved from such ailments and be restored to normal health and strength just as she was.

If there is anything about your condition you do not understand write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., about your health.

NON-COMMITAL ON BYNG AS THE NEXT GOVERNOR-GENERAL

OTTAWA, June 3—Unofficial reports that the position of Governor-General has been tendered to Lord Byng were neither confirmed nor denied here yesterday.

At Rideau Hall it was stated that no advice had been received while Premier Meighen said he was "not in a position to make any statement." He made it clear that any announcement touching the subject must come from the British Government, which makes the appointment.

KEENE BALL NINE WON FROM NORWOOD

ANNUAL UNION SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC NEXT FRIDAY—KEENE PERSONALS.

KEENE, June 3. — Keene and Norwood played a League game of Base Ball on Wednesday evening. The game was hotly contested and well played. The Keene nine were victors.

Church Notes

Rev. W. E. Honey attended the annual district meeting at Campbellford on Thursday. Reports from the Circuit show healthy progress in the district.

Go-to-Sunday School Sunday in Keene and Zion Methodist Sunday Schools was a very gratifying success. An excellent programme was given under the able direction of our superintendent, Mrs. David Edwards, and Mr. G. E. Kent. This was also a day for the juniors in the congregation. The pastor preaching to the girls and boys at all services, taking as his theme, "The Lamb's Book of Life".

On Sunday, June the 5th, the Methodist Service at Keene will be held in the afternoon at 2.30 p.m., and the evening service will be held in Zion at 7.30, when the Canadian Order of Foresters will attend public worship.

The annual Union Sunday School picnic will be held on Keene Fair grounds, Friday, June 10th, the day will be given over entirely to sports for the children of the Sunday Schools.

Personal Doings.

Dr. W. T. Harrisson was in Niagara, this week to attend the convention of medical men.

Rev. R. McEachern is in Toronto this week to attend he 49th Annual Session of the Presbyterian Assembly.

"No trespassing" will be given by the young people of the Social Welfare Club on Friday evening of this week.

Mr. William Fletcher returned on Thursday from Toronto, where he had spent the week with friends.

FELL FROM PUMPER, SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Feared E. Jones, of Port Hope, Has Fractured Back.

PORT HOPE, June 3.—Falling from a pumper track car while on the way to Cobourg, it is feared that Edwin Jones of Caldwell street, this town, has suffered a fractured back.

Mr. Jones with a party of C.R.P. builders, was proceeding to Cobourg on the pumper on Wednesday. He was facing the west and pumping with three other men when he suddenly lost his grip on the bar and fell in front of the car. It happened so suddenly that his fellow employeee had not the slightest chance of preventing the car passing over him.

He lies in the Port Hope Hospital in a precarious condition.

EXPECTS A HUGE DROP IN GRASS FED STEERS

TORONTO, June 2. — As compared with last week's prices there has been a drop of about $1.50 per hundred in the price of the best cattle in the Union Stock Yards, which is attributable largely to the U. S. emergency tariff. The full effects of this tariff, which virtually shuts out Canadian cattle, will not be felt however until the cattle come in from the grass, according to a local dealer. Such cattle sold at the close of last season at about 10c a lb., and the newspaper's informant is of the opinion they will dip to five cents this year, as their export to the States for finishing will be impossible.

PRESBYTERIANS RAISE SALARIES OF MINISTERS

MINIMUM TO BE $1,800 A YEAR WITH MANSE—EMPHASIZE THAT MISSIONS SHOULD BEGIN AT HOME.

PENSIONS ARE LARGER

TORONTO, June 3. — (Canadian Press.)—A minimum salary of $1,800 and manse for ministers in self-sustaining charges, was yesterday adopted by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church in Canada. The subject was brought up in connection with a recommendation presented with the report of the Board of Home Missions and Social Service, and gave rise to a good deal of discussion, though the greater part of it was strongly in favor of the increase. The present minimum is $1,500 and manse. The majority of the speakers expressed the opinion that ministers had been inadequately remunerated in the past and some of them pointed out that in some cases unskilled laborers are being paid at a higher rate than some of the ministers are receiving.

Missionary work, like charity, should begin at home no matter how far distant it may eventually reach. That was one of the emphatic points which was brought home to the Assembly last night in Cooke's church by two speakers, Rev. Campbell Morgan, of London, England, and Rev. W. H. Sedgewick, D.D., secretary of Home Missions and Social Service for the Presbyterian church of Canada. The general idea back of this was that the nations of the world have their eyes on Canada, Pagan as well as Christian. He said many of them are looking to Canada for religious leadership and for examples, and as Rev. Mr. Morgan put it, if the churches of Canada do not set worthy examples to the people at home she can't hope to be successful in her missions abroad.

The night session was given over to Home Missionary discussion. The aged and infirm ministers fund was able to report that pensions would be larger in 1921, the highest paid to be around $650.

PARIS MANIKINS MODEST AT LAST.

Girls Refuse to Reveal Too Much Charm.

PARIS, June 1.—One by one old Parisian traditions are fading away. The latest indication of this is found in the refusal of Venus-like manikins in some of the principal dressmaking establishments to parade in gowns and display too much of their charms.

Paris fashion "fixers" are reported to be greatly alarmed at this new spirit of independence on the part of manikins, especially as one of them who was discharged last week because her sense of modesty was developed more than usual is now bringing an action for damages to the equivalent of $1,000.

The Courts probably will be called on to decide just how low a gown can be cut without offending good taste.

Meanwhile the manikins declare they will raise a common fund and fight the case to a finish. They hold that even if they themselves are not too prudish to show what nature endowed them with they will at least save something in doctors' bills yearly if they are not forced to parade half clothed before buyers of both sexes from the other side of the Atlantic.

PLANNING TO UNVEIL STATUE AT MILLBROOK.

Memorial to Fallen Soldiers Reaches New York —School Board Doings —Protect Children.

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS.

MILLBROOK, June 3.—The School Board at its last regular meeting decided to have large motor warning signs placed near the approach to the school, at the iron bridge on King street, for the protection of school children.

Miss Lee of the Continuation School and Miss Dean of the Public School tendered their resignations.

Miss Dean, having been many years on the teaching staff, was granted an annual retiring allowance of $20.

Memorial Statue.

At Council's meeting Monday night the Reeve reported that the statute to the fallen soldiers of Millbrook and vicinity had arrived in New York. The whole Council was named a committee to act with a committee from Cavan Council in arranging for the unveiling of the statue when erected in position.

On motion of Councillors Stinson and Eakins, the wages of street employees were fixed at 30 cents an hour per man and 60 cents per hour for a man and team.

Ladies' Aid Met.

The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian Church motored out to Mrs. Chas. H. Paul's home yesterday and held their June meeting as her guests.

The Cavan Methodist Sunday School will hold their anniversary services on Sunday and Monday, June 12 and 13.

Garden Party.

The garden party of St. Mary's Church, Manvers, will be held on the grounds of Mr. Hugh Lowery, concession 10, Tuesday, June 7.

Personal Mention.

Mr. J. C. Browne, Hamilton Browne and Mr. Percy Kane of Toronto were guests of Mr. L. R. Atkinson, manager of the Bank of Toronto, over the week-end.

Mr. W. T. R. Preston of Port Hope, the Liberal candidate for Durham at the next election, was in town on Tuesday.

Mrs. T. J. Lang and Miss Margarerite Lang spent the week-end in Peterborough visiting Mrs. Lang's mother.

Mr. Edgar Burnham was here from Peterborough on Tuesday.

CAVE ALL HE HAD, RIGHT IN THE MOUTH.

HAMILTON, June 2.—(Canadian Press).—As John Midwinter, tobacconist, was reaching for a package of cigarettes in his store, he turned around to face a revolver in the hands of a bandit.

"Give me all you have," demanded the hold-up man.

"Yes, I will, you sucker," shouted Midwinter as he smashed the man in the mouth.

MARTIN GOVT. OBTAIN 16 BY ACCLAMATION

OF 63 SEATS FOR WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE HELD YESTERDAY IN SASKATCHEWAN 16 GO TO GOVERNMENT.

THREE ARE MINISTERS

REGINA, June 3. Canadian Press. Nominations for the Provincial elections in Saskatchewan closed yesterday with the government candidates returned by acclamation in 16 out of the 63 seats. This may be increased later as the results of the nominations in nine constituencies are still to come.

The acclamations include three Ministers of the Government: Hon. C. A. Dunning, the Provincial Treasurer; Hon. S. J. Latt, Minister of Highways, and J. A. Maharg, whose portfolio is yet unknown.

Elections will be held in 60 of 63 constituencies a week from to-day, those of Cumberland Isle, Lacrosse and Tisdale having been deferred.

HEAVY DROP IN BUTTER PRICES IN NORTH-WEST.

Eggs 12c to 20c a Dozen Wholesale in Calgary.

HANNA, Alberta, June 1.—A decided slump in butter markets in this province is indicated in rates quoted, and dairy butter in Calgary is a commodity receiving scant welcome. The regular weekly price letter received here a few days ago quotes dairy butter at 15c. per lb. in Calgary, with bad butter "out." From this dealers will realize that heavy purchases of dairy butter will prove risky, and wholesale dealers in produce advise retail merchants to be careful in purchases of this commodity.

Creamery butter has suffered a severe drop in Alberta, and consequently the price for butter fat is in the decline. At this time last year an average of 50c. per lb. was paid for butter fat, while to-day's prices average at 29c., 26c. and 23c. Creamery butter is wholesaling at 35c. per lb. and the price may drop before the week end to 30c. It is thought that prices have reached the bottom and from now on a steady market is anticipated. However, there is little to indicate an increase until late July or August. Eggs are very plentiful, and Calgary prices range from 12c. to 20c. a dozen wholesale.

Visitor — What seems to be the trouble, Harry? Why so sad?

Harry—Papa is going to whip me when he comes home.

Visitor—Indeed. What will you give me to take the whipping off your hands?

Harry—He ain't goin' to whip me on my hands.

ATTEMPT TO UNSEAT LORD NORTHCLIFFE

LONDON, June 3.—For some time the air of Fleet Street has been thick with rumours of a fight for control of The Times between Lord Northcliffe and the Walter Daly family, the paper's former proprietors, who have bitterly opposed Lord Northcliffe's Irish policy.

Premier Lloyd-George, it is said, has been working hard to unseat Lord Northcliffe, and it is now rumoured he has succeeded in inducing Sir John Ellerman, the next biggest stockholder, to throw in his lot with the Dalys. This would give the publisher's opponents a majority of the stock.

TRENT RIVER HAPPENINGS

TRENT RIVER, June 3.— A thunder storm accompanied by high winds visited here Tuesday making the temperature considerably lower.

The Ladies Aid met yesterday afternoon at the Methodist Church.

Mr. E. Wilkinson is moving his family from the "Skene" cottage to his new home.

Mr. J. Townsend returned Monday from spending the week end in Toronto.

Mrs. J. Boyd of Hydro Glenn is expected this week to visit at the "Sedgewick House".

Last night was a busy night at White Hall Gardens.

A number of young people avail themselves nightly of the opportunity of receiving up to date dancing instructions, from Mr. J. Townsend, Musical Director, by coming early before the evening's programme begins.

Mr. Frank Pollock is the census enumerator for this polling division beginning his rounds early Wednesday morning.

RAINMAKER IS ON TO HIS JOB.

Produces Too Much Moisture For Circus Elephants.

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., June 1.—Col. Howe, of the Howe Circus is peeved; likewise the Medicine Hatters are tickled to death, and they do not care how loud the Colonel roars of duplicates his lions' antics.

It is all on account of "Rainmaker" Hatfield who sits on the job in his tower at the 'Hat" making rain, and the circus played Medicine Hat and rain fell, and the circus ground were turned into a young lake.

Also, the nine elephants of the Howe Circus sank into the mud while the heavy circus wagons imitated a like stunt. The Colonel is wild, in fact, far wilder than some of his animals. The last seen of the genial old man was at the train, about ten this morning, where he was still threatening to sue Hatfield.

HOUSING FUND INCREASED BY 25 PER CENT.

GOVERNMENT REJECTS G.W.V.A.'S PROPOSAL OF $50,000,000 LOAN BUT GIVES FURTHER ASSISTANCE.

PREMIER STATES POLICY

OTTAWA, June 3.—(Canadian Press).—With the prospect before them of prroguing of Parliament on Saturday members of the Commons dealt expediously yesterday with a considerable volume of business. Bills to amend the soldiers insurance act, and the pensions act, based upon the report of the special committee on pensions, insurance and re-establishment of soldiers were passed. So also was Sir Henry Drayton's bill to amend and consolidate the acts respecting the taxation of incomes and Hon. C. J. Doherty's bill to validate the proceeding prelimary to the holding of plebiscites under the Canada Temperance Act in certain provinces.

Consideration of amendments to the Pension Act afforded Premier Meighen the opportunity to make a general statement upon the work and objects of the special House Committee and the policy of the Government on the subject of the re-establishment of soldiers. It was the desire of the government and he believed of th epeople of the country, he said "to walk beside the returned men and to keep the door open to make sure that no injustice was being done". He pointed to the fact that legislation before the House would prolong the payment of the bonsus of 50 per cent on all pensions for another year at a cost to the country of $680,000. He gave his views also upon the proposal that fifty millions be set aside to be loaned to returned men desiring to occupy houses in the same manner that loass are made for the purchase of farms under the soldiers settlement act. He felt that the proposal was not sound economically. Such expenditures woud be merely palliative for the unempoyment situation. Loans throughout the country would serve to sustain the level of prices of building material and the fund would prevent rather than encourage building by private interests However, he agreed that more houses were needed and announced that the Government had decided to continue its policy of providing assistance, subject to the condition that the main responsibilty should be local. It had decded to add 25 per cent to the original sum of twenty-five million set aside to be loaned to the provinces for the improvement of housing conditions.

FRIDAY, JUNE 3, 1921.

METHODISTS PROSPER.

Membership in the Methodist churches in Belleville district increased two hundred in the past year from 3,758 in 1920, to 3,958 in the year ending May 1921. The grand total of giving of the last year was $87,196 as against $72,549 for the preceding twelve months. This great advance was made up of missionary givings, and increases in salaries by bringing them up to the $1,500 minimum. Ministers salaries, (including horse-keep) increased from $15,512 to $18,780 in contributions. Educational contributions advanced from $258.000 to $582.00 and social service collections from $239 to $465. Missionary endeavor of the church in the district was represented by $8,536 as against the previous $7,905 and the women's Missionary Society gave $6,019 or an increase of $545.

RIVERSIDE PARK.

With Riverside Park about to pass into the hands of the city, the Council will soon have to settle the question of what policy is to be followed in regard to the property. It is sincerely hoped that the fact will not be lost sight of that Riverside Park is the only athletic grounds in the city at which a gate can be collected. The turning of the property into a public park, thus destroying the chance of obtaining the revenue, without which it would be impossible to carry on athletic sports, would be a disaster to the sporting fraternity of Peterborough, and this aspect of the situation would have to be carefully considered. Of the value of sport to a community there is not the slighest doubt, and it would be a grave mistake to take away the only available grounds. It might be possible to arrange it so that the park might be free to the public except when league games are scheduled, but at all events it would be a mistaken policy to destroy the value of Riverside Park as the city's only athletic grounds.

THE WILSON CHARGES.

The charges made by Gordon Wilson, M.P. for Wentworth, in the House of Commons against the good roads policy of Hon. F. C. Biggs, Provincial Minister of Public Works and Highways, are too serious to be dismissed by references to "gross ignorance and misrepresentation, deliberate lies, political capital." Briefly, Mr. Wilson charges that the Provincial Minister has been grossly extravagant in his administration, that his own property and that of his father has been enhanced in value by the improving of the roads in the neighborhood of their property, that much unnecessary work has been done and that some sections of road work will cost over $100,000 a mile. These are definite charges and require a definite answer, although it is somewhat mystifying that the Opposition groups in the Legislature did not bring down any of these facts during the session and use them against the Government. Hon. Mr. Biggs should not be satisfied with a general denial of the charges; they are important enough to demand a plain and ample reply.

THE FARMERS' SITUATION.

The report from Western Ontario that a number of farmers' wives and daughters were considering the advisability of remaining away from market until there was an improvement in the price of butter and eggs need not be taken seriously, for the threat is on a par with those made by many city folks during the days of high prices when they resolved that they would buy no more on the farmers' market until there was a drop in prices. Those resolves were not kept, nor will this one. The report, however, emphasizes the fact that the farmers have had to stand more than their share of the operation known as getting back to normal. The price of farm produce has dropped far more rapidly than the price of almost any other article. Live stock, grain, vegetables, hides, butter and eggs, in fact nearly everything the farmer has to sell, have so shrunken in value that his revenue has been cut in two. In the case of some articles he is receiving today only one-third of the top price reached during the war. And as the other necessities of life which the farmers have to buy have not fallen in price to anything like the same extent as the products of the farm, the farming community is beginning to feel the pinch of the situation. True, there is not much complaint from our friends in the country, but the fact remains, nevertheless, that in the sacrifices of re-adjustment they have been harder hit than any other section of Canada's population.

COLONIALS.

Occasionally, in our Parliament at Ottawa, some of the members who are much concerned about Canada's "status" manifest displeasure at any reference to the overseas Dominions as "colonies," and resent any mention of our citizens as "colonials." Most sensible people are concerned about what things really are rather than by what they are called. A rose by any other name would smell as sweet. Many people, far from objecting to the word "colonials," are disposed to regard it as an honorable name. Over in Massachusetts, for example, there are numerous societies and organizations which are proud to be called colonial. In England, too, the word is honored. An old and honorable institution is known as the Royal Colonial Institute. Some folks who were troubled about the word made an effort to change the name, but the members rallied strongly against the proposal, and the old name remains. A writer in a London paper, Mr. J. E. C. Flitch, of Wallingford, very properly remarks that those who object to the word colonial, should offer some alternative. Shall we, he asks, be called "Dominioners" or "Overseaers"? In the absence of any convenient word as a substitute we might as well be content with the old name, which is an honorable one.—Journal of Commerce.

A CHANGE NEEDED.

The contention advanced by the Examiner a year ago last January, when the two Russians were hanged in the local jail yard, and repeated in connection with the execution of Norman Garfield, at Woodstock, that all executions of this kind should take place in Kingston Penitentiary, is strengthened by the depression caused among Woodstock people yesterday. The effect of the hanging was felt in the whole community, and the general hope was that the city would never have another hanging.

The Hamilton Spectator agrees with the Examiner, and in its issue of Wednesday, says:

The need for an execution centre, where condemned murderers could be held in safe keeping and all due privacy, until they had paid the supreme penalty, was seldom more conspicuously revealed than in the case of Garfield. In Woodstock — where he lies in the jail where the last grim act of his life's tragedy is to be staged to-morrow—a form of hysteria seems to have taken possession of the townspeople, who according to reports, are lavishing their sympathy and attentions upon the condemned man. This is no reflection on the character of the good people of Woodstock, of course, but rather an evidence of their qualities of heart; but all the same it is a most unhealthy condition of mind. Garfield is an inveterate criminal of the most callous type who has been regularly convicted by a jury of his fellow-men, and by no manner of indulgence can he be regarded as a hero. Sentiment is all very well, but it should go to the right quarter. It is no wonder that the unhappy widow of Garfield's villainy should cry out in bitter protest.

The public should be spared any repetition of these mawkish sentimentalities. So long as capital punishment remains the recognized penalty for murder, the law should be carried out with all decency and in a strictly judicial spirit. The day may perhaps come when there will be no more hangings, but till it does a better way of conducting the gruesome business must be found. The responsibility of keeping condemned prisoners should be taken away from local jailors, and the final scene enacted in a place specially set apart for the purpose—removed from the morbid excitement and curiosity inevitably associated with such an event.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

With all the provincial road building that is going on in Mr. Biggs' home county of Wentworth, it is no wonder that Eastern Ontario is not getting its share.

St. Thomas' labourers are not to be allowed to have ice cream cones during working hours. Somebody is always taking the joy out of life.

Census enumerators in Toronto find women still coy about telling their age .The fair sex should remember that the enumerators are like daisies—"they won't tell."

The Toronto Star and the Toronto Telegram seem to have regarded the Garfield case as devised in order to provide them with a new cause to fight about.

Hon. N. W. Rowell has resigned from Parliament. There is not much left of the Union Government of 1917.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Montreal and Toronto are running about neck and neck now for the Canadian murder record. And perhaps when one of them has held it for three successive weeks we can consider that one the Canadian champion and enter it against Chicago for the international title, allowing a population handicap, of course.

A Chicago music publisher says that brains are not needed to write jazz songs. No, and from our experience we would say that voices are not necessary to sing them.

A New York educationalist says it's not the young ones but the old ones that need watching now. Well, it's always one or the other.

Prohibition is hard on the baseball umpire. There is more pop sold now.—Chicago Journal of Commerce.

When the man who had been engaged to marry her for fifteen years but had never mustered the courage to ask her to name the happy day asked her to play something on the piano, she assented with, "Darling, I am growing old."

Evidently when a European newspaper correspondent is afraid he isn't earning his salary, he cables home another variation of, "Information from authoritative sources indicates a marked improvement in the Irish sotuation, etc."

The mother of the girl who was performing on the piano was talking to a neighbor and remarked, "My daughter's music cost us a great deal."

"Did someone sue you?" inquired the neighbor.

A French scientist claims to have found proof of the theory of transmigration of souls. Some people we have met are proof enough.

"Why are you so anxious to play bridge?"

"Some one will play the piano if we don't."

EXPERIMENTS IN TOBACCO GROWING

Frenchman Said to Have Developed Plant.

PARIS, June 2. — Relief for French smokers who have been suffering for the past two years from a shortage of their favorite brands of tobacco is promised by the French Luther Burbank, Daniel Berthelot, who has just succeeded in producing in his experimental garden at Bellevue a new tobacco plant with leaves double the size of those grown hitherto. It is estimated that the new plants will produce double the quantity of tobacco with the same acreage as at present.

M. Berthelot has also developed a new type of early ripening corn, which, he says, will produce two crops a year instead of one.

Commenting on his work he said: "My previous experiments with plants were conducted by the selective method, which I found not to be permanent in its results, subsequent generations tending to revert to the old type. I have adopted a combination of nutritive and surgical methods which produce complete alteration in species. Thus I obtained tobacco and corn, which will henceforth reproduce themselves with new qualities, properties and dimensions. They are new species, definitely fixed.

When asked whether he had attempted to develop a new kind of wheat, M. Berthelot replied that his wheat experiments were as yet hardly beyond the laboratory stage, but he had already procured a stronger type which did not shed its grains from the ear in ripening, thus saving the farmer one of the commonest losses on the total crop percentage.

CUBAN BOY DISAPPEARS.

Thought to Be a Victim of Witch Doctors.

HAVANA, Cuba, June 3 (Associated Press).—Provincial authorities are conducting a searching investigation into the mysterious disappearance from his home on a ranch near Guantanamo, of Candido Martinez, aged five, who, it is reported, may have been a victim of witch doctors.

Three men and a woman are being held, without bail, for examination, one of them being known locally as a "healer" and seller of patent medicines.

The aunt of the missing lad, his sole relative, says that his sister disappeared a year ago under similar circumstances.

LOVE!

By KATHERINE MOORE

I CEASE DARNING—AND LEONARD BUYS SOCKS

Chapter 66.

Through long succeeding days I lived as one in a trance. Morning, noon and night—morning, noon and night, and so on. All were the same to me. No time was worse or better than another.

I had stopped doing things to try to please Leonard. I did nothing. My mind did not think of plans and solutions. It became dormant and unresponsive to thought or action.

Aside from Emma's part of keeping the house clean and livable, there was nothing done to it. I did not dust, or think of getting flowers for the vases. If Emma did not remember or find time to do it, the dust collected, and collected, and lay thick upon the furniture until she found time to remove it.

I would spend hours just sitting in a chair and staring into space or lying on my bed with wide open eyes glaring at the ceiling.

I became apparently indifferent. I tried to rouse myself from the callousness, but my will seemed to be in a state of apathy that I could not shake off. My love for Leonard was still there—but deep, deep within me, and the surface was all dead and irresponsive.

And now Leonard was not trying to hide his state of mind from me. The rust of indifference was claiming him. Our moods reacted on each other and widened the breach.

Leonard avoided me all he possibly could. This fact brought just the tiniest bit of comfort to my heart. I knew his conscience was still alive and fighting him. Otherwise he would not care and he would be able to face me with unconcern.

Once when I had lapsed into indifference toward Leonard, I suddenly decided to use neglect as a possible weapon—something that would pierce through his lack of love and force him to see the state of things were in, whether he wanted to or not.

If I could not win him through love, I could at least make him mindful of me by dthe things I would fail to do.

I waited for my chance.

When Leonard's shirts and collars came home from the laundry, I had my first opportunity. I started to undo the bundle and put the things away. The very first shirt I picked up had a button gone from the front of it. I noted that it was the one with a narrow dark blue stripe which he was especially fond of. I laid it away in the drawer with the rest. But I confess I felt much like a thief or some awful kind of sneak doing it.

Then I absolutely refused to let myself darn his socks. I didn't dare run my hands inside of them to see how many holes there were. Leonard had a perfectly mad aversion to wearing socks with holes in them. I had always teased him about his terrible hosiery extravagance.

A week after I had started my neglect campain I discovered something that made me smile in spite of my aching heart. Emma was sweeping and cleaning Leonard's room one morning. She came to my door and asked if she might come in a minute.

"I found this piece of wrapping paper with this yellow slip inside of it stuck behind Mr. Allen's chiffonier. I wanted to know if I had better save it or throw it away?" Emma interrogated, while she advanced toward me with the wrapping paper and slip in her hand.

"Le me see it," I said, holding out my hand. I could not see any use in saving the thing, and yet I could not understand why Leonard had tucked it away and so carefully folded it up.

I held the slip between my fingers, and as I read it a smile slowly effaced my sadness. It was the cash receipt slip of a New York haberdasher for six pairs of black silk socks.

He had hidden the slip so that I wouldn't see it.

Comb Sage Tea in Hair to Darken It

IT'S GRANDMOTHER'S RECIPE TO KEEP HER LOCKS DARK, GLOSSY, BEAUTIFUL.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

UNVEIL WARSAW MONUMENT ON TUESDAY, JUNE 21

WARSAW, June 3.—The lettering on the monument to fallen soldiers was finished on Friday.

Farmers are now giving their time and teams for drawing earth to fill in around the monument.

At a meeting of the Memorial Monument Committee held Saturday evening it was decided to have the unveiling on Tuesday, June 21st. Arrangements are being made to have the ceremonies, as far as possible, military. Three addresses, one by Col. Johnstone, one by a chaplain and one by a mother, will be given. The school children of Dummer are being asked to sing the first and last verses of the "Maple Leaf." The Council and Provincial and Dominion members and all clergy officiating in Dummer are invited to be present in a body.

Col. Johnston will have a squadron of men from camp and there will be a military band. Permission is being sought to wear uniforms.

The day will be a public holiday.

THEY MAY SMOKE, BUT DOWN BELOW.

"Smoking below."

This is the significant message that is printed on a card that hangs on the basement door of St. James' Square Presbyterian Church, Toronto, where 600 Presbyterians from all over Canada will be in attendance for the next few days at the General Assembly.

It is recognized that a number of the elders and even some of the clergy are users of tobacco, and therefore the authorities have deemed it wise to set apart a place for them.

"But note that the card says 'below,'" remarked one of the lay delegates.

WARSAW BAZAAR AND RUMMAGE SALE A SUCCESS

WARSAW, June 3.—The bazaar and rummage sale held by the ladies of St. Mark's Church Tuesday evening was a decided success. Aprons, bags, caps, children's garments, home-made candy and other useful and fancy articles were on sale. Coffee, brown and white bread and butter, ice cream and cake were served and the young ladies were kept busy.

The programme in the evening was a rare treat for Warsaw. The Warsaw Orchestra, assisted by Miss Palmer, opened with "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton" and "Caller Herrin Rev. Mr. Hughes sang "The Floral Dance" and was heartily encored, to which he kindly responded. Miss Palmer gave a violin solo and replied to an encore. Mrs. Fawcett sang and Miss Agnes Logan gave a piano solo. Mr. Henry Batten also sang. Miss Palmer gave a violin solo, "A Spanish Romance," and responded to an encore with a selection from Gounoud.

During the intermission ice cream was sold and there seemed to be an abundance of it; also the autograph quilt, containing 360 names.

The Warsaw Orchestra, with Miss Palmer, gave a selection. Mrs. Fawcett sang "Eyes of Shining Blue," Mrs. Hughes recited 'Me and Jim," Mr. Hughes sang "The Rolling Tide," Miss Palmer gave another violin solo and replied to an encore. "God Save the King."

When the entertainment was undertaken the ladies aimed to make $125.00, and they think they will have nearly that clear.

Work on Roads.

Mr. David Miller went to Apsley on some road work business Monday.

Planting Potatoes.

Potato and corn planting was the general work of the farmers during the past week.

Institute Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Warsaw Women's Institute will be held in the Institute Room on Thursday, June 9th, at 2.30 o'clock.

Ladies' Aid.

The regular meeting of the Presbyterian Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. David Miller on Thursday. There was a short talk on missionary work and a missionary society was discussed, but nothing definite done. It was decided to make an effort to have the light in the church improved.

In the Churches.

Preparatory services were held at Cotessloe Friday afternoon and at Warsaw Friday evening. Rev. Robt. Wesley of Norwood preached at both places.

At the Sunday morning service Mr. Graham's subject was, "Christ's Fellowship," which fitted in well with the communion service. The subject in the evening was, "Rejoice Evermore."

There was the regular fortnightly service in the Anglican Church.

Mr. White of Lakefield preached on "Home Missions" in the Baptist Church. He sang "Rose of Sharon".

Mr. Vose preached in Lakefield Baptist Church.

Social Mention.

Mrs. David Drain and daughter, Valetta, arrived home on Tuesday evening of last week. The little daughter was very much improved, and has continued to improve.

Mr. Wm. Charleton of Lakefield was in the village Tuesday evening.

Mr. Robb was in the village on Thursday.

Mr. Riley of Havelock spent a few days in the village last week.

Mr. and Mrs. MacKenzie from the Grove School, Lakefield, were in the village this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Clements, Mrs. Ellen Brown and Miss Mildred Clements were in the village to-day.

A few guests are already at Victoria House, McCracken's Landing, also at Juniper Island.

Mr. Hannon spent a few days with his nephew, Mr. Arthur Edwards.

Mrs. Fred Morgan was in Peterborough for the week-end.

Rev. Girard Graham leaves on Tuesday to attend the General Assembly in Toronto.

MACDONALD'S CUT BRIER

¶ MACDONALD'S "BRIER" has become a Canadian institution. Smoked by the men who made history. In the bush, on the trail, in mining camps, prospectors' huts, factory yards, on trains, steamships, in the luxurious homes and downtown clubs of our Canadian cities—Macdonald's has always been recognized as the smoke.

The Tobacco with a heart

FORMER MILLBROOK RESIDENT IS DEAD

MILLBROOK, June 3.—Another pioneer of Ontario and former resident of Millbrook and Cavan has passed away in the person of Sergt. Frederick McCurry, who died on May 24 at the home of his son, Arthur, in Chatham.

Aged 86, the late Sergt. McCurry was born in Moira, Ireland, whence he emigrated to Canada at the age of twenty-one years. He first settled in Cobourg with his aunt, Mrs. Fleming, but shortly afterward located in Millbrook. He married Miss McCrea and here they resided and spent the longest and best period of their life, raised a large and worthy family. Thirty years ago he moved to Peterborough, where his wife died some thirteen years ago. After his sore bereavement and his home being no longer available, he spent a while in Toronto and then went on to Chatham, making his home with his son, Arthur, and his wife where the end came, caused by a general break up.

The Sergeant was perhaps best known by his military career. He served in the Fenian Raid in 1866 with the old 46th Battalion of Durham under the late Capt. Howden, holding the rank of Sergeant, and also donned the colors in 1885 and marched away again with the boys under Capt. Winslow with the Midland Battalion, and for many years was attached to the Millbrook Company of the 46th Battalion, where he was the stand-by of the Captain always. He was a soldier in looks and bearing till the last, and when in his prime was of the type that made the British Army the pride of the world.

This old and loyal soldier of the Empire was given a military funeral in Chatham, Rev. Canon Allen officiating both at the Armouries and at the grave, where the "Last Post" was sounded by Geo. F. Burnham. The firing squad was in charge of Signaller Wm. Collins.

In politics he was a staunch Conservative, in religion an Anglican.

Four daughters, Mrs. Ed. Hannah, of Spokane, Wash.; Mrs. Softy, Chatham; Mrs. Fisher, of Toronto; Mrs. Wm. Budd, Millbrook, and four son, Arthur, of Chatham; Fred, of Toronto; Edward and George, of Millbrook, mourn a father's loss.

MY NATIVE LAND.

Rome, Florence, Venice—noble, fair and quaint,
They reign in robes of magic round me here;
But fading, blotted, dim, a picture faint,
With spell more silent, only pleads a tear,
Plead not! Thou hast my heart, oh picture dim!
I see the fields, I see the autumn band
Of God upon the maples! Answer Him
With weird, translucent, glories ye that stand
Like spirits in scarlet and in amethyst!
I see the sun break over you; the mist
On hills that lift from iron bases grand
Their heads superb!—the dream, it is my Native land. —Quot.

DIVERSION OF GRAVEL ROAD SUPPORTED BY MUNICIPALITIES

DEPUTATION WILL INTERVIEW THE HON. MR. BIGGS NEXT TUESDAY REQUESTING AN INDEPENDENT ENGINEER'S REPORT ON THE PROPOSED CHANGE BETWEEN SPRINGVILLE AND SCOTT'S CORNERS.

MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT

The proposed diversion of that section of the Gravel Road between Scott's Corners and Springville was endorsed at an informal meeting of representatives of the townships of North Monaghan and Cavan and of the Peterborough Automobile Association, who foregathered last night on the hilltop north of Springville.

After a general discussion of the probable cost of this change in the plans, as estimated by Mr. D. W. Bews, the Ontario Highways Department's engineer on the provincial road now building through Monaghan Township to the city of Peterborough, it was decided to send a deputation to Toronto to request the Hon. Mr. Biggs that an independent report on the proposed diversion be made before the construction of that part of the new highway is proceeded with.

Mr. T. Tooms, M.L.A., secured an appointment with the Minister for next Tuesday, when this question will be laid before him.

The motor fraternity are well acquainted with that part of the Gravel Road, and most citizens of Peterborough have travelled it at some time or other. As you come up from the south through Springville this road balks at the hill north of the little Monaghan hamlet, and swings around to the west through Deputy-Reeve Fred Wilson's farm. A road allowance leading directly over the hill was staked out and fenced years ago. It is open to-day, and is occasionally used, but not for heavy traffic. The telegraph wires take the shorter way over the brow of the hill instead of following the present highway at its foot. The petition which Mr. Wilson is actively circulating is simply that the Government build the new provincial highway over the hill and abandon the old road that cuts through his farm.

Municipalities Represented.

Among those who met on the hill last night were Reeve Harold Baptie, Deputy-Reeve J. L. McCamus, and George Hooton, of the Cavan Township Council, all the members of the North Monaghan Council, Reeve John McIntosh, Deputy-Reeve Fred Wilson, Fred Rowan, R. T. Lillico, and Robert Dobbin, Thomas Tooms, M.L.A., Bruce Johnston, clerk of North Monaghan, Robert Cotton and Leon Frazer, president and secretary respectively of the Peterborough Automobile Association, and twenty-five or thirty farmers from the Springville countryside.

All in Favour of It.

Monaghan Council has already requested the Department to make the diversion, and the Automobile Association will give their support by a resolution which specifically asks that an independent examination of the locality be carried out before the course of the road is finally determined.

Reeve Baptie of Cavan said that only three of their members were present. These constituted a majority, however, and they were in favour of the diversion. Mr. Baptie authorised Mr. Hooton to accompany the deputation to Toronto next Tuesday, and assist Mr. Wilson in making a strong plea to the Hon. Mr. Biggs. The expense of the trip is being borne personally by Mr. Wilson.

Mr. Bews told The Examiner that he preferred to build the provincial highway over the present road, but he felt sure that the Department would give the petition a favourable hearing, although the money estimated for the year's operations in road building was practicallf all appropriated.

Mr. Wilson and the other farmers of the district who are in favour of the diversion realise that now is the time to carry the Gravel Road over the hill if that change is ever to be made.

Mr. Bews told the little group that some 13,000 yards of earth would have to be taken off the hill at an estimated cost of of 75 cents a yard.

Mr. Wilson believed that the work could be done for less, and mentioned 65 cents as the probable cost. For this and other reasons an independent engineer's report is desired. There is no criticism of Mr. Bews in the present agitation. All the farmers are aware that the Department is building a standard highway and a permanent one, and the main contention is that for a provincial road the straight course over the hill should be chosen instead of the sweep through Mr. Wilson's farm.

Cost the County $1,200.

According to the figures presented by Mr. Bews, the rebuilding of the lower road would cost $1,600 and the diversion about $14,000. The difference in the cost is roundly $12,000. Forty per cent. of this expenditure is assumed by the Dominion Government, forty per cent. by the Ontario Government, and ten per cent each by the Counties of Peterborough and the combined counties of Northumberland and Durham.

On this basis Mr. Wilson showed that the diversion would cost Peterborough County $1,200, which would be borne by the ten townships in the good roads system. North Monaghan's share would, therefore, be $120.00. An extra computation of Cavan's share could not be made, but it was estimated at around $80.00. In this connection it was pointed out by Mr. Wilson that the diversion follows the boundary road between Peterborough and Durham Counties, whereas the present road between Springville and Scott's Corners runs through Cavan Township, which would have to pay the entire twenty per cent. of the county rate for that link. In other words, Mr. Wilson asserted that if the provincial highway follows the present course, Cavan would have to pay $320.00 instead of the $80.00 contribution to the proposed diversion.

The Cavan municipal representatives recognised the force of Mr. Wilson's figures, and added that they would also make a saving in the maintenance of the road. Hence they were prepared to support the petition to the Hon. Mr. Biggs.

Six Per Cent. Grade.

Mr. Bews had made a survey of the route over the hill, and reported that a six per cent. grade could be laid out on the Springville approach. Four feet would be taken off the peak, and the difference between the levels of the two roads would be twenty-five feet.

Mr. Wilson said that the low road is springy and difficult to maintain, although Mr. Bews was inclined to discount that possible disadvantage, saying that a good permanent road could be built around the foot of the hill. The probable cost of the diversion to the two Governments would be approximately $4,800 each, and it was generally believed that this would be acknowledged as a comparatively small additional outlay for the advantage of straightening the main road through Springville, and avoiding the soft ground on the low level and the consequent surplus in maintenance costs from year to year.

HAPPENINGS IN HASTINGS

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION HELD IN WESTWOOD.

HASTINGS, June 3.—A number from town motored to Westwood on Wednesday to attend the annual convention of the Sabbath School Association of Asphodel township, which was held in the Presbyterian church. Delegates were present from Norwood, South Dummer, Westwood, Elgin and Hastings. The afternoon session was well attended, when two addresses were given, "The Modern Community and the Sunday School" by Rev. T. M. Wesley, of Norwood and "The Effective Sunday School Programme" by Miss Bertha Laine, provincial children's division superintendent. These addresses were interspersed with hymns and a well rendered solo by Mrs. (Rev.) Cafley, of South Dummer.

The evening session was largely attended and was much enjoyed. The opening exercises were led by the president, Mr. G. A. Brethen, of Norwood, followed by a solo from Miss Una Duffield of Norwood.

An address, "A Model Sunday School Teacher," was given by Rev. T. Rich of Norwood, followed by a solo, "Take Up Thy Cross," by Mrs. M. Baker, of Hastings. Another interesting address, "Co-operation in Religious Education," was given by Miss Bertha Laine, which was followed by a duet by Miss Mae Huycke and Miss Ona Doxsee of Hastings.

The union Westwood choir also gave some excellent music, which was much appreciated.

Altogether the convention was acknowledged to be one of the best ever held in the township. Lunch was served between sessions by the local congregations.

Attending Assembly.

Rev. D. A. Thomson, pastor of the Presbyterian church, is in Toronto atending the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church.

Wedding Bells.

A wedding of interest locally was solemnized in Toronto on June 1st, the principals in the important event being Miss Alice Raine of Toronto and Mr. Wm. Stewart, a one-time resident of Hastings, but now manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Campbellville, Ont. Their many friends here join in wishing the happy couple many years of happy wedded life.

Is Improving.

Mrs. Wm. Londerville has returned from St. Joseph's hospital, London, where she underwent a serious operation. All her friends here will be pleased to learn that she is much improved in health.

FOUND FOUR SKELETONS.

KITCHENER, June 3. — John Schutz, the owner of some of the most southerly property in the subdivision known as the Dominion Heights, made a gruesome find this week while ploughing up the land.

As his ploughshare turned up the sod, human bones began to appear on the surface, until at length the complete skeletons of four persons were revealed.

To the best knowledge of nearby residents this land has not been worked before, and there is no way of ascertaining how many years the bones have lain buried there in their shallow graves.

Mr. Schultz piled the bones up in the corner of the field.

DAYLIGHT SAVING IS EMBARRASSING IN VIENNA.

VIENNA, June 3 (Associated Press).—The daylight saving tangle is becoming embarrassing in Vienna. Yielding to the farmers, the law was rescinded, but the workmen in Vienna are taking it into their own hands and simply serving notice on employers that they will work on summer time.

The movement has spread from factory to factory, until it is virtually a law in its effect. The men say they cannot work on clock time and cultivate their gardens around the city.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion.

So-called stomach troubles, such as? indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache, and inability to retain food are in probably nine cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness, or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments, and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antacid, such as Bisurated Magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestents. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisurated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

ALLEGES OPPOSITION IN NEWFOUNDLAND IS EXPLOITING PAPERS

USING FOREIGN NEWS SERVICE TO DISCREDIT GOVERNMENT.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 3.—(Canadian Press).—Allegations that stories which have appeared in the American and Canadian press indicating that the economic situation in Newfoundland is particularly bad, are more fiction than fact, are made by Dr. H. M. Mosdell, editor of the St. John's Daily Star. "There is no serious unemployment in this city and there is no more unemployment throughout Newfoundland generally than is usual at this time of year. Newfoundland fishermen, tradesmen and workmen are better situated and have better savings accounts than similar classes in any other part of the world," he says, alleging that "the whole Island of Newfoundland is seething with anger because of the attitude toward this country of the Canadian and American press." Dr. Mosdell lays continual misrepresentation of conditions in Newfoundland to the account of Opposition members of the island's Government, chiefly Sir Patrick McGrath, Sir Michael Cashin, Sir John Crosby and Alfred B. Morine. "Manifestly," he says, "foreign newspapers and news agencies have been persistently exploited by the Opposition in an effort to discredit the Newfoundland Government and to hamper its undertakings abroad."

Dr. Mosdell denies specifically the authenticity of article recently carried by the press of America alleging the "unemployed took charge of proceedings at Parliament House and refused to be quieted until the leader of the Opposition (Sir Michael Cashin) promised the 'hungry men' a free meal." No such incident ever took place, he says, but an obviously political demonstration was staged by Opposition supporters and their leaders were afterward entertained at supper by Sir Michael Cashin.

"While it is true that to some extent Newfoundland has shared in the general world depression," Dr. Mosdell said, "trade conditions here in comparison with other sections of the British Empire have been very satisfactory. An American Paper Makers' Union at Grand Falls went on strike recently under instructions from headquarters in the United States. The result is that two thousand Newfoundlanders who are not interested in this organization and its affairs and who are anxious to continue work, have been thrown out of employment. The same situation apnertains in connection with the printers' strike in St. John's. All the St. John's newspapers except one which is practically a non-union shop, have been closed down through a strike order issued from headquarters of the Typographical Union in the United States."

Incidents which would indicate lack of employment in St. John's are laid at the door of a "political organization which has been developed by the Opposition among the laboring classes." "Unemployment here has been a matter for politicians to juggle with rather than for the economist to worry over," says Dr. Mosdell. "As a matter of fact, the demand for labor in St. John's is greater than the supply."

"The main cause of the financial stringency in Newfoundland," according to Dr. Mosdell, "has been the policy adopted toward Newfoundland trade by banking institutions which are all Canadian. These banks have attempted to apply in Newfoundland the same policy that they have adopted in Canada with unfortunate results inasmuch as Newfoundland industries, particularly cod-fishing, require long term accomodation."

TREATMENT OF CHILD MAKES RED GREATEST CRIMINAL ON EARTH

SO SAYS RUSSIAN DOCTOR OF DESTRUCTION OF A GENERATION.

NEW YORK, June 3.—(Associated Press).—Several documents taken from official Bolshevist publications describing the conditions under which children are living in Russia under the Bolshevist regime, are made public by A. J. Sack, Director of the Russian Information Bureau in the United States, representing in this country the Russian democratic anti-Bolshevist forces.

The Bolshevist programme with regard to the children of Russia was formulated, according to Mr. Sack, by the Commissary Lilina at the Conference on Public Education held in Moscow. The official magazine of the Commissariat of Public Education, Narodonove Prosvieschen e (popular education), No. 4, quotes Lilina as saying at this conference:

"We have to create out of the young generation a generation of Communists. We must make real, good Communists of the children, for they, like wax, are easily moulded. We must remove the children from the pernicious influence of the family. We must register the children, or, let us speak plainly, nationalize them. Thus they will from the very start remain under the beneficial influence of Communist kindergartens and schools. Here they will absorb the alphabet of Communism. Here they will grow up to be real Communists. To compel the mother to surrender her child to us, to the Soviet State, that is the practical task before us."

Thus Soviet institutions for children were established. The report of the Soviet Inspection for February, describing one of these institutions, the Rozdestvenskia Nursery in Petrograd says:

"The children, left to their own devices, under the supervision of inexperienced and rough - spoken nurses, with filthy clothing, pale from lack of sufficient nourishment, made a painful impression. The place itself, unventilated and poorly heated, fostered all manner of diseases and contributed to the exceedingly high rate of mortality among the children. In the course of three months the child population of that institution renewed itself to an extent of 90 per cent.

"In other words, nearly all of them were sent to the hospital, or, having failed even to reach the hospital, they perished while still at the Nursery."

The official Bolshevist organ on public health, Izvestia Zradvookhranenia, No. 11, gives the statistical data on mortality of children in Moscow, up to the age of 16 years, per 10,000 inhabitants, as follows: 1913, 81; 1915, 78; 1918, 100; 1919, 372; 1920, 400.

Analyzing the Bolshevist activities with regard to the children of Russia, the well-known Russian physician, Dr. Horn, said at the Pirogoff Medical Congress in Moscow:

"I am prepared to forgive the Bolsheviki a great many things, almost everything. . . . But one thing there is which I cannot and will not forgive them, namely, those experiments, positively criminal and unworthy of most savage tribes of the African jungle, which the Bolsheviki have been making all this time with our young generation, with our children! This crime knows no parallel throughout the history of the world! They have destroyed, morally as well as physically, a whole Russian generation; they have destroyed it irretrievably and, alas, beyond remedy!

NATIONALIZING OF PACKING BUSINESS IN SOUTH AMERICA

Proposal Would Affect North American Packing Interests.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 2.—A proposal that the governments of Uruguay, Argentina, Brazil and Paraguay take over by expropriation the packing houses in those countries has been made by a committee of the Uruguayan House of Representatives.

Most of the packing houses in those countries are controlled by foreign capital, a large part of which is North American. It is estimated that the total cost of such an undertaking wonuld be over $100,000,000 and that the cost in Uruguay alone would be $22,000,000.

The committee recommended that a convention of delegates of the four South American countries be held to arrange joint action and suggested the issuance of domestic and foreign loans to raise the funds necessary to acquire the packing houses.

It is proposed by the committee that the establishments be placed under the control of directors comprising cattle men and government officials in the respective countries. Another directorate would be formed of government representatives who would control the marketing of the products abroad and fix prices, acting jointly in all of the four nations.

LEAST EXERTION TIRED HIM OUT

TORONTO MAN SAYS HE WAS IN TERRIBLE CONDITION BEFORE HE BEGAN TAKING TANLAC.

Frank A. Collard, well-known employee of the James Morrison Brass Mfg. Co., and living at 150 Galt Ave., Toronto, is still another enthusiastic witness of the merits of Tanlac. In relating his experience recently, Mr. Collard said:

"For several months before I got Tanlac I was in a terribly run-down condition. My appetite went back on me, and my stomach was so upset that I often had to turn away from the table, for I just couldn't face anything to eat. Everything I did manage to eat seemed to sour and caused me awful pain and distress. I bloated until the gas pressure around my heart almost cut off my breath, and I was so weak that the least little exertion tired me out. I got up mornings feeling worse than when I went to bed the night before and was so dizzy that many times I had to steady myself to keep from falling.

"My sister-in-law got me to try Tanlac, and I began to improve on the very first bottle. My appetite picked up and that tired dizzy feeling went way. As my appetite grew my digestion became good and by the time I finished my third bottle of Tanlac I was feeling fine in every way. Tanlac is certainly a great medicine when it comes to making a person feel right and I can't speak too highly of it."

COLT FELL BACK ON ITS DRIVER

GROUND HOGS ARE VERY NUMEROUS

Farmers complain that woodchucks, or commonly called groundhogs, are more plentiful this season than they have been for years. In some localities they are naming a certain day for farmers to try to exterminate them. A few can be shot by constantly watching for them, and a good dog will soon make short work of them if he can get them far enough away from the hole. However, the surest way to get them is to poison them, and if you go to Lynch's drug store, 168 Hunter street, and get a bottle of CARBON BISULPHIDE, they will give you instructions how to use it.

OTTAWA, June 2. —"There is nothing to it," said Hon. R. W. The despatch stated that a tariff, had been put into effect by the Dominion Customs Department.

ROYAL LADIES IN RIGA WORK AS TYPISTS.

Titled Russians Will Do Anything to Escape Starvation.

RIGA, Latvia, May 10. — (By Mail.)—It is nothing unusual in Riga to have a Russian noblewoman as your stenographer. A business man can acquire the services of a countess in that capacity. Almost every diplomatic or consular mission in Riga has at least one princess or countess working as a typist.

If the supply of princesses and countesses fails, there remains a large number of other well-educated people, most of them unaccustomed to work, but now anxious to do anything to save themselves from starvation.

Men who have been general managers of big Russian factories are glad to take any kind of honorable employment here. The conditions of these refugees who have found shelter in the infant Baltic states shows how complete has been the financial downfall of the Russian nobility.

In Riga, Reval and other Baltic cities, princes, barons, counts and their families, accustomed for decades in Russia to lives of luxury, are living a hand-to-mouth existence. The possessions which they once had and which escaped confiscation by the Bolsheviki clutter up the shelves of second-hand dealers in these cities. Diamonds other jewels, fine tapestries and the countless costly trifles of a luxurious civilization have been sold by the refugees to get bread.

The correspondent was present a few nights ago at an entertainment for the benefit of some of these refugees—all members of the old Russian or Baltic nobility. Some of the more fortunate had saved their evening clothes. They were in sharp contrast to those who had not done so. Here and there were men in coats of one color, trousers of another and tan shoes or high boots. They danced with women as variously clad—some chic, in the latest modes, some in shirtwaists and skirts; still others in frocks obviously homemade or re-made.

The casual stranger dropping into Riga or Reval for a day or two would never find this poverty. Instead, he would find cafes, open all night, where foreigners, lucky because of the low rates of Latvian or Esthonian exchange, and local profiteers, tossed fat bank rolls of almost worthless rubles or marks to waiters, who counted only in hundreds of thousands.

A Canadian correspondent who advertised in a Riga newspaper, for a translator able to read, write and speak fluently English, Russian and German and with some knowledge of Lettish, received fifty-one replies by mail. The corridor before his room in the hotel was filled with men and women seeking to apply personally for the position. Most of them were so well educated that they could qualify not only in the four languages mentioned, but in others. They were either out of work, or receiving such small pay in their present employment that they were anxious to change.

Among the applicants were a former Colonel in one of the most aristocratic Petrograd guard regiments, a dozen other former officers, two men who had been managers of big Russian factories, and many other well-educated people.

TRAIN HIT RIG, A BRIDE AND GROOM KILLED

Brooklyn Man and Wife of Month Struck By Flyer.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., June 2. —Mrs. Leon Hardt Ulsted, bride of a month and her husband, both of Brooklyn, N.Y., were killed at Egg Harbor in broad daylight, when a buggy in which they were riding was tossed from the tracks by a speeding Camden-Atlantic City flyer of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The Ulsteds, whose Brooklyn address was 5 Fourth Place, were trying to beat the express over White Horse crossing. A mule drawing the buggy was decapitated and bits of it were strewn for a mile along the right of way.

Mrs. Ulsted would have escaped had she adhered to her intention to visit her mother in Brooklyn. Ulsted drove her to the Reading station and she bought a ticket. At the last moment she changed her mind and decided to return with her husband to the boarding house wheer they had been living while their own home was being built.

The two bodies were so tightly wedged in the forestructure of the locomotive that after the train had been brought to a jolting emergency stop it was found impossible to release them. The express then put on all speed to Cologne nearly three miles away, where mechanics quickly striped away a running board and freed them. They were dead.

Although there is a warning bell at the crossing and witnesses said the engineer sounded the usual approach whistle, Ulsted drove directly in front of the speeding train.

Startled beholders saw the mule and buggy tossed high in the air, bits falling on the other side of the track while the bodies of the Ulsteds vanished, caught on the front of the engine.

The crash caused great excitement in Egg Harbour and the scene of the tragedy soon was crowded.

The bodies were removed at Cologne and taken in charge by a local

FIRST TRIAL OF GROUP SYSTEM IN NOVA SCOTIA LEGISLATURE CLOSES

LIBERAL GOVERNMENT OF 29 MEMBERS FACED BY 14 FARMERS, LABORITES AND CONSERVATIVES.

HALIFAX, N.S.—June 1.—(Canadian Press).—The session of the Nova Scotia House of Assembly just concluded, was the first in which representatives of the Province were divided into class groups. The twenty-nine Liberal supporters of the Government which has been headed by Hon. George H. Murray for the past twenty-five years, faced the varied elements of farmer, labor and "people's" parties instead of the solid Conservative opposition which since Confederation —with the exception of a four year period—has sought in vain to wrest the reins of power from the governments successively lead by Joe Howe, W. T. Pipp, W. S. Fielding and the present Premier. The opposition was composed of seven farmer members, four labor members and three former Conservatives who took the name of the "People's" party and united under the leadership of H. W. Corning (Yarmouth). D. G. MacKenzie, farmer member for Cumberland led the farmer-labor group. On most issues the elements in opposition united their votes, but individual farmers frequently took independent action.

The echoes of a recent enquiry by a Royal Commission into expenditures of Federal Aid Road monies which resulted in an expression of dissatisfaction with the Highway Board appointed by the Provincial Government to oversee the execution of a five year programme of road-building involving some $13,000,000, were audible throughout the session. A resolution censuring the Government on the score of its administration of highways monies was supported by the entire opposition but defeated by a Government majority.

On May 23, Empire Day, all members of the House paid tribute to Hon. George H. Murray, Prime Minister of Nova Scotia since July 20, 1896, almost a quarter of a century of continuous service, a record unique in the annals of the British Empire. The House unanimously passed a resolution of congratulation and appreciation and a bill providing that on his retirement Mr. Murray should receive the yearly sum of five thousand dollars, his present salary. The Premier had been absent from this Province the greater part of the session recuperating from a recent illness, and Hon. H. E. Armstrong, Minister of Mines and Public Works, had been leading the Government.

By resolution the House of Assembly asked the Federal Government to make interest on monies funded to provide bounties for Canadian fishermen in 1882, available for purposes of technical education for fishermen.

Other legislation passed included:

An Act to consolidate game fishery and forest laws and to combine these services under one head; to provide for additional fire-ranging services; to provide for a big game gun license.

An Act to provide for consolidation and revision of public laws which have not been revised since 1900.

An Act to increase the amount of municipal tax for maintenance of highways from forty to sixty cents per hundred dollars property assessment.

An Act making it necessary for chiropractors to meet the requirements of the Provincial medical board. This regulation will not go into effect for one year.

An Act ratifying exchange of shares as provided for in the British Empire Steel merger, but providing that such ratification must be sanctioned by the Governor-in-Council

An Act to increase the salaries of cabinet minister from $5,000 to $6,000.

A total of two hundred and thirty-one bills were considered by the House.

The great bell of Moscow, the largest bell in the world, has never been rung. It cracked in the casting and now stands on a pedestal in the Kremlin.

PROTECTION FOR TAX COLLECTOR

FINANCE COMMITTEE OF CITY COUNCIL MET LAST EVENING.

Police protection for the city tax collector on rush days is desired by the Finance Committee and in a motion last night the chairman was authorized to ask the Chief Constable for such protection when the taxes are pouring in. Ald. J. J. Turner brought up the matter, pointing out that in view of the epidemic of bold hold-ups that have occurred it would be well to have adequate protection this year. In the past Tax Collector J. W. Green has used an electric bell, when necessary to summon a policeman but this system might not be efficacious if there was a robbery or hold-up with a show of urged taking every precaution. This urged takin gevery precaution. This was the only action of any interest by the committee.

10 Pure Linen Table Cloths Regular $11.75 Value for $7.39

We were fortunate in securing these 10 Cloths at quite a saving on the regular price. They are made by on of the best weavers in Belfast, Ireland, every thread being pure linen and all standardized patterns. The reason we are able to offer them at this price is that they have very slight imperfections and so failed to come up to the high standard of perfection demanded by the makers, but on close examination by us we find that these imperfections are scarcely noticeable. There are no broken threads, or anything that would interfere with the great wearing qualities for which these Cloths are famous—in fact, there is nothing but what the first laundering will eliminate. They are just under 2 yards square and there are five patterns to choose from, some suitable for round tables. The regular value is $11.75. Saturday's price is, each $7.39

DR. PEEBLES ATTRIBUTES HIS LONG LIFE TO HIS ABSTINENCE FROM ANIMAL FLESH

SAYS HE IS GOING TO LIVE A NUMBER OF YEARS MORE AND WRITE A BOOK ON HOW PREACHERS ARE LEAVING "HELL, FIRE AND BRIMSTONE" DOGMAS BEHIND.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., June 1.—(Associated Press).—Dr. James Martin Peebles, physician and author, who not along ago celebrated his 99th birthday anniversary and who wrote a book on "How to Live a Century and Grow Old Gracefully," ascribes his long life in large measure to abstinence from eating animal flesh. Dr. Peebles stopped eating meat when he was 39 years old. He wrote his book on the rules of living when he was 62.

Asked what he considered the greatest contributory cause to his long life he instantly replied:

"One cannot strengthen life by living on death. I cannot bear the idea of eating dead cows and dead hogs; and it is not necessary. See how strong are horses and oxen; they do not live on dead flesh." Other rules he made for himself and which he believed had helped him to reach his advanced years included

"Go to bed every night at 8.30. Out of bed every morning at six. Never use tobacco. Never use intoxicating liquors. Never complain.

"Avoid all worry and keep an harmonious mind. Worry is among the worst things in the world. Have a strong will-power. Always look for the new. Keep calm".

On his 99th birthday, Dr. Peebles walked erect only occasionally using a cane; his sight was good although he used spectacles for reading; his hearing "as good as ever", and his appetite and digestion he declared excellent. His long white beard and hair gave him a truly venerable appearance.

Asked what his plans for the future were he replied:

"To live a number of years more and to write at least another book. This will be on the progress of Christianity as it is preached, showing how preachers are leaving hell fire, brimstone, purgatory and many other old-time dogmas behind.

"What a variety of mighty changes since my birth!" he exclaimed. "Napoleon then had just died on the Island of St. Helena; old 'Hickory Jackson', as he was then called, had just been elected President of the United States; Ohio was then a budding state and the great wide west was dotted with Indian wigwams.

"Later came telegraph, telephones, railroads, electric lights and machinery, wireless flashes on ocean and land, airships sailing through the skies and automobiles dashing madly across the continent.

"There is life in everything. Crush the acorn to earth and the germ looks towards the mountains. In every marble block there is an angel's form awaiting the sculptor's chisel. God is good. There is no absolute evil in the universe, because God made it."

Dr. Peebles was born March 23, 1822 at Whitingham, Vt., and was graduated from Oxford Academy, Chenango County, N.Y., in 1841. He has travelled around the earth five times.

METHODIST PASTOR EXPELS PORT HOPE EDITOR FROM CHURCH

Strained Relations of Some Time Between "Guide" and Rev. C. S. Applegath Reach a Climax.

Strained relations between The Port Hope Guide, of which Mr. F. W. Wilson is the head, and Rev. C. S. Applegath, pastor of the Methodist Church, have evidently reached a climax in Mr. Wilson's name having been expunged from the membership roll of the church.

"When Mr. Applegath assumed the pastorate here in 1919 he very kindly presumed to 'run' The Guide. He applied to be engaged as editor at a salary. Failing in that, he wanted to purchase a controlling interest in the office. Failing that, he offered to edit The Guide, if the office would assure him other considerations which The Guide could not legally carry out. It was evident that the reverend gentleman's sole object in being accepted as a regular contributor to The Guide was self-laudation and self-advertisement. When The Guide declined to be used for that purpose, the reverend gentleman replied: 'Well, you will see that I can fight, too.'

"Twice The Guide has been the subject of untruthful attacks from the pulpit by Mr. Applegath. He has put forth his best efforts to ruin our business. He has untruthfully stated that the heads of the Methodist Church in Toronto authorized him to bring about the closing of this office. We have gone about the even tenor of our way, paying little attention to the vagaries of the reverend gentleman. Had we taken another course it might probably have been in the public interest. But we have refrained, not wishing to widen the breach and force personal questions into a public issue. We are compelled now, in order not to accept a permanent and very serious injustice at the hands of this ministerial autocrat, to take action. The following letter outlines the course which our Mr. Wilson is now committed to. It is high time that the Methodist Church authorities shall become aware of the situation that has been created in Methodist circles by the indifference to his ministerial responsibilities, and the characteristic vagaries which find greater interest in other walks of life than in the pastoral work in which Rev. C. S. Applegath is supposed to be engaged:

"Port Hope, Ont.
"June 1st, 1921.

"Rev. Charles Sinclair Applegath,
"Pastor Methodist Church,
"Port Hope.

"Sir,—I am informed by an official member of the Methodist Church that at a meeting of the Quarterly Board held on Monday, May 30th, 1921, you then and there expunged my name from the list of membership of the church.

"This act of yours is, in every respect, illegal. Neither by the discipline of the Methodist Church, nor under the civil laws of the Province, are your permitted to exercise plenary authority of this character.

"I have been a member of the Methodist Church in good standing for about forty years, as well as a Trustee for many years. I do not intend to submit to your illegal, vindictive and unChristian action.

"Therefore, unless I am informed by you within twenty-four hours that the said unwarranted action referred to has been nullified, and that my name is again entered upon the official roll of membership of the Port Hope Methodist Church, I shall appeal at once to the court of the church for reinstatement, with judgment against you for all costs and expenses that may be incurred by me in this matter.

"Yours truly,
"F. W. WILSON."

FREAK PLANT IS FOUND IN SOUTHWEST AFRICA

One of the queerest plants in the world is the welswitschia, which grows in Southwest Africa. The body of the plant resembles an enormous radish and is sometimes 12 to 15 feet in circumference. From this grow two long leaves, which trail on the ground and are usually split into numerous ribbons. These are the only leaves produced, and they last through the lifetime of the plant, which is said to reach more than 100 years.

The colonial authorities maintion of this rare and remarkable plant.

According to a census taken for taxation purposes, Germany now possesses 3,731 picture places, divided between 2,104 towns.

SOVIETS CLAIM GREAT VICTORY

ASSERT ANTI-BOLSHEVISTS ANNIHILATED AT VLADIVOSTOK AND UKRANIANS SCATTERED IN SOUTH.

JAPS AIDED ANTI-REDS

STOCKHOLM, June 3.—(Canadian Press.)—Anti-Bolshevik forces at Vladivosock have been annihilated by Soviet troops, it is asserted in a despatch sent out by the Russian Official Telegraph Agency. The despatch asserts that the anti-Bolsheviki were raided by the Japanese government. General Budenny, the Bolshevik cavalry leader, who played a prominent part in the campaign against the Poles and against General Wrangel, has reported that the Ukrainian troops which were threatening to attack the Bolsheviki in Southern Russian, have been scattered.

INCREASED DEMAND FOR M'LAUGHLIN'S

THEIR POPULARITY GROWING IN PETERBOROUGH.

It is freely stated that more McLaughlin automobiles are being sold this season than ever. That statement is substantiated by the local dealers, Messrs. A. Brown & Co., of 383 Water Street. This firm has done a remarkable business during the past six weeks. A conservative estimate has been made that, since the last night of the recent Motor Show, April 17th, upwards of $40,000 worth of new McLaughlin business has been put through by the firm of A. Brown & Co. While it would seem as if the Motor Show had proved a stimulant to sales, there can be little doubt that the present McLaughlin car management is forging business ahead with celerity, and that the campaign in Peterborough is in good hands.

FUEL CONTROLLER IS SUGGESTED.

Ontario Is In Bad Position For Its Coal.

OTTAWA, June 2.—The appointment of a Government officer for the purpose of keeping in close touch with the fuel situation in Canada, and with sufficient power to cope with any emergency which may arise, in order that the Canadian people may suffer no inconvenience through fuel shortage is urged in the report of the Special House Committee on Canada's fuel resources. The committee recommends that this officer should have authority to enquire into all phases of the fuel situation and to select such experts as he may deem necessary to carry on work entrusted to him.

Other recommendations by the committee are:

The development of the water powers to the greatest possible extent in order to supply Hydro Electrical energy to industrial plants.

Encouragement of transportation of coal by water, and efforts to reduce the cost of such water transportation.

Encouragement of the use by domestic consumers by domestic coal, coke, peat and briquettes instead of imported anthracite.

That all consumers be urged to purchase their coal in the early summer, when transportation facilities are at their best, and that transportation companies be asked to assist by granting a substantial reduction in freight rates at such periods. The Canadian coal operators be urged to produce and store at suitable points in Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba, large quantities of coal, with a view to the manufacture of coke and by-products, and as a substitute for imported anthracite.

That a campaign of education be carried on to teach the people of Canada to use Canadian coal wherever possible, and instructing them in the best methods of doing so.

"Ontario," says the report, "is, unfortunately, at present almost entirely dependent on the U. S. for her coal supply, and is in such a position that a prolonged strike in the U. S. mines, or the development of such a situation as would prevent the export of coal from the country, would find Ontario cut off from its usual source of supply. In such an emergency the present production of coal in Canada is entirely insufficient to supply the needs of the people of Ontario, if the transportation of the same were practicable."

BLONDE MAN BROKE BANK SIX TIMES.

CANNES, France, June 1.—One of the most remarkable events in the history of Monte Carlo took place during my visit to the rooms yesterday, writes a visitor to the famous resort.

A tall blonde man, accompanied by a woman, began playing roulette with such extraordinary luck that he soon, with the aid of a coupler, began making bets on two tables at once, and broke banks of 65,000 francs each six times in succession, finally retiring a winner if 350,000 francs (nominally £44,000).

His winnings caused such excitement that other players ceased playing to watch his play, and followed his bets with breathless interest, applauding vigorously as he gathered in his winnings.

It was learned that he was a Dane, on his first visit to Monte Carlo.

PARTED 28 YEARS, AGED PAIR RE-WED.

TRENTON, N.J., June 2.—An estrangement of twenty-eight years ended here recently for Mrs. Rachel Davis Wells Elmore of Philadelphia 72 years old, and Henry Clay Wells, 75 years old, when they were re-married by the Rev. Charles P. Hughes, pastor of the Pilgrim Presbyterian church at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson 518 Princeton avenue.

James Simpsan of 1,244 Genesee street, who was responsible for bringing the aged couple together last Wednesday, was best man. Mrs. Anderson was bridesmaid. When he ceremony was ended the bridegroom kissed the bride with the same spirit one of 21 years might be expected to kiss a blushing bride of 20.

The first wedding of the couple took place in 1868 in Philadelphia. In 1886 there was a quarrel which Mr. Wells now admits he caused, and an uncontested divorce followed Mrs. Wells then was married to George Ellmore of Philadelphia, and lived with him until his death six year later.

Mr. Wells recently told Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, who are active workers at the City Rescue Mission, of his love for his former wife and arrangements were made to bring the estranged couple together. This was accomplished last Wednesday and then followed a short courtship, the procurinug of a marriage license and Saturday's wedding.

START TOMORROW AND KEEP IT UP EVERY MORNING

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath"? you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles according to hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood, causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

ERECTING SIGN POSTS BELOW SEA LEVELS.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., June 1. — Death Valley is to be made "foolproof" for motorists and others, according to plans announced for the placing of 1200 signposts within the next three weeks by the automobile Club of Southern California. Death Valley is said to be the only place in the Western Hemisphere below sea level.

INTIMATE GLIMPSES OF MOVIE LAND

Billie Burke will return to the stage in the fall. Her husband, Flo Ziegfeld, will present her in a musicalized version of the comedy, "Good Gracious Annabelle," and will also sponsor her picture activities.

When Tom Moore first went into the "movies" he used a pseudonym, because, as he explained it, it was at a time when actors thought "movie" work would hurt their legitimate careers. "Tom Moore," by the way, is the star's real, honest-to-goodness name.

Pauline Frederick is to return to the stage again next season under the management of A. H. Woods. Miss Frederick, it is understood, is to remarry Willard Mack, from whom she was divorced.

William Desmond, Barbara Castleton and Lewis Stone are all in "The Child Thou Gavest Me."

Charley Ray is the favorite "movie" star of Governor Henry Allen of Kansas.

"See 'at party ovah there?" said "Dad," pointing to a darkey extra. "Well, he am the luckiest an' the stingiest man in the whole world."

"How's that?" asked the star.

"He found $10,000 worth o' cocktails," was the answer, "an' drank 'em both."

President and Mrs. Harding witnessed a private showing of the Rex Ingram production for Metro of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" at the I street residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean, in Washington recently.

The entertainment, whose feature was the special exhibition of the picturization of the masterpiece of Vicente Blasco Ibanez, was an exclusive one. Among the few other guests besides President and Mrs. Harding were Attorney-General and Mrs. Daugherty.

"Lefty" Flynn and May Collins both celebrated their birthdays last week, and on the same date—the 26th of May. "Lefty" is now one of Goldwyn's stock players, and May, reported fiancee of Charlie Chaplin, is appearing in a recently completed Goldwyn picture, "All's Fair in Love."

Bessie Love's next picture will be "Penny of Tophill Trail." Wheeler Oakman is her leading man.

Anita Stewart says she will make Los Angeles her permanent home. She has bought a beautiful home there and will sell her big home at Brightwaters, Long Island.

Zena Keefe finished another picture with Conway Tearle a few days ago.

Selznick is the only company now producing pictures at Fort Lee. All the other studios are empty and deserted.

Harold Lloyd has stopped making two-reel comedies and is all ready to bust loose with his first three-reeler.

Ann Forrest put in an appearance at the Lasky studio last week looking none the worse for her recent operation for appendicitis. She will play the feminine lead in "The Great Impersonation."

Bert Lytell claims to possess the most versatile smock ever worn by an artist. He wore it first in Metro's "Lombardi, Ltd."; later he loaned it to Rudolph Valentino to use in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." It will make its next appearance as a garment worn by Gareth Hughes in "Life's Darn Funny."

Direct from that fashion centre of filmland, Los Angeles, comes the absorbing information that skirts are hitting the downward trail. According to Sophie Wachner, head of the Goldwyn costume department, they're wearing 'em lower in Paris this very minute—from five to seven inches being esteem the proper distance from the ground.

It may be a full year before that extreme fashion prevails again over here, but inasmuch as the screen's clothes experts must work a year ahead of time, Miss Wachner is already adding from seven to ten inches to all the new frocks in the Goldwyn wardrobe. That's the simplest part of it, however, she says sadly—making the skirts longer. Persuading her people to wear them is—well, something else again.

Grace Darmond, featured star of the new Rockett picture, "Handle With Care," contemplates a tour of Canada to make personal appearances at the motion picture theatres, her tour to extend from coast to coast and as far north as Saskatoon.

Miss Darmond is a native of Canada, having chosen Toronto as her birthplay. Her mother will accompany her on the trip, which will open at Toronto, extend into the eastern Provinces and thence westward and northwestward, ending at Winnipeg, where Miss Darmond's father is buried.

He celebrated his thirty-eighth anniversary Monday, and doesn't care who knows it.

The presents he got were both useful and unique. There was a slide for his outdoor plunge at the Beverly home, two one-man boats and a Bedouin tent, all from Mrs. Mary Pickford Fairbanks. And besides all this, she gave him a made-to-order Pompeian day bed for his den. This is said to be one of the most expensive pieces of furniture of its kind ever built.

Another much-appreciated present consisted of a large parchment plaque bearing a photograph of Doug as D'Artagnan with a tribute to the star, written by Edward Knoblock, world-famed dramatist, and below this the signature of every member of the Fairbanks studio organization.

Then there was the usual list of trick saddle from Bennie Zeidman; a rubber purse from John Fairbanks, business manager for Doug; a pair of tickets to a good "movie" from Roger Lewis, magazine writer; three indestructible dog biscuits for Doug's police dog from brother Robert, and, of course, many others.

QUESTION DAD CAN ANSWER.

And Ma's Help Is Not Needed.

Here's a question for your father, youngster, a query about circuses.

Ask him what circus was middle-aged before any other now traveling had come to life. Ask him what circus has blazed the way for others year in and year out for little short of a century, getting just a little bigger, just a little better, just a little more magnificent each season, and he will tell you John Robinson's, the pioneer of all tented shows.

Ninety-eight years ago, to be exact, John Robinson, the First, conveived the idea of a traveling show for the amusement of the people, something which would arouse enough interest to keep them talking and wishing for a return of the show each year. From the very start the organization determined to meet the approval of a particular public, and never has this determination been diverged from. When the first John Robinson Circus rattled its way, on wagons, across the rough country roads, it carried the best circus talent obtainable, and although this great organization has grown to such proportions to-day as to make the original enterprise seem ridiculous by comparison, the keynote of "quality" has been adhered to rigidly. The world contains no better performers than those secured by the Robinson management for this season, and big things are promised citizens of Peterborough when this famous circus visits here on Thursday, June 16th.

Two performances will be given, at 2 and 8 p.m., preceeded by the regular street parade, said to surpass any similar procession ever held. The doors will open an hour before each performance, to enable the public to carefully examine the large menagerie carried by the organization. According to reports, many oddities are to be seen in the way of newly acquired animals, and, of course, no circus fan will want to miss it.

RULES JOINT PURCHASE OF LIQUOR LEGAL.

Although Many Dogs Are Yet Unlicensed.

BELLEVILLE, June 1. — Police Magistrate Masson solved a knotty problem in the science of O.T.A. when he ruled in court here that a joint purchase of liquor was legal.

Robert Stewart of Thurlow, had been charged with having liquor in a place other than his usual dwelling place. Inspector Naphin laid the information.

In February last a case of liquor was ordered in the name of James Thompson of Point Anne. It appears from the evidence that Stewart and Thompson went joint shares for the liquor. The stuff was received at Point Anne, and was divided, half being conveyed to Stewart's place in Thurlow.

Magistrate Masson held that a joint purchase could be made and that Stewart could lawfully take the liquor to his own home.

COAL DIGGERS REJECT OFFER OF THE GOVT.

LONDON, June 3. — (Canadian Press Flash.)—The Executive body of the striking coal miners to-day finally rejected the Government's proposals for settlement of the coal strike.

DEAD MAN AT THROTTLE OF HUGE ENGINE.

Not long ago, bumping over a network of frogs and switches, the Limited express on a great transcontinental railway sped into the terminal station at a large city with the engineer dead at his post. He sat in his accustomed place, his sightless eyes riveted on the track ahead of him; his nerveless fingers still gripped the throttle. So lifelike was his position that the fireman who had become alarmed at the undiminished speed as they neared the station, shook him roughly before he realised that the man was dead. He shut off the steam and applied the brakes just in time to avert a terrible catastrophe.

A dead man at the throttle! How many calamities in life can be traced to men in a like condition? God has given each of us the charge of a wonderful machine—the human body with its complex mechanism through which act out physical, mental, and moral forces. We are each an engineer, and each of us must drive his machine along the destined path between the eternities.

Many meet with catastrophies. We cannot always explain them, but how many times the cause is — a dead man at the throttle! He sits in his accustomed place with his eyes fixed on the track ahead, but he is dead nevertheless to all thought of moral or spiritual responsibility. There are helpless people on the track before him; there is a long train of unborn generations coming after him; but he does not see or think or feel.

It is one of the mystifying truths of life that a man can be outwardly alive although inwardly dead. His mind may be keen and his senses alert, though he is dead in heart and soul. It would be better for the world if he were physically dead; for while he remains physically alive he is still an engineer in control of dangerous forces — forces that he cannot use with consideration for others or as He who entrusted with them intended them to be used. The powers it was his duty to control are great; uncontrolled, they are a curse rather than a blessing. Ungoverned by principle and love of others, they are sure to bring tragedy and suffering to everyone in their path.—Youth's Companion.

SUPERSTITIONS ON FATAL 13.

French Club Defied All Legends as to Its Ill Effects.

PARIS, June 2.—Here is a true story of the adventures of the Marseilles Thirteen Club in testing the thirteen superstition. The club is composed of 13 members, whose birthdays are all on the 13th of the month. On the 13th day of each month they meet and sit down to dine, 13 at a table.

So far no misfortune has befallen any of them, but to try fortune still further on Friday, May 13, of the year, the numerals of which added together give the figure 13, they tried a new experiment. They hired an automobile which bore the number 13 and drove to Monte Carlo. They arrived there at noon and paid a visit to the Casino. At 13 minutes past 13 o'clock, (1.13 p.m., according to American reckoning) they all staked 1,300 francs on No. 13 on the roulette board.

That is where the reader must hold his breath. Some of the players say that the ball made 13 turns of the wheel before it fell—into No. 13. Each of the 13 players won 46,800 francs, a total of 608,400 francs.

With so much money in their pockets it was to be expected that they would invite some friends to join the party. But no; those faithful disciples of 13 took luncheon by themselves and carried thier programme to the end. They paid 1,300 francs for the luncheon and returned safely home in their No. 13 automobile.

RETURNS IN TIME TO SAVE HIS WIFE.

OTTAWA, June 3. — Mr. Joseph Hayes returned home from the funeral of Fire Chief Graham, to find his wife lying unconscious in the kitchen, a blanket over her head with the door locked and three gas jets running full blast, in their home on Clarence street. First aid was administered by Dr. R. H. Parent and Sergt. Cunningham of the Police Department, and the woman rushed to the Water street Hospital, where she recovered consciousness, and is now on the way to complete recovery. Mr. and Mrs. Hayes had lost their only child about two years ago, and since that time Mrs. Hayes has been despondent. When found in an unconscious state, Mrs. Hayes had tucked in her blouse the picture of her son who died.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 3 (Canadian Press).—Leading stocks were under further pressure at the dull opening of to-day's session, yesterday's money flurry provoking renewed selling for both accounts.

Equipment, shipping, food, tobacco, and motor specialties were lower by fractions to a full point. Firmness was shown by Crucible Steel, Harvester, and Cuba Cane Sugar.

Rails and the more popular industrials and oils were neglected in the early dealings.

Exchange on London was slightly over yesterday's final quotation.

The absence of supporting orders enabled shorts to bring about further depression among Shippings, Motor subsidiaries and Food specialties during the morning. Mercantile Marine Preferred, Bosch Magneto, Stromberg Carburet, United States Rubber, American Sugar Preferred, Beet Sugar, National Biscuit, United Drug, Remington Typewriter and American Snuff lost 1 3-4 to 5½ points. Among the speculative favorites, Baldwin Locomotive and American Petroleum reflected pronounced heaviness. The buying of low-priced Rails, American Woollen and Famous Players was attributed to pools. Call money opened and renewed into next week at 7½ per cent.

The sensational feature of the mid-session was the sharp break of 13 points in Cuba Cane Sugar Preferred, following the announcement of the passing of the dividend. Elsewhere substantial additions to the declines of the morning were registered.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 3. — (Canadian Press).—General selling on the part of houses with eastern connections led to a sharp break in wheat prices to-day, after values had again touched a new high record for the season. It was said the continued upturn in quotations had made exporters hesitant, besides weather conditions appeared to give some advantage to bears, and there was considerable disposition to regard the recent estimates of the 1921 yield as too small. Opening prices, which varied from unchanged figures to 1¼c higher, were followed by a quick set-back to 1.38.

Corn was depressed by the renewal of large receipts, arrivals here being estimated at 700 cars. After opening unchanged to 5-8c lower, the market underwent a material sag all around.

Oats declined in sympathy with other grains, starting 1-8 to ¼ up, July 42 to 42 1-8, and then dropping to well below yesterday's finish. Lower quotations on hogs pulled down provisions.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, June 3.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange firm; demand 3.89, cables 3.89 3-4; Canadian dollars 10 3-4 per cent. discount.

AMENDMENT TO LIMIT THE WORK OF JUDGES

May serve on Conciliation Boards and Provincial Commissions

OTTAWA, May 31.—The Senate and Commons endeavored this morning to reach an understanding upon the judges act amendment which has ben proposed by the former body. Last session when the judges salaries were increased it was provided that they should receive no extra compensation for work done on commissions or boards. Some new amendments were this year provided that judges should not sit on commissions or boards at all, but should devote all their time to their judical duties.

A deadlock between the two houses on the amendment arose and a conference was called this morning in an effort to effect a compromise. It was proposed that outside work of judges should be limited to boards of conciliation or arbitration and possibly to provincial commissions. On this compromise the Senate will probably agree.

TO BECOME MORMONS.

Party of 29 Young English Girls Arrive at Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 3.—A party of twenty-nine, mostly composed of handsome young girls, bound for the Mormon colony of Latter Day Saints at Salt Lake City, Utah, arrived in Montreal on board the Pretorian from England.

They were met by Rev. John Chisholm, Presbyterian dock missionary, who is an old-time enemy of their sect, and who did his utmost to dissuade the party from proceeding on their journey. He was not successful, however.

Missing their train, they applied to the Travellers' Aid, and were sent to the St. Andrew's Home, where it was thought they were a party of English immigrants. They were only too glad to accept the Home's hospitality, notwithstanding the fact that is is under the supervision of the Church of England.

CHEMIST REALIZES HOPE OF AGES.

Makes Precious Metals Out of Common Element.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Dr. Charles Benson Davis, of this city, in a paper which he has just submitted to the Engineering Foundation, asserts he has solved the problem of manufacturing gold. He declares that he has already successfully demonstrated the possibility of making gold and other chemical elements, such as silver, platinum and copper, by transmutation of a common element.

He has shown samples of the metals he declares he has made to members of the Engineering Foundation, and has rquested that body to investigate his methods. ..... Dr. Davis is a well known chemist, and has a high standing in his profession. He is a member of the Chemical Society of Industry, a Fellow of the British Chemical Society, and an honorary member of the Societe Academique d'Histoire Internationale. He is the author of several papers which have been published in chemical journals.

DISAGREE WITH ARCHDEACON

The Brockville Trades and Labor Council, at its last meeing, raised objection to the statement of Ven. Archdeacon Mackintosh, of Guelph, who expressed fear that the Church would suffer should labor secure the upper hand with its present leaders. The Council pointed out the difference between destructive and constructive labor leaders and took exception to Archdeacon Mackintosh's assertions.

BASEBALL

An interesting game of ball was played last night in the King Edward school grounds when the South End Field Rats defeated the Morning Glories 20-4. The Morning Glories did not blossom forth in any grandiloquent manner. The Rats were in good form, doing some strong slugging. Shaughnessy pitching for the Rats, fanned ten "Glories." Shaughnessy and Miller were the Rats' battery, while Jackson and Birdgenaw threw the ball at each other for the Morning Glories.

German-made razors imitating a well-known American make have been landed in New York at cost of 32 cents.

WEDDING BELLS

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday, June 1st, at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, when Dorothy Aimee, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hartshorn, Stewart Street, was united in marriage to Mr. Gordon Victor Hartshorn of this city, the Rev. R. Pogue officiating. The bride was daintily dressed in white silk crepe-de-chine, bridal veil, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Her sister Miss Muriel Hartshorn, acted as bridesmaid, wearing white with large black hat, and carried a bouquet of sweet peas. Miss Olive Hartshorn, sister of the bride, and Miss Grace Irons, maids of honour, wore pink, with large black hats, corsage bouquet of pink carnations. Mr. Wallace Mulligan assisted the groom. Mr. Fred Hartshorn, brother of the groom, played the wedding march, and during the signing of the register Miss Elsie Wells sang very sweetly an appropriate solo.

The guests returned to the bride's home where a dainty luncheon was served. They were the recipients of many beautiful and costly gifts, showing the high esteem in which they were held. Amid showers of confetti, the happy couple left on the noon train for a short honeymoon.

GENTILLE—GOSELIN

A pretty wedding took place at seven o'clock this morning at the Church of the Sacred Heart, when Miss Teresa Goselin, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isidore Goselin, 513 Romaine street, Peterboro, was united in marriage to Mr. Joseph Gentille, of Peterboro. The bride, charmingly attired in cream satin and lace with veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses, entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding March, played by Mr. W. Armstrong. The bridesmaid Mrs. Boyde Wilkinson, sister of the bride, was dressed in white satin, with picture hat and carried pink carnations. The bride's parents, who also celebrated the 35th anniversary of their marriage to-day, had their marriage reblessed by Rev. J. J. O'Brien, after the nuptial ceremony after which a dainty breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Gentille left on the 3.20 train for Toronto. They will reside at 471 Parnell street, Peterboro.

COMMON—PARKER.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Trinity Church at noon today, when Miss Helen Madelon Parker, daughter of Mrs. A. Parker, Park Street, Peterborough, was united in marriage to Mr. John James Common, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Common, of Toronto. The pulpit was beautifully decorated with ferns and crimson peonies. Rev. F. E. Malott performed the ceremony, and Mr. Robert Parker, of Hamilton, the bride's brother, gave her away. Miss Parker's wedding gown was of honeydew georgette, beautifully embroidered. She wore a large black hat of tulle, trimmed with water-lilies, and carried Ophelia roses, with white streamers. Miss Ola Parker, her bridesmaid, wore orchid georgette, with brocade sash, with a hat of orchid, and carried an immense bouquet of variegated sweet peas and orchids.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Wm. Common, of Toronto. Mr. Geo. H. King played the wedding march, and, during the signing of the register, "Until" was sweetly rendered by Miss Dorothy Young, of Toronto, in orchid and white, and Mrs. Robt. Parker, of Hamilton, in grey and blue canton crepe. Mrs. Parker wore blue charmeuse with flowered ninon overdrape and large black maline hat, and Mrs. W. G. Common, the groom's mother, was attired in brown taffeta with georgette and black hat.

After the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride, 384 Park Street, to the immediate relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Common then motored to Madola Lodge, at Lovesick, Stoney Lake, where the honeymoon will be spent, the bride travelling in a suit of Pekin blue silk jersey, with small hat of grey georgette and straw braid, trimmed with French flowers. The young couple will reside at 1362 Davenport Road, Toronto.

The groom's gift to the bride was a rope of pearls, to the bridesmaid a gold bangle, and to the groomsman a signet ring. A profusion of useful and beautiful gifts testified to the esteem in which the bride was held by relatives and friends.

NEW DISHWASHER TO HELP THE HOUSEWIFE.—With the aid of only hot water, dishes placed in a wire rack and set into the drum are made clean and spotless in two minutes. A hose, connected to the hot water faucet, shoots off the grease as a whirling stream of steaming water shoots down from above and up from the bottom. The water drains from the washer as quickly as it flows in, carrying the grease and refuse from the dishes into the sink and off into the drain. The dishes come out clean and almost dry. No soap is used.

CHEMICAL MEN OF GREAT BRITAIN TO MEET HERE.

Sessions in Montreal and United States—Elaborate Preparations Under Way

NEW YORK, June 3.—(Canadian Press). — Canadian chemistry experts will play a prominent part in a series of scientific conferences to be held this autumn, according to an announcement issued at the Chemists' Club of New York. Meetings to be held by leading chemists of the Dominion, of Great Britain and the United States, it is declared, will result in giving a fresh impetus to chemistry on the American continent.

In Montreal.

The functions begin with the arrival of members of the Society of Chemical Industry of Great Britain, which, departing from its usual custom, will meet on this side of the Atlantic. The members will join with the Canadian branch of their organization in sessions to be held in Montreal late in August. Their official quarters will be the Windsor Hotel, while the scientific and business sessions will centre at McGill University, where there will be a special convocation. The Canadian and British chemists will then inspect numerous plants in Montreal, and on Thursday, September 1st, will visit the plants of the Laurentide Company at Grand Mere and the Belgo-Canadian Company at Shawinigan Falls.

On Labor Day.

On the afternoon of Labor Day the members will cross the border into the United States. They will be met by a committee of the U. S. section of their society and conducted through the industrial plants at Niagara Falls. Dinner will be served at Buffalo, after which the visitors and their hosts will leave on a special train for the east. On their arrival, September 6th, at Syracuse, they will have luncheon with the Solvay Process Company, and make a tour of the large factory of this corporation. The chemists will then go to Albany, and from there take the night boat down the Hudson to New York City.

The visitors will be welcomed next day by members of the U. S. section of the Society of Chemical Industry, who will be their hosts at a luncheon.

The Reception.

Elaborate preparations for the reception of the Canadian and Old Country chemists will be carried out as now being planned by the various societies through the Co-ordinating Committee, of which Dr. B. C. Hesse is chairman and Dr. Allan Rogers is secretary. The festivities, meetings and entertainments which will follow are designed to bring into closer bonds all chemists of Anglo-Saxon stock.

The fall meeting of the American Chemical Society, which includes 15,50 members, is to be held here from September 6th to 10th, inclusive. The first contact between the visiting members of the two great organizations which represent chemistry in three lands, will be a lawn party to be given on the afternoon of September 7th to foreign guests and to scientific societies at Columbia University. Other societies of a scientific nature have been asked to participate in the welcoming of the visitors from abroad.

Scientific sessions of the American Chemical Society, in which many vital matters concerning chemical research and applied chemistry will be discussed, are to be held at Columbia University, its official headquarters. To all of these meetings the Canadian and Old Country chemists have been invited. They will also be present at the banquet of the American Chemical Society on the evening of September 9th at its hotel headquarters, the Waldorf-Astoria.

Social Activity.

An interlude devoted to social activity on September 10th with plenty of golf and tea, and on the 11th a boat excursion will fill in the time before the next event.

The fortnight beginning September 12th will be dedicated to chemistry in all its phases, for it marks the holding of the National Exposition of Chemical Industries, which is to be held in a large armory here. There will be brought together a remarkable demonstration of what has been done in Canada and the United States since the war in adapting the resources of the two nations to the needs of this continent. The exposition will mark the progress of the struggling American dye industry, the manufacture of crude chemicals, and also show how the most obstruse problems of scientific research have been solved. Many acres of floor space will be occupied by apparatus used in the chemical industry, and various processes will be demonstrated to the general public.

The Olympic, with a registry of 46,439 tons, is the largest of British-built ships, which means that she is larger than any American-built vessel.

According to the Antwerp newspapers, accommodation has now been reserved in that port for German shipping.

WEEPING MAY ENDURE FOR A NIGHT,

But Joy Cometh in the Morning.—Psalm 30:5.

What, if with pain and sadness,
Be filled, the gloomy night,
Sweet peace and joy and gladness
Will come with morning's light.

Aye, weeping, sighing, sorrow,
May for a night endure,
But soon a bright to-morrow,
All earthly ills will cure.

Far spent is night, and nearing
The glorious morn to be,
When at the sun's appearing,
Dark mists and shadows flee.

Blest morn, that brings redressing
For every grief and wrong,
To every wounded heart, balm, blessing,
For tears and trouble—song.

Then what though dark and cheerless
Life's transient night may be,
Soon will dawn the cloudless, peerless
Morn of eternity.

SPORT COMMENT

The Central League is sure bringing along the slab artists this year. Any team that can beat Belleville, Peterborough, Oshawa, Lindsay, Port Hope and Cobourg this season will have to step lively. Not many left, so there promises to be some interesting doings in the old League this year. Lindsay objected to Thomas of Belleville officiating as umpire here in the game next week against Peterborough. Not because the Scugog is but a few blocks away, but because of the expense of bringing His Ump all the way from Belleville. However, there is another half schedule coming, and perhaps Lindsay will fare better in the second half.—Lindsay Post.

John Bull is giving Uncle Sam a merry ride in international contests these days. Golfers of both sexes from the land of the free have been trounced. Their tennis wielders received an unexpected bump, and the British are favoured to win the polo title. Now, if Carpentier knocks the props from under Dempsey the Yanks will have to clip the eagle's tongue to stop its scream.

Soccer as played by the visiting Scots is a great game. They have everything, and showed just to what heights the game can arise. They are as clean as possible, and showed uncanny ability in avoiding contact with their covers. It is said that Wilson will make his residence in Montreal next year. In fact, when the professional game gets established here it is likely wholesale importations from the Old Land will help to improve the Canadian game.

Cooper, the ace of the Pittsburg pitching staff, established a record this season which probably never has and never will be equaled. This pitcher, who was discovered by President Harding, has been going great guns all spring without a sign of wavering. He won eight straight games without a skip—but the remarkable part of it lies in the fact that he won one from each team in the league.

This fact is a tip-off to the success of the Pirates during the first quarter of the race. The secret of their success is that they pitchers in condition to work in rotation. Cooper has been in shape to work once each four days against teams, and naturally has fallen into the "tough" game of each series.

The fact that he won eight straight when pitted against the best of the pitchers of opposing teams is sufficient to show how good he has been.

Commenting on the frequent stoppages for offside, The Athletic News makes a few apt remarks that should be useful not only to local referees, but fans in general. This English publication says: "It seems impossible to make some people understand plain English. Over and over again the referees have been told that a player in an out-of-play position is not and should not be declared offside unless and until he has interfered with the play or a player. Yet game after game the referees refuse to place a common-sense construction on the word "interfere," and stupidly blow the whistle every time they see a player in an out-of-play position. They ignore advice, take no notice of resolutions, and evidently cannot distinguish the difference between out-of-play and offside."

THE CUP WINNERS LOST TO THE VETS

C.G.E. UNABLE TO MUSTER A COMPLETE TEAM.

The G.W.V.A. soccer eleven left the Nicholls Oval at 7.45 last night rejoicing in their 4-2 victory over the doughty C.G.E. aggregation, winners of the Gordon Cup. It was only a hollow victory, though, C.G.E. only put up a half-hearted fight, in fact the whole game was a languid football exhibition. There were only brief bursts of speed, but the Vets put up a continuous performance that won them the game from their more leisurely inclined opponents The returned soldiers had an advantage over the C.G.E. in having a full teams for due to casualties received by C.G.E. in Tuesday night's battle they could only muster nine men. To shorten up the game 35 minute periods were played.

Vets Won Toss.

The Veterans won the toss, choosing the west goal and they opened up strongly. C.G.E. easily parried and the next few minutes showed the way the Canadian Generals were treating the game. Monks got in the first dangerous kick for the Vets, but it went wide of Griffin's citadel. Williams had similar luck when he got the ball near the Vets' nets a second later and right after missed another opening, kicking high over the posts. After about ten minutes of leisurely play, in which neither team showed anything brilliant, Mason and Morris changed positions. It looked as if the C.G.E. had their first goal then ,for Parkins got right to the Vets goal when he slipped and lost the ball, Jones sending it away back into the centre of the field. The C.G.E. were content to keep the ball away from their gaol, but Burrows and the Vets' forward line got away and McDonald missed Burrows with the ball and in a snappy, fast kick that Griffin could not stop, the Vets made thier first tally, The Vets got in some warm shots on Griffin in the next few minutes and only his admirable work saved the C. G. E. from utter rout. He saved shots from all angles with ease and enjoyment. To variate this performance Marsh, a footballer in the middle-age class, but with plenty of go in him, showed some class in a one-man sprint with the ball through to the Vets' goal, but missed the nets. After a half-hour's play "Dick" Perry scored the Vets' second goal from close in with a low, fast shot, with only the goalkeeper to stop him. The last few minutes of the period were uninteresting.

Second Period.

The C.G.E. took the second period more seriously and opened with "Alfie" Parkins on defence and McDonald on the forward line. The score was 2—0 and the C.G.E. held the Vets for the opening play. McDonald nearly scored for them, but Jones neatly fended the ball off with his hand. The game hung about the Jones' nets and the C.G.E. had plenty of openings. Williams lost a good one when he sent the ball flying above Jones' head and it seemed that the C.G.E. could not fail to score so hard was Jones pressed.

Rorison for the Vets, loomed up as a formidable player in the second half and got in some nice plays. Two attempts to ally were only saved by Griffin's good work in the nets, and at last his speed in out-running the backs and shooting ability, gave him a gaol. With increased zeal, Dwyer scoring on a long shot goal, Dwver scoring on a long shot that Griffin failed to reach. The C. G.E. were now on their mettle, and "Alf" Parkins, Mason and Williams were working hard to score. Williams got in position for a nice register. Jones came out to save, but tripped and fell. Williams had his chance but the ball scored skyward far above the goal. That was one of the many chances lost by the C.G. E. There was poor shooting on both sides last night. Dwyer missed by a wide margin when Griffin came out of his goal to meet him. "Bert" Mason's rushes on the Vets' were finally rewarded with a goal for the C.G.E., but it was a fluke off Haycock's leg and with only a few minutes to play, C.G.E. secured another goal. Bestard shooting in a hot one on Jones from the side. J. Clarke was referee, Arthur Edwards, C.G.E. linesman and George Coleman, G. W.V.A. linesman.

The teams lined up as follows:

C.G.E.		G.W.V.A.
Griffin	Goal	Jones
	Full backs
Mason		Gamble
McDonald		Perry
	Half backs.
Williams		Hurrle
Bestard		Haycock, Peel
	Forwards.
Hotston		Burrows
Hensby		Rorison
Parkins		Monks
Morris		Sherman

SITE OF THE NEW LAKEFIELD RINK

LAKEFIELD, June 3.—The site of the new rink is likely to be on Queen Street, near the corner of Strickland Street. The matter of the site has been hotly debated between this location and one on South Queen Street, near Mr. S. J. Charlton's home.

The work will likely be begun very soon, as the building is to be ready for the beginning of the winter season.

A commodious rink will be a great asset to the village, as it will be an incentive to keep up the national winter game of hockey and to encourage clean sport.

Lakefield has a record to be proud of, and the young fellows of to-day just need the chance to prove their skill with the sticks, and will no doubt be worthy successors of "the boys of the old brigade."

AT THE THEATRES

DOES JUSTICE TO A FAMOUS NAME

Kinswoman of the Great John C. Calhoun Plays Lead in Bosworth's "His Own Law".

Jean Calhoun, who plays the sympathetic role of Sylvia Harris, in support of Hobart Bosworth in his new picture, "His Own Law" produced by J. Parker Read, Jr. released by the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation, brings to the silversheet one of the most noted names in American history. She is a kinswoman of the great John C. Calhoun, one of the greatest statesmen this country ever produced and who missed the presidency just by a hair's breadth. "His Own Law' 'is a vigorous, red-blooded drama of great emotional appeal. It comes to the Allen Theatre for two days. It affords Mr. Bosworth one of the best roles that he has ever had either on the speaking stage or on the screen.

Miss Calhoun's first acting was done in the films and not on the speaking stage and her first screen appearance was in a leading role. This was G. P. Hamilton's production of "High Tide' 'in 1918. Since then she has acted with Triangle and supported Tom Moore in his newest Goldwyn picture, "Officer 666", Frank Keenan and Tom Mix.

She is a daughter of T. T. Calhoun, a judge on the supreme bench in Georgia. She was born in the town of Columbus, that state, and was educated in Virginia. She is fond of driving and outdoor sports. Her role in "His Own Law" is a very important one and is so sympathetically acted that it adds greatly to the emotional appeal and vigorous characterizations of the production.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Three Minstrel Girls from Loew's Toronto Theatre received a rousing welcome at the Capitol last night. They are a clever, sophisticated trio, two made up in burnt cork with futurist suits of purple satin, the third a Titian-haired maiden in evening gown. They have a line of bright jokes, do a jazz jumble of darky songs and "I've Got the Blues for Old Kentucky," in the most approved modern manner. "Down the Trail to Home, Sweet Home" with an orange spotlight was beautifully rendered, and received enthusiastic applause. They are a bright and tuneful trio, with excellent voices.

The "Tough Luck" comedy was full of the adventures of the superstitious young gawk, in which a black cat gets some good laughs, and the feature picture, "Mickey," evidently has as strong a following as in the days of its first release. The tomboy heroine in the various vicissitudes which attend her hoydenish career, the fat old pipe-smoking squaw, Joe Meadows, the dog, and the burrs that made a meal of Mickey's correctional strap, the fashionable home of Mickey's bankrupt relations, the fight between her rival suitors which is primitive in its wild passion, and the race that stirred the watching house as completely as on its first showing here, are elements that go to make up the attraction of "the picture you won't forget."

AT THE REGENT.

MIX DOES THRILLING STUNTS IN NEW PLAY.

Tom Mix's pictures are always enjoyable. He does the things we always hope he will do. He battles in realistic style with the gangs that beset his path. Mix has a compelling personality. He carries you with him from the beginning.

Mix opened yesterday at the Regent Theatre in his latest William Fox production, "The Road Demon," for a run of three days. In this he not only thrills with his horsemanship, but with his daredevil work in a speedy automobile in which he wins a road race. This is one of the best pictures in which the clever Fox star has appeared, and he won general admiration.

He puts much more character work than usual into this play, in which his role is that of a cowboy who "won't cowboy," who has a leaning toward mechanical contrivances, and manages to get various sorts of adventure and much romance out of his experience with autos.

"The Road Demon" is a big entertainment.

PARIS TO NEW YORK IN 14 HOURS BY AIR LINER.

PARIS, France, June 1. — Paris to New York in 14 hours is not only a possibility, but a scientific probability within a few months, according to the Italian engineer, Vaugean, who has completed plans on behalf of Ricci Bros., of Naples, for the construction of a commercial air liner on a new principle.

The characteristics of the future air colossus, construction of which has already been started at the great Rici workshops at Posillipo, will be as follows. Measuring 91 yards long the bag will contain 42,000 cubic yards of a non-inflammable gas, and the propelling force will be no less than 750 horse power. Other details are: That the airship can of itself construct a shelter, thus dispensing with hangars; can rise and descend vertically; can outride a storm on the surface of the sea, and will be provided with engines which will obtain part of their motive power from the air itself.

Each ship so constructed will carry 500 passengers, first class, and 350 second class; besides 800 tons of freight. The average speed will be more than 100 miles an hour. The passenger division of air liner will be on a sumptuous scale, like that of ocean greyhounds, and will include bathroom, barber shop, ballrooms, tearoom, restaurant, bar and promenade deck.

The Sicci Bros. state that prices on the line, to begin with, will be actually cheaper than those on first class ships ,and that they are considering charging fifty dollars each for ordinary cabins, meals inclusive.

MERCANTILERS IN GREAT FORM; CRESSMAN'S DEFEAT LOCK WORKS

FIELDING THAT THRILLED MARKED 8 TO 4 VICTORY WITH SCATES PITCHING.

The Mercantilers came into their own at Riverside Park last evening when Cressman's and Lock Works served up a brand of baseball that has not been excelled by any team in action at the ball lot this season, Cressmans winning by 8 to 4. There were few slips. Cressman's handled thirty-five chances, many of them hard hit balls, for a perfect fielding average. Sage, at third, again figured in the spotlight, his work on Liddell's drive in the fifth being a brilliant play that tickled the fans. Graham and Hunter pulled the pitching department out of difficulties time after time. Cobb accepted nine chances at first, and Black seven, these two first sackers handling everything in faultless manner. The Lock Works' infield, just a bit unsteady at critical moments, nevertheless put up a fine game. Hargrove fitting in nicely at third base.

Although Freddy Scates was taken out of the box with the bases working and two out in the sixth, he was the real hero in the camp of the winners. It was Scates who hit in Cressman's first run, when tallies were scarce and badly needed. He repeated in the fourth when, with two gone, he singled over short, scoring Long. That more runs were not scored off his pitching was due almost entirely to the great fielding plays behind him.

Duke Neary was twirling against the "breaks," but he held the heavy batting list of his opponents to five hits, Wade and Bergoine hitting consecutively only in the sixth. Three other hits gathered by Hunter, Wade, Bergoine and Head were scattered over five frames.

First Innings.

Cobb took Liddell's fly and Hunter threw out Jobbitt. Neary and Hargrove, who were passed, pulled off a double steal on Scates' wind-up. When a pitched ball bounded behind Bergoine, Neary tried to get home but he was nailed on the runway, Bergoine's quick recovery of the ball helping to do the trick.

Hargrove handled Hunter's low drive nicely and threw him out, and Wade scratched a hit. Bergoine flew out to Hargrove. Head beat out his slow clout down first. Cobb made it three out by grounding to Black.

Second Innings.

Conners dumped a hit over third, only to be doubled when Hill drove Everett Graham's specialty back of second with two on and two gone.

a hot one to Hunter. Smith drew a walk and went out stealing.

Jobbitt gathered in Long's foul fly. Neary passed Graham, and threw out Sage on a short grounder. Scates fouled repeatedly and then singled into left, scoring Graham. Scates took second and scored when Hunter hit into right. Wade fanned.

Third Innings.

Thorndyke fanned and Black was thrown out by the pitcher. Then Liddell sizzled over short and Jobbitt was passed. Neary dropped one behind second, but Graahm went back and made a pretty catch, stopping the rally and retiring the side.

Fast fielding by Liddell on grounders from Bergoine and Head, and Cobb's failure to connect, retired the side in order. Both teams were playing high-class all.

Fourth Innings.

Sage grabbed Hargrove's fly. Conners was passed and Hill singled. Smith fanned. Huffman, batting for Thorndyke grounded out. Lock Works were failing to hit with men on the bags.

Long hit into left for a single and made second when Smith allowed the ball to go through. Graham fouled out to Jobbitt and Sage was stopped by Hargrove, who took a speedy line drive. Scates again delivered in fine style by hitting over short, scoring Long. Hunter was dead-headed and Wade struck out.

Fifth Innings.

Lock Works went out in a row. Sage featured this frame with a perfect play on Liddell's hard smash down third. A similar fate was shared by Cressman's, the first three going out at first. Black jumped high and speared a drive from Bergoine that looked good for two bases.

Sixth Innings.

Neary led off with a double, scoring when Hargrove singled over second. Fast fielding by Hunter on Conners' bounder cut off Hargrove going into third. Hunter also took Hill's fly. Burke hitting for Smith, was dead-headed. Huffman singled, scoring Conners. Bartley replacing Scates, passed Black, filling the bases, and the pitcher was lucky when Liddell's best was a grounder, on which Bartley threw to Cobb for the out.

Long beat out a hit to short and advanced when Neary heaved wildly to first. Graham struck out. Hill's slip gave Sage the bag and Long third. Bartley dumped the ball down third and when Hargrove threw badly to first, Long and Graham scored. Wade's hit into middle went for a double, slow fielding helping the runner on his way. Bergoine singled, scoring Bartley, and when "Anything within twenty feet!" chirped Black, as he pulled down Bergoine's smash.

Jobbitt let loose a wild throw to third to get Bergoine, the runner went home. Head drew a walk and Cobb fanned.

Seventh Innings.

Down six runs, Lock Works started things humming, Jobbitt leading off by dropping a hit back of third. Neary was assed. Bartley's wild pitch advanced the runners. Jobbitt attempted to get home on Hargrove's clout down third, but Sage beat him to it. Bergoine was hurt in the play at the plate. Head went in to catch. Nicholls geting an S.O.S. to middle field. Neary trying to improve on Jobbitt's previous effort to score, was also nipped at the plate, perfect fielding getting him on a close decision. Hill singled over second scoring Hargrove and Conners. Burke fanned, ending the game.

PETERBORO CENTRAL ONTARIO LEAGUE TEAM WILL PLAY C.G.E AND HAMILTON'S AND Y.M.C.A. CLASH IN CITY LEAGUE FIXTURE —SOME BASEBALL GOSSIP.

Th usual City League prices will be charged at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon, when Y.M.C.A. and Hamilton's will meet in a City League fixture, followed by a clash between the Peterborough Central Ontario League team and the C.G.E. outfit. Both games should be interesting exhibitions. Hamilton's beat the "Y" 4 to 3 on the holiday, but the Red Triangle crew hope to reverse the decision to-morrow with Kirn on the rubber.

The exhibition game will be a real test for Manager Solomon's big leaguers, for the C.G.E. crew are going nicely in the City League race, and they will give the Petes a scrappy battle to-morrow. The Hamilton Y.M.C.A. game will start at 2 o'clock and the Peterborough-C.G.E. clash at 3.30.

Port Hope play in Oshawa tomorrow. A win for the Ontarios would not be much more surprising than was Lindsay's victory over Belleville the other day.

Cobourg are confident that they will beat Belleville in the League fixture at Cobourg to-morrow. A loss for Belleville would practically knock the Grand Trunks out of the first half of the League race, for the Goyer-Mills crew have already dropped two games.

Both Lindsay and Peterborough object to having Umpire Thomas of Belleville officiate in the Lindsay-Peterborough battle next Wednesday. Both teams are willing to have Messrs. Kay and Butler handle the series.

At last Lindsay has a baseball team that can be cheered to a fadeaway. Everything jumps out of their path. Their reputation goes before them and strikes the natives in fear and trembling. Yea, bo, they're winners.—Lindsay Post.

Campbell and Tilson were the battery for Cobourg against Port Hope. They must have worked like clockwork to defeat Deer and Chalk. But why or why didn't Cobourg use the same duet against Manager Solomon on the 24th?—Lindsay Warder.

Fans are anxiously waiting for the game between Peterborough and Lindsay on June 8th in Lindsay. Manager Solomon has promised to pitch "Lefty' McElroy, and as he is a Lindsay boy known to all local fans, it is expected that he will be a big drawing card. "Lefty" is a good pitcer and the Greybirds will find it difficult to connect, but they have every confidence of doing so. The game promises to be a pitcher's battle between McElroy and Oulette, and the latter is going in mid-season form.—Lindsay Warder.

No use worrying about Lornie Rose any more: He has his amateur card and is eligible to play with Solomon's Petes. In fact Solomon has four pitchers, all good ones, viz., Rose, Harrison, McElroy and Kirn. The double schedule may work against some teams in the Central League, who have not as many pitchers. For instance Lindsay and other teams have four games in two weeks, which is using a pitcher too frequently, when there is only one to work.—Lindsay Warder.

LAKEFIELD WIN AGAINST DOURO

Lakefield defeated Douro at Lakefield last evening in the East Peterborough Ball League by the score of 17 to 3. The Northerners batted two Douro pitchers hard. Dr. Gibson umpired.

FOOTBALL GAMES AT NICHOLLS OVAL

TWO GAMES WILL BE PLAYED TOMORROW AFTERNOON.

Two football games will be played at Nicholls Oval to-morrow afternoon. The first game between the G.W.V.A. team and the Comrades will be called at 2.30 p.m., and the second game between the Woollens and the De Laval will be started at 4 o'clock. The Woollens will place the following team in the field: McFadden; Cridland and Chambers; Frost, McMillan and Roberts; Beard, H. Jones, M. Shaw, J. Shaw and E. Jones. Reserves, Montgomery and C. Thorpe. Linesman, A. Styles.

TWENTY INNINGS LEAFS LOSE AGAIN

TORONTO AND BUFFALO IN INTERNATIONAL'S LONGEST GAME OF SEASON.

TORONTO, June 3.—The Leafs lost their third straight to the Bisons yesterday, but there is one thing about the old beating, they carried George Wiltse's Herd to the 20th inning before they finally flopped under by a 3 to 2 score. It was the longest game in the International League this season and equalled the record long-distance tilt in this loop held by Jersey City and Toronto, made in 1913, when the two teams battled for twenty frames, neither scoring. "Bunny" Hearne hurled for Toronto on that occasion, and Thompson and Brandon for Jersey City. The game yesterday took over four hours to play, and was abundant with brilliant fielding, solid hitting at times, and also weak stick-work in pinches.

ONE GOOD ALDERMAN COULD DO THE WORK OF PRESENT TWELVE

"The Council Is No Good Anyway," Declares Ald. Wenige.

LONDON, June 1.—No matter what their differences of opinion as to the efficiency or otherwise of the Board of Works Department, Ald. W. A. Wilson and Ald. G. A. Wenige are in accord in regard to the uselessess of the present City Council, but after having reached this minute point of contact they immediately begin again to diverge, their ideas of how the present members of the Council should be replaced, showing a considerable difference.

Ald. W. A. Wilson's grievance with the remainder of the Aldermen centres around the recent decision to adjourn the meetings of the Council for the months of June, July and August.

"We were all elected to attend to the city's business and not to go gadding around on our own pleasure," declared Ald. Wilson Thursday. "How can we expect the affairs of the city, the work in hand and other matters to proceed aright if we are not on the job? The City Council should meet at least once a month during the holiday season to satisfy itself that the work for which we are paying out good money is being done properly.

"It is not right that the responsibility should be shifted on to the committees," continued the Alderman. "And Aldermen who think the Council can afford to lay off the job of supervising the committees and the work of their departments for thre whole months should hand in their resignations right away."

Ald. Wenige, when asked by a reporter whether he agreed with Alderman Wilson, replied: "Sure I do. The Council is no good anyway. Two good men could attend to the work—even one man, if paid an adequate salary, could do the work, and do it better, more efficiently and more to the satisfaction of the people than the whole bunch of Aldermen."

INGELSOLL BOY IN WOOL-PILE.

Search Parties Hunted Hours For Him.

INGERSOLL, June 1.—After being missing for more than six hours, the six-year-old son of Charles Jones, Carnegie street, was found asleep in a woodpile at the rear of the family home. The police were notified of the boy's disappearance at 12 o'clock. Searching parties had then been busy since early in the evening. At 1 o'clock, when no clue had been obtained to the boy's whereabout, the fire bell was sounded, and the fire brigade turned out with grappling irons, prepared to drag the river. Scores of citizens, believing there was a fire, also turned out. Neighbors assisting in the search discovered the child shortly after 1 o'clock under the woodpile fast asleep. It appears he had got wet early in the evening and decided to crawl under the woodpile until his clothing dried, and the "Sandman" did the rest.

PRISONERS EDIT THE NEWSPAPER

"Golden Rule" is Motto of South Dakota Penitentiary Organ.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., June 1.—The publication of a prison newspaper, The Messenger, with the "Golden Rule" as its motto, published and edited by the prisoners at the South Dakota Penitentiary here, is the latest plan of Warden George Jameson to "make men, rather than ex-convicts, out of inmates." H. O. Prince of North Carolina, who is serving a term for forgery, is editor of the publication, which is issued monthly.

An editorial in the paper says:

"When a man is sent to prison he is socially dead. He is, however, still a man, capable of likes and dislikes in the same way as those outside. He will respond as quickly as any one to the treatment he receives, whether that treatment is for his interest or against it. The frills, shams and false pride and the thousands of other little arts of deceit are struck away in prison. His character is bared, ready for the work of development to go forward or backward. When a man leaves prison it depends largely upon what prison treatment has done for him whether he is a man or just an ex-convict.

"Our mission is to represent the man inside in having justice done; to help the world to realize that much valuable manhood can be reclaimed from the 'scrap heap' by simply recognizing him as a man instead of withholding him the chance to make good, which is his birthright.

"If, therefore, we can help the man inside to get, regain or keep character; help him to see how to be a success and help in doing away with the social prejudice and ostractism which a prisoner meets after he has been released, we shall not have worked in vain."

DECISIONS OF IMPERIAL CONFERENCE WILL AFFECT BRITISH-U.S. RELATIONS

WASHINGTON GOVERNMENT BELIEVES ITS VITAL INTERESTS ARE BOUND UP IN MEETING OF BRITISH EMPIRE HEADS.

ANGLO-U.S. ENTENTE?

BY A. L. BRADFORD,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, June 4.— Vital interests of the United States are bound up in the deliberations to begin this month in London at the Imperial Conferences of the heads of the British Dominions with Premier Lloyd George, high officials of this government believed to-day.

Outside of the strictly American interests involved, it is also believed the future of the whole world will be affected in some degree by the deliberations and decisions of the Imperial Conference.

Th questions affecting vital American interests which are expected to come up at the Imperial Conference are:

1. Whether the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, a defensive pact to guaranty the interests of Great Britain and Japan in the Far East and obligating both nations to come to the aid of each other in case of a conflict between one of these contracting parties and a third power, is to be renewed before it automatically expires July 13 next.

It is known that this Government would like to see a provision inserted in this pact, if it is to be renewed, specifically exempting the United States from its application.

2. Whether a major British fleet is to be created in the Pacific for the benefit of such of the Dominions as Australia, New Zealand and Canada. At present, Great Britain only maintains a battle cruiser squadron in the Pacific.

This will bring up for consideration, it is thought the plans of this government to create a main American fleet in the Pacific, and whether or not a British major fleet in the Pacific will not be unnecessary with the main fleet of the United States in that ocean.

3. The broad question of policy as to whether there can be any understanding, or "working entente," between the United States and Britain to police the waters of the world, Great Britain to take care of the Atlantic Ocean with the British Atlantic fleet, and America the Pacific with the new fleet proposed to be constituted on that coast.

In connection with this question, the staement of Ambassador Geddes of Great Britain in an address Thursday at the University of Virginia that the English speaking peoples of the world should be "banded together in the leadership of all the nations," to preserve peace, is considered significant here.

4. Disarmament: Great Britain must first consult her Dominions before she can announce her policy towards this question, it is believed

5. Japanese immigration versus mandates: Japan, it is known authoritatively, would gladly accord equal rights to all nations in the Island of Yap and all other ex-German islands north of the equator, which were awarded her under mandate, if the same rights were granted in the ex-German islands south of the equator and which were given under mandate to the British Dominions in the Pacific.

Forced by her Dominions, Great Britain, however, rejected the "open door" provision for these mandates as the Pacific Dominions make a blanket exclusion of Japanese immigration.

FLOOD DAMAGE FOUR MILLION

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN PATROL PUEBLO WHILE FIRES RAGE UNCHECKED IN FLOODED SECTION.

COMMUNICATION CUT OFF

PUEBLO, Colo., June 4.—(Canadian Press).—National guardsmen are patroling Pueblo early to-day, permitting no one to enter the section of the city flooded by the waters of the Arkansas River, while several fires started by lightning raged unchecked in several parts of the city. All telegraph and telephone communication was lost early this morning when the flood filled many of the business houses to a depth of six feet.

Early this morning the flood began to recede at three it was still raining and several small fires were ablaze.

DENVER, Colo., June 4.—(Canadian Press). — Pueblo is under water early to-day, according to a special despatch to the Rocky Mountain News, and the damage may reach four million. Every basement from the Arkansas River to the Thatcher building is full of water, and boats were used to rescue marooned persons from the Federal Building.

LLOYD GEORGE WILL OPEN ULSTER HOUSE

KING GEORGE INVITED BUT HAS NOT REPLIED DEFINITELY.

LONDON, June 4. — (Canadian Press.)—Premier Lloyd George has promised to attend the opening of the Belfast Parliament if his engagements permit. He is to preside at a complimentary dinner to Lord Carson by the latter's admirers in the House of Commons.

Sir James Craig, Premier-elect of Ulster, saw King George in London a few days ago and invited him to open the new Parliament, but the King has not given a definite reply.

BIGGS UNDECIDED WHETHER TO MEET WILSON ON THE VILLAGE GREEN, AND WILSON SUGGESTS 25 CENTS A SEAT

DUNDAS, Ont., June 4.—(Special Despatch to The Examiner):—Hon. Frank Biggs will not meet Gordon Wilson, M.P., on the village green—at least not just yet. The Minister of Public Works told The Examiner this morning that he will not decide until he returns to Toronto on Monday whether he will accept the challenge of the Federal member for Wentworth for a verbal duel in Dundas Park for the purpose of settling the question of "the famous roads that Biggs built, between Biggs' house and Biggs' barn."

"I have not received Mr. Wilson's telegram yet," said the U. F. O. Minister. The reporter read him the text of the message, suggesting that the two put on a show in the local park and charge an admission of 25 cents for park improvements.

"I will not make any comment to-day," observed Mr. Biggs; "You will have to wait until Monday."

It is understood the Minister will take counsel with his Cabinet colleagues. The Wilson charges he flatly denies.

On Thursday last Mr. Biggs said he intended to challenge Mr. Wilson "to meet me on the public platform and make him prove his statements or retract them."

BRITAIN FEARS NEW CONFLICT

FLEET ASSEMBLES AT MALTA—REPORT ALLIED SUPPORT OF GREEKS.

LONDON, June 4. — (Canadian Press.)—The Daily Express declares that Great Britain is fearing a new war in the Near East. The British fleet is assembling at Malta in anticipation of Allied support of Greece in her war against the Turkish Nationalists in Asia Minor.

It is well known, said the Express, that Premier Lloyd George is a friend of Greece and bitterly hostile to the Turks.

A RECITAL

The recital given by the senior pupils in piano and vocal music of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade at the Conservatory of Music Hall last evening was a triumphant exhibition of splendid training by the teacher and careful study by those taking part. The hall was crowded with an enthusiastic audience, who applauded every number very heartily. Some of the pupils, although taking up senior work, are quite young, and their numbers were just as carefully rendered as those of the older performers. Exceptional care is taken with the technique of Mrs. Greenslade's pupils, the instrumental numbers displaying a fine, clear tone and careful fingering, while the vocal solos were fine examples of good voice-placing and full, smooth phrasing. The piano concerto by Miss Moore and Mrs. Richardson was especially well rendered, the faultless technique of the one performer blending beautifully with the spirited touch of the other. Mrs. Greenslade is to be congratulated on her powers as a teacher, as exemplified in this, the best recital ever given in her years of training of young men and women in the musical world. The progtamme was as follows:

Piano solo (a) Invention, 2 pt. No. 8. (b) Morceau, Miss Gwendolin Donley.
Vocal solo, "I Gathered a Rose," Miss Geraldine Lawless (soprano).
Piano solo, "Valse Chrematique," Miss Mary Wood.
Vocal solo, "Sing On," Miss Marion Clarke (soprano).
Piano solo, "Le Russeau," Miss Thelma Darling.
Vocal solo, "When You Come Home," Miss E. Archer (contralto).
Piano duet, "Grand March," Misses Florence Saunders and Pearl Rehill.
Vocal solo, "A June Rose," Miss Annete Wright (soprano).
Vocal duet, "When Life is Brightest," Mrs. Wright and Miss M. Wright.
Piano solo, "The Rustle of Spring," Miss Pearl Rehill.
Vocal solo, "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby," Mr. Ted. Jackson (baritone).
Piano solo, "Si Oiseau J'Etais," Mr. Grant Braund.
Vocal solo, "Bird of Heaven," Miss F. Saunders (soprano).
Piano solo, "Polonaise in E," Miss Norma Moore.
Vocal solo, "Big Lady Moon," Miss E. Wright (contralto).
Piano concerto in G Minor, 3rd movement. 1st Piano: Miss N. Moore, A.C.A.M.; 2nd Piano: Mrs. S. I. Richardson, A.T.C.M.

The assistants at the door and those who acted as ushers were as follows: Mrs. A. A. Perrin, Miss T. Taylor, Miss K. Masterson and Miss Ruby Quartermaine.

FOURTH BATTERY GOES INTO CAMP JUNE 13.

The 4th Battery C. F. A. will go into camp at the Exhibition Grounds on June 13th, and remain under canvas until the 18th, with a strength of 85 of all ranks, and 75 horses.

A few men are still required to complete the establishment, and any men wishing to join should apply at the orderly room any evening between 7 and 8 o'clock.

A number of horses are also required, and men with teams available are asked to apply at the Artillery section in the Armouries. The rate of pay is $2 per day each horse, and forage supplied.

Never do any worrying to-day that you can just as well postpone until to-morrow.

SIR SAM HUGHES BETTER THAN IN OVER 2 MONTHS

OTTAWA, June 4.—(Canadian Press).—Following a blood count yesterday the condition of Sir Sam Hughes was said to be better than it had been for the last two and a half months. During the last few weeks a gradual improvement has been noted in his condition except during the extreme heat, which affected him considerably.

REPLYING TO MURPHY MEIGHEN SAYS BYNG IS WELL QUALIFIED

OTTAWA, June 4. — (Canadian Press.) — When the House opened this morning Hon. Charles Murphy (Russell), asked the Prime Minister if Lord Byng has had "any political and parliamentary experience apart from his military experience?" Hon. Arthur Meighen replied that the government had been notified in the usual manner that His Majesty had been pleased to appoint Lord Byng and that there was every reason to believe that he possessed a sound knowledge of political matters, and was in every way qualified for the office.

CHANGES IN THE C.P.R. TIMETABLE

Commencing to-morrow, June 5th, a number of changes will be made in the C.P.R. time-table. The Toronto train, leaving North Toronto each night, will arrive at 12.03 instead of 12.18 a.m. The train which left Peterborough each morning for Toronto at 5.03 a.m. will leave at 4.43 a.m. The afternoon train leaving Peterborough each day for Toronto at 3.20 will leave at 3.50 p.m. All the above changes take effect to-morrow.

A CONTRIBUTION CHOIR LIBRARY

At a business meeting of St. John's Choir, held after practice last Thursday, it was decided to try to arrange for the annual picnic on June 23rd to Stoney Lake. A letter from a former chorister was read as follows:

Box 167, Dundalk, Ont.
May, 1921.

Dear Mr. Devey,—I am sending you fifty copies of a standard anthem as a little token of my sincere appreciation of your services as organist and choirmaster, and of my pleasure and joy in being associated with St. John's Choir. Trusting it may find an acceptable place in the choir library, and with best wishes to the choir and yourself, I remain, yours quietly,

P. F. Hall.

Mrs. Hall's kindly letter nas been replied to, and the anthem sung by the choir next Sunday.

IRISH UNEMPLOYMENT FIGURES SHOW INCREASE

DUBLIN, June 4. — (Associated Press.)—A great increase in unemployment in Ireland is shown by official reports. The number of people registered at the labor exchanges, which does not include workers on short time, has risen to 116,285.

Belfast is worst off with 28,434 unemployed as against 15,291 in Dublin, and 10,922 in Cork. Over 100,000 are drawing unemployment benefit. The hardest hit industry is linen in Belfast. In Dublin the trouble is mostly due to a dispute in the building trades.

Thomas Johnson, secretary of the Irish labor party, estimates that there are not less than 15,000 agricultural workers and road-menders out of work as a result of the military situation.

TRENTON MAN HEADS ONTARIO PHYSICIANS.

At the final business meeting of the Ontario Medical Association at Niagara Falls, Dr. F. J. Farley, of Trenton, was elected president. Dr. Farley was born near Trenton and graduated in medicine from Queen's University, Kingston, in 1894. He is president of the Hastings County Medical Association.

MISSION WORK COMES BEFORE THE ASSEMBLY

SOME DELEGATES LEAVE

TORONTO, June 4. Canadian Press. — Quite a number of delegates from remote stations attending the Presbyterian General Assembly here left this morning for towns in Ontario, where they formerly resided, in order to visit old friends, and to take charge of services to-morrow.

It was because of this exodus from the city that the debate on the church union issue has been postponed until Monday afternoon.

At the eighth sederunt of the Assembly this morning the report of the foreign missions board was heard as well as the church and manse board and historical committee reports.

Foreign Missions

The Presbyterian Church has, from its inception, been a missionary church not only in the matter of Home Missions but equally so in the realm of Foreign Missions. The denomination has an honorable record in this regard, and many a foreign mission field was opened by Presbyterian pioneers within the century.

This fact was emphasized on Foreign Mission Night in the General Assembly, now in session in Toronto; and indeed it is one of the great nights of the gathering, when the eyes of the six hundred commissioners are turned from the map of Canada to the map of the world. As a thousand Home Mission fields in the Dominion represent the interests of this denomination in the homeland, so a review of its work in other parts of the Empire and the Orient demonstrates their belief in the Great Commission—"Go ye into all the world and make disciples of every nation."

The Canadian Presbyterian Church has over 325 misionaries at work in nearly a score of centres in different parts of the world, viz:—at three points in China-Honan, Shanghai and South China; in Korea and Formosa; in Trinidad and British Guiana; and in Central India and Gwalior. A small annual grant is also given to the mission work in the New Hebrides, which has a sacred interest to Presbyterians through its Canadian martyr missionaries who founded it.

The foreign mission fields above mentioned are also manned by a native staff of 1242. More and more it is the policy of the home churches to develop and train native workers.

The old conception of the foreign missionary as one who devoted himself exclusively to preaching to the illiterate and naked heathen under a palm tree is less true to-day than ever in the past. The Presbyterian Foreign Mission Report, above referred to, call for missionary recruits along evangelistic, educational medical, dental, industrial, agricultural, literary, business and building lines —a wide range of activities, all will admit and calling for expert qualifications. Twenty eight volunteers for this department of the Presbyterian programme were received during 1920 and yet even this number fell short of the minimum requirements. Thirty-seven men are needed, urgently and immediately this year, to fill vacant positions such as ministers, teachers, doctors, dentists, business treasurers and commercial teacher.

The Presbyterian Church is increasingly liberal in its givings to Foreign Missons, the annual amount being largely increased through the Forward Movement Thank-Offering Fund. The receipts for this service totalled $718,452 in 1920, viz; $545,030 direct givings and $172,522 from the Women's Missionary Society. In addition, the native contributions amounted to a goodly sum.

MUST CUT PRICE OF SUGAR, WARNS REFINING FIRM

COINCIDENTALLY IT IS LEARNED NEW YORK BANKS HAVE $40,000,000 TIED UP IN CUBAN SUGAR.

NEW YORK, June 4.—(Canadian Press).—A warning that unless Cuban sugar growers abandon their attempts to maintain prices artifically the results may be disastrous for the island was given in a statement issued by Federal Sugar Refining Company.

Coincidentally, it became known that banks in New York have approximately forty million dollars tied up solidly in Cuban Sugars. With the huge losses confronting United States Bankers it was said to be their intention, however to carry their usual customers along until the situation improved and the frozen credits began to thaw. The Bankers hold view, it was said, that no matter what happens in Cuba they cannot "draw out" now as the Republic's complete financial breakdown probably would follow and might cause a situation requiring years to overcome.

POTATOES UP; WHY UNKNOWN

IN ONE WEEK TUBERS RISE FROM 40 AND 50 CENTS TO 65 CENTS—SMALL VEGETABLES APPEAR.

SMALL MARKET TO-DAY

The land must have called the farmer to-day for there was not a very large market. The country was glorious yesterday and equally so to-day. Why should he want to leave it for markets and such sordid things. The basket market was small enough for the bareness of the place to be noticed, and it certainly is not a thing of beauty nor a joy forever.

Butter, eggs and chickens all sold at the same price—30 cents. Potatoes were selling higher to-day for no apparent reason. Last week they could be had at 40 to 50 cents. To-day the farmers held out for 65. Maybe the thought struck them that they were on the wrong tack when they lowered the price to increase the sale so opposite tactics have been introduced.

Small Vegetables.

There were radishes, lettuce and green onions, all home grown, selling at 5 cents and rhubarb sold at the same price. Asparagus was 10 cents. Tomato, cabbage, cauliflower and aster plants sold from 15 to 25 a box. Lovely maiden-hair ferns were being sold by an ardent young naturalist upstairs at 10 cents a bunch.

The slump in hog prices has jolted the young pig industry and seven-week old porkers seemingly enjoying the market atmosphere as much as the pig sty sold at $7 each to-day. A few weeks ago they would have cost $10. There were crate fulls on the market to-day ranging from $10 to $18 a pair.

The Auction Mart.

A profusion of goods were knocked down under the three auctioneers' hammers on the auction art to-day. Everything from old oil canvases to phonograph records were sold. Milady's summer hats were being sold in one wagon while a rou away a contemporary was ridding himself of a pile of bottles that once contained something superior to near beer.

ALLEGED AGENT OF BRITAIN IS SHOT BY POLES

OTHERS ACCUSED OF TREASON AWAIT TRIAL—MORE BRITISH REACH PLEBISCITE AREA WITH TANKS.

TRY TO AVERT CLASHES

WARSAW, June 4. — (Canadian Press).—Lieut. Henry Iwanicki, of the Polish Flying Corps, convicted by court martial of high treason in disposing of military secrets to men who were alleged to be British agents, was executed Friday by a firing squad at the famous Warsaw Citadel. Lieut. Iwanicki was accused of stealing mobilization and other military plans for British representatives. Soon after the speech delivered by Lloyd George in the British House, in which he criticized Poland for not preventing the Upper Silesian insurrection, several Poles accused of being employed by the British intelligence agents were arrested by Polish military authorities, Iwanicki being one of them. The others are now being held for trial.

KATTOWITZ, Silesia, June 4. — (Canadian Press). — Drastic steps have been taken by leaders of Polish insurgents near this city to prevent plundering. Firing squads are very busy every morning and several times recently. Six men have been executed at one time for various crimes. In spite of the severe discipline, the Poles continue rioting, and are reported to have robbed food convoys.

CLASHES ARE CONTINUING.

OPPELN, Silesia, June 4.—(Canadian Press). — Fighting between the Germans and Poles continues in the vicinity of Schimischow, about five miles north-west of Gross Strezlitz. The castle owned by Count Staswitz has been burned. The British are gradually reinforcing their troops in the plebiscite area, bringing in fresh soldiers and many tanks. The Inter-Allied Commission for Silesia is reported to be considering the disposition of Allied troops here so that clashes between the Poles and the British may, it possible, be averted.

DIES ATTEMPTING TO CHLOROFORM PET CAT

PHLADELPHIA, June 4.—Frank Souders, a Pennsylvania railroad engineer, lost his life yesterday attempting to chloroform an aged pet cat at his home in Paoli while his family was away. The cat scratched and struggled as he tried to hold a chloroformed rag to its nose. Soulders fell unconscious and died from the fumes. The cat ran away.

DE-HORN CATTLE OR LOSE $3 A HEAD.

Order Issued By Toronto Live Stock Exchange.

TORONTO, June 3.—It has been decided by the Toronto Live Stock Exchange that after January 1, 1922, all cattle carrying horns arriving on the Union Stock Yards market will be purchased only at a reduction of $3.00 per head from the regular selling price. It was moved some time ago to make this order apply next December, but in view of protest from cattle men in the West, it was decided to accept horned cattle at full value up to the end of this year, so as to allow the bulk of Western shipment to arrive without providing any undue hardship for the producers. It is claimed that the reduction in damage to stock in transit, where the animals are de-horned, will make up for the cost of de-horning and any loss of flesh that may result immediately from the operation. Furthermore, the hornless cattle make better gains in the feed-lot.

AGED 60 YEARS, IS ON WALKING TOUR

OSHAWA, June 4. — En route from the middle west to Thoreau's Walden Pond, Concord, Mass., walking and camping all the way, Jack Taylor, "The Scholar Gypsy," gave Oshawa a call. His outfit consists of a bicycle, folding camp cot, sleeping bag, kitchen, pantry, library, line chest, clothes chest, repair kit, the weight carried on his wheel being 125 pounds. He walks from three to 30 miles a day and boasts that he never sleeps under a roof or eats at a table. He explains that he is not out on a wager but walking for his health and to get up material for a book on living in the open. Although 60 years of age last April he looks much younger and says himself that he is a boy again. On a level road the traveller says that his wheel loaded can be pushed along with one hand. The essentials of a good camp, he claims, are water fuel, a fine view and shade, a good space by the roadside about a quarter of a mile from a farmhouse or a country school house yard. Boy Scouts are his frequent visitors. He breaks camp usually at 4 a.m. and lives on corn meal, eggs, cheese, onions, sugar and California raisins. No meat, teas, coffees or milk are used, and his fare costs him from 25c to 35c a day, a body blow to the high cost of living.

TOWNSHIP OF ASPHODEL PAYS TRIBUTE TO THOSE WHO GAVE THEIR SERVICES TO CANADA

MEMORIAL UNVEILED AT WESTWOOD YESTERDAY IN HONOR OF SONS AND DAUGHTERS WHO SERVED IN WAR.

Yesterday a memorial was unveiled at Westwood in memory of the Asphodel sons and daughters who served in the war. It was a fitting conclusion to a bright and glorious war effort of which the township may be justly proud. Hundreds from all parts of the township and surrounding district were present at the unveiling and few eyes were undimmed when, with bared heads, "Nearer My God to Thee" rose up in one large chorus fro the assemblage.

In Canada's immortal khaki ranks were many Asphodel men. On every field, in every service they fought as nobly as their brothers and gave of their blood freely in the Empire's cause. In the nursing service and war work were many women from the township. True and steady behind the men and women were the anxious ones at home. They did not falter in any cause. The Asphodel Patriotic Association played a meritorious part and when the war was over it was only to be expected Asphodel would culminate its chapter of service with a permanent monument to the twenty-two who gave up their lives and the sixty-two other men and women who served in the hour of need.

Erected Last Autumn.

After some indecision a grant of $1,500 was made by the municipality and the balance being raised by the Patriotic Association. Although the memorial was erected last autumn, it was thought advisable to wait till the King's Birthday, when propitious weather could also be anticipated. This they secured yesterday. Beatuiful June weather prevailed. Rain threatened late in the afternoon, but did not materialize, and with a soft breeze fanning the maples the ceremony was held under ideal conditions.

The monument is a gray granite shaft standing about twelve feet high, erected beside the Town Hall. The monument is rectangular and ungarnished, but beautiful is its symbolical sword buried in an indentation at the top front of the monument over the heading of the list of dead: "To Bury Deep the Sword They Died." The memorial is erected on a slightly elevated cairn of stones, surrounded and led up to from the road by a cement walk. In the front of the stones is the inscription, "Erected by the Township of Asphodel to commemorate the deeds of our sons and daughters in the Great War, 1914-1918," and at either side two stones tell of the Canadians' long participation in the struggle. One stone is marked "Ypres," the other "Mons." The names of the soldiers are set in lead and complete a splendid unostentatious memorial. Resodding and levelling the plot about the memorial is now in progress, and when backed and sided with evergreens as planned, and with an iron fence to the road, its beauty will be further enhanced.

President's Address.

"We are met together this afternoon to unveil a memorial to our fallen heroes and overseas men and women of the Township of Asphodel who answered the call in defence of this country in the Great War," said William Knox, President of the Asphodel Patriotic Association, who was chairman at the unveiling ceremony. "It gives me pleasure indeed to join with you in this memorial service, to pay tribute to the names and memory of these heroic men who have so bravely fought for justice and freedom. "May their names and memories ever remain with us."

Following prayer by Rev. N. H. Noble, of Norwood, Col. T. J. Johnston, of Otonabee, spoke. "I am very glad to have the opportunity to say to the residents of Asphodel they have given good service and I think of all the services none is more worthy of praise than that of to-day. You have placed this memorial here as a remembrance, as a story to be carried on ,as it were, of those fallen heroes. Their serivce was sacrifice from the commencement. Their homes were as dear to them as any yet they gave them up to go over. To say these men gave their lives is only partly telling the story. They gave them many times. Let us not forget the returned soldier. It is our last duties to look after the families of those who have fallen and also our disabled comrades

Gratitude to God.

In an appropriate reference, Rev. E. W. Cafley, of South Dummer, spoke of the gratitude to God, to the fallen heroes and to their noble families that should be in every heart upon such an occasion. "It's a small expression we have before us of our gratitude to the boys," he said.

Hope that the monument might ever serve as an inspiration to the present and coming generations was expressed by F. D. Kerr, of Peterborough who, during the war, took an active interest in the Patriotic Association. He spoke of the glowing heroes of pre-war days, pictured in prose and verse, and little was it then thought, he said, that Canada would ever be called upon to serve in a war of wars. When the call came and the men came through the test they were shown to be heroes all. "Our boys right here from Asphodel were equal to the greatest warriors the world has ever known. "Why did these men die?" That the country might live. It is therefore incumbent upon us who are left to devote our lives to the services of that country they died to save. "Everyone should try to be a better citizen, a better friend, a better Canadian," he said.

Followed the Gleam.

Referring to Lord Tennyson's "Gleam," he said, "These men followed the spirit of Christ, they followed the Gleam. It is to us also to follow the spirit of Christ, the Gleam, as better citizens, better Canadians. I think we should go from this service with a spirit of tender devotion for these men and warm fellowship for their families. "As the spirit of Drake did come forth and go into the spirit of England, so from the monument and the memories will be evoked a spirit of devotion and service that the lives of these men will not have been laid down in vain."

The Saxon Race.

Col. J. W. Miller spoke of the service and mettle of the Asphodel men who went overseas. "They were chips off the old block. The old Saxon race, no matter where you plant it, the blood, the mettle, the fire is there. "They were not afraid to face the foe.." He spoke of the sacredness of the memory and in closing recited part of "Lest We Forget."

Mr. E. N. McDonald

E. N. McDonald, M.P.P., East Peterboro, said the people's work had not yet been accomplished and every consideration should be given the returned men. Reeve John Scott of Asphodel, spoke briefly.

Judge Huycke

Eloquent and beautiful was the unveiling address of Judge Huycke. His thoughts were full of tender appreciation of the service of the men the sacrifices of family and friends and he paid just tribute to the expression of the people in the memorial. "This is a day glorious in our nations memory", he said, "but we are not here so much in honour of our King and his birthday as we are here performing a duty in memory of kings of men who have made it possible for King George and all other kings to be on their thrones to-day.

They have given their lives for us. Well, it is that the people should realize that; well it is that the village of Weswood and the Township of Asphodel should remember this by commemorating their deeds. Their names live, their memories are fragrant by what you have done in erecting this monument. There are not only sad homes in Asphodel but there are sad homes everywhere. While I condole with you I want to say something else—you should be proud that their names are there, for they are the elite of the earth, they are the salt of the salt of the earth. They have shown what they are by what they have done.

"These men fought the fight not in vain. They have been upholding civilization and Christianity. They were not Christians so much as they were Christs. They sacrificed their lives for us.

In concluding Judge Huycke read the following appropriate verse extemporized with all sacredness from Tennyson's Ode on the "Death of the Duke of Wellington."

"All is over and done,
Render thanks to the Giver,
Asphodel, for they sons,
Let the bell be tolled:
Render thanks to the Giver
And render them to the world
Under the cross of gold
That shines over city and river
There they shall rest forever
Let the bell be tolled—
Hush, the Dead March wails in the people's ears:

AGED INVENTOR FORGOT HE HAD $25,000 IN BANK, LIVED YEARS POOR, SUES TO GET MONEY BACK

William Cierth, an aged inventor of 47 Bank Street, Newark, who lived for nine years in poverty in a small furnished room while $25,000 credited to his account in the Fidelity Trust Company of Newark lay dormant, is anxiously awaiting the decision of Vice Chancellor Foster as to the outcome of his newly discovered fortune.

Gierth suffered loss of memory several years ago after recovering from sickness and lost all track of the account. His attention was called to the $25,000 by a clerk in the bank. Since the discovery the money has been tied up in the bank by an order of the Vice Chancellor.

Gierth's application before Vice Chancellor Foster in Newark for permission to draw $3,000 for his own use is being opposed by the bank, C. J. Hudson & Co., Ralph M. Kutz, the clerk who informed Gierth of his fortune; Kutz's sister, Mrs. Edith Ryan, and Inglis Uppercu, president of the Newark sales branch of the Cadillac Company.

Conover English, counsel for Uppercu, contended that the deposit standing in Gierth's name was made up for the most part of the proceeds of a cheque of $2,500 given by Uppercu to Gierth in a business transaction in 1912, and that in some manner the cheque was raised to $25,000. No one was arrested or accused at the time the cheque was deposited in the bank, and Thursday was the first time since the discovery of the old account that the claim was heard. The case was put off until June 20 to permit counsel to file claim in Uppercu's behalf.

HALF MILLION STRIKE TO-DAY

OPERATIVES IN MANCHESTER MILLS WALK OUT FOLLOWING FAILURE TO AGREE ON WAGE REDUCTION.

25 PER CENT. CUT

MANCHESTER, Eng., June 4. — Virtually a half million operatives in the spinning and weaving sections of the cotton mills will cease work to-day, owing to the fact that it has been impossible to arrive at an agreement with the cotton spinners, and the manufacturers' association, over the proposed reduction of 30 per cent. in wages.

The employers had made a concession of a 25 per cent. reduction instead of a 30 per cent., as announced May 11, but the operatives declined to agree to a cut of more than 12 1-2 per cent.

SEPARATE SCHOOL TEACHERS ORGANIZE

Without Increase Since Before the War, Will Seek More Pay.

OTTAWA, June 4.—At a meeting of the lay teachers of the Separate Schools, numbering 40, held in the lecture hall of the Library here, an association to be known as the Separate School Lay Teachers' Association was organized. The meeting expressed itself as of the opinion that the obstacles standing in the way of their getting an increase of salary are three; (1) witholding of the Government grant by the Depart of Education; (2) McKell injunction, taking from the board its borrowing power, and (3) failure of the law to give to Separate schools a just share of taxes paid by companies and corporations.

The association is prepared to work in harmony with the board towards the end that these injustices be removed and their salaries increased. The teachers in the Separate schools received no increase of pay since 1914, before the war.

BETTING GETS RAP BY RANEY

ATTORNEY-GENERAL AT LONDON METHODIST CONFERENCE HITS OUT AT "BETTING HOUSE TRUST."

TALKS ON MORALTY

LONDON, Ont., June 4 (Canadian Press).—The Hon. W. E. Raney, Provincial Attorney-General, was prepared with broadsides for the "betting industry" in Ontario last night, but the sudden illness of his mother compelled him to forego his engagement to address the delegates to the London Methodist Conference.

His address, notwithstanding, was read to the Conference by Rev. J. T. Crosby Morris, minister of Asken Street Church, in which the Conference was held.

Mr. Raney's address on Morality opened with a consideration of the results of the Prohibition campaigning, and a declaration that the people of the rural districts, who for the most part are Canadians, are seeing clear and thinking straight.

Last Referendum, however, he said, shows that the process of education in favour of Prohibition is not yet complete, and that law enforcement in the face of so strong a minority will be a difficult matter.

Thus disposing of liquor, Mr. Raney turned at once to race track gambling, declaring that while the people of Ontario have been labouring to cast out one disorderly house, the Government of Canada has been legalising another. He declared that the "betting industry—which was in its infancy in 1910—is now a legalised vested interest, a vast betting house trust, with millions of capital and tentacles reaching into the social, political, and financial fabric of the country."

TO PROROGUE HOUSE TO-DAY

RUSHED THROUGH ESTIMATES AT ALL NIGHT SITTING AND PRACTICALLY CLEANED UP BUSINESS.

OTTAWA, June 4. — (Canadian Press.)—After an all night sitting, the House of Commons adjourned at five-thirty this morning with the work of the session practically cleaned. It is thought that prorogation will take place at four or five o'clock this afternoon. During the last hours of the sitting the House passed estimates almost as fast as Deputy Speaker Boivin could call them off. Approximately 112 million dollar was voted between three-thirty and five-thirty. Occasionally there were pauses when members interrupted to ask qeustions, but if any item proved contentious, it was allowed to stand over until the next sitting. It developed that an arrangement had been made between the Prime Minister and the Opposition leader that all non-contentious items were to be passed before the House rose, and as a result there are comparatively few items standing over. The Labor Department estimates remain to be passed. It was noticeable that the vote of two millions for the maintenance of a Canadian navy was passed without even comment from the Liberal members. It was thought that this item would be the subject of bitter debate.

MONSTER PIKE CAUGHT BY BOY.

CHESLEY, June 4.—While fishing in Dawson's Pond recently, Frank Jefkins, aged 14, hooked a pike which was 38 inches long and weighed nine and a half pounds. When the fish grabbed the bait and darted off the lad was almost pulled into the water and his fishing pole was bent to a semi-circle. By carefully playing the pike, however, the boy brought the fish alongside a half-sunken log, from which he was launded.

AMENDMENT BY CANADA GIVEN TO COMMITTEE

SPECIAL BODY WILL REPORT ON ARTICLE TEN OF LEAGUE COVENANT WHICH CANADA WANTS AMENDED.

ASK EXACT DEFINITION

LONDON, June 4. — (Canadian Press). — The League of Nations Committee on Amendments again discussed yesterday the Canadian proposal for the elimination of Article Ten from the covenant. Arthur J. Balfour, who is president over the sessions, proposed that owing to the conflicting interpretations of the article and the importance attached to it in the United States, it should be referred to a committee of juries to obtain an exact definition of what responsibilities it places upon members of the League and what relationship it bears to the rest of the covenant. This proposal was adopted and the article was referred to a committee made up of Vittorio Scialoia, for Italy; Sir Cecil Hurst, Great Britain; M. Fromageot, France; M. Struycken, Holland; and M. Bourquin, Belgium. The committee's report and Canada's statement on the article will be submitted at the next meeting of the League of Nations Assembly.

ARBITRATION IN HAMILTON STRIKE

Carpenters Now Agree to This Course.

HAMILTON, June 4.—The striking carpenters and joiners of this city have agreed to arbitration of their dispute with the Contractors' Association, as decided in the following resolution adopted at a meeting of the two unions affected:

"Resolved that we, the carpenters, in joint meeting assembled, do hereby propose and agree to return to work at the rate of wage as on April 30, 1921, and submit the wage question to an arbitration board for consideration and the handing down of an award, and be it further

"Resolved that we hereby agree to accept as a settlement of the wage question the award as handed down by the arbitration board, provided that the employers will also agreed to accept the award made by the arbitration board."

FORBIDS TEACHERS TO USE COSMETICS

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 4.—The use of cosmetics by teachers in the Public schools was forbidden in an order issued recently by Superintendent Allen P. Keith. Explaining it, he said: "Teachers must have clean faces. Children with dirty faces are sent home. The same rule should apply to teachers who use powder and paint."

MELONS REACH LOCAL MARKET

ENORMOUS GEORGIA WATERMELONS SELLING AT ABOUT THE SAME PRICE AS LAST YEAR.

ONTARIO STRAWBERRIES

Enormous watermelons of Georgian extraction have appeared once more on the local fruit market at a price about the same as last year. The prices depend on the size, naturally, and are graded from $2.00 up.

Amerianc growers must be astounded at the price Canadians have to pay for melons when they obtain only a few cents for them. Freight and heavy loss from spoiling on their long trip, the wholesalers say, cause the high prices.

The melons are selling very well, despite the high cost, dealers say.

Canadian strawberries, mostly from the Niagara Peninsula, some grown locally, are obtainable in the shops at 40 cents a quart box and 20 and 25 cents a pint box. The berries are superior to the American variety, one fruit man said today.

Lemons—woe to the lemonade fiends!—have taken a sudden fluctuation skywards, and the price of lemons in the stores has gone to 50 and above 50 cents a dozen. Grapefruit have also advanced in price to a slight degree.

Tomatoes are cheaper. Nice, firm ones were selling at 25 and 30 cents to-day, and they will be cheaper next week, a local dealer prophesied.

Cucumbers still remain exceedingly high, ranging all the way from 15 to 40 cents.

An amusing robe made by one of the smaller French dressmakers is decidedly Second Emipre in effect, with a plain bodice buttoning straight down the front into which are set floating sleeves, and the skirt is very full.

PARTIES AGAIN DEADLOCKED IN COAL DISPUTE

MINE OWNERS, FOLLOWING REJECTION OF GOVT. TERMS BY MINERS, ANNOUNCE THEIR STAND.

MAKE FEW CONCESSIONS

LONDON, June 4. — (Canadian Press).—Another deadlock seems to have been reached in the coal dispute with the notification given by the Miners' Executive to Premier Lloyd George yesterday, that the various mining districts have rejected the Government proposals for a settlement.

Almost at the same time, the mine owners communicated to the Government a re-statement of their position, again steadfastly refusing to agree either to a national settlement of wages, but making some minor concessions, such as the creation of conciliation boards with a neutral chairman to settle district disputes and a national wage board with a neutral chairman, whose direction would be final for settling the standard wage and the ratio of wages to profits. This standard wage would provide a basis for settling the district scale of wages. It is understood that the Miners' Executive is considering a conversation of a national delegates' conference in London during the coming week, with a view to obtaining a new mandate for negotiations.

LIGHTED MATCH TO DYNAMITE CAP.

Two Montreal Men Are Severely Injured.

NAPANEE, June 4.—By the explosion of a dynamite cap, Harry Shaw, aged 21 ,and George Ewings, aged 20, both of Montreal, suffered severe injuries. The men were walking along the railway tracks at Napanee in the afternoon, when Shaw noticed something on the ground and was curious to ascertain what it was. It turned out to be a dynamite cap, but Shaw did not have his curiosity satisfied until he had lighted a match to his find.

An explosion followed, and as a result Shaw had the end of one thumb and two fingers blown off, and a piece of the cap also penetrated his leg. His companion suffered severe scratches about the head.

Firestone Prices

Place Your Dollar On a New Basis

The price schedule on Firestone Cord and Fabric Tires makes it more obvious than ever that the purchase of a Firestone tire gives you most miles per dollar.

Most miles per dollar has always been and always will be the Firestone measure of tire value.

Firestone has not deviated one hair's breadth from the quality standards that have made this measure an actuality in putting prices on their present level without waiting for their Canadian plant to be actually in operation.

Perfect balance, oversize and other features of Firestone construction will as ever continue to prove the merit of Firestones on the road.

PREMIER DRURY'S CAMPAIGN.

With Premier Drury threatening to go to the country over the legislation passed by the Dominion Government in regard to the control of the waters in the Lake of the Woods district, and Gordon Wilson, M.P. for Wentworth, and Hon. F. C. Biggs staging a debate on the road policy of the Minister of Public Works, there is no lack of liveliness in provincial politics. The Premier's publicity campaign against the Federal legislation will be made easy by fact that the season of farmers' picnics is at hand, so there will be difficulty in securing opportunities to speak or of securing audiences, but it is doubtful whether Premier Drury will find the people of Ontario as much excited as he is over the question of provincial rights in this particular case. There is in the operations of Mr. E. W. Backus, the American who has acquired control of a very large section of the Lake of the Woods' district, certain features that have not favourably impressed many people, and some of them are inclined to regard the Act just passed by the Dominion House as a protection against the ambitions of Mr. Backus rather than an invasion of the rights of the province.

THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE.

The tributes paid by Premier Meighen, Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, Hon. T. A. Crerar and Sir Robert Borden to His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire in the House of Commons yesterday were not mere flattery; they were the expressions of the general sentiment in Canada towards the retiring Governor-General who, more perhaps than any other occupant of Rideau Hall, has won the regard and esteem of all Canadians. Premier Meighen hit upon the reason for the popularity of His Excellency when he declared that he had sought faithfully to understand every phase of Canadian public life and had given his cordial support to all activities which were of good augury and report. He has been approachable, democratic and adaptable. Peterborough people have not forgotten the visit of the Duke of Devonshire to this city and still remember his early morning stroll around George street long before the official reception was to take place. At Ottawa he was an ardent fan at the hockey games and everywhere he has gone—and he has been in all sections of Canada—he has been anxious to come closely into touch with the people and their problems.

THE NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

The appointment of Lord Byng of Vimy as Governor-General of Canada in succession to the Duke of Devonshire has been officially announced. No other choice could have been so pleasing to the Canadian people as a whole. General Lord Byng commanded the Canadian Corps in France for many months, succeeding General Alderson in February, 1916, and being in command of the Maple Leaf forces until after the battle of Vimy Ridge in April, 1917, when he left the Canadian Corps to take command of the Third British Army. Under his leadership the Canadians scored one of their most famous victories, when at Vimy Ridge they attacked on a front of 8,000 yards, penetrated to a depth of six miles and captured 7,000 prisoners and 67 guns. From this engagement Lord Byng takes part of his title, he being created the First Baron of Vimy in 1919. He was beloved by all ranks of the Canadian soldiers who served under him, and his appointment will be enthusiastically received by the returned soldiers throughout the Dominion. In fact, at the last convention of the Grand Army of United Veterans Lord Byng was unanimously endorsed because of his services to the Empire during the war. The coming to Rideau Hall of one of Britain's most distinguished soldiers will be pleasing, not only to the veterans who served under him, but to the Canadian people generally.

SURPRISING FIGURES.

The monthly export report of the Bureau of Markets, United States' Department of Agriculture, dealing with the export of dairy products, oleomargarine and eggs from the United States during April, should provide Canadians with some interesting food for thought. This is supposed to be an agricultural country, with dairying as one of the most important departments and oversupply has been given as the reason for the slump in the prices of dairy products. And yet the official figures show that in the month of April the United States exported to Canada 516,010 pounds of butter, 250,575 pounds of oleomargarine, 104,561 pounds of cheese, 335,130 dozens of eggs and 67,710 pounds of powdered milk. During the same month the total export from the United States in these products was 1,106,566 pounds of butter, 324,480 pounds of oleomargarine, 1,664,287 pounds of cheese, 2,275,842 dozen eggs and 852,595 pounds of powdered milk. Canada absorbed almost fifty per cent. of the butter exported by the United States, nearly all of the oleomargarine and large quantities of the other products. It is estimated that it would require approximately 15,000,000 pounds of fluid milk to manufacture the butter, cheese and powdered milk which Canada bought from the United States in that one month. 25,000 dairy cows would be needed to produce that quantity of milk. It is not difficult to picture the effect of importation of dairy products of this kind upon the dairying industry of Canada or to look for any further reason for the sharp drop in price during the past few weeks. No wonder Canadians have to pay adverse exchange on American dollars.

THE EXECUTING OF CRIMINALS.

In another column a correspondent writing from Niagara Falls protests against the brutality of forcing a condemned man to listen to the preparation being made for his execution. He protests also against the morbid interest of the public, and the publication in the press of details of a condemned man's last hours.

There are some who believe that capital punishment should be abolished. Others think it should be retained, but the methods employed modernized—that is to say, electrocution substituted for hanging, or asphyxiation by gas, not at a stated day and hour, but at any time during a specified week when the condemned man is asleep and could be sent adrift out of this world on a wave of unconsciousness. One of the western States has adopted this method as more humane than the old one.

Some believe that murder trials should be held in private, no publicity given to the proceedings, nothing published about the prisoner except the fact of his conviction, and later the bare fact that he has been executed. But the trial of a man for his life must be conducted publicly. The fairness of his trial must be evident to all, if confidence in the administration of justice is to be maintained.

As to the abolition of capital punishment, it is probable that most men's inclinations are for its abolition, but the weight of evidence appears to be against it. Nor, at a time when mad youths are killing men at random for the possible gain of a few dollars, is the moment propitious for introducing or even considering the question of reducing the punishment for murder.

Perhaps our correspondent is right in a way. He feels, as all do, a distaste for the whole business of murder and hanging. In imagination he can hear the hammering on the gallows, and in fancy can see the condmned man listening to the sounds of this ominous carpentry. It is crude and raw, and he doesn't want to think about it or know anything about it.

All are not so sensitive, however, and the theory is—it is an old one and may be wrong, just as public hangings were at last decided not to have the useful and warning effect they were supposed to have—that the way things are done is the best way to do them, in order that a sense of the tragedy of crime may go abroad in the land.

It is possible that details of the last hours of a criminal were better unpublished. The fact is that the hour in Garfield's life which is important to the public was not the hour in which he paid his debt to justice, but the hour in which he incurred that debt. It might have been better had the press pictured for the people, not the death of Garfield, but the death of Ben Johnston—an honest man, in his own place of business, attending to his duties, going about his daily life as a husband and the father of young children, yet suddenly set upon and wantonly slain as if by a wild animal in sport.

Of the two men who have now met with death, this one deserved life. It was his taking-off that was the tragedy. He depended on civilization and it failed him; he conformed to its rules, but its rules did not suffice to protect him. He perished lawlessly, unjustly, as men did in lawless times.—Toronto Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Biggs' good roads policy will strike many people as being the road to ruin.

The Farmers' Sun will now be able to speak of the Hydro Commission's plans for rural power lines as an "underground" policy.

Newspaper men found that Woodstock jail was much harder to get into than it was for some people to get out.

A little oil along the roadway over the Hunter street bridge would be welcomed by the people of East City. The dust nuisance is intolerable in the neighborhood of the bridge.

The Byng Boys will welcome Lord Byng to Canada.

Inquiries are being received as to the public drinking fountains. Will the city fathers kindly note the complaints and see that the citizens get service in this respect.

He—I have your permission to call this evening?

She—I shall be very pleased, but don't forget that father switches off the light at 10 o'clock.

He—That's kind of you. I'll be there at 10 sharp.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

In the state of matrimony, going without breakfast indicates a desire either to reduce or to avoid friction.

Not all the bandits
Run at large;
Some whom we know
Run a garage.

Funny the U.S. should give three busts of Wasington to England when U.S. citizens are going there for a bust now that Quebec has joined the dry column.

"I'm lost," the little girl told the policeman.

"Well, why didn't you hold your mother's hand?" asked the officer.

"They were both full."

"Then why didn't you hold on to her skirts?"

A look of utter amazement came over the little girl's face: "But I couldn't reach them," she answered.

Capital and labour managed to get together in New York, and the scene of the sequel to what they did to the public is laid in Sing-Sing.

Another romantic young singer has declared that she prefers matrimony to a vocal career. In some cases there is no difference.

"Are you going to spend the summer at the seaside?"

"No, I fear that I would not enjoy myself."

"Why not?"

"Well, I haven't anything to spend except the summer."

The chief difference between a man and a woman is that a woman likes to be looked at, while a man likes to be listened to.

He: Darling, will you marry me?

She: I am sorry, but I engaged myself to another to-day.

He: But what about to-morrow?

Even though a man may lose his courage after two or three unsuccessful love affairs, he will never entirely lose his conviction that, if he really wished to, he could be a heart-smashing Don Juan.

"Yes," says the Backfence Cynic, "one-half of the world is bankrupt, and Ottawa and Washington seem determined to get rid of the fraction."

OSHAWA COUNCIL GAVE $200 TO THE S. A. BAND

On recommendation of the Finance Committee the Town Council of Oshawa passed a grant of $200 on to the Salvation Army Citadel Band. This is the third grant made to Oshawa's bands this year by Council.

Buy a Chalmers As an Investment

Buying a Chalmers car is recognized as a sensible and sound investment. One that pays definite returns.

Because of its low upkeep and replacement costs, the Chalmers is economical to operate. It renders service more continuously. It is at your command when wanted.

Due to Careful Designing

The low maintenance of the Chalmers is due to careful designing. Chalmers' engineers developed the hot-spot. This device pre-heats the fuel before it enters the cylinders. This saves fuel. It reduces carbon. The motor runs more smoothly and accelerates more quickly. It renders better service, always.

Find Out for Yourself

The man who investigates, will easily find the truth of these statements. We will be glad to go into detail and explain just how fine a motor car investment the Chalmers is.

You owe it to yourself to make this investigation.

Rinso

You need not rub

You need not boil your clothes

The wonderful new soap in granules, just soaks the dirt out of your clothes in a few hours. No need to use the wash board or boiler.

Moreover, Rinso saves your clothes. In these pure, cleansing suds they soak as safely as in water alone. There are no harsh chemicals to eat the fabric. Just rich, pure suds, so mild they do not even redden your hands.

If you have a washing machine—

Soak the clothes overnight in the usual Rinso way. The cleansing suds loosen every bit of dirt. In the morning operate the machine for a few minutes and the clothes are perfectly clean—even the most soiled spots.

LOVE!

By KATHERINE MOORE

WAITING

Chapter 71

For another long week I waited. The strange inexplainable something seemed pressing nearer and nearer. At times it nearly suffocated me and yet I felt calmer and even ready and waiting to meet it.

Leonard grew more thin and worn looking and my love for him deepened.

June had come and half gone, with mild sunny days and fresh light breezes at night. Even Nature had paused for a while before she rushed on into the sweltering days of excessive summer heat.

In the evenings when the tall stately elms and maple trees mingled their welcome shade with the darkening screen of night, I would slip out on the front piaza and wait there for Leonard to come home.

Whenever the sound of voices came to me from Russell's piazza I held my breath and hoped that they could not see and would not come over to call to me.

I could always recognize Leonard's step long before he came into view down the shaded street. His stride had lost much of its spring and spontaneity. The realization of it made my heart bleed. I wondered if we would ever be carefree and happy again.

One night a soft calm seemed to have settled over everything. The breeze had died down but the air was light and sweetly mild against my face. There was a dear friendliness about the trees, and stars, and the perfume of the garden flowers. Even the bat that usually filled me with horrible creepy feelings now seemed amicable and quite playful as he darted and swooped back and forth across the lawn. Soon he too came to rest in one of the tall elm trees.

Everything seemed to have relaxed and settled down as though waiting softly for something to happen.

I found myself sitting forward and looking down the street expectantly.

I felt a wonderful peace and calm come o er me, and yet my hand shook as I raised it to my face and brushed a lock of hair back from my forehead. My breath cam with difficulty. Waiting was pressing down closer and nearer to me.

About 11 o'clock I heard a taxi-cab come rushing up the street. The driver threw into second, and then jammed on the brake, bringing the car to a standstill, creaking and straining, in front of the house.

Leonard stepped out.

For a minute I thought perhaps he was ill, and I started to get up and run out to him. Then I heard his voice, and saw him turn toward the street lamp and look through some change that he had drawn out of his pocket. He turned again toward the taxi.

"I can't make it—you'll have to change $5," I heard him say.

The chauffeur fumbled in his pockets and I had time to get up and run in the front door before Leonard finally turned and hurried toward the house.

Something made me long to run away from him. The strange thing that had hung over us for days and days seemed to be closing in on me, and I was afraid of it.

I rushed breathlessly up the stairs to my room. I closed the door and locked it. I was trembling from head to foot.

Then suddenly I knew that I could not run away, could not hide from this thing. Locking the door could not settle it, or keep it from me any longer.

I turned the key in the lock and opened the door again softly. My emotions changed suddenly and I felt composed and ready to meet the inevitable.

Then I heard Leonard's steps hurrying up the stairs.

I didn't light the light, but went over by the window and sat down and waited for him there.

I could not see him in the dark or hear his step on the soft rug, but I knew he came in the room and stood near me.

Tomorrow—Leonard Comes.

TOO MUCH ARGUMENT SPOILED LACROSSE GAME IN HAVELOCK

RETURN MATCH WITH CAMPBELLFORD INTERRUPTED BY DISPUTE SAND FINALLY ENDED AT THE THIRD QUARTER — HAVELOCK WAS LEADING 3 TO 2.

A GOOD GAME SPOILED

HAVELOCK, June 4.—Of yesterday's lacrosse match between the Havelock and Campbellford Intermediate teams an unbiased spectator would have been justified in saying that it was a vigorous debate between Charlie Green and Dick Cole, the respective managers of the two teams. Havelock had the bigger end of the score of 3 to 2 at the beginning of the fourth quarter, when the dispute that had delayed the game in starting and repeatedly interrupted it after it did get going, to the general disgust of the spectators, broke out in full fury and was still undecided when the Directors in charge of the King's birthday celebration summarily cleared the grounds shortly after five o'clock for the Norwood-Havelock baseball match.

If somebody had taken the vociferous opposing managers over into the next county and let the players get on with the game there would have been a better story to tell. Lacrosse in this district is groping its way back to popularity, and a lot of good fellows in the towns that are grouped together are spending their time and some of their money in giving the old game a new lease of life; but if an exhibition match is to descend to the level of a "chewing match," lacrosse will be talked to death before it gets back on its feet. And the question suggests itself as to what will happen in the league games which are to begin shortly. Yesterday's exhibition was just for fun, or to fill in the programme at the Athletic Park, but it was hopelessly spoiled, to the great disappointment of the many spectators who paid to see lacrosse as these two teams can play it, by wrangling that began before the teams were lined up at the start of the game. The promoters of lacrosse in the Trent district should decide right now that a repetition of Friday's fiasco shall not occur. About one more dose of that kind of thing, where sportsmanship is expected, and lacrosse will just roll over and die. And the men behind the game who are doing all they can to restore it to favour, should not tolerate or condone the conditions that developed the disagreement which talked the crowd out of the last quarter of yesterday's game.

Havelock wasn't a safe place for neutrals while the sudden outbreak of community warfare swept the lacrosse field. There was wisdom in silence and not a little amusement in standing along the sidelines watching the disputants work themselves into fever over what seemed to be comparative trifles. There was no particular decision announced in the managerial debate and there is no intention of indicating how that particular bout should have gone, but supposing Dick Cole was right in his contention that being dissatisfied with the referee Havelock should carry out their promise of making a change during the game if Campbellford so desired, the fact remained the Campbellford players were well able to take care of themselves and perhaps might have chalked up a victory in the last quarter. If the visitors were utterly routed and wanted to let themselves down, there might have been some excuse for resorting to argument, but the whole team was playing well and, in fact, seemed to be just getting down to their stride. As it was, Havelock claimed the game because they were leading by three to two when the debate intervened. The two teams have thus won a game apiece on the home grounds in each case. And the district schedule has not been started yet. Here's hoping that in the league games there will be no element of farce injected.

Campbellford came to Havelock anticipating from a remark Charlie Brennan made in Campbellford on Victoria Day that in the return game Havelock would have its own referee, implying that certain accounts would be balanced. The officials for yesterday's game were Alex. Kempt of Norwood as referee and W. H. Roe of Havelock judge of play. This selection precipitated an argument at the outset, but finally the game got under way and went three periods. Dick Cole of Campbellford, backed by the Campbellford fans, insisted that the referee be changed, and that was the beginning of the end. Roe received a panning from the supporters of the visiting team, but the players themselves apparently took little or no part in the verbal exchanges.

The Line-Up.

The teams lined up as filliws:

The Game.

Havelock scored first on Hooper's long pass to King, who found the defense wide open, and made a pretty shot from the side. Copp started the play that got Havelock's next goal by passing to Doug Brennan, who flopped the ball passed Kelly from inside the defense. From a face-off near the Havelock goal, Johnston picked up a muffed pass and scored from a few feet out. Just at the end of the quarter Powers stopped one that was dead on the nets.

Havelock's third goal completed as nice a combination as any lacrosse fan would want to see. Tom Thomas relieved a rush on the Campbellford goal, but his pass went directly to Copp, who worked his way down the field passing to King. This youngster handled himself coolly all through the game. Dodging a check by Thomas, he wheeled and whipped the ball passed Kelly, who a few minutes later made a beautiful stop of another shot from King's stick. Don Graham went on after half-time for Campbellford and Buchanan replaced Copp. The visitors began to set the pace and got their scond goal of the game on a running combination, in which the ball was handled by Kerr, Edwards, Hart and Graham, who bulged the net. Both Powers and Kelly made several fine saves in this period, but there was no more scoring.

Stiff checking by the home team accounted for Havelock's showing in the first two periods. At that, Hooper and Doug Brennan appeared too strenuous. Johnston, one of the Campbellford home players, took considerable punishment without any evidence of retaliation. At that, he and Jacobs had a provoking way elbow and brush their way past of holding the ball while trying to tioned as an excuse for what seemed at times too hard checking. By the way, one of the Campbellford men remarked during the game on Victoria Day that the Havelock sticks were so constantly in the air that it was dangerous to be among them.

QUITS MANUFACTURE OF POWDERED MILK

GANANOQUE, June 4—While reorganization is under way, the Eastern Ontario Milk Products Company, Ltd., has temporarily ceased the manufacture of powdered milk. In the meantime cheese is being manufactured in their plant, 18,000 lbs. of milk was made into cheese on Wednesday and 25,000 lbs. were handled Thursday.

SAYS THE MONAGHAN TEAM WERE VICTORS.

In Tug-of-War at Scott's Corners Sports.

The Examiner is advised that its report of the Scot's Corners Athletic Association's sports on May 24th was not altogether correct, in that the correspondent gave the tug-of-war honors to the Cavan team instead of to the Monaghan boys, who were really victors. The Cavan teams is composed of heavyweights, ranging from 160 to 200 lbs—big, burly, husky-looking chaps—but spectators of the "tug" agree that for all that, they were decisively beaten by their opponents—a team of contestants weighing from 130 to 170 lbs. the man, a well-developed, quick, shrewd little crew, the flower of Monaghan's manhood. In this connection, it seems that the Monaghan boys are ready to again "pull" the Cavan tug-of-war aggregation any time, in a spirit of true sportsmanship, when they are confident of once more demonstrating their superiority over their Cavan rivals.

FUEL PROBLEM CAMPBELLFORD

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN THE TOWN AND DISTRICT—PERSONAL MENTION.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 4.—Mr. A. H. McKeel has launched his new 43-foot scow, which is to be used this coming season in bringing 300 cords of wood to Campbellford. This will help solve the local fuel question.

Building is commencing to pick up again, and Messrs. Mitchell, Redden, McAvelle, and Green are constructing new houses.

Mr. H. Redden has constructed a lime kiln in his gravel pit near the English Church.

A large number of the Campbellfor young people motored to Trent River, where a very pleasant evening was spent.

Mr. Shanfield, who bought a large number of furs this spring, was fined $200.00, and costs, this morning by Mr. Cox, of Toronto, for buying furs without a road license.

Council Meeting.

At a special meeting of the Council, which was held on Monday night, a rather large amount of business was discussed. Among other items, the boiler which has been used for the heating of the oil for the streets was purchased from Thomas McManus for $220.00, the municipality to bear all expenses of repairing it.

Mr. J. D. Cumming was appointed tax collector again.

A by-law was passed whereby debentures to the extent of $12,500 were issued to pay the municipality's share of the cost of the sewer on Rear Street.

The next regular meeting will be held on Monday evening.

Cheese Board.

The regular Cheese Board met on Thursday morning, with the following buyers present: Messrs. Jas. Cook, Bird, Nicholson, Kerr, Thompson, and Ivey. The following factories sold:

Entertainment in Warkworth.

The entertainment, "The Gipsy Carnival," which was given (by request) in Warkworth on Thursday night under the efficient leadership of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Cowell, of town, was a most decided success, the hall being filled to its utmost capacity. Many from Campbellford, who had already attended the "Carnival" for two or three nights in Campbellford, motored to Warkworth to see it repeated. The following very kindly volunteered the use of their cars to convey to Warkworth the one hundred or more who were taking part: Messrs. J. N. Stone, G. A. Kingston, R. A. Linton, J. A. Irwin, R. L. Diamond, E. T. Morton, J. A. Linton, Chas. Davidson, R. C. Theston, Drs. Richardson and Watson, J. F. Maynard and A. E. Caddy.

A Picnic.

The local company of the 40th Regiment, accompanied by the band and officers, Major Bygott, Lieuts. Davidson and Nancarrow enjoyed a very pleasant outing yesterday at Crow Bay. Despite the threatening appearance of the weather in the morning, a large number of the men availed themselves of the outing arranged for them through the kindness of their officers.

Personal Mention

Mr. and Mrs. James White of town, were on a business trip to Burlington this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Boyd are visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Matthew Boyd, Raglan street.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Henson, and little daughter, Miss Dorothy and niece Miss Flossie Henson spent yesterday in Brighton.

Friends here will be pleased to learn that Miss Sarah Nevin, who was operated upon in Toronto General Hospital, for appendicitis, is doing as nicely as can be expected.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Matin of Toronto, are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Matin, and the latter's brothers, Messrs. William and John Hall in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Rutherford of Havelock, spent last Sunday with Mrs. Rutherford's mother, Mrs. Clark Johnston in town.

Mrs. James Clark visited her sons in Lakefield last week.

Mr. Thos. Varcoe of Seymour West, has recently purchased from Dr. Stewart West, his valuable house on Victoria street, occupied by Mr. F. A. Burgar. Mr. Varcoe will occupy his new home in July.

Mrs. Roberts of Grafton, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Oliver, Grand Road.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Abernethy announce the engagement of their daughter, Myrtle Hazel, to Arthur S. Reeks, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Reeks of Newburgh, N.Y.

TOWNSHIP OF ASPHODEL PAYS

The dark crowd moves and there are sobs and tears
The black earth yawns: the mortal disappears;
Ashes to ashes, dust to dust:
They have gone who seemed so great.—
Gone; but nothing can bereave them
Of the force they made their own
Being here and we believe them
Something far advanced in state,
And that they wear a truer crown
Than any wreath that man can weave them.
Speak no more of their renown,
Lay your earthly fancies down,
And to His tender mercy leave them,
God accept them, Christ receive them.

The Dedication

After dedicating the memorial to the heroes' memory, Matthew Brackenridge, of Westwood, father of Mas. Brackenridge, the first name on the list and James Warner of Asphodel, who lost his son, James the last name, pulled away the Union covering the monument with the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee" and "O God Our Help in Ages Past", the ceremony was complete.

During the afternoon, a massed choir of Westwood and Asphodel led in singing several hymns and the Norwood Band played. After the service, refreshments were kindly served to all participants in the service in the Town Hall.

Those in charge of the erection of the memorial were Mr. Knox and Col. R. E. Birdsall, Patrick McNulty, Robt. Scott, G. A. Brethen; the township council, Reeve John Scott, councillors, J. D. O'Keefe, H. A. Thistlewaite, Chas. Would, Adam Humphries and J. J. Breckenridge, Clerk.

KIDNEY TROUBLE

Is quite common, gradually becoming more severe, and if prompt action is not taken, serious results will follow. The symptoms are headache and pain in the back, sleeplessness, ashen complexion, white coated tongue and frequent urination. If a puffy swelling is noted in the feet or ankles the disease is well established and you must give the kidneys all the help possible by stirring the liver and bowels into action. Take Henderson's Herb Tablets every night according to directions, watch the digestion carefully, drink plenty of cold water between meals.

Mrs. T. Bevington, 303 Wilton ave., Toronto, Ont., says:

"I wish to express my gratitude for the great benefit I have received through Dr. Henderson's Herb Treatment. I suffered for a number of years with kidney and liver trouble and at times could scarcely do my work with the pain in my back, and cramps in my muscles. I am now 67 years of age and after using one box of Dr. Henderson's Herb Treatment I feel like a new person.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Treatment can be purchased at Warne's Drug Store. Price 25c., 50c. and $1.00.

The Ladies Who Helped to Make the Knights of Columbus Meet Success

The ladies who had charge of most of the entertainment in connection with the Knights of Columbus convention here this week had a very busy time of it, but their efforts were well repaid by the expressions of appreciation heard on all sides from the visitors and their wives, one lady from Chapleau remarking that Peterborough people should never expect to go to heaven after dwelling on earth in such a beautiful spot.

The Catholic Women's League acted as hostesses for the reception, while the wives of members of the Knights of Columbu supplied and served a supper for the visiting ladies on the last day. A booth was erected on the lawn for the dispensing of light refreshments, and a card party, two informal dances, a sightseeing motor trip, a jaunt over the Lift Locks and a concert on Tuesday evening were some of the pleasures provided for the visitors by the indefatigable women workers. The Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Margaret McCabe, which excited a great deal of favorable comment, was composed of the following: Miss Gertrude Clancy, Minnie Allen, Clara Tangney, Maud Kennedy, Genevieve Leahy, Mollie Young, Florence Murray, Aileen Murray, Lottie Hogan, Anite Legendre and Messrs. J. Minicolo, C. Legendre, K. Picard, V. McCabe and J. Fitzpatrick. Mrs. A. Perrin also kindly sang on Wednesday evening.

The ladies who worked so hard to make the entire affair so successful were: Mrs. Gus White (Convenor), Mrs. L. Legendre, Mrs. G. H. Giroux, Mrs. R. Sheehy, Sr., Mrs. J. R. Corkery, Mrs. W. S. Merrell, Mrs. J. V. Gallivan, Mrs. G. H. Popham, Mrs. E. J. McCarthy, Mrs. M. J. Roche, Mrs. John Coughlin, Mrs. J. P. Finn, Mrs. J. E. B. Paquette, Mrs. F. Overend, Mrs. W. R. Hunter, Mrs. R. The Peterboro Caledonian Club

During the last month the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Peterborough Caledonian Club conducted a drawing on behalf of the club and were successful in raising a handsome sum that will be used to swell the funds of the society.

The prizes and lucky winners were as follows: A ukelele, Mrs. Johnston; pair of men's hand-knitted drawers, Mr. Alex. Burgess; hand-worked sideboard cover, Mrs. Allen; hand-made hug-me-tight, Master Peter McArthur.

Last Friday evening the ladies held a whist drive in the Woodmen of the World Hall, the successful contestants being Mrs. R. Veitch and Mr. T. McArthur.

Encouraged by their progress made in the various enterprises undertaken by them, the ladies are now co-operating with the men's Executive of the club to make the picnic on July 1st down the river a regular field day, and will guarantee every individual an excellent outing.

Gaelic A.B.C.

Every letter in the Gaelic alphabet is represented by a tree. The alphabet of to-day consists of eighteen letters—in ancient Gaelic seventeen—and now, as of old, all the letters with the exception of g, t and u, which stand for ivy, furze and heather, are called after trees.

The Gaelic a, b, c of to-day runs: Ailm, beite, coll, dur, eagh, fearn, gath, huath, iogh, luis, muin, nuin, elv, peith, ruis, suil, teine, ur, which is equivalent to saying elm, birch, hazel, oak, aspen, alder, ivy, whitethorn, lew, rowan or quicken, vine ash, spindle tree, pine, elder, willow, furze, heath.

In the ancient Gaelic alphabet the letter h (the huath or whitethorn) does not exist. The alphabet is called the beth-luis-nuin, because b, l, n, and not a, b, c, are its first three letters.

PALE AND NERVOUS SCHOOL CHILDREN

NEED RICH, RED BLOOD TO REGAIN HEALTH AND STRENGTH.

Many children start school in excellent health, but after a short time home work, examinations, hurried meals and crowded school rooms cause their blood to become weak, their nerves over-wrought and their color and spirits lost. It is a mistake to let matters drift when boys and girls show symptoms of nervousness or weak blood. They are almost sure to fall victims of St. Vitus dance, or drift into debility that leads to other troubles. Regular meals, out-door exercise and plenty of sleep are necessary to combat the nervous wear of school life. But it is still more important that parents should pay attention to the school child's blood supply. Keep this rich and red by giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and the boy or girl will be sturdy and fit for school. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind is shown by the statement of Mrs. Watson, Grand Falls, N.B., who says: "In the spring of 1919 my daughter Thistle, then 12 years of age, began to show symptoms of nervousness which developed into St. Vitus dance. She seemed to lose control of her limbs and at times every muscle in her body seemed to be twitching and jerking, and the trouble seemed to be growing worse. We finally decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and the result was better even than we had hoped for, and she is now enjoying the best of health."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Fish Pond

A fish pond is a mighty nice place for the children who patronize it, but it takes a great deal of time and trouble to accumulate the articles that go to equip the magic interior which, when invaded by a rod and line over a mysterious curtain, may disgorge almost anything, from a bangle to a tea apron.

The conglomeration of fish pond novelties which waits in a quiet room for the day of Father Phelan's Summer Fair includes things that are useful and ornamental, and some that achieve the victorious altitude of possessing both of these qualities at the same time. Stuffed cats, one a lovely pussy with a most benign expression; bunnies with wiggly ears, a white and black poodle, Noah's arks, fancy pictures and picture books, ornamental Dutch dolls with pin cushion arms and legs, nig- dollies with bright bead eyes ... yellow hair) and coal ... resplendent in plug ..." tie pin, and an- ... with a rude ex- ... ear bangles; ... A New Vegetable

The United States Department of Agriculture has warned the people of that country against a new vegetable gold brick, the jack bean, that get-rich-quick gentry are introducing under various aliases, such as "Pearson bean," "Wonder bean," "Wataka bean," "Gotani bean," "South American coffee bean," etc. This bean comes from the West Indies, where supernatural powers are ascribed to it by savage disciples of Voodoo worship. Any belief in its power to fill the pocketbooks of northern folks would be weird indeed.—The Canadian Horticulturist.

Cupid's Best Work

Miss Aubrey Eaton, Dean of the Matrimonial School of the Chicago Young Women's Christian Association, whose class graduated on May 30th, dispensed a little friendly advice to her pupils in the following words:

"Cupid's best work isn't done with a skillet. Those who argue that June brides can reach their husband's hearts by their ability to use a frying-pan are all wrong. Girls, be pleasing to his sight—try to look like the summer girl in poster when you're at work in a hot kitchen and whisper intelligent somethings instead of sweet nothings in his ear, and it doesn't matter what you feed him."

Of course, this overturns all the old theories about "the way to a man's heart," and Mrs. Julian Heath, President of the Housewives' League of America, disagrees emphatically with the views quoted above. She says: "Girls should leave the rouge pot alone and give the coffee pot more attention. You can win a man with pretty charms in the parlor, but after marriage it's the kitchen vamp who gets by.

"Whispering sweet nothings in his ear is very nice, but the sweetest thing a woman can say about 6.30 p.m. is, 'Dearie the steak is ready.' And pretty blue eyes are all right, but they don't mean so much across a plate of canned salmon to a fellow with a hungry stomach.

"It's all right to go to the beauty parlor, but it's a good thing to tarry a while with the butcher on the way back home.

"And besides, if a girl is really pretty she'll be just as pretty—more so, maybe—in a kitchen frock. You never heard of a man leaving home because his wife wore an apron in the house."

From all of which it looks as if the maiden who has been blessed with good looks must divide her time equally between the preservation and enhancing of her appearance and the cook book and frying-pan. The expert in either line may expect a divided allegiance, and, as for the unfortunate damsel who has neither beauty nor household science down to a fine art, her case is hopeless. She may just as well resign herself to a life of single blessedness and to the cultivation of the numerous good works which lie within the feminin sphere these days.

Orgin of Flowers

Recipes

There are innumerable muffin, griddle-cake and gingerbread recipes, with sour milk as a basis. The following show excellent ways of using up your sour milk:

Sour Milk and Bread Griddle-cakes.

Mix equal quantities of sour milk and small, broken pieces of bread and let stand with a cover for about forty-eight hours. Just before using put through a colander, and for each two cupfuls of the mixture add one slightly beaten egg, one teaspoonful soda, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, and three-quarters of a cupful of sifted flour. Bake on a hot, well-greased griddle.

Sour Milk Gingerbread.

Mix well together one cupful of molasses, half a cupful of sour milk and one beaten egg. Add an eighth of a teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of ginger, two cupfuls of sifted flour and half a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a very small amount of hot water. Then beat in five tablespoonfuls of melted fat. Pour into a shallow pan and bake in a moderate oven.

Sour Cream Filling for Cake.

Take one cupful of sour cream, sweeten, chill, then whip. When stiff, fold in three-quarters of a cupful of chopped nuts and spread between the layers of cake.

Sour Milk Waffles.

Mix one cupful of sour milk, two cupfuls of sweet milk, half a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of fat, the white of one egg and a half and the yolk of one egg, half a teaspoonful of baking soda and enough flour to make a medium-thin batter. Beat the egg yolk until light and creamy; add half a teaspoonful of baking powder, a little of the flour, then the sour milk, in which the soda is dissolved. Stir constantly. Add one tablespoonful of the melted fat, next the sweet milk; beat well. Then add the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in hot, well-greased waffle irons.

Puree of Lima Beans.

Cover half a cup of dried beans with cold water and boil soft. Add more water if necessary. Mash through a sieve and add a cup of water and a tablespoon of butter. Season and serve.

Chicken Monte Carlo.

Melt a tablespoon of butter in a casserole or deep baking dish, with one pared carrot, one onion, a tablespoon of celery salt, salt and pepper. Joint a chicken and brown. Place in the casserole, add water to cover and bake until tender. Uncover the last half hour.

Banana Chartreuse.

Peel and slice six bananas. Prepare some lemon jelly and dip each banana in it. Sprinkle with chopped nuts, and just before the jelly hardens, pour over a cup of cream that has been beaten as stiff as possible.

Creamed Lobster.

Drain the juice from a can of lobster and cut in pieces. If you use fresh lobster cut in pieces just the same. Melt three tablespoons of butter and stir in a tablespoon of flour. When well blended add a cup and a half of thin cream or rich milk and boil thick. Add the lobster and boil up once. Just before serving add a teaspoon of lemon juice.

Minced Eggs.

Boil three or four eggs twenty-five minutes and peel off the shells. Mince rather coarsely and add a cup and a half of milk. Bring to a hard boil and thicken with a little dissolved flour. Add butter and seasoning.

Potato Sausage.

Mix a cup of mashed potatoes with half a cup of chopped nuts, one beaten egg, a tablespoon of shortening or butter, salt and pepper. Form into small cakes, roll in flour and bake in a hot oven.

Cream of Carrot Soup.

Boil enough carrots to make three cups and mash. Add two cups of water and half a cup of milk in which a level tablespoon of cornstarch has been dissolved. Boil up once, season and serve.

Southern Potatoes.

Pare raw potatoes and cut in strips. Place a layer in a baking dish, sprinkle with a tablespoon of sugar, add a little melted butter, salt and cinnamon. Continue until the dish is full and bake until the potatoes are done.

Beauty Has Charms

Beauty has so many charms, one knows not how to speak against it; and when it happens that a graceful figure is the habitation of a virtuous soul, when the beauty of the face speaks out the modesty and humility of the mind and the justness of the proportion raises our thoughts up to the heart and wisdom of the great Creator, something may be allowed it—and something to the embellishments which set it off—and yet, when the whole apology is read, it will be found at last that beauty, like truth, never is so glorious as when it goes the plainest.—Sterne.

NEW ZEALAND'S MEAT EXPORTS MOUNT.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, June 4. — Canadian Press. — Returns compiled by the trade indicate that New Zealand's exports of frozen meat in 1920 were much in advance of the shipments in any one of the preceding seven years. In 1920, 549,036,368 pounds were shippedd. In 1913 the total was 279,251,105 lbs.

AUTO TRADE POOR IN LONDON.

LONDON, June 4. Canadian Press. The automobile trade has been poor during the past few months in London, acording to a newspaper statement, but there is now some promise of improvement. It is stated that orders are coming in with a certain degree of freedom. Nevertheless prices have come down substantially, secondhand motors being available sometimes at absurdly low figures. Tires an expensive motoring item, have been reduced approximately 100 per cent, and in one case a further reduction of one pound sterling a tire is reported. There is also a ten per cent. reduction on a number of other items.

FLAX IMPORTED IN AUSTRALIA.

MELBOURNE, Australia, June 4. —Canadian Press. Since the war the cultivation of flax has become an important Australian industry, being grown chiefly in Victoria, states the Melbourne Age. In 1917 there were 300 acres under cultivation and at present there are 1800 acres yielding one and one half tons per acre. The commonwealth government guarantees growers five pounds sterling a ton for standard flax.

BUSINESS BETTER IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, June 4. — The Federal Reserve Board's review of general business and financial conditions throughou. the country during May, declares that recovery in production and distribution although greatly retarded, has been in progress during the past month. The Board finds that what appears to be a definite turn for the better has been taken by some branches of domestic industry but that foreign trade is still arrested and depressed.

"The more helpful attitude which showed itself among business men during April, has continued," the board declares, "and in some industries is preparing the way for active development. Gains made during the preceding month or two have been generally retained, reaction being only sporadic.

"Foreign trade continues its movement towards a more nearly equal balance of imports and exports. There has been a further falling off in our shipments and some increase in receipts from abroad; the figures being especially noticeable when stated as physical volumes of goods. Failure to recover normal industrial conditions in foreign countries, and special causes of trade impairment, such as the British coal strike, have hampered progress; while disturbed exchange and inadequate financial facilities have made resumption of activity a matter of special difficulty in some directions.

"Readjustment in wages which was given special consideration a month ago has proceeded, but has been slow; while adjustment between wages and prices (especially retail prices) is exhibiting special difficulties. Irregularities and lack of uniformity still exists in a marked degree over large sections of the retail price field and qualified observers forecast serious obstacles to the final adjustment of wages to permanent levels unless retail prices move much faster to their final basis.

"Settling of prices has proceeded in various wholesale lines to an extent that is reflected in less noteworthy average changes but this process is apparently more truly an 'evening up' or adjustment to a level already reached than it is a new dip or downward movement toward generally lower values. Basic commodities have shown ability to hold their own at levels already established. High costs of transportation to which reference was amde a month ago as one of the elements retarding readjustment, continue to produce a restrictive influence and are the subject of active investigation.

"So long as prices are still in an unstable condition buying for future delivery is necessarily retarded in many lines. This holds both good of both of industries where recovery is in progress and in those which are still declining. In some branches of textile production for example, manufactures report that while the volume of current trade is good advance orders continue small, most buyers declining to commit themselves far in advance."

TRYING TO BRING BACK FIVE-CENT BREAD

NEW YORK, June 4—The farmers of North Dakota are working to bring back the five-cent loaf of bread.

They declare bread could now be sold at the old standard figure, based on the present price of wheat, and they are planning to demonstrate this to the rest of the country.

Horace A. Davis of Brookline, Mass., eastern representative of the Bank of North Dakota, said in an interviw with the United Press to-day that the state will soon float a $2,000,000 bond issue through its bank to establish a flour mill at Grand Forks, through which the demonstration will be carried out.

"Bread could be selling at five cents a loaf now, and it should be," Davis said. "The difference between the present price of bread and the nickel is unfairly taken by millers transportation men, middlemen and others operating between the farmer and the consumer. The experiment now being carried out in North Dakota will show that this waste can be eliminated and that wheat can be brought to the public in the form of five cent loaf of bread.

"Former Vice-President Marshall declared some time ago that 'what this country needs is a good five-cent cigar.' I feel that a good five-cent loaf of bread would be more indictative of a return to 'normalcy.'

THE SATURDAY COLUMN

(By QUINTUS)

What is the joy of this life and the hope of the future? Many people will at once say: "A life of plenty and a good time. As for the future, don't worry; it will be 'good-night.'" But what was there in us before all that—before we got down to that? The mind of man itself, the seat of consciousness and thought—the two most wonderful things in the world—are both absolutely non-material. The most plain and practical of men cannot buy and sell them. They are not of the earth; they belong to the realm of the ideal. Thought and feeling are totally different; so that when we begin to think and our thoughts turn to the hereafter, we are in another world than that of the body. Our feelings and appetites have been left behind. No train or motor car can travel at the rate of thought, or even light itself. We journey into dreamland.

How different all that is from the poor stuff we call the practical life of every day!

What is understood as the plain, sensible, etc., life of our every day is but a degree or two above the life of the brute munching in the stall. The sole concern of the animal world is to get enough to satisfy the animal wants, and so, also, with many people. And with a good nest, a good supply of food, a nice mate, etc., we can fancy the animal-man sitting back and saying as some people sometimes do: "This is the life! I am none of your high-brows. What is high-brow stuff in comparison with having a good bank account? Where are the high-brows on a rainy day?" Now, is this "plain, practical, sensible" stuff the best that, after all, there is in life. A fool's paradise is better than that. If the material is all that we can rely upon, then home, sweet home, is an idle tale, the household no better than a stable, the hearth and its sacred fire, to which the mind of the wanderer often turns with a sigh, is in reality only a lair or a trough. But you and I know that the affections, the sentiments, are not material, are no "plain, practical, sensible" stuff at all.

But, stop for a moment! Think! Is there nothing more in the universe than all that practical stuff? Is there not a still higher—a much higher—life for us than that? "Well," you say, "if there is, where is it?" It is in the world of the ideal, the world of perfection, the world of beauty, the world where everything is spiritual and nothing carnal, where the food is the food of the soul, and consists of kindness, sympathy, love, self-sacrifice, and all those things from which the lower or bodily self is wholly eliminated. Notwithstanding all the big talk about the plain, practical, common-sense man and woman, we would not tolerate them for a day if they had not a touch of the higher life about them. What is the difference between one plain, motherly woman and another? Is it not that ethereal quality of love and yearning, of self-sacrifice of sympathy? A coarse, masculine, gruff-spoken woman with a laugh like a rattle of pans and a chest like a chest of drawers is all right in her place—to do the washing and scrubbing—and her husband will be so like her that it would only need a skirt like a blanket to complete the resemblance.

In the very next house and in correspondingly poor and humble circumstances, you may find the same physical conditions lifted altogether out of the common-place by a touch of that fine poetic quality which we call culture or nice feeling.

One pair is of the earth and wishes to remain so. It is useless to talk to them of heaven. That is high-brow stuff to them. The other couple have the light of heaven breaking in upon them already. The spiritual in them is awake. Like the charm of sweet music the thought of the ideal wakes in them the worship of it, the longing for it. And it has no aches and pains. It is known as spiritual because it is known to be unaffected by any disease or other affection of the body. It is the sure and certain refuge of those who would be happy. It is the only refuge for those who would escape the tragedy of this life. Cultivate the ideal, cultivate the spiritual, dream of the beautiful, swim in the boundless empyrean, rejoice in the limitless loveliness of the ideal. It is the exaltation, the supreme lifting up, of men and women into the ideal life that is happiness without alloy. It, and it alone, can be paradise. It is paradise. It is heaven. And yet it is human. We have flown upon our own wings to the very gates of perfection, and in the refreshment of the soul we find perfect happiness. Try it. Deceive yourself for an afternoon. In the calm of a lovely evening leave the earth and the cares of earth for a while and ascend into the realm of the ideal. Is it not glorious? Is it not a tremendous contrast to the hideous mess we are trying to make of this world, as if we, poor human things, could make heaven out of the flesh and the things of the spirit out of laws. Do we presume to take hold of this world and make perfection of it? God forbid. The conceit of those who would do so is almost beyond endurance. It is so stupid as to be grotesque.

It is true that we will sometimes find people who profess these fine sentiments falling far short of the ideal which they refer to. And if they repeat the offence we may well censure them. If they are right-minded they will require no warning to retire. Their own sense of fitness of things will suggest it. But that matters very little, because the world of the ideal is the world of each one of us and is not necessarily connected up or in any way dependent upon anybody else. There is no alloy in it. We cannot repeat that statement too often. It depends on our own powers of flying high how high we fly and to what height of exaltation, almost of intoxication, that we reach

Now, all this springs from the fact of our birth, which is not as Wordsworth's line suggests: 'A sleep and a forgetting." Again let me say that if you would be happy, even in the midst of earthly torment of sickness, disease and the like, you have the power and the opportunity. It lies in losing ourselves in the ideal. Shake off the dull and pitiless common-place of human life, and with more than the wings of the morning seek that which in the very seeking is happiness itself.

How gross, how clod-like, how unspiritual and stupid we are! Do you not see that every sweet sentiment is itself the embodiment of the ideal and all that is really lovely in life? Why cling then to the common-place? Why do ye ever and always seek to rest your weary, miserable souls upon the material? Your mistake is monumental. Why are we so inexpressibly stupid? Just as intuition is merely instinct, so is the life here the life of our animal being. No antics like compulsory social reform can make life more than material, more than the life of the policeman and the gaol. We must follow closely what God has created us for or we shall perish and that, too, after a life of dejection, misery and hopelessness.

Is not a fool's paradise better than none? Then, if you can do no better, why not live in a fool's paradise? It is a strange thing that people are so desperately matter-of-fact in their search for happiness that they walk right by it.

The source of moral disease, like the source of physical suffering, is beyond us. It exists in the very nature of things and we cannot extinguish it. To issue edicts against it, to publish enactments against, is Ajax defying the lightning. It is a vain attempt. The kingdom of heaven is within; not without us. We can slap the wrist of a man as we do that of a child and knock the cup of iniquity out of his hand, but will that sort of thing regenerate mankind? If so, how foolish all that God has done and has left undone. Teach the ideal and it will be impossible to sink, to falter and to fail, but yet some will fail. Cultivate idealism as you would cultivate your very life. For in it, and in it alone, is the joy of the present and the hope of the future.

BEASTS SLIP ON CHARACTER FACES

In Order to Pose For Photographers.

Why is it that a lion instinctively assumes an expression of majestic aloofness and Juvian benignity when the camera man shows up? They are the best posers in the world, are the lions, and they take better "close-ups" than nine-tenths the celluloid rompers. The lion is either a supreme four-flusher or he is pretty nearly what he has been termed by the nature fussers—the King of Beasts. The lions of the John Robinson Circus are the pick of years of selection from literally hundreds of specimens. Inbreds in this menagerie are killed. Many cubs are given away yearly, but always a choice specimen is held. When John Robinson's Circus comes to Peterborough, Thursday, June 16, you'll notice in the two-mile parade and in the menagerie tent that this is true of all the cat animals—lions, tigers, Roval Bengals, leopards, pumas and cougars, to say nothing of the scores of other jungle beasts.

And choice in selection with John Robinson's Circus extends to the elephants and the horses. They, too, are the pick of scores upon scores in every instance, for has not the circus had ninety-eight years in which to perfect its system?

From "Lizzie," the famous shimmying elephant, whose dance has convulsed over three million people since the shimmy craze hit Broadway, to the smallest baby elephant in the five herds, the elephants are keen performers. No elephant is carried for show with John Robinson's Circus—they all must be actors.

And the horses. The Robinson high school horses are champions. They carry their pretty girl riders through many intricate dances, evolutions and posings.

CRITICISM AND REMINISCENCE

(By PATERFAMILIAS)

ROYALTY IN PETERBOROUGH

Reading of the visit of the Crown Prince of Japan to England, and reflecting on the disappointment felt in this city that the present lovable Prince of Wales could not make it convenient to give this community a call when touring Canada, leads to a retrospection of the time when Peterboronians rejoiced and were exceedingly glad in the presence of British royalty; if only for less than an hour. 'Twas in September, 1860, that the then Prince of Wales, a young man of tender years, and later to ascend the throne as Edward of England and Emperor of India, following his mother, Queen Victoria, paid Peterborough a flying visit. The people of this then small town made great preparations to welcome His Royal Highness, and no doubt considered that they did so handsomely. The Town and County Councils granted $2,400 to a committee, who had full charge of all reception arrangements. This sum would not go far thees days, but it seems to have lent itself to considerable decoration and other joyful details in 1860, when a dollar bill would, so to speak, fill a wheelbarrow with delicious and satisying edibles. Three picturesque arches were erected in honor of the Prince—one in Ashburnham, nearly opposite a Mr. Rogers' store in the neighborhood of the present business block; one on Hunter street, near St. John's church, and another on George street, in the block between Hunter and Brock streets. The Ashburnham arch was of Roman design, that on Hunter street in the Tudor style of architecture, with towers, battlements, etc., while the third was built in Gothic style; a lumberman's arch was also erected on George street. Then, poles surmounted by flags and festooned with evergreens were in evidence here and there, while every building along the procession route was clothed in flags, bunting, streamers and evergreens. At about 11.30 the train carrying the Prince and suite reached the station in Ashburnham, from Cobourg, by way of Harwood and across a bridge over Rice Lake— the old Cobourg and Peterborough Railway. The procession was then formed and started in the followin gorder:

Marshal on horseback.
Two Depty-Marshals on horseback.
Warden and County Council in carriages.
Mayor and Town Council in carriages..
Sheriff and County Judge.
Carriage containing
The Prince of Wales and Governor-General.
The Rifle Company forming a Guard of Honor on each side of carriage.
The Duke of Newcastle, Earl St. Germans.
General Bruce and others of the Prince's suite.
Members of the Legislature.
Executive Committee.
Band.
Two Deputy Marshals on horseback.
Temperance organiaztions.
Citizens.

The procession paraded to the Court House grounds—now known as Victoria Park—where a handsome pavilion had been erected. One thousand children greeted the Heir Apparent by singing "God Save the Queen," to which had been added a verse in honor of the royal visitor, after which 15,000 people there assembled cheered and cheered again and again. Civic addresses were then read by County Warden William Lang and Mayor Augustus Sawers. To these the Prince replied as follows:

"Gentlemen,—I thank you sincerely for the addresses which you have presented me. In the Queen's name, I acknowledge the expressions of your loyalty to her crown and person; and for myself, I am grateful to you for this welcome to your neighborhood."

A deputation from Cavan Township, headed by Reeve John Swain, also presented an address. The procession then reformed and marched through the principal streets, and in less than an hour after his arrival the Prince boarded his train again and bade good-bye to cheering thousands of loyal Canadian subjects.

Up to ten or twelve years ago there lived in Peterborough two perfectly lovely old ladies, the Misses Corrigan. And one of them—as pretty as a picture, for her advanced years— danced with the Prince at Cobourg in 1860—the time above referred to. Then I remember dining with Mr. E. R. Yokome, the late editor of the Examiner, who after dinner showed me, in its place of honor in his drawing room, the piano played at the dance in Cobourg when the Prince tripped the light fantastic with Miss Corrigan and other Canadian beauties on that, his first and only visit to this Dominion.

THE BLACK WATCH.

This is a famous British Highland regiment sent to Silesia to see that the terms of the Treaty of Versailles are observed—a regiment upon which the Germans are now fawning with sickening obsequiousness. In reality it has a history dating back to 1725, when the Scottish Government armed a body of Highlanders at the time General Wade was appointed commander in chief of Scotland. Originally the appellation "Black Watch" was bestowed on certain armed companies employed to "watch" the Highlands of Scotland; and the term "black" arose from the hues of this militia unit, which was to posed of tartan of dark colors. ever, it was not until 1730 that spoot companies assumed regular she tot form. The companies were and un number —three comprising urally t each, commanded by a cap- as Kate three of 70 men each, in making th captain-lieutenants. They bubbling sp ed in different parts of extent infe s, acted independently it not difficult and were known as talk and go to panies of the Black tion at the tab There was ready was raised chief- to work hard al clans of Scotland rather end Petti Grants, Mitchells, and many men of good birth joined it, for the sake of good pay and the privilege of bearing arms. Their duties were to enforce the disarming act, to overawe the disaffected, to stop political meetings of a seditious character, and to check depredations among the clans or on the Lowland frontier. In 1739 the whole of the companies were united as the 42nd Regiment, under the Earl of Crawford's command. Retaining its original Highland character, this 42nd Regiment developed into one of the most distinguished corps in the British army, the whole of its history making a record of brilliant achievements of which the Empire might well be proud. Embodied under the Earl of Crawford the regiment would have adopted the tartan of that nobleman had he possessed such a cognizance; the Earl, however, being a Lowlander, it was necessary to adopt an arbitrary pattern of tartan, which has until this day been known as the 42nd or "Black Watch" tartan.

During the Boer War in 1899, in which the Canadains played their part, the Black Watch were badly cut up at Magersfontein South Africa. The story reads that on the afternoon of Sunday, December 10, the British, under Lord Methuen, resumed offensive operations against the Boer lines at Magersfontein after a check at Modder River. The attacking force was composed mainly of the Guards and the Highland Brigade. During the night this Highland Brigade, including the Black Watch, under General Wauchoye, was pushed forward in a drenching rain to the front of the Kopjes held by the Boers. (Kopjes, you know, are small hills.) Floundering in the mud the men lost their way, and the officers had to go by compass. At daybreak, before the advanced detachments had deployed for action, a hot rifle fire was suddenly opened on them by the concealed enemy at a distance of two hundred yards. Nothing daunted, however, the Highlanders, including the Black Watch, charged the Boer positions, but many of them became hopelessly trapped in the barbed wire entanglements with which the enemy had strengthened his defences. This was, perhaps, the first time barbed wire had been used in warfare, and in its use, as well as the Boers' recourse to other super-modern military innovations, it was strongly suspected the hand of Germany could be seen. In the ensuing confusion at Magerfonten contradictory orders were given, and a bugler blew for retreat. General Wauchope was killed trying to rally his men, and finally the demoralized brigade lay down and kept up a desultory fire. The Highlanders were withdrawn from their perilous position after fifteen hours' exposure to a murderous fire. On the following day the British withdrew, after suffering 171 killed and 691 wounded, of whom a large porportion belonged to the Black Watch Regiment, the bravest of the brave. This was a heavy casualty list these days, before poisoned gas and other devlish devices, originating with the inhuman Huns, had been revealed to a horror-stricken world. The Black Watch also showed conspicuous pluck and heroism in the late war.

GLASSMAKING.

Glassmaking is one of the great national industries of Belgium. Even before the was it was a source of large wealth, and to-day it is playing an important part in rehabilitating the country. Belgium has been famous for its glassmaking for many centuries, and at the present time glass holds first rank among the general exports from Belgium to all other ocuntries. There is scarcely a civilised nation in the world that is not more or less dpendent upon Belgium for window glass, mirrors, and table glass. — Youth's Companion.

SNOW OUT WEST

While the thermometer in Ontario has been registering at and around 80 in the shade, Alberta has been experiencing real wintry weather. A letter from Edmonton on Thursday says, there was on its despatch considerable snow on the ground. This, however, was welcome to the farmers, as they felt that snow would mean more moisture in the ground.

Special Attraction in the Wool Department on Monday

Commencing Monday, we will have Miss Jean Duncan, of the Jean Duncan Exclusive Wool Store, Toronto, with us for three days. She is here in the interest of our New Wool Department, which has been lately altered and is now one of the best equipped wool departments in Ontario.

Miss Duncan is one of the best authorities on knitting woollen garments there is in the Dominion. She is the designer for all of the Monarch wool sweaters and jackets, and is thought of so highly by the Monarch Wool Manufacturers that they recently opened a store on Yonge Street, Toronto, for her to operate. She will be with us for three days only to help our lady patrons with their knitting difficulties. She will be pleased to have you come in and have a friendly conversation on any knitting problem which you may have, and also show you the stitches and sweater designs which she gathered while studying the art of knitting in New York very recently. Ask for her at the Wool Department to the right of George Street Entrance, Main Floor. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

NEW WATER RATE

The revision of the water rates necessitated by the increased expense caused by the purification of the water, has been completed by the Utilities Commission, and the new rates will go into effect on July 1st next. The accounts will be sent out along with the electric light accounts every two months, instead of quarterly, and a discount of 10 per cent. off the tariff rates will be allowed for payment within ten days from the delivery or mailing of the accounts. These rates are approximately an increase of 80 per cent. over the present rates. Of this increase about 27 per cent. would have been required owing to increased costs in operation, and the balance of the increase is owing to the expenditures on the filtration plant.

The new rates are as follows:

Apartment house	By meter
No annual rate shall be less than	$5.40
Banks, one tap	13.38
Bakeries, separate from dwelling, using one barrel flour per day or less	8.04

There are two dangerous moments in the love game—when a man begins to appeal to a woman's sympathy and when a woman begins to appeal to a man's "superior judgment."

An American husband would never think of going to a drug store in order to find a cure for his wife's ailments until he had first tried the florist, the confectioner and the jeweller.

EMERGENCY TARIFF BILL JUST ENACTED A FORECAST OF PERMANENT LEGISLATION TO COME.

SHUTTING OUT IMPORTS

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(Canadian Press). — Enactment of the Agricultural Tariff Bill, known as the Emergency Bill, which has just been completed, is a forecast of what is going to happen when the measure for the permanent revision of the tariff is adopted.

The rates carried in the Emergency Bill are so high as to be almost prohibitive, and will absolutely shut out imports. It is true that these rates will be scaled down in the permanent bill. For instance, the wheat rate, in which Canada is much interested, will probably be reduced from 35 cents a bushel to 25 or perhaps 20.

Broadly speaking, however, the rates which are going to be fixed in the new permanent tariff schedules will be high. They will be much above the rates of the existing Underwood law, and in some cases even higher than those of the old Payne law which was enacted in 1909. In a great many cases, efforts will be made to have them on the same high level as the Payne rates.

A Republican member of Congress from the Middle West, when asked to-day what sort of a permanent tariff bill would be enacted this summer, said:

"The new bill will be intended to build a stone wall about the United States."

Of course the Democratic members, for the most part, are not in sympathy with the plan to fix extremely high tariff rates. It is also a fact that a large number of Republicans in the House and the Senate are opposed to such high rates. But the Republican leaders in House and Senate who dominate the situation are strongly in favor of high rates, though there are some men in the administration who are fully conscious of the need of encouraging reciprocal and mutual trade between the United States and other countries, the Harding administration as a whole leans toward higher rates. Some of the members are said to fear the danger of a tariff war with Canada and other countries.

But representative Fordney, of Michigan, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which makes up the tariff bill, and most of the members of that committee as well as Chairman Penrose of the Senate Finance Committee, and the majority of the Senators on that committee, are ultra high tariff men. The permanent tariff bill will to a large extent reflect the views of those high protectionists. The high protectionists will dominate the bill, and while the low or moderate tariff exponents may be able to force concessions here and there, the indications are the supporters of high tariff will have their way, and that President Harding will sign whatever bill on the tariff is presented to him.

The manner in which trade between the U.S. and Canada is expanding was described to some extent in the course of the discussion on the emergency tariff measure. More will be heard on the same subject in the debate on the permanent bill. Objections will be made to high rates on goods imported from Europe, especially goods which are not luxuries, on the ground that such rates will tend to block trade and prevent world rehabilitation, and in the long run the U. S. will suffer by such blocking of trade. But it is not expected that such objections will weigh much with the extreme tariff advocates. They are bound to try the effect of high duties whether or no, just as they were in 1909. It will not be surprising if far-reaching results, politically, follow from these rates, just as in 1909, but that is something which it is too early to tell about with precision. All that can be said definitely is that millions of U. S. consumers just now are in an extremely critical frame of mind, and if the cost of living is increased, it will go hard with the party in power. Moreover, unless the U. S. farmers find their condition is bettered substantially by the new tariff and their cost of living and cost of the things they purchase is reduced, they are going out with a club after the party in power also.

Thinking men in Washington, in times such as these, do not hesitate to say it would tend to better mutual understanding if Canada were directly represented here by her own ambassador, and this without any reflection on the present diplomatic arrangement.

The scheme of Representative Longworth for what is called interim tariff legislation, whereby the new rates of duty will practically be made effective when the permanent tariff bill is presented to the House by the Ways and Means Committee, has strong support and likewise intense opposition. Just now it seems doubtful whether it can be forced through the Senate, though the situation has not developed clearly enough to tell accurately. It will at least encounter long and bitter Senate opposition.

Wheat—35 cents per bushel.
Wheat Flour and Semolina, 25 per cent. ad valorem.
Flax seed—30 cents per bushel.
Corn or maize—15 cents per bushel.
Beans—2 cents per pound.

CROP OUTLOOK

Following is a brief synopsis of telegrapihc reports of crop conditions and prospects in Canada, as received at the head office of the Bank of Montreal from its branches:

Prairie Provinces.

Seeding of wheat has been completed in practically every district under favorable conditions, and farmers are now finishing the seeding of late coarse grains. Edmonton District.—Wheat well up; oats above ground. Calgary District.—Growth well advanced particularly wheat. Conditions now favourable. Lethbridge District—Early grains well up. No damage by wind or frost. From Lomond, Retlaw, Bow Island and MacLeod there are reports of damage by cut worms, rendering some re-seeding necessary. Grasshoppers are also appearing and causing anxiety. Pasturage excellent. Regina District.—Fifty per cent. of the wheat is up. General conditions good. In the region of Yorkton, continuous rains have delayed operations. Saskatoon District.—Wheat up in healthy condition. Conditions generally satisfactory. Winnipeg District— Crops generally well advanced and making good progress. Grass hoppers reported in some districts.

Province of Quebec.

Reports from all sections indicate crops are suffering from drought and in some instances re-sowing has been necessary. Grass pasture and hay are in need of heavy rains. Fruit prospects are fairly favorable.

Province of Ontario.

Conditions in general are very satisfactory and recent rains have been beneficial. Weather conditions of late have improved fall wheat, the growth of which is well up to the average. Other grains most satisfactory. Roots making good growth. Fruit prospects fair. Condition of hay and grass pasture is excellent. Tobacco—a small acreage planting now in full swing.

Maritime Provinces.

In New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, seedin ghas been completed and operations generally are well in advance of last year. Grass pasture is in good condition, but rain is needed. In certain districts fruit crop prospects are favourable. In Prince Edward Island seeding is well underway and finished in some districts. Pasture is good. General conditions excellent.

Province of British Columbia.

WONDERFUL JOURNEY

From Cave Man to Super Man, Filled With Blessings.

From cave-man to super-man was a wonderful journey. Filled with many blessings, also tragedies, it carries one from a lowly and crude beginning in the hazy half million years ago to present-day wonderful civilization and culture. The cave-man of Central Europe, and his rude stone implements, as shown in the exhibits in the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, furnish us with the first evidence of man applying his hands and brain to the development of domestic science. Fragments of charcoal found in these caves indicate that these men knew how to make fire and roast flesh, on which they mainly subsisted.

This is the first of a series of interesting picture stories on the evolution of cooking utensils from the stone age to the Aluminum age. The picture is a reproduction of the implements used by the cave-man.

LITTLE DAUGHTER NOW IS PICTURE OF HEALTH

Mrs. Stollery Says She'd Rather See Her Child Well and Happy Like She is Since Taking Tanlac Than Have All Money in the World.

"I would rather see my little daughter well and happy like she is since taking Tanlac than to have all the money in the world," was the statement made by Mrs. Thomas Stollery, of 22 River Street, Toronto, Ontario.

"Marguerite is now eight years of age, and from the time she was a baby she was frail and delicate. She never seemed to want to run and play like other children, and was always underweight for her age, weighing only forty-five pounds at the time she began taking Tanlac. About six months ago her appetite left her completely. She became terribly nervous, never slept well, and it didn't take anything hardly to tire her out. We were completely at a loss to know what to do for her.

"But Tanlac proved to be exactly what she needed. She has taken just three bottles, but has actually gained ten pounds in weight, and no longer seems like the same child. Why, she is off to sleep as soon as she lies down at night, and wakes up in fine spirits and eager for her breakfast, and just seems to feel good all the time. She looks the picture of health and never complains of feeling bad in any way. She always calls for her Tanlac before meals. We consider it a priceless medicine."

TO STOP BUILDING HOUSES IN OSHAWA

Council Calls Halt When Present Contracts Finished.

OSHAWA, June 4.—The Town Council in special session have instructed the Housing Commission to the effect that as soon as their present contracts are completed they stay further proceedings unless otherwise advised by Council.

Some time ago a letter was received by the Council from H. A. Butt of the Oshawa House and Land Company opposing the programme of house building by the Commission, on the ground that Oshawa at present had sufficient houses to meet its present needs, and suggesting that the Council take some action in the matter.

BED BUG POISON

There are dozens of preparations recommended to destroy bed bugs. But the preparation that gives the best results is POST'S BED BUG POISON.

A few applications of this poison will soon wipe out the pest. It is composed of corrosive sublimate methyl-hydrate and carbolic acid, and as it is very poisonous it should be kept out of the reach of children.

Post's Bed Bug Poison is sold at Lynch's drug store, 168 Hunter St.

LARIMIE HOLDS THE RANGE

By Frank H. SPEARMAN.

"Believe it or not as you like, I helped you. And I'm not a bit sorry for it. Though he is no friend of mine, you have been from that day on; and if you ever give me a chance I'll prove it. The worst thing you did was to go back on your word——"

"My word was not freely given," Kate was speaking furiously.

"It shouldn't have been given at all, then. But it's all right. Will you be friends with me?"

"No man that speaks of my father as you spoke of him a moment ago can be my friend."

"It was Lefever spoke of your father. I couldn't shut him up. Of course, he didn't know you were here. I did know after I'd been here awhile. I heard you whisper. That's why I asked for the ink—I had no letters to write. There's a lot of hard feeling in this country right now. Every man in it has friends and enemies. You mustn't take it seriously when you hear hard words—I don't; and I hear plenty. Hadn't you and I better be friends to start with, anyway?"

"No" she exclaimed angrily. "Please let me pass."

He stepped promptly aside. "I never dreamed of doing anything less."

Kate started rapidly for the front door. Whom should she run into just as she opened it but Belle, coming back from her wretched telephoning! Kate inwardly blamed her for all her trouble, and she was on edge, besides.

"Where you going?" demanded Belle.

"Home," answered Kate, shortly.

"Home? You haven't had your lunch."

"I don't want any."

Belle caught Kate's arm. "Now you just hold on. What's the matter? Is it Laramie?" Belle must have read her face, for she answered nothing, only tried to get away. "But child!" she exclaimed. "Where's your coat—wait till I bring it—and your gloves!" Nancy paused at the door. In a minute Belle came running back. "He's gone, absolutely. There isn't a soul anywhere about. Now you shan't go till you take a cup of coffee. Here's the cream—he left it at the wrong door, the stupid!"

Kate could not get away. And Belle had told the truth: Laramie was gone.

Whatever the shortcomings of the American frontier code, there was a time in its history when a man could violate the principles of fair play and keep public opinion on his side. In this instance, Stone's conduct reacted unfavorably on the cattlemen. The townspeople that made money out of the trade of big ranches always stood up for the cattlemen, but they were put most unpleasantly on the defensive by the incident. Even had Stone's attempt on Laramie's life succeeded it would have been easier for the partisans to handle than the failure it proved. As a fait accompli it would have been regretted, but forgotten; as a failure it settled nothing.

Among the few townspeople that sturdily retained independence of opinion on all matters, none stood higher than the surgeon, Doctor Carpy. And encountering Doubleday on the street shortly after the Stone incident, he took it on himself to talk to him.

The Doctor had his office at his home, but back of the prescription counter in his little drug store—no bigger than a minute—he had a small room for emergency consultations. To this he invited Doubleday, and having ushered him in seated him and closed the door. Carpy sat down: "There's few men, Barb——" The Doctor began by qualifying the adjectively profanely—"few men in this country that dare to talk to you the way you ought to be talked to; of them few I'm probably the only one that would take the trouble. Your enemies won't talk and everybody friendly with you is afraid of you. You've got so d——d much property and stuff here they're plumb afraid of you. I'm a poor man, Barb—don't ever expect to be anything else, and I don't give a hang for anybody," averred the erratic surgeon with more profanity, "and nobody gives a hang for me."

Doubleday, chewing the stub of a cigar, eyed his medical adviser with an unsympathetic stare, but this in no way disturbed the self-appointed critic. "For a long time now, Barb," he continued, "you've been in the nastiest kind of a fight on Jim Laramie. You've tried to run him off the range and you tried to beat him out of his land and you've tried to break him. He's got the best land in the Falling Wall and he's in your way. One time his wire is all pulled off his fence. Another time your foreman pokes a gun into his stomach."

Doubleday was grimly silent. "I've known Jim Laramie," Carpy went on, "since he was a boy. He's stubborn as a broncho if you try to ride him. He's the easiest man in the world to get along with if you make a friend of him. No matter what's said of Jim Laramie there ain't a crooked hair in his head; but he's no angel and when his patience quit—look out. What I'm going to tell you now, Barb, is on the square. It can't go no further. I tell you because you ought to know. A while back, just after this wire pulling, Jim Laramie walked into this room, shut the door and locked it, and sat down right there where you're sittin' now. He told me the wire story; he told me he was through. He'd tracked the men to your ranch and was going to square accounts with you and Stone and Van Horn. He was on his way to the Junction and he told me he might not come back and wanted me to tell me how to dispose of his property. He was after you and he meant, before he fell down, to get some or all of you. He asked me where you were, because he heard I knew. I did know, but I didn't tell him. I lied, Barb. I told him, the mines, but I knew you were at the Junction. He started for the mines. What happened to turn him off your trail I never yet learned. I never asked.

"Now you saw, or you heard anyway, what happened when Stone tried to kill him the other night. That man never can get Laramie. And don't depend on Stone and Van Horn to play you fair, for if they had to save their hides, Barb, they'd sell you. My advice is this: Put back Laramie's wire. Let the cattlemen, you and Pettigrew to lead 'em, do it to clear their own names. Say you know knothing about it, but it was a dirty trick, and tell this town that cattlemen fight but they fight fair. It'l do more to set you right and to set everything right on the range than anything else you could possibly do. And don't make a mistake. Laramie'll follow that wire pulling for years but what he'l get the man that did it. I know him. He's got a memory like an Indian."

Like all well meaning and candid friends, the doctor found himself at once in for a deal of angry abuse, but, as he explained, he had taken so much abuse from patients at various periods of his career—and abuse fully justified—that nothing Barb could add, deserved or undeserved, to the volume would move him.

"As our old governor back in Wisconsin said, Barb, 'I seen my duty and I done it,'" was the doctor's only retort to Doubleday's wrath. "Now if you're in a hurry, Barb, don't let me keep you, not a minute. I had my say, and if there's anything pressing you down street, go to it."

But angry as Doubleday appeared, Carpy had given him something to think about. Consultations were held—by precisely whom, no one could say, but in them there was dissension. Van Horn vehemently opposed any further overtures to Laramie, and he was vastly put out at being overruled. While the discussions were going on he talked in a veiled but emphatic way to Kate about the queer way her father was acting. Van Horn would shake his head with violent emphasis at the way things were going. But when Kate poured oil on the waters of his discontent, Van Horn was always responsive, and stayed to dinner or for the evening, if he were asked—and Kate was alone.

On the gentler side, however, he could make no headway. When he tried headaches for sympathy, Kate was stony-hearted. When he asked her one day at the spring to take down her hair, she told him she wore a wig. He looked at her amazed. And in spite of his objections to placating Laramie, a decision very unpalatable to him was reached.

Pettigrew, as spokesman, approached Laramie and insisted, in order to allay bad feeling, on replacing the barb wire. When Laramie declared the wire must be put back by the men who had cut it, there was naturally an impasse, but Tenison and Carpy, aided jointly by the representations of Lefever and Sawdy, induced Laramie to forego his punitive attitude and accept the amende as offered. This, as the doctor has predicted, put a pleasanter face on the tangled affairs of the range. And to strike while their iron was hot, and to keep it hot, the cattlemen announced a big Fourth of July celebration, at which old scores should be forgotten and friends and enemies meet in goodfellowship. The place for it, after much talk, was fixed at Doubleday's ranch. The saloonkeepers of Sleepy Cat, except Tenison, fought this, but they lost out.

Since her own home was to be the scene of the celebration, Kate took a particular interest in the undertaking. She made herself, in a way hostess, and her father gave her free rein. The big crowd that responded to the public invitation found awaiting them, as they picturesquely rode in twos and three and groups up the creek to the ranch house, all the "fixin's" for a rousing celebration. Men came for as much as fifty miles, and some of them by trails and over passes Kate had never even heard of. There were cattlemen, cowboys, sheepmen, little ranchers—all the conflicting elements of the country, besides a crowd from Sleepy Cat with the band, and all the town loafers that could possibly secure a conveyance.

There was for these latter worthies the attraction of a free feed—for they knew the prodigality of the cattlemen—but there was also the underlying hope that where so discordant elements were assembled a fight might occur; and nobody wanted to miss a fight. The principals necessary for a serious affair were present. The fact that all were armed was not significant, merely prudent. Men careless on this point were no longer attending celebrations of any sort around Sleepy Cat.

From the Falling Wall came the rustlers, every one of them except Doubleday's old foreman, Abe Hawk, who scorned all pretense of compromise. He advised Laramie intimated he might go, Abe was greatly amazed. A master of bitter sarcasm, he trained his batteries on his sandy-haired friend, and, these failing, he warned him he would be in serious danger. He intimated that the scheme was to get the rustlers all together and finish them in a bunch. In which event, one hated as Laramie was could hardly hope to escape unmolested. But Laramie persisted in his resolution to go and he went.

Doctor Carpy made it a point to go. He was usually needed at Fourth of July celebrations professionally. But on this occasion he was, in matter of fact, sort of sponsor for the whole affair, and he brought Sawdy, Lefever, and Tenison along. The four drove out in the smartest wagon and behind the best team in the Kitchen barn, Kitchen with them and McAlpin driving.

By noon the big end of the crowd had arrived. The barbecue tables were set out under the trees along the creek. The roasting itself was in the skilled hand of John Frying Pan and before one o'clock he was ready to serve.

The day was fine, the crowd big, and everybody seemingly happy. Doubleday had told Kate, when arranging for the tables, that his particular friends would sit at the table, and she was on her way down to the creek to ask him how many there would be in the party, when whom should she find him talking with, of all men, but Laramie, who had just ridden over from the Falling Wall.

Before Kate could retreat her father had seen her. He called her over. To her astonishment he insisted on introducing to her his friend, Jim Laramie, of whom he was making as much as it was possible to make of a wholly undemonstrative man.

The band not far away was playing full tilt. Kate wished they could have made even more noise to hide her confusion, but there was nothing except to face the situation, much as it surprised her. Laramie, fortunately, seemed indisposed to say anything. He spent most of his time listening. Kate being far from demonstrative, her father was left to do the honors. And on such rare occasions as Barb was communicative, he was quite capable of good fellowship.

Laramie, however, seemingly under some restraint, soon made excuses and left to join the crowd.

Some of the cattle ranchmen had brought their wives along. A few of these women had their babies with them, and Kate returned to the house, where she made the mothers comfortable. There her father afterward ran across her. He stopped as he came up

"You remember that man I introduced you to—Laramie?"

"Very well," Kate said wonderingly.

"Treat him well at dinner."

"But I'm going to eat here at the house." He shook his head. "You eat at the creek at my table."

She had no choice but to obey. When she returned to the pits the stones had been removed and John Frying Pan, with a pair of Sleepy Cat ice tongs, was lifting out the first big chunks of roasted meat. The crowd being called ran for the creek whooping and yelling, and while Kate watched John and his helpers dish up the meat the guests—nearly all men—seated themselves pellmell at the long benches. It was a noisy assemblage, overflowing with good nature, and when Kate, very trim in corduroy, walked to the head of the table to take her seat, the demonstrative ones rose and led in a burst of cheers. Good spirit is contagious. Kate enjoyed it, but when they began calling for a speech she ran away to the coffee boilers. From the coffee she returned to join her father, and to find with him and old man Pettigrew at the head of the table, Laramie, calmly seated, and the fourth place waiting for her.

Van Horn as host to other cattlemen and guests presided at the next table. Unluckily, where he sat he could see Laramie opposite Kate. But if he was discomfited the group at the next table below, where Doctor Carpy presided, flanked by Lefever, Sawdy, Kitchen and McAlpin, was correspondingly elated at the spectacle of the Falling Wall and the Crazy Woman sitting in harmony.

Despite the unpleasant stories Kate had heard about him she found nothing to complain of in Laramie's manners, except that he always drank with his spoon in his coffee cup. But he was, she she told herself, on his good behavior, and under the circumstances would naturally try to appear at his best. Little as Kate relished her assignment of making things pleasant for him, the bubbling spirits of the occasion to some extent infected her, and she soon found it not difficult to help along with small talk and go to make the queer combination at the table go.

There was really no great need for her to work hard in this way—both her father and Pettigrew were very lively. Laramie seemed a bit dazed at being set up with such honors in the house of his enemies. But though he did not volunteer much, when Kate said anything that afforded a chance for comment he improved it.

The talk went a good deal to cattle and range matters, but Pettigrew, a crafty fellow, told good stories about men that everybody in and out of Sleepy Cat knew, and appealed frequently to Laramie for confirmation or a laugh. Some of the laughs he got were a little dry, but they were not all bad natured, and Kate enjoyed the rough humor. The two cattlemen finished their dinner, and without ceremony got up to see how the crowd was being served, leaving Kate with Laramie. "How do you like old Pettigrew?" was the first thing Laramie asked her as the bearded cattleman moved away with her father.

"The only thing I don't like about him," said Kate, candidly, "is his eyes."

She was looking at Laramie as she spoke and finishing her coffee. He lifted his own cup. "You're a good observer," he said.

"How so?"

"A man's eyes are all there is to him. You don't mind if I smoke?"

"Not a bit."

"Not going to run away, are you?" He was fishing for cigarette paper when he asked. He spoke as if he had no special interest in the matter, yet the question startled her. Kate had not made a move to go, but she was thinking, when the question came, of how she might manage to escape. She flushed a little at being anticipated in her intention—just enough perhaps to let him see she had caught her, not to say irritated her. As luck would have it, Van Horn, who had risen, sauntered toward them. Kate was glad just then to see him. "I hope you got enough to eat," she said as he approached.

He seemed stiff—Kate did not realize what he was put out about. He made some answer and turned to Laramie. She felt at once the friction between the two men, not from anything she had reason to suspect to know—for she knew then nothing whatever of their personal relations. Nor was it from anything said; for an instant neither man spoke. Instinct must have made her conscious, for as soon as Van Horn looked at Laramie she felt the tension.

"Well, Jim, where'd you blow from?" demanded Van Horn after a pause.

"How'd you get here?" asked Van Horn.

"I was invited."

Van Horn laughed significantly. While Kate would rather have been out of it, she thought it time, since she was in it, to say something herself. "I didn't suppose anybody needed a special invitation for a Fourth of July celebration," she interposed. "The town has been covered for two weeks with bills inviting everybody."

Van Horn laughed again. "It wasn't you invited him, eh?" he demanded of Kate. The thing was said so unpleasantly she would have retorted on impulse, but Laramie took any possible words out of her mouth.

"Why don't you ask me who invited Barb Doubleday invited me. That's enough, isn't it? And Pettigrew invited me. And," he added, completing his cigarette in leisurely fashion, "while that wouldn't be any particular inducement—you invited me."

Van Horn stared. "How did you make that out?" he asked quickly.

"You asked me to take in this barbecue when you tried to get me to line up with you at the Mountain House."

Van Horn took alarm. "That was put up to you in confidence," he said angrily.

"So was the barbecue" responded Laramie: "I couldn't take in the first proposition, so 'm enjoying the second." He turned away from Van Horn, and, ignoring him, spoke to Kate. "You remember you said you were going to show me your ponies."

It was Kate's turn to stare. "You must be mistaken."

He did not press the subject. "Perhaps you've forgotten," was all he said indifferently.

"When or where did I ever say that?" Kate asked, resenting the intonation.

He looked down, then, looking up, his eyes rested on Kate's. He was not disturbed. "Is that a challenge?" he asked.

"If you wish to make it one," she returned coolly.

"The 'when' was one day at Sleepy Cat Junction, the 'where' was up the Falling Wall river below the canyon."

"O," she exclaimed, collecting herself, "I had forgotten."

They Turn to Life Insurance

OVER a thousand persons every day in Canada are turning to life insurance for the purpose of caring for the future of their dependents.

Life Insurance to the amount of over Six Hundred Million Dollars was issued in 1920. This amount of money would provide an income of One Hundred Dollars a month for fifteen years to fifty thousand families.

The proceeds of the vast number of life insurance policies being issued year by year will bring untold benefit to the families of those who have made this wise provision.

You may be able to care for your wife and children as long as you live but life insurance will provide for them as long as they live.

VENIOT IS LEADER OF THE ACADIANS

The New Brunswicker Who Stepped Into the Limelight.

DOWN AT OTTAWA

He Will Not Enter Ministry Now, But Has a Future.

By M. GRATTAN O'LEARY.

MR. PETER VENIOT, who last week stepped into the spotlight of the national attention through a political controversy as to whether he had been approached to enter the Meighen ministry, is an Acadian who in addition to being a leader among his people is regarded as the power behind the throne of New Brunswick politics. Although active in politics for many years he first attracted provincial attention when in 1916 his influence was able to swing practically the whole of Acadian New Brunswick behind the Liberal party of that province, the result being the defeat of the Conservatives, who, although weakened by charges of scandals, were regarded as invincible. Veniot, by virtue of this achievement, impressed two things upon the public mind, first, his own political force, and, second, the fact that henceforth Quebec would not be the only province in which the French vote would be the balance of power. The reward of his victory was the most important portfolio in the Foster government—public works—and the control of political patronage.

There were those who thought that as a practical administrator he would prove a failure, but Veniot soon showed them to be wrong. A fiery orator, a political tactician of a high order and an organizer of the first class, he soon demonstrated his capacity for administration, and, as a consequence, increased his prestige and power. Mr. Foster, the premier, was young, inexperienced and amateurish, and the more experienced Veniot, commanding the bulk of the government's support, rapidly fastened himself upon the public consciousness as the strong man of the administration. This, not unnaturally, drew upon him attacks that were bitter and many, and, in a province where politics comes next only to religion as a serious pursuit, it is perhaps not surprising that he has been painted as a sinister figure, a sort of Rasputin to young Mr. Foster, a racialist who would turn his compatriots into an Acadian Tammany Hall.

In the war, however, Veniot's record was beyond reproach. His three sons fought as volunteers, and he himself, although in his fifties, expressed a willingness to serve. On the recruiting platform he was a power, and the excellent showing made by the Acadian population in contributing both men and money was due in no small measure to his eloquence and example. His services, which attracted no small attention, softened political feelings against him and made him many new friends; and despite the fact that he is still a hard and wily fighter, his personal friends among political opponents are legion.

At the Convention

IN 1919, when Liberalism was trying to close up its decimated ranks by holding a national convention, Mr. Veniot came to Ottawa as a delegate and became one of the salient figures of the gathering. He was a strong supporter of Mr. King for the party leadership, throwing the bulk of New Brunswick's delegation to him despite Premier Foster's efforts for Mr. Fielding; and he had the honor to be selected to second the adoption of the party platform. His speech on that occasion was regarded as a notably able effort, denoting a grasp of federal issues and problems not always found in provincial politicians; and competent observers predicted his early advent into a larger sphere of affairs.

Although Acadian by birth and breeding, Veniot has a perfect mastery of the English language and looks more like a Scotsman than a Frenchman. Although his enemies picture him as a mere ward politician, it is certain that his outlook is considerably broader than such a term implies, and his public speeches, although by no means models of what a statesman's utterances should be, at times reveal a patriotism and a discernment that might well pass muster in the addresses of more eminent men.

Whether he has a future in Canadian affairs, it is difficult to say. Vigorous, ambitious, aggressive, too active almost for the small field in which he is now the dominant figure, he would at least bring to the House of Commons qualities in which, for the time being, it is sorely and sadly deficient.

WHY HE WAS LATE

AMONGST the many stories that are current concerning the new Unionist leader, Mr. Austen Chamberlain, is one about an incident that happened at Highbury, his father's seat near Birmingham.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain had laid out a plantation of young fir trees in the grounds, of which he was exceedingly proud, notwithstanding the fact that the majority of the saplings measured no more than two or three feet in height.

One evening it chanced that Mr. Austen turned up late at a dinner party to which a number of notables had been bidden.

The son entered in fear and trembling, for he knew that unpunctuality was the one unpardonable sin in his father's eyes.

"You are very late, Austen," said the latter reprovingly.

"Yes, I'm sorry," replied the culprit, at a loss for a moment for a suitable excuse.

Then his face brightened and a twinkle came into his eyes.

"Couldn't possibly get here before, father," he said. "I lost my way in your new forest."

Mrs. John Dick.

Manitoba's Pioneer In Social Welfare

Mrs. John Dick Was Behind Western Province's Progressive Legislation.

By HILDA RIDLEY.

THE "Champion of the Child and Mother" is the name by which Mrs. John Dick of Winnipeg is popularly known. From the introduction of the Manitoba Mothers' Allowances Act in 1916 she has been one of the two women members of the commission to administer the act. This is logical, for years before the act went into effect she urged the need for mothers' pensions, and was actually instrumental in organizing a committee that raised sufficient funds to enable it to pay out $175 a month in pensions to three widowed mothers.

Like some other women with characteristically western ideas and sympathies, Mrs. Dick was born "down east." She is a native of Northumberland County, Ontario, and comes of United Empire Loyalist stock. Upon her marriage to Mr. John Dick, a lumber merchant, she settled in Winnipeg, where she lived for thirty-two years.

The interest of Mrs. Dick in children and mothers arises out of her own experience. She is the mother of six sons, three of whom went to the great war, and in the bringing up of her own children, and in her contact, through church work, with other mothers less fortunately situated than herself, she came to take a wide interest in the problems of motherhood generally.

Manitoba has taken the lead in social and child welfare legislation. It was the first province in the Dominion to institute supervised playgrounds, to grant suffrage to women, to establish prohibition, to introduce mothers' allowances and the principle of the minimum wage; and in all this progressive legislation one can trace the pioneering efforts of such women as Mrs. Dick, who years before the legislation became effective agitated, through club and organization, for such reforms.

CHICAGO'S "KID" CHIEF OF POLICE

Charlie Fitzmorris, Reporter, Suddenly Finds Himself Picked Out.

NO "COP" EXPERIENCE

But He Won Out and Is Helping to Clean Up the City.

HE is the youngest police chief thus far discovered in any of the large cities, he doesn't even own a uniform, he had no previous police experience, and yet Charlie Fitzmorris' success in cleaning up crime and vice in Chicago "has aroused interest in civic circles all over the world." So says Hugh S. Fullerton, the sports writer, who confesses that he had a hand in the early career of Chicago's "kid chief of police," and has been expecting large things of him ever since. The sports writer discusses Fitzmorris from an intimate "I-knew-him-when" view-point. He writes as follows of him in the New York Evening Mail:

He took charge in Chicago, with a broken, disorganized, graft and politics-ridden force; got that force to work; got loyalty and obedience, and Saturday he showed me a telegraphic report from Chicago on the crimes of the day. In all Chicago in twenty-four hours there had been but three crimes, all minor robberies.

You may see that I am a bit proud of Charlie Fitzmorris, because I helped find him and helped train him. It seems only a short time ago. A newspaper publisher had an idea that he would have three schoolboys race around the world and beat all records. One was to come from New York, one from Chicago, and one from San Francisco. They were chosen by votes of the readers. In Chicago the votes came in by basket lots, and three days before the end of the campaign the leaders were Schwartzmeister, Grabasky, and Fitzmorris. I'm not certain the first names are the correct ones, but you get the idea? I ask you, with Jim O'Shaughnessy counting the votes, who won?

Anyhow, when the time came for Fitzmorris to start, we had to tear They reckoned not on the firmness the good-looking, clever little youngster from his mother's arms and put him aboard the train. But once started, how he did go! He broke all records, won by something like four days, and when he got through school he went to work on the paper.

Quiet, soft-spoken, smiling, and obliging, he was the office favorite, but under that little tinge of Irish blarney he was a loyal and devoted worker and as firm as iron in matters of principle.

Surprise for Charlie

THREE Chicago mayors, one Democrat and two Republicans, picked him as their secretary, and no one cared what his politics was. He did his work. When "Big Bill" Thompson entered upon his tempestuous career as mayor he kept Charlie, and when chief after chief failed and the police department went to pieces Thompson worried. One morning he called his young secretary in and told him to be chief of police. Fitzmorris was groggy, sparred for a few minutes trying to realize it, and accepted. He made one proviso: That he was to run the department to suit himself, without interference from the mayor or from anyone else.

Having accepted, he took off his coat and went to work to learn the job and do his work just as he had done everything else he tackled.

The grafters and the politicians grinned and made ready for the feast, behind the merry blue Irish eyes and the quiet smile. And the lamb turned around and chased the wolves.

"They've done everything to me except to make me wear a uniform," the young police chief laughed. "I haven't even one to wear at a parade, and I never have worn a brass button.

"When 'Bill' (you see out in Chicago in our set we call each other 'Bil' and 'Doc' and 'Fitz' instead of using titles) sprang this on me I was dazed for a few weeks. I didn't know anything about police business, and had no experience excepting what I had picked up as a reporter, and you know most of the time they herded me in the office.

"But when a fellow gets thrown up against a job of which he has little knowledge, the thing to do is to get to work and learn something about it. I have honestly enjoyed being chief.

"How did I do it? Well, the first thing I did was to tell the captains that I didn't know a darned thing about police systems and that we would go right along with their system and try it out until I knew whether it worked or not. Just stalled for time.

"I didn't need to call any conferences of captains, because I see them every day, but I got the mayor to call a meeting of all the lieutenants and sergeants in the department and to tell them that I was boss and had complete power to do as I pleased.

"There was a yelp, of course. But the mayor stuck with me. He told them that I was running the department and what I said went and the big fight was won."

HELPING HIM OUT

THE facetiousness of the galleryite has provided many an amusing incident.

One of the funniest is that related by Sir Charles Santley, the veteran English actor, who has just celebrated his 87th birthday.

"The incident happened when I made my debut in Dublin as Valentine in Gounod's 'Faust,'" said Sir Charles. "It was the scene of Valantine's death after the duel. Martha had rushed in at the head of the crowd, and was holding me in her arms. There was the usual deathlike silence, and the audience gazed expectantly at the stage, which was shadowed in darkness.

"Suddenly a voice from the gallery turned grim seriousness into uproarious mirth by yelling out. 'Don't sit there doing nothing. Unbutton his weskit!'"

QUIT YER KIDDIN'

THE scepticism of the telephone operator is illustrated by a story told by Mr. F. G. Kellaway, the newly appointed British postmaster-general. His car broke down as he was motoring through a Bedfordshire village, and he went to a farmhouse to telephone to a garage.

After some delay the girl at the telephone exchange replied that she could get no reply.

"Oh, but this is a very urgent matter," said Mr. Kellaway; "do, please, try again. This is the postmaster-general speaking."

"Re-ally! Oh, I say!" the girl replied, satirically.

"She evidently thought I was a cheerful jester," said Mr. Kellaway.

$125,000 IN TWO YEARS FROM SLANG

H. C. Witmer, Former Soda Water Clerk, Makes Record Writing Funny Stories.

85 IN A SINGLE YEAR!

He and Enthusiasm are Twins and Pep Is His Private Secretary.

EVIDENTLY H. C. Witwer and enthusiasm are twins. He radiates energy, optimism, and pluck.

When I called to interview Mr. Witwer on how he dared to climb to the high rungs without the aid of a college education, I found him busily engaged in putting the finishing touches to his latest short story, which will bring him $1,800, says a writer in New Success. He was pounding the periods, smashing the commas, and banging the exclamation points in such a manner that I marveled that the typewriter lasted more than a day without falling apart.

I succeeded in getting his own story. It is a story better than anything he has ever written.

Born at Athens, Pennsylvania, March 11, 1890. Attended grammar school for several years and learned everything but grammar. He seemed to be born with a natural antipathy toward anything pertaining to correct English. But don't pity him! His ignorance of the proper correlation of Messrs. Verbs, Adjective & Co., has made him approximately $125,000. In other words, he has earned that sum by writing what has been termed "the most perfect specimen of slang ever propagated."

At the age of sixteen, he decided to conquer New York City, and landed therein with ten dollars in his coat pocket and a straw hat with a six-color ribbon surrounding the same.

Most young men seeking a position generally scan the "Want ads." Not H. C. For the reason that he didn't know what he wanted. So he started down Broadway and canvassed offices, stores; in fact, he went into anything that looked like an entrance. They took his name in some of the places, jollied him in others, and assisted him through assorted doors in the rest. In five hours, he figured that he had covered enough acreage to encompass Utah, Arizona and Brazil. But not a nibble was felt upon the Witwer hook.

That night he rented a room on Forty-Second street for $1.50 a week.

During the next few years he tried his hand at every job that either man or mammal has ever devised. Soda-jerking, bellhop, hotel clerk, private secretary, salesman, cub reporter, sport writer, editor, copy reader, press agent, collector, and about fifteen other positions that have escaped his memory. Finally he found himself.

He Writes Illiterature

HE chanced to meet a newspaper reporter. And it was this reporter who initiated him into the newspaper game—known to most everybody except reporters themselves, as journalism.

After having had his fair quota of newsgathering positions, he got the idea that he should be a successor to Shakespeare and write for the magazines. So he spent his spare time in concocting weird yarns that were supposed to be salable. No sign of the humorist showed itself in a single line. Sad stuff, sob stuff, dreary stuff!

He sold his first story March 26, 1915. He was paid five dollars.

It was his wife who gave him the suggestion that set him upon the right road. She suggested that he stop trying to be literary and highbrow and be himself. To write of things he knew about. To his friends he was really funny, decidedly humorous So Mrs. Witwer suggested that he write as he talked. He did. And he sold the first two stories—written in his inimitable slang—to a magazine that paid him real money. It was the beginning of real success, the start of his remarkable climb from $5 a story to more than $1,800. To date he has made approximately $125,000 from his work, most of it within the past two years. He has also established a record for work that has never been equalled in story writing. In a single year he wrote and sold eighty-five stories, averaging 9,000 words each!

His path to success was not laid entirely with thornless roses. Far from it. Ill health has been his most constant companion. In fact, he has spent about three years in hospitals, sanatoriums, and so forth. Chief trouble is nervous disorders. He has undergone two major operations, and was told on each occasion, that he had only a fifty-fifty chance of surviving.

Highest Paid Hotel Manager in the World

SIR EDWARD CARSON CEASES TO EXIST

Ulster Leader Becomes a Lord and Drops His Famous Name.

BY a coincidence, Sir Edward Carson, who led Ulster's fight against Home Rule for so many years, both inside and outside the House of Commons, not only ceases to be a member of parliament, but ceases to exist altogether just as Ulster elects its first Home Rule parliament. There is a kind of irony in the situation. For Sir Edward has been created a lord of appeal in ordinary, and as such, will become not only a member of the judicial committee of the privy council, but a member of the House of Lords. He may be given either an hereditary or a life peerage, but the effect will be the same—he will cease to be "Sir Edward" and become Lord Carson or Lord Something Else.

There are six Lords of Appeal in Ordinary. Sir Edward Carson succeeds Lord Moulton, a life peer, who died recently. The others are Viscount Cave, Lord Dunedin, Lord Atkinson, Lord Shaw and Lord Sumner. The first two are hereditary peers, the others life peers whose title dies with them. Sir Edward will probably have a similar title.

Life peers, a class not infrequent, are now restricted to a very small number of law lords, at present four since the death of Lord Moulton. The first recent creation occurred in the case of the late Lord Wensleydale when the peers came to the decision that a life temporal peer was not entitled to a seat in their house (the Lords). An act was accordingly passed giving power to the sovereign to elevate two judges of appeal into life barons of parliament, and in 1876 the number was enlarged so that it now admits all the Lords of Appeal in Ordinary, whether active or retired.

D'Annunzio's Goldfish

A WHIMSICAL, eccentric individual is Signor Gabriele D'Annunzio, the Italian filibuster poet, whose military exploits were cut short. His poems and novels are the work of a genius, but he often descends from the sublime to the ridiculous.

He once had a goldfish as a mascot, and left it behind at a hotel. When he wired for news of his pet he was told that it was dead. He immediately wired that the fish should be given a decent burial, and gave instructions for a tablet to be erected to its memory. Unfortunately, the dead fish had been thrown away.

Thoroughly conscientious, the hotel manager bought another goldfish, killed and buried it, and read one of the poet's verses over its grave. And when D'Annunzio returned he visited the grave and stood there with bowed head.

THE CONFESSIONAL: Uncensored Talks With Big Men About Themselves

HON. W. N. MARTIN, M.P.P.

By EMIL LONGUE BEAU

REGINA, June 3.—It was a stroke of good luck that the Premier of Saskatchewan happened to be at the Parliament Buildings when I called there on a flying trip through the west. He was said to be electioneering; but I found him sitting talking to the venerable legislature librarian as if there were no such things as general elections. Still, as the librarian was in western politics when the premier was wearing knickers, it may not have been literature that brought the head of the province to one of the province's old heads. In a little while Mr. Martin took me to the council chamber, a much more imposing apartment than the one in the East Block at Ottawa, to which, it has been thought, the rural reign of Saskatchewan might one day be transferred. I remarked upon this superiority, and asked whether, if the Liberal convention, which made Mackenzie King a king among Liberals, had happened to have chosen himself, he would gladly have gone back to dominion politics.

"No," he replied. "I refused to allow my name to go to the convention; and not merely because I didn't think I could be elected. I am quite happy here—as happy, I suppose, as a man lying on a bed of burrs can reasonably expect to be. I was glad to get away from Ottawa; and, though, if events turned that way I wouldn't refuse to return, the trickle of the Wascana is pleasanter than the torrent of the Ottawa. What did you think of the lake as you came in?"

The lake, by the way, is a dammed sheet of water, product of the little creek that's a freshet in spring, and usually a depression in fall. It's about as big as Wellington square in Toronto—though probably not three per cent. of Torontonians know where Wellington square is, or what it is, or what its conspicuous feature is. I told the premier that the lake was a delightful example of how they can make the best of things in the west; and I supposed that was true of the political as well as of the earthly landscape.

"Maybe," he said, in his quiet manner. "That's what we are trying to do in this election. On the ninth of June we expect to come back to power with as big a majority as we have had this term. There may be a few independent farmers; but they will support us, in the main; because we are practically a farmers' government. You know that Jack Maharg, the president of the Grain Growers, is resigning his Ottawa seat to join our cabinet. For years there have been several of the Grain Growers' leaders in the government. We have always recognized that this is an agricultural province, and have governed ourselves and the province accordingly."

"I notice you don't say 'my' government?"

He laughed freely at this, before answering: "Unexpectedly I fell heir to this job. When I became premier, five years ago, there were men in the government who were there before I could afford to get married. Calder could have been premier when Scott's health compelled his retirement. He had been acting premier for probably half the eleven years that he had been a subordinate of Walter's. The party wanted him to take the first place; but he insisted that I be put where he had every right to go, if he had been thinking solely of himself."

"That's quite an unfamiliar sidelight on Silent Jim." I interjected.

"Is it?" said the premier. "Perhaps if Jim had the face of a poet he would have been better understood. He has all kinds of brains, and great depths of character. He believed that it would be better for the party if he refused Scott's place. He knows he hasn't had the luck to be popular with the people who don't know him intimately. He has so much ability that small people distrust him. But those who work with him know his worth. Walter Scott has always said that Jim Calder becomes bigger the more you know him. Calder went into the union purely as a patriotic duty—perhaps you haven't understood that?"

I could only frankly answer that I saw a letter Calder wrote to a friend after the combination was formed, which amply bore out the present assertion.

"Well, then," the premier went on, "we needn't pursue that subject further. You see, I left the House of Commons a year before the coalition was attempted. If I had stayed there I should have been with Carvell and not with Laurier; so what could I do but support the coalition when it was accomplished? Maybe I shouldn't have run for the Commons again."

"What was the fly in the Ottawa ointment?" I enquired.

"Oh! general disillusion, with general political debility supervening. I was only about thirty-two when I was elected M.P. for Regina, in keeping with the tradition of sending young men to Ottawa from the west, which was the accompaniment of Clifford Sifton's six inches of cold steel. I believed I could do things worth while, when I went to Ottawa. Of course, I didn't suppose the sessions would be like prayer meetings; but I did expect that parliamentary life would have more public service than private annoyance in it. I found, among other things, that at Ottawa you were presumed to be rather a slave of a few ambitious men outside whose idea of politics put public service in a very inferior relation to personal advantage and party strategy.

"To tell the truth, I got tired; and might not have sat more than one parliament if it hadn't been for my wife. She was a Thomson of Mitchell—fine little town Mitchell. She is beautifully devoted to home and children; but as keenly interested in public affairs as any man ought to be even in office. On the whole, I think I am entitled to believe my premiership has made me the creditor more than the debtor of this province; but if I am a creditor, my wife is more so; and the more that is known the better pleased I shall be. On the platform I'm not as facile as I should like to be, or perhaps I could get more of this kind of talk over to the people."

"Everybody knows you're a good platform man," I objected.

"Oh! well! passable enough, maybe, though nothing to write home about. But I don't shine at the sort of thing that was as natural to Laurier as his locks. The best you could say of my oratorical quality perhaps is that I'm an honest lawyer."

"And that's going some," I ventured, and the premier merely smiled.

"Getting away from all this personal talk into which you have betrayed me," he resumed, "you can do this province a good turn back east by telling a little of the truth about it. Many people down there are afraid that we are a rather un-Canadian, very un-British province, because we have a greater variety and proportion of kindreds and tribes and tongues than any other province.

"Saskatchewan is the crucible of crucibles for the Canadian citizenship of to-morrow. There are certain disadvantages in a polyglot population, many thousands of whom have not been nurtured on British traditions. But my wonder is that we are as British as we are. With some exception the people who have come here from Europe, whether directly, or at one remove, as like the Germans from the United States, are just as eager to become Canadians and to have their children brought up as Canadians, as lots of the English were who came to Ontario years ago. They, at least, don't regard Canada as inferior to the land they left. Some of them want to stick to their native language. But time is on our side; and the government of this province has done pretty well everything that sane government could do to foster devotion to the ideals that are at the base of our political progress."

"Mark the perfect government and behold, the upright," I broke in.

"We haven't been perfect," Mr. Martin responded, "but we have been more upright than others I could name. Where there has been failure it has been due to our faults more than to the dispositions of the new Canadians. Our own low standard of electioneering morality, now happily and rapidly improving, has been responsible for things that should not have been in every province as you very well know.

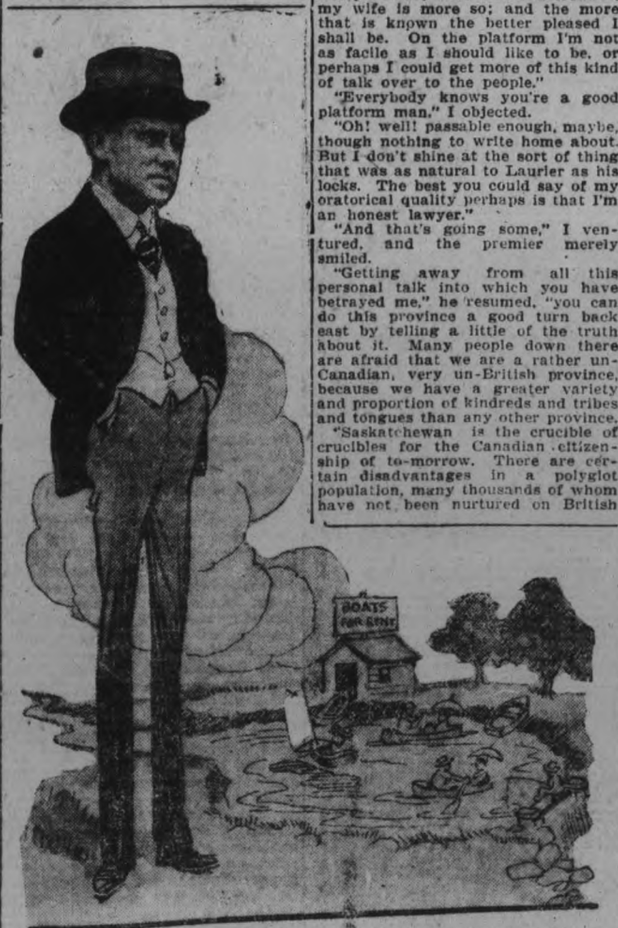
"Our affairs have always been in the hands of men mainly from Ontario; and also, largely of men from the British Isles. The political foundations of Saskatchewan have been laid, I think, remarkably well. In saying that I am not blowing my own horn; for I had no sort of responsibility for the provincial affairs during the eleven formative years of Scott's premiership.

"You found me talking to our legislative librarian. He is an old English newspaper man who came here thirty-six years ago and was publicly discussing political affairs after the manner of the best British practise and tradition, when I was learning the three r's. George Langley, our minister of municipal affairs, is one of the veteran leaders of the farmers' movement. He speaks with a London accent; but he thinks with a mind that is steeped in Shakespeare. He was one of the first members of the Fabian Society. George Brown, our great lieutenant-governor, who died the same day as Laurier, was one of the finest products of an Ontario farm and university—a farmer, lawyer, and financier, of whom Walter Scott says that, though he travelled over half the world with him, he never heard him say a word that he couldn't have said in the hearing of a twelve-year-old girl. That's the sort of thing that has gone into the life of this youngster among the provinces."

"And you are keeping up the tradition" I suggested.

"I'm trying to," was all he would say.

The reader will not take too literally the observations of leading men about themselves recorded by Mr. Longue Beau, but will understand that they are what the speakers would be likely to say confessionally.



"The trickle of the Wascana is pleasanter than the torrent of the Ottawa."

Business Conditions Beginning to Brighten Across the Border

(From The New York Times)

Even the dullest imagination must have perceived from the events of recent weeks, and of last week in particular, that the economic situation has been passing rapidly into an altered phase. In this country the course of affairs is indicated not merely by the remarkable increase in the central banks' gold reserve and the rise in their ratio of reserve to liabilities to the highest percentage reached since the German Army turned back from Paris in the last year of the war. Still more impressive has been the progress of readjustment in costs of production and transportation to the lower scale of selling prices— readjustment recognized all along as indispensable to renewal of trade expansion.

With all the numerous obscurities of the railway outlook, it has at least been demonstrative by March and April earnings that, in advance of the Labor Board's expected cancelation of 50 to 75 per cent. of the wage increase granted last July, sweeping economies in operating costs have ben posible. The consumer of merchandise is shown by the latest comprehensive reports to have been buying rather more freely than had been commonly imagined; such purchases would undoubtedly be further stimulated by reduction for the Autumn market in those retail prices which have hitherto been so obstinately maintained.

But there are several definite signs of changing conditions in the primary markets also.

It can hardly have been an isolated phenomenon, reflecting wholly exceptional influences, that the price of wheat, after having been forced down to the pre-war level, should have recovered 20 per cent. on the cash market with a 50 per cent. rise from the lowest figure in the most highly speculative contract market. Returning steadiness with several noteworthy recoveries has been in evidence in other staple markets where the decline had been most severe; notably in those whose extreme depression had aggravated business reaction in the farming sections. There have been declines as well as advances in the wholesale markets, yet rough comparison of prices with a month ago suggests the possibility that the general average, when compiled at the end of the month, may show an advance over the month preceding for the first time since February, 1920.

The Stock Exchange still occupies its mind with suspension of company dividends, a result of the heavy losse in the past twelve months, and with the difficult period which must intervene before reduction in working costs can fully affect surplus railway revenues. Nevertheless, it is noticeable that even the stock market, with all its recent spasmodic alternating declines and recoveries, has in the long run been following a fairly even line of values during the past ten weeks. Most other economic indication—excepting the steel trade whose readjustment is continuing because the beginning of it was so long deferred—similarly point at least to the arresting of the backward movement.

Neither the stock market, however nor such other indices of the American situation as bank clearings, railway traffic and business failures, have thus foreshadowed much more than a halt in economic reaction. But foreign exchange, whose latest movements ever since the armistice have accurately foreshadowed both political and economic tendencies in Europe has been much more positive in its implications. We can see now how logically are prolonged advance in exchange on England, France and Italy since December led up to two great events of May—the acceptance by Germany of the reparation terms and the French Premier's bold declaration to the Deputies, last week, that he proposed to take Germany's assurances as made in entire good faith.

These occurrences have created a situation both in European politics and European finance, such as has not existed since the armistice. It is much too early to frame one's ideas as to the precise tangible effect on the various European countries of the immense cash payment by Berlin and the subsequent delivery of German bonds in even larger amount. The past week's foreign exchange market has itself acted with more bewilderment than decision. But of one fact there can be no dispute—that the long proscrastination in this settlement, the uncertainty as to Germany's purposes, and the consequent confusion of the allied Governments' financial and political policies, had reacted disastrously on the financial situation both in Germany and in the rest of Europe, and that this incubus is now altogether removed. Both the payer of the indemnity and the recipients of it now know what they must reckon on in their financial plans. From now on, the program will necesarily be the development by Germany of her own economic energies under highest pressure to meet her recurring liabilities and the stimulating of the work of the Continental allies in both physical reconstruction and economic rehabilitation.

These considerations seem when thus set forth, to be matters of course in view of the progress of events. Their financial significance can perhaps be best understood, however, when one contrasts what has now been achieved in the way of war settlement with what the markets were expecting in regard to all such matters a month ago, or in the Autumn of 1920, or indeed in the early part of 1919. If it cannot yet be assumed that the new situation guarantees financial revival, it is at any rate safe to say that it prepares the way for such revival and removes the one obstacle which made revival impossible.

WHEN BABY IS ILL

When the baby is ill; when he cries a great deal and no amount of attention or petting makes him happy, Baby's Own Tablets should be given him without delay. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus drive out constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and make teething easy. Concerning them, Mrs. Desire Theberge, Trois Pistols, Que., writes: "I am well satisfied with my use of Baby's Own Tablets. I have found them of great benefit to my baby when he was suffering from constipation and I can strongly recommend them to other mothers." The Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WANTON WASTAGE OF GAME ANIMALS.

J. R. Dymond, Zoologist, of the Roval Ontario Museum, speaking of wild animals and birds common to Canada, and the need of conserving them, before a large audience in Toronto, made the common black bear, the grizzly, the Polar bear, the North Pacific seal, four species of deer, the mountain goat, and mountain sheep, the buffalo and the beaver, his examples chosen for description and illustration among the mammals, while reference was made to the fate of the passenger pigeon, the quail, and the heron and American egret, under the uncontrolled selfishness of the white man.

Mr. Dymond contrasted the conduct of the red man with that of the white man, to the everlasting discredit of the latter. He said the native savages killed only for food and clothing or trophies in a moderate degree. That, at the appearance of the whites, countless millions of buffalo roamed the Western plains. That by the year 1870 only five and a half millions of these animals remained, and twenty-five years later they were on the verge of extinction, 800 having survived. White men did not kill the buffalo for food, but for "sport," and thousands of bodies were left to decompose on the prairies after the tongue of the animal had been cut out as a delicacy for the Eastern market. In the National Park at Wainwright, Alberta, under protection, the herd of buffalo has increased to several thousand, and the survival of this noble species is now assured.

Wastage in Deer.

He said a similar wastage is occurring with Canadian deer. Up to the present the moose has been fairly safe in his Northern fastnesses. But settlement will invade these. The moose is less cautious than the white-tailed deer. It answers the mock cow-call of the hunter, and falls a victim to the gun. The white-tailed or red deer, which is the common deer of Canada—also known as the Virginia deer—will not answer, and is more adaptable to changing conditions, hence has survived in greatest numbers. The elk, our noblest species, is near extinction. Once the most widely-distributed of our deer, it has been hunted so mercilessly that it is now the least common. The remoteness of the habitat of the reindeer or caribou, has preserved that species from the killing practices of white men, and it now promises to become a source of national wealth and of food.

Mr. Dymond showed in an interesting way the close association between the wild life of Canada and the history of the country, that the lure of the beaver skin had led the trapper farther West. He wholly condemned the senseless expenditure of our heritage of wild life, and instanced the extermination of the passenger pigeon as worse than savagery. He said our wild life was a trust to be handed down to those who will follow, to be preserved for the benefit of the nation, not sacrificed to the selfishness of the few.

CUSTOMS OF THE APES.

Waltzing, Games, Kisses, and Lizard Chasing.

Professor Doflein, the German biologist, publishes in Berlin the result of six months' observations of apes in semi-captivity at the German zoological station at Teneriffe. The apes were mostly chimpanzees, whose social instincts were highly developed. When they wished to show signs of friendship the animals walked hand-in-hand, and sometimes linked arms, as human beings are wont to do.

Their sports, the professor states, were organized on regular lines. The chief game of the chimpanzees was lizard chasing .The apes formed a circle, while one of their number caught a lizard. The lizard was let loose and the object of the game was to catch it without breaking the circle.

The chimpanzees at Teneriffe had rhythmical dances, resembling the modern jazz, which they performed in perfect waltz time. The professor made no attempt to teach the apes any tricks and his observations were conducted unknown to the animals. They were, however, always obedient to the clapping of hands, and seemed to understand that it was a signal for them to dance.

Professor Doflein watched the chimapnzees talk with their hands on the same lines as the deaf and dumb. They would ask for pardon by raising their hands in supplication, and for pity in a similar manner. A soft touch of the forefinegrs meant love, and during the period of courtship kisses were bestowed as in an ordinary human courtship.

Monkeys in general, according to the professor, use the vowels, a, e, i, o, u. "O" is a form of greeting; a hard "u" is the monkey way of weeping, a long "a" is a note of warning, and a cry of fear is expressed by a long ad shrill "i."

The object of Professor Doflein's observations at Teneriffe was to probe the "soul-life" of monkeys.

FOR OILING SPRINGS.

A simple means of keeping car springs supplied with lubricant may be devised from a small copper tube and part of a roll of electrician's tape. Bend an elbow in one end of a copper tube eight or 10 inches long, and flatten the rest of the tube so that it will fit snugly against the side of the spring. Drill holes in the pipe at short intervals, and then tape it securely to the spring. Thereafter the leaves may be kept lubricated by pouring oil periodically into the tube. The device has the objection, however, that the tape will wear from spring flexion, and must be renewed occasionally.

HUGE BUSINESS ESTABLISHED BY SIR WILLIAM C. MACDONALD STILL FOLLOWS HIS PRINCIPLES

Recent circulation and disproval of an unfounded rumour to the effect that W. C. Macdonald, Reg'd. Inc., has been acquired by the Imperial Tobacco Co., recalls an industrial history which is perhaps the most remarkable in the chronicles of Canadian business. In these days of gigantic corporations (among such the Macdonald company is to be considered as one of the largest manufacturing enterprises in Canada) we seldom think of "a one-man business" otherwise than as a good prospect for the assignee; yet the Macdonald institution has always been, still is, and will continue to be during the lifetime of its present owners, at any rate, a one man business in the strictest sense of the word

The largest producers of plug tobaccos in this country, and now among the largest too of cut tobacos, it employs an office staff of 5 persons! Modern business men, recalling personal experiences, may be inclined to scout this statement, but it is none the less true. A business aggregating many millionsh of dollars annually is transacted by five office employees. This condition, presumably is a survival of the form of efficiency for which that enigmatic, taciturn business genius, the late Sir William Macdonald, was distinguished. In fact the spirit of the late founder still looms large in the conduct of the company's affairs—making rumours of the sale of that which has his character for the foundation, all the more ridiculous—as was instanced only the other day when ,in reply to a veritable bombardment of queries, the owners were finally prevailed upon to make a statement regarding the sales rumour, and did so in these laconic terms:

"N truth in rumor, Macdonald tobaccos will continue to be manufactured by us as independent manuturers as long as the public calls for our goods.—W. C. Macdonald, Regd. Inc."

Was Founded in 1858.

William Christopher Macdonald founded his business of tobacco manufacturer in 1858, and since that time the name Macdonald has been one to conjure with in this country. The founder was a scion of a distinguished Scotch-Canadian family, and certainly he applied all the keen business instinct and dominating unstrusiveness for which his race has earned a reputation, to the conduct of his affairs. Those in those days his products never were advertised, though he refused to encumber himself with business correspondence, ignoring all letters save those containing orders, and acknowledging those letters by shipments C.O.D., his name was a household word from coast to coast in the course of a few years. Because in his later life he consistently refused to take cognizance of such modern adjuncts of business as the telephone, the office building elevator, the automobile, etc., it has been alleged that he was not a progressive individual; but his success affords ample disproof of such a contention—a success unparalleled perhaps in the history of Canadian business, a success which entitled him to be, next to the late Lord Strathcona, Canada's greatest philantropist; he gave more than fifteen million dollars to the cause of Canadian theoretical and technical education, and which placed him among the world's wealthiest men. Further, the fact that in 1870, twelve years after his business wsa established, he employed 1100 men in his factory (a phenomenal figure for those days) does not entitled him to be regarded as unprogressive. Possibly the most progressive business man of his day he was was also the shrewdest and the most thorough. He had the business instinct and he developed the business genius.

While other companies expanding their organizations, inclined to departmentization of their businesses, Sir William, with that breadth of vision of his, still could give all the necessary attention to all the departments of his business, distribution, manufacturing, purchasing, etc., which were actually incorporated in one sole department, of which he was the sole director—a "one man" concern if ever there was one. Sir William foresaw that the profitable continuance of his work must be carried on under the same scheme. In the person of his secretary he found a talent like to his, and that talent transmitted to the sons of the secretary, Howard and Walter Stewart, still controls solely the business of W. C. Macdonald, Reg'd. Inc., for to these two men Sir William left the wonderful business he built up.

While the Stewart Brothers have recognized the merits of advertising, with the result that their company is to-day one of the largest advertisers in the Dominion, while they have taken cognizance of the automobile and of modern equipment, it is none the less true that the industry they control is still guided, and will be during their lifetime at least, soely by the spirit and unrivalled commercial wisdom of the late Sir William Christopher Macdonald. Hence any rumours of the purchase of this business by other interests are at once untrue and illogical .

ALCOHOLISM IN U.S. ON INCREASE.

One of the immediate effects of prohibition as enforced is shown in the reports on alcoholism, as published by Commissioner of Public Welfare Coler, covering Kings County and Bellevue Hospitals. Not only is there a marked increase in such cases for 1920-21 over 1919-20, but the seriousness of the cases is notably greater.

The figures given by Dr. Mortimer D. Jones, Medical Superintendent, stand on their merits and cannot be denied. "During the first nine months of the prohibition period," he says, "six months partial and three months bone-dry, 302 men suffering with alcoholism were brought to the hospital, also fourteen women. For the same months a year later, with the additional three months of bone-dry enforcement opportunely intervening there were admitted for these last nine months of bone-dry prohibition 585 men and sixty-five women, a total of 650 people suffering with acute alcoholism, an increase of nearly 170 per cent."

The obvious conclusion is that with the shutting off of the lighter alcoholic beverages, people who had been accustomed to drinking beer have been getting their alcohol in its worst and most concentrated form. Alcoholism under prohibition is increasing in extent and degree, as one of the local blessings of the national reform decreed by Congress under intimidation by fanatics.

WEALTHY WIDOW OF CANADIAN ROBBED OF GEMS

Mrs. Duncan McMartin Loses $7,000 Worth of Jewels in Hotel Ambassador, New York.

A CHANCE FORTUNE.

NEW YORK, June 2. — In the first robbery at the Hotel Ambassador, Fifty-first Street and Park Avenue, opened a little more than five weeks ago, Mrs. Duncan McMartin, widow of a wealthy real estate operator and mining man, on Sunday or early yesterday lost jewelry valued at more than $7,000. The theft was reported to the East Fifty-first Street Police Station soon after its discovery by Mrs. McMartin, when she returned to the hotel Monday. The robery is a mystery to the police as well as to representatives of the hotel and to Mrs. McMartin.

Mrs. McMartin, her son and daughter have lived at the Hotel Ambassador since May 1. They left her suite, No. 1822-1823, Sunday forenoon. The family were gone the entire day.

When Mrs. McMartin returned early Monday she found the door to her suite locked. No disorder about the two rooms excited her suspicion. She removed several pieces of jewelry she had worn during the day and started to put them into a jewel case on her dressers When she opened the repository she discovered it was empty. A thorough search of the suite failed to reveal the ornaments. Among the pieces missing were a diamond lavalliere, diamond bracelet and gold cuff links set with diamonds.

Mrs. McMartin notified Eugene Bartigan, manager of the hotel, who called in the police. Detective Sergeant Barney Dietsch and several of his men started an investigation immediately.

From Manager Hartigan they learned that no suspicious person had been seen in the hotel on Sunday. The manager believed a sneak thief had entered the suite of Mrs. McMartin during a brief interval in which the door may have been left open. This was considered the more likely because there was no spring lock and the key had to be used to fasten the door. Besides the occupants of the suite there were only three persons having keys. Two were held by chambermaids and a master key was kept by the management.

The maids when questioned were positive they had not left the door open nor had they seen any one in or near Mrs. McMartin's suite. No repairmen, according to the manager, had been sent to the suite.

The belief that Mrs. McMartin's suite was entered by chance at an opportune moment was entertained by the management because Mrs. McMartin had never appeared in the lobby or dining rooms with a lavish display of jewelry such as would have invited a burglary which must have been carefully planned.

The city directory shows a Mrs. Ira V. McMartin, widow of Duncan McMartin, 490 Riverside Drive. Duncan McMartin of that address was formerly a realty investor in this city, and, in Canada, one of the leading operators in the Cobalt region. He died in Canada in May, 1914.

He made a fortune in mining through a chance acquaintance with a blacksmith, Frederick La Rose, who shared with Mr. McMartin in the discovery of valuable ore-bearing claims. La Rose picked up a lump of ore on a hillside near the present site of Cobalt. He showed the ore to McMartin, who found the specimen rich in silver and other ores, including Cobalt. Previously cobalt had been found in quantity in only two other places in the world.

Immediately after the discovery, Mr. McMartin staked out a claim of 40 acres for La Rose and an equal claim for himself. The mine of La Rose ultimately yielded $11,500,000 in gross products and paid more than $6,000,000 in dividends. The town of Cobalt derived its name from the mine developed by Mr. McMartin and Mr. LaRose. The two subsequently sold their interests and turned to the development of gold mines in Canada. When Mr. McMartin became interested in real estate in this city he built a large apartment house at 490 Riverside Drive, which he owned, and at which he lived. He was born in Martintown, Ontario, and began business as a railway contractor .With his brother, he built the Temiskaming, Ontario and Northern Railway, in 1903. In 1902 he married Miss Ira V. Alderson, and they had three children.

ADVERTISERS WILL MEET AT MONTREAL.

A full three days' programme based on the slogan "Better Advertising—Bigger Business" has been arranged for the Semi-Annual Convention of the Association of Canadian Advertisers, which is to be held in the Prince of Wales Room, Windsor Hotel, Montreal, on June 2, 3 and 4. Over 75 advertising managers, representing Canada's largest national advertisers, will be present from all parts of the Dominion.

The convention will be called to order and an address of welcome will be given by H. S. Van Scoyoc, vice-president and chairman of the Montreal Committee, and will be followed by an address on "Goodwill Publicity for Business" by Roy Weaver, secretary of the Shoe Manufacturers' Association and late of the Reconstruction Commission.

A joint luncheon will be held with the Montreal Publicity Association, at which G. W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Graphaphone Company, will be the speaker.

In the evening a "smoker" will be held, for which a large number of invitations have been issued. The speakers will be Col. George Ham, of the C. P. R., G. W. Hopkins, and M. P. Fennell, Jr., Secretary of the Montreal Harbor Commission.

The morning session of the second day, June 3, will be opened with an address by B. H. Bramble, president of the association. The convention will then hold two private sessions on Sales and Agency Relations. At the Sales Session there will be an address by Stanley Clague of the Audit Bureau of Circulations and by John Frazer of Lewis Bros., Montreal, on "Advertising the Jobber Finds Most Effective." L. P. Greene, of Tucketts, Ltd., will also speak.

In the afternoon more members' sessions will be held. W. A. Hersey, manager of Mail and Sales Promotion, Robert H. Ingersoll & Bro., will be the chief speakers at the Direct-by-Mail Session, while the discussion will be led by F. W. Hunt of the Massey-Harris Co., Ltd., Toronto. There will also be addresses by Louis Balsam of "Better Letters" fame, and one on "Back to Brass Tacks in Business Building" by Robert E. Ramsay, director Sales Promotion, Publicity and Advertising, American Writing Paper Company.

TINT OF EGGS UNIMPORTANT.

White and Brown Shelled Variety Have Equal Food Value.

"No, I don't want white-shelled eggs. I don't think they are as good as the brown-shelled," one frequently hears a housekeeper remark, or just as often it is, "I want white-shelled eggs; we don't care for those with brown shells." Each group is confident it is in the right, but extended investigations made at some of the agricultural experiment stations, in which many analyses are made of eggs from different kinds of hens, have shown plainly that there are no uniform variations in the physical properties and chemical composition of brown-shelled as compared with white-shelled eggs. Such tests justify the statement that the eggs of any given breed of hens, whatever the color of the shells are, on the average, as nutritious as those of another breed, provided the eggs are of the same size and freshness and the fowls are equally well fed, says specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The color of the shells, whatever its reason, is a feature which has some effect on the market value of eggs of domestic poultry, although not upon their food value, the brown-shelled eggs bringing the higher price, for instance in the Boston market, and the white-shelled eggs in the New York market. In England the preference is decidedly in favor of the tinted eggs. Such local differences probably originated in the fact that some one breed of hens was once chiefly used in a given region and its type of eggs set the standard there.

The color of the egg content is also a matter of interest with respect to market value and domestic uses. Raw egg white has a more or less greenish tinge, which is apparently influenced somewhat by the character of the feed, though no specific coloring matter has been isolated from it. When albumen is coagulated by heat in cooking the color varies from white to pale greenish or yellowish tones, hard to define, yet distinct. There is a belief that eggs with shells of the same color should show the same color in the cooked whites and that the cooked albumen of white shelled eggs is decidedly whiter than eggs with tinted shells.

Although variations in color do not imply variations in food values, it is not at all unlikely, according to the experts, that there are differences in flavor corresponding to the color of the egg yolk, that which is deep yellow having a more pronounced flavor than the pale one. At any rate, as long as preference for deep colored yolks and pale whites exists, the poultry raisers who cater to a fancy market should take such factors into account.

LOSS IN VOLUME OF U.S. BUSINESS PAST $2,000,000,000 NOW.

Larger Lag Behind Shown by Week Ending May 25.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Volume of business, as measured by debits to individual accounts reported to the Federal Reserve Banks by banks in 152 important clearing-house centres, shows a decrease from 8,468,000,000 for the week ending 18th May to $6,969,000,000 for the week ending 25th May, a decrease of about 18 per cent.

Reduced totals are shown for all the leading centres, the reduction for New York City alone amounting to over 1,000,000,000.

As compared with the corresponding week in 1920, debits for the week ending 25th May are smaller by $2,110,000,000, or about 23 per cent., the lag behind last year's figures being larger for the week under review than for any week since the end of April.

Larger than average reductions, as compared with last year, are shown for the debits in Cleveland, New Orleans, Minneapolis, and Kansas City.

COTTON EXPORTS NEED STIMULUS.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Exports of raw cotton must be stimulated and consumption must be revived in order that markets may be opened and the way of the farmer made easier, J. S. Wanamaker, president of the American Cotton Association, declared here this week.

Wanamaker, opening the conference of the Association, which was called to discuss the needs of the cotton industry, financially and agriculturally, and to select a delegate to an international conference in London, declared: "United co-operation of all the forces which go to make up this nation will create the way for getting back to normalcy and for the re-establishment of reason and safety."

Wanamaker said that the South's campaign for a shortened cotton crop in 1921 has been successful.

"As a result of conditions which existed in 1920," Wanamaker said, "the conclusion was reached by our association that it would be suicidal to produce more than half a crop in 1921."

This campaign has been successful, in part. With ideal weather conditions we are facing the shortest cotton crop in a quarter of a century and with adverse weather conditions cotton supplies will be of serious concern to the world.

"In addition to acreage reductions we find that on account of the inability of the farmers to secure credit for either money or supplies for the cultivation of the crop the cotton acreage, abandoned after planting, will break all records based on the ideal producing season of 100. We can produce in 1921, 9,142,098 bales.

REFORM RECRUITING OF SPANISH ARMY

MADRID, June 4.— (Associated Press.)—The reform of the system of recruiting the Spanish army, which is henceforth in principle to be formed of the entire youth of the nation, thus doing away with the drawing of lots, is greeted with general enthusiasm.

One clause, however, of the bill drafted by Viscount Eza has brought sharp criticism in the press. This refers to the selection of reserve officers, who are to be chosen from the troops, not according to their skill, but because their parents are able to pay a premium, which will be calculated on their wealth, those possessing most money being called upon to pay more.

The newspaper El Sol protesting, asks: "Is it the intention to make all citizens go into barracks and to impose on them the leadership of a caste based on money power? This appears to us abominable.

"What is being done thereby is to levy a tax on the vanity of those innumerable youths without a rofession who aspire to find in the wearing of the uniform a kind of reason for their existence. It is dangerous to speculate with things referring to the army, despising the really intellectual class and forming a caste of wealthy illiterates who are no more than an embarrassment and who actually create irreparable injury to the moral homogeneity of thearmy."

FOOD INSPECTOR CONDEMNS MEAT.

That Ottawa's Health Department is looking after the community's health interest was indicated at a meeting of the Board of Health, when Dr. J. B. Hollingsworth, chief food inspector, reported that he had condemned as unfit for food 2,303 pounds of beef, 1,421 pounds of veal, 150 pounds of pork, and 3,650 pounds of fish.

What is the Greatest Need of Peterboro?

Peterborough presents possibilities unsurpassed, but to what extent Peterborough has developed these possibilities is questionable. Undoubtedly, the history of this city during the past decade, particularly with regard to industrial development, has been a chronicle of progress. Smug self-complacency, however, has nullified the benefits accruing from many progressive movements, and, although Peterborough cannot be accused of having reached the stage of stagnation, no city is ever safe from it. The future of Peterborough can be a great one if the citizens will that it shall be so. Consequently, The Examiner will ask representative citizens, "What is Peterborough's greatest need?" and publish an answer daily.

Peterborough is an industrial city. Natural facilities predetermined this, and through the efforts of the citizens it has materialised. To-day this city ranks as one of the greatest industrial cities, in proportion to its size, in the Dominion. Here are located some of the largest Canadian firms and the Canadian branches of some of the greatest United States firms. These plants give work to the majority of the city's wage-earners, who in turn form the market of merchants, real estate dealers, insurance agents and brokers, amusement proprietors, etc. Thus the industries are the heart of the city's life, and must receive first consideration in any programme of progress.

Out of the industrial question arises that of living conditions, with its ramifications of housing, sanitation, education, recreation, the cost of living and public morals. Without good living conditions a city will attract a low grade of labour, and industries of the class which Peterborough desires demand the best labour. In connection with this the following statement was made to The Examiner by the superintendent of one of our newest industries, one which, if it likes Peterborough, will build an enormous plant here in a few years:

"We are much less interested in such things as fixed assessments, free building sites, etc., than we are in finding a city which looks out first for the health and comfort of employees, which supplies an adequate supply of pure drinking water, whose sanitary arrangements are of a high order, and where health dangers are reduced to the minimum."

The general manager of another new industry volunteered that recreational facilities for employees was a matter of concern.

In the foregoing brief outline are the points which must be given chief consideration in measuring Peterborough's shortcomings. What do YOU think is Peterborough's greatest need? The Examiner reporters will not be able, of course, to get in touch with everyone in the city to ask this question. If you are missed, mail your reply to The Examiner, or leave it at the office.

ST. PETER'S TEAM WITH TWO HITS DEFEAT THE GENERALS

WERE OUTHIT 8 TO 2, BUT LOOSE FIELDING OF THE LOSERS ENABLED SCHOOL TEAM TO WIN CITY JUVENILE FIXTURE BY A SCORE OF 6 TO 5.

Although the Generals made eight hits off Pitchers McDonough and Sheehy of St. Peter's last night, while the school crew could only get two off Chartren, the errors and slow fielding of the Generals enabled St. Peter's to win the City Juvenile League fixture by 6 runs to 5. It was an exciting game, featured by two fast double plays made by the losers, F. Edgar pulling off one unassisted with the bases full.

St. Peter's got away to a good start by scoring twice in the first on a miss by Wells, a pass to N. Collins, a fielder's choice and an infield out.

Generals got one back in the third on singles by Batten and Allen and F. Edgar's fielder's choice and Chartren's single, an infield out and a fielder's choice allowed them to tie the score in the third.

The St. Peter's team came back with three in their half on a miss by F. Edgar, a sacrifice bunt by N. Collins, who reached first when Chartren's thow pulled Allen off the bag, a fielder's choice on McDonough's tap, L. Collins' infield out and F. Edgar's miss of a throw from the plate, which he lost in the sun.

In the fourth Holland's error, which allowed F. Edgar to reach second, and Chartren's single, allowed Edgar to score for the Generals. Wiliams was hit, and after Chartren had hit safely, Wilson was passed filling the bases, but Davis fanned.

The Generals tied it up in the fifth when Wells was walked and Batten singled to right. Allen's infield tap was fielded to the plate, too late to cut off Wells. Then Batten stole home with the run that tied the score. McDonough stopped the rally by fanning F. Edgar and J. Edgar and getting Williams on a pop to short stop.

In their half St. Peter's sent over the winning run. N. Collins singled to centre, the first hit off Chartren, and McDonough followed with a single to right. On L. Collins' roller, N. Collins was caught between third and home, but reached third when F. Edgar dropped the ball. Rutherford's liner was grabbed by F. Edgar, who doubled Collins off third. Clancy tapped to Baten, but Allen dropped the throw and MvDonough counted with the winning run.

Sheehy pitched the last two innings for St. Peter's and held the losers safely. The score:

LACROSSE NOTES

M'AULIFFE THINKS MORE OF CAPENTIER THAN HE DID SOME FEW WEEKS AGO

(Note.—Jack McAuliffe is a retired, undefeated lightweight champion. He is a good judge of boxers and boxing. McAuliffe was the first to send a story out of Toledo in 1919 that Dempsey would defeat Willard.)

(By Jack McAuliffe, Retired, Undefeated Lightweight Champion)

MANHASSET, N.Y., June 4.—Georges Carpentier looked very bad to me when he arrived from France several weeks ago. I said at that time that he was greatly in need of a rest, and evidently he got it, for he looks 100 per cent. better now.

He has a better colour, having lost that pasty hue in his face that probably was the after effect of a touch of sea-sickness. He is more cheerful, has more life, and is in better shape all the way around.

The Frenchman seems less nervous since he has become acclimated an acquainted with his surroundings.

One thing that has struck me about the challenger is his rather striking resemblance to the original Jack Dempsey, the old "nonpareil.' This is especially marked around his eyes and his nose.

Carpentier has the fighter's eye. Most all of the ring's greats had small, sharp eyes that look almost cruel when they are boxing. Carpentier has just that look in the ring, but not as pronounced as in the case of the old Dempsey.

The Frenchman is not so small. He is just about the same size as the champion, although he may not weigh as much on the day of the fight. He is built almost like a Greek god. His legs are perfect and his back is strong and muscular. He is especially well developed to give a great punch.

He shows this strength when he uses his right hand, which seems to be his favourite and most dangerous weapon. His left is good, but I believe that he stakes everything on that right-hand punch.

He uses it a lot like a bow and arrow. It's a snappy blow, driven entirely by the arm and back muscles. He gets it over with a lightning-like speed that makes it very dangerous. His overhand blow is also beautiful, but he isn't using it very much—at least, in public. I think it would be just as well if he discarded it against Dempsey.

Carpentier is fast on his feet and he is a great boxer, but he is far from the most graceful man of the ring. I have heard him classed the greatest boxer of history, but he can't compare with young Griffo.

The Frenchman is being handled very well. He is awfully close to being right at top condition now, and he is doing the wise thing in working just enough to keep his muscles limbered.

ATHLETICS EQUAL MAJOR RECORD OF SEVEN HOME RUNS

TROUNCES TIGERS 15 TO 9, PHILADELPHIA MAKES SEVEN FOUR BASE CLOUTS.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—(Canadian Press).—The Major League record of seven home runs by a club in one game was equalled yesterday by the Philadelphia Americans in their 15 to 9 victory over Detroit. The total surpasses the American League record of five homers for a contest by the New York Americans against the Athletics June 23, 1912. The record of seven was made, in 1886 by the Detroit team, then a member of the National League.

STREET OILING WELL UNDER WAY

TEN THOUSAND GALLONS DISPOSED OF THIS WEEK.

Oiling the city streets commenced on Monday and during the week about 10,000 gallons of oil were spread, the Examiner was told at city hall to-day. Street Commissioner H. Evans said the rain yesterday and earlier in the week interfered with the laying of the oil, but this afternoon considerable work was expected to be accomplshed. The oiling commenced a little earlier than usual this year. Commencing at the south end the oiling is worked north ward as conditions permit. It is expected that betwen 40,000 and 50,000 gallons of oil will be used costing 13.7 cents a gallon as compared with 11.5 in 1920. At this price estimating conservatively 40,000 gallons, the city's oil bill will be $5,480 an increase of $880 over last year.

BAKERS UNION ASK FOR RENEWAL OF WAGE AGREEMENT

The Bakers' Union is asking a renewal of the present agreement with the master bakers who have until July 1 to decide. The union anticipates that there will be no trouble over the wage question.

JAIL DELIVERY WAS FRUSTRATED, BELFAST

ATTEMPT TO RESCUE DETAINED SINN FEINERS FAILS.

BELFAST, June 4. — (Canadian Press.)—An attempted jail delivery was cleverly frustrated last evening in Belfast by the quick arrival of police from a nearby barracks. Men disguised as officers drove to the jail in taxi cabs and demanded the keys to the section of the prison where Sinn Feiners are under detention. The warden, suspicious of the supposed officers, threw away the keys to the inner court of the city jail and raised an alarm. During the excitement the Sinn Fein prisoners who were engaged in exercising, pinioned some of their guards with ropes and were awaiting the expected rescue. When the police arrived they quickly put down the insurrection. The prisoners for several days had been observed signalling to persons on the Crumlin road outside the prison walls.

NEW TRIAL WANTED.

HAMILTON, June 4.—Friends of Roy Hortum, the local man who now is in the death cell in Toronto jail, convicted of the murder of Cecil Sabine, have not yet given up hope of saving the young man from the gallows. It is stated that it was the intention of his lawyer to apply for a new trial. A letter written by one of the Conleys, which had not been produced at the trial and which it is claimed will throw a different light on the case, will be produced, it is said.

PRO-GERMANS ACTIVE IN EASTERN HUNGARY

MANIFESTATIONS IN FAVOR OF FUSION WITH GERMANY OCCUR

PARIS, June 4. — (Canadian Press.)—The Pan-Germans are trying to oraguize in Eastern Hungary a movement favorable to fusion vith Germany, says a despatch from Budapest to the Hungarian Embassy here. They are particularly active at Magyard-Ovar, 16 miles southeast of Pressburg, where manifestations in favor of union with Germany have occurred.

The Mount Cenis tunnel in Europe is eight miles long and cost $15,000,000.

TOURIST TRAVEL HEAVY THIS YEAR.

Present indications point to a large influx of the ever-increasing brotherhood of tourists from the United States to Canada this year. From an extensive publicity campaign to advertise the resorts in Ontario, that has been carried on this season across the border by the Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways, thousands of inquiries are being received from prospective travellers. These inquiries started to come in about a month earlier than usual, and it is certain that the Province will be favored with a much larger number of summer visitors this year than ever before.

To be in a position to give inquirers as full information as possible, the Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways issued a series of handsome illustrated booklets dealing with the territory mentioned, and which include special publications on Muskoka, Lake of Bays, Algonquin Park, Georgian Bay, The Great Lakes, Timagami, Kawartha Lakes, Northern Ontario, Nipigon, Minaki and Quetico. The text matter has been concisely and carefully prepared, and now maps engraved and printed in colors have been added to this year's issues. Reports from many of the hotels in the districts mentioned show that the accommodation is being taken up rapidly, and the summer hotel and boarding house proprietors are optimistic of a profitable 1921 season.

CANADIANS TO COMPETE IN GREATEST SEASON OF INTERNATIONAL SPORT ON RECORD; SEVERAL IMPORTANT EVENTS

INTERNATIONAL FOOTBALL, TENNIS, GOLF, ROWING AND LAWN BOWLING CONTESTS WILL SEE CANADIAN ATHLETES TAKING PROMINENT PART.

NEW YORK, June 4—(Canadian Press).—The coming summer will witness a great number of international sport contests, in several of which Canadian sportsmen will take a prominent part. Rivalry of nations will be fostered in a half-dozen lines of sport and the greatest season of international competition ever recorded is looked forward to.

Included in the list of international competitions in which Canadians will participate is the Davis Cup, tennis championship. Canada has been drawn against Australia in the opening round and the matches between the representatives of the two Dominions are scheduled to be played on the courts of the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club, July 23, 25 and 26. The Australian team includes the veteran players, Anderson, Hawkes, Peach and Todd.

Scottish, Irish and English lawn bowlers will visit Canada during August. The team will be composed of 24 players and will be the first of its kind to visit Canada since 1910. A Canadian team toured Great Britain in 1913 and the return visit has been delayed owing to the war.

In football circles interest centres about the football team from Scotland, which is now touring Canada in a series of matches with the best teams in the Dominion. The Scottish soccer players will aiso meet a number of United States teams.

Entries from the United States will be of international interest to the Canadian golf championships. The open championship will be played at Toronto, July 28-29, and the Canadian amateur championship at Winnipeg, August 22-27.

United States oarsmen are expected to participate in the Canadian National Regatta at St. Catherines, Ont., July 29-30.

Keen interest has been aroused in the International Cup polo matches, which begin June 18 in England. A strong team from the United States will attempt to lift the trophy.

British athletes will invade the United States during the summer in greatest numbers since the war, and will take part in track and field competitions. The Oxford and Cambridge track, tennis, and golf teams are scheduled to meet the best teams from United States universities. Outstanding tennis players of the world will compete in the challenge round of the Davis Cup matches at Forest Hills, New York, September 2-5.

In the United States open golf championship at Washington, July 18, interest has been added through the probable entry of Abe Mitchell and George Duncan, British professionals, who have recently been touring Canada.

The schedule of the more important national and international sport competitions for the remainder of the season follows:

SUITOR STEALS CHUM'S GIRL SO HE CAN ELOPE HIMSELF

It is hard enough on a man who has to steal his own bride in order to get married. But when he gets in the sort of a jamb where he has to abduct a girl for another fellow to marry before he can square himself with his intended it is far, far worse. This is what happens in "Wedding Blues," latest of the two-reel Christie Comedies at the Allen Theatre on Monday. It is said to be one of the fastest moving film farces the screen has seen. The cast includes such players as Neal Burns, Vera Steadman, Helen Darling and Earl Rodney. For real story it is said to surpass many five-reel features.

"THE OATH," A BIG FIVE PRODUCTION, COMING

An event of importance to motion picture patrons is the announcement that "The Oath," will be the attraction at the Allen Theatre, for the two days, beginning on Monday. The picture is the R. A. Walsh production, featuring Miriam Cooper, which has created such a furore wherever it has been shown, because of the sheer dramatic intensity which marks the climax.

When Mr. Walsh had completed the production it was selected by Associated First National Pictures, to be included in the first Big Five Group of extraordinary photoplays for this year. "Passion," starring Pola Negri, and Charlie Chaplin's "The Kid," are two of the other productions classed in the same group—a criterion of the greatness of "The Oath" in having won a place with such pictures.

IT COST 'EM A LOT TO GET 'WEDDING BLUES' JUST RIGHT

"Wedding Blues," the eleventh of the new series of two-reel Christie Comedies released through Educational Exchanges, and which is at the Allen Theatre on Monday, is set to set a new mark in expensive productions in this particular case. It is hard to believe that more than four times the footage of the picture had to be made before the directors got down to just what the two reels called for.

The trouble in making the picture was that too much happened. Everything had to be nicely planned in advance and the action set to time. But the story calls for the start of one elopement, then the stoppage of it by a father who'd not have anything to do with it; then another wrong elopement, that sets a whole evening party all wrong, and finally a marriage that seems to end up wrong until the right girl appears on the scene.

One of the most disconcerting things about cutting down the picture was that several people who had been especially engaged had to be taken out of the action entirely. But they will not be missed, since Vera Steadman, Helen Darling, Earl Rodney and Neal Burns are all in the cast.

AT THE CAPITOL.

Monday night the public will have their first opportunity to see "The Saphead," the wonderful Metro picture, with William H. Crane and Buster Keaton.

"The Saphead" is a simple soul with an unlimited supply of money earned by his father, formerly a miner, through energetic manipulation of the Wall Street market. In the belief that the pretty little schoolgirl with whom he is in love, wants him to be a "desperate character," he goes through wearisome rounds of late hours in New York cabarets and gambling places.

He is so bored with being "bad" that he even falls asleep at a gaming table with $38,000 in winnings in front of him. Then the place is raided and the young man wakes to find himself made notorious by the newspapers. His irate father, disgusted, orders his son from his home with a $1,000,000 cheque to squander.

He buys a seat in the Stock Exchange, a lamb ready to be sheared. How he wins through is told in one of the great stories of the American drama. It is a tale tense with dramatic interest and full of hilarious comedy.

"The Saphead" is presented by John L. Golden and Winchell Smith in conjunction with Marcus Loew. It was produced under the personal supervision of Mr. Smith. It co-stars the distinguished stage player, William H. Crane, and the clever young comedian, Buster Keaton, with a large and brilliant cast.

"The Saphead" is one of the most talked about feature pictures of the year, and should attract big crowds to the Capitol the first three days of next week. The balance of this splendid programme, the excellent ventilating system, comfortable cozy seats and splendid music of the concert orchestra leaves nothing to be desired in the way of comfort at the Capitol.

KEENEST INTEREST IN BIG YACHTING EVENT

Plans Already Made of British-American Cup Contest.

LONDON, June 1.—Considerable enthusiasm is being evinced in yachting circles over the plans that have already been made for the British-American cup contest, which is to take place in the next four weeks.

The special committee have decided that a half-dozen cup races shall be sailed—three in the world-famous Cowes Week, and three in the equally popular Ryde Week. The six contests are to be divided between the following four clubs: The Royal Yacht Squadron, the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, the Royal Thames Yacht Club and the Royal London Yacht Club.

As far as possible the races are to be included in the programme of these clubs on alternate days. It has been tentatively agreed that the dates shall be: Friday, July, 29, Royal Thames Yacht Club; Monday, August 1, Royal London Yacht Club; Wednesday, August 3, Royal Yacht Squadron; Friday, August 5, Royal Yacht Squadron; Monday, August 8, Royal Victoria Yacht Club; Wednesday, August 10, Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

Subject to alteration, the cup contests will be held by the Sailing Committee of the four defending clubs on the above mentioned days. The American cup is to form a section of the programme of the day. In each case the races are to be sailed on a special course, an extra race being arranged if advisable.

It has been suggested that the cup races should take premier position in each day's programme.

The rule laid down by the International Yacht Racing Union will determine the time limit in which it is possble to sail the given distance.

All the yachts will be of the six-men class and are permitted to measure between 20 and 23 feet on the water line. The draft is limited to 16 per cent. on the water line, plus 1.64 feet. Sail area may vary from 475 to 550 feet. For these craft the height of mast is restricted to twice the water-line length, measured from the truck to the water.

The Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club will represent the United States, and it is believed that at least four new boats have been ordered.

British competitors are even more excited over the venture, for it is rumored that no fewer than nine new yachts are being built. These will race amongst themselves—and with such other six-meter craft as are now afloat—in the eliminating trial, the four best being selected for the great contest.

Sir Godfrey Collins and Mr. W. P. Burton (skipper last summer of Shamrock IV.) are having special yachts built. Another is being constructed for Mr. T. C. GenCoats, a prominent amateur yachtsman, whose name has been mentioned as the next challenger for the American cup.

U. S. PRO GOLFERS TO TRY THEIR SKILL.

All Americans having been eliminated from the British amateur golf championship contest, the proceedings of the American professionals who have just embarked for St. Andrew's, Scotland, for a series of matches in the British Isles, with the world's golf championship as their aim, will be watched with interest. For the first time in history this group has been sent over on money raised by American golfers.

Although they intend to do their best to bring home the trophy, the travellers made no boasts. The present holder of the title, George Duncan, is no mean adversary, and there are others among the British, including Abe Mitchell, to say nothing of Vardon and Ray, who will prove hard men to beat.

Barnes and Hagen are considered by the Americans to have the best chances in the contest, along with Jock Hutchison, the Chicago star, who has spent the winter on Scottish courses, and who attracted considerable attention by his playing on the course at St. Andrew's.

The members of the team will take part in the Gleneagles Tournament a week before the St. Andrew's event, and a few of them expect to compete in the French Open before returning for the United States National Open at the Columbia Country Club.

Are You a Born Advertiser

Certain merchants get a reputation for being born advertisers.

They may have earned the reputation. They were not born that way. Their particular genius has lain in the fact that, having marvelous faith in the power of Daily Newspaper Advertising, they went ahead with it regardless of immediate results.

They had courage. And the courageous advertiser gets the greatest rewards.

There are those whose temperament is not suited to Napoleonic tactics. Neither will their product or pocketbook permit them to use these tactics even if they were so inclined.

Daily Newspaper Advertising is as another brain to the sales force of these men. It is the one medium from which they get quick and accurate returns; and are so able to repeat their advertisements as often as conditions warrant, and the treasury justifies.

This is particularly true at this time of the year when the season, the weather, the change of fashion, the state of public mind and attitude of competitors, all combine to affect daily sales.

* * *

The born advertiser is not necessarily the large space advertiser nor does he have to have more than one thing to advertise.

If he is quick to seize every incident in his daily life and capitalize it in his next day's advertising—the public will soon pay him that tribute of admiration expressed in the words "a born advertiser."

AT THE REGENT.

A decade ago there appeared in Collier's Weekly and several other American periodicals an extensive series of drawings of American rural life, by A. B. Frost. So sincere and so true to life were Frost's portrayals of American sons of the soil that they carried an irresistible appeal to all who saw them, and have been placed beside the poems of James Whitcomb Riley as most truly representative of rustic America.

What was accomplished by Riley in verse and Frost with pen and ink has been achieved on celluloid by Thomas H. Ince in "Homespun Folks," his super-special production for Associated Producers, which will be presented at the Regent Theatre on Monday.

"Homespun Folks" is an epic of rural America, wherein have been artistically combined the wholesome humor and realism of Frost and the poetic charm of Riley. The characters are real human beings, humorous at times, in deadly earnest at others, but always sympathetic and understandable.

WEDDING BELLS

PLEVANE—GENTILLE.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday morning at the Church of the Sacred Heart at 9.30, when Miss Assunta Gentille, daughter of Mr. S. Gentille, was united in marriage to Mr. Louis Plevane, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Plevane. The bride was beautifully attired in cream satin and lace, with bridal veil, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley. She was attended by Miss Mary Minicola, in pale pink jersey silk and picture hat, carrying pink roses. The groom was supported by Mr. Daniel Di Jiacomia, of Ottawa. After a dainty repast at the bride's home, the young couple left for Niagara Falls. They will reside in Toronto.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARGARET WALSH.

Within 5 years and 2 months of the century mark, there passed away yesterday, June 3, a highly esteemed and respected resident of Douro Township, in the person of Mrs. Margaret Walsh, aged 94 years and 10 months. Death occurred at the residence of deceased's daughter, Mrs. Patrick O'Brien, Douro, from whence the funeral will take place at 9 o'clock Monday morning, June 6 to St. Martin's Church, and thence to St. Martin's Cemetery, Douro, for interment.

Born in Ireland, the late Mrs. Walsh came to Canada at an early age, and was married in Douro, where she had resided for 77 years. She was relict of Wm. Walsh, and is survived by but one daughter, Mrs. Patrick O'Brien.

FORD CARS FORGING AHEAD

INSPIRING BUSINESS RECORD OF THE DUFFUS MOTOR SALES.

In an interview with Mr. Joseph J. Duffus it was apparent that this has really been a Ford year. During the past five months Duffus Motor Sales has sold over 200 cars, the largest sales of any previous five months. Ford cars, Ford Trucks and Fordson Tractors are evidently becoming more and more popular. No doubt the absolutely reliable and smooth operating Ford starter has had much to do with its increased popularity.

Another feature which has contributed to so many sales is that the Ford Motor Co. made the reduction in the price of their car at the first of the year instead of now and all 1921 buyers have reaped the benefit.

The Duffus Motor Sales are continuing to deliver cars at the rate of about one dozen per week and can still make reasonable delivery.

Tractors are moving with encouraging speed many people disposing of horse and replacing them with a tractor so as to enable them to keep up with their work.

KITCHENER WEPT WHEN MELBA SANG

On the eve of a concert in London, England, Melba was asked by a correspondent of the Times if she could tell him the greatest compliment and the greatest insult she had had during her career. This was her reply:

"The greatest compliment I ever had was paid me in perfect silence. When I was in Cairo a number of years ago I had the good fortune to meet Lord Kitchener, with whom I had always been on friendly terms. I had dinner with him and two or three other distinguished people, and at the end of the dinner I was pressed to sing. I was not feeling very well at the time, and tried to excuse myself, but Lord Kitchener pleaded that I should sing 'Home, Sweet Home.' He said that he had been an exile for several years, and on that account begged me to sing that song. I did so. When I had finished there was perfect silence. Lord Kitchener did not say a word. He came up to me, bowed, and kissed my hand, and when he lifted his head I could see the tears rolling down his cheeks."

PHILADELPHIA HAS GOOD MANNERS FOR SCHOOL GIRLS MOVE

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—What might be described as a movement from within the ranks, has resulted in the starting of a dress, manners and morals improvements drive at the South Philadelphia High School for Girls.

Although the standards to be attained have been set forth in a manual prepared by members of the faculty, the 1,400 girls of the school want the world to know that it was they who started the whole thing.

The movement had its inception when the girls voluntarily decided to wear dark skirts and white middies as a test of the practicability of a uniform attire for students. The girls seems to be satisfied with the practicability of the move since they have fallen in enthusiastically with the plan to stretch the reform to the realm of manners.

Besides the supplying of the manuals for the girls, the faculty will conduct classes in manners. The plan includes the use of shadowgraphs at assembly, depicting, for instance, a family sitting down to a meal.

Of the feature, Dr. Lucy L. W. Wilson, Principal of the school, said: "Since all the students attend the assembly, all will see the picture. Afterward, they will meet in small groups, each in a class-room with a teacher, and will discuss and criticize the manners of the family shown in the picture."

In writings the manual of manners and dress, every attempt was made to compile a strictly common-sense set of recommendations. Advice is given on such practical problems as the indication of a preference when invited to a play.

The boys surely will appreciate the bit that says: "When invited to the theatre—if asked your preference in plays, indicate it, keeping in mind the ability of the boy to pay for the seats. Discourage extravagance on his part. Be sure to express your pleasure after the night's entertainment."

Other pieces of advice picked at random from the manual are:

"Avoid the bad taste of using rouge, too much powder, too striking hats, extreme decollete, too short skirts, unsuitable shoes and stockings, excessive jewelry.

"Do not eat or chew gum on the street.

"It is not discourteous to tell a boy caller that your parents prefer he should not stay after 10 o'clock."

NEW YORK MARKET

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, June 4.—(Canadian Press).—Strength of Southern Rails and cotton carriers was the noteworthy feature at the opening of today's stock market. Atlantic Coast Line rose five points and Louisville and Nashville, one of yesterday's few strong stocks, gained 1 1-2; Pierce Oil preferred which was under share-presure yesterday, rallied six points. Some of the other oils were heavy, however, Standard Oil of New Jersey losing 2 3-4 and Royal Dutch one. American Woollen, Atlantic Gulf, U. S. Rubber, Colorado Fuel, Steel Foundries and Cuba Cane Sugar, common and preferred, were included to react.

That "married feeling" is the perfect understanding that comes after a few years when a wife knows exactly what her husband is going to say when he is planning an evening at the club and he knows exactly what she will answer when he says it.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE IS NOW DEPLETED

COAL STRIKE AND INDUSTRIAL DEPRESSION HAVE EXHAUSTED FUND SET ASIDE IN BRITAIN.

IS CAUSING ANXIETY

LONDON, June 6. — (Canadian Press).—As a result of the miners' strike and the depression in the industrial situation which has followed it in Great Britain, the Government's insurance scheme against unemployment is absolutely insolvent. The fund of thirty million pounds set aside for this purpose is exhausted, and the treasury is now finding another twenty million pounds to prevent stoppage of benefits. Half that sum has already been spent, and with a deficiency of a million and a half pounds a week, the remainder will not last long. The only course apparently now open is for the Government to pass legislation reducing the benefits and increasing contributions. With the alarming increase in unemployment, it is doubtful if this even will meet the case which is causing alarm and anxiety.

WHAT IS PETERBORO'S GREATEST NEED?

George Ball: "Peterborough's greatest need, like any other Canadian city, is loyalty to its own town—loyalty to its own manufacturers, its own citizens. Some men are always shouting 'Boost Peterborough,' yet they go out of town for their goods. Peterborough should leave its money with local shoe and clothing makers, and this enormous amount of money would be returned to local workers in wages, and general prosperity would accrue if this were true of other things.

"I have lived in Canada for fifty years, and as a Britisher I have observed that Canadians are not loyal to themselves. By this time Canada should have a population of 15,000,000 or 16,000,000, but it hasn't, because the people aren't loyal to their own country. We magnify the ability of the stranger. The newest comer, the latest comer, is given the position of trust and honour. We're the greatest and richest country in the world, but the national resources are not delved into."

ANTI-UNIONISTS TO PROPOSE THAT CHURCH UNION BE LEFT TO SYNODS FOR A DECISION

WOULD BE MORE REPRESENTATIVE, YET WOULD CAUSE A YEAR'S DELAY, IT IS ARGUED.

VOTE THIS AFTERNOON

TORONTO, June 6.—(Canadian Press). — That the question of Church union should be referred to the various Church Synods for decision is the new proposal before the Presbyterian General Assembly. When the debate is resumed this afternoon it is expected that the amendment to Dr. Fraser's anti-Union amendment will be moved, and so far as is known, it will provide for a vote of the Synods on the issue.

It is argued that the Synods would be six times more representative than the General Assembly. On the other hand, it would mean another year's delay before the Synods could vote on the consummation of union.

The belated formal welcome to Toronto was extended to the delegates by Mayor T. L. Church at noon.

Stude's Worries Nearing Climax

NECESSITY OF HIDING CHRONICLES OF BABE RUTH BEHIND AENEAS' CLASSIC TALE SOON TO BE OVER.

Lower forms in the Collegiate Institute began writing their 'exams' to-day, but the upper forms, fourth and fifth, do not start until next week to write the Departmental, Matriculation and Honour matriculation examinations. Joy reigneth at the Collegiate not over the closing ordeal forsooth but in the knowledge of the pupils that autumn of the school year is reached and in a week in two weeks schools studies, thoughts of axioms, definitions, rules, law, conjugations and bad visions of Cæsar and Æneas may be forgotten in freedom's bliss.

The public schools do not close until the end of the month. The Normal School years end on June 17 and these students, like P.C.I. are also submerged in examinations.

DELAY MERGING OF GOVERNMENT RAILWAY HEADS

UNDERSTOOD APPOINTMENT OF PERMANENT BOARD OF MANAGEMENT TO STAND OVER TILL PREMIER'S RETURN.

TO CONTINUE AS NOW

OTTAWA, June 6. — (Canadian Press.)—It is expected here that the appointment of a permanent Board of Management for the Government Railways will be allowed to stand over until the return of the Premier from England. It was unofficially intimated this morning that such would be the case. The Grand Trunk arbitration proceedings will not be concluded for some time, it is said, and the present arrangements for joint operation of the two systems will carry on until the Grand Trunk is finally taken over. The difficulties surrounding the merging of the two staffs, together with other problems to be overcome, are understood to have been responsible for the delay in making permanent appointments.

CHILDREN'S CONCERT ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH

A crowded house greeted the children's concert and entertainment given in the basement of St. George's church last Friday evening. The children, under the capable supervision of Miss Ivy Williams, one of the Sunday School teachers, gave a fine exhibition of dances and recitations. Miss Greta Brownlee was their very efficient accompanist. Miss Horsefield and Mr. Farr gave two excellent solos, accompanied by Mrs. Evans, and Master Ashton Fife delighted the audience with his recitation, as did Mr. J. John, who is always a favorite. Master Leslie J. Alcock gave a very good pianoforte solo and Miss Scott's singing was much appreciated.

The Ladies' Guild served refreshments during the interval, which was followed by a camp scene by the Boy Scouts. The Rev. W. R. Courage acted as chairman. The piano for the occasion was kindly loaned by Mr. Lawson, of the Heintzman Company.

FORESTERS ATTEND ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

A large number of the members of Court Stanley, Ancient Order of Foresters, with members, attended Divine service at St. Andrew's Church last evening. Rev. Mr. Rollins gave a splendid address on the aims and ideals of the Order, and some beautiful music was rendered by the choir, under the leadership of Mr. John Crane. Verdi's "Spirit Immortal" was given, with baritone solo by Mr. John Smith, a male quartette composed of Messrs. Chas Clarke, Maurice Park, Douglas Carlisle and Douglas D. Brown gave a fine number and Mrs. Maurice Park rendered lovely vocal solo.

WOOLLEN MANUFACTURERS REASONABLY OPTIMISTIC.

HAMILTON, June 6.—Gratified at the progress during the past year, members of the Canadian Woollen Manufacturers' Association were reasonably optimistic regarding the industrial outlook at the annual meeting held on Saturday. Officers were elected as follow:

Hon. president, Richard Thomson, Carleton Place; president, Harold G. Smith, Hamilton; vice-president, D. N. Panebaker, Hespeler; secretary-treasurer, Fred H. Yapp, Hamilton; executive committee, I. Bonner, Paris, H. Barrett, Paris, T. Hepburn, Preston, Edgar Worth, Peterborough, W. W. Weed, Arnprior, W. Mitchell, Kincardine, Joseph Baumont, Glen Williams, J. A. Burns, Dunnville, C. W. Bates, Carleton Place, J. R. Moodie, Hamilton, K. W. Harvey, Woodstock, H. Quarmby, Guelph, C. G. Cockshutt, Brantford, G. A. Dobbie, Galt.

"MY MAMMY"

A mother song as sung by the Peerless Male Quartette is one of the new records of His Master's Voice Series. The song is addressed to the old Mammy whose skin is black, but whose spirit was the white spirit of motherhood. It has some curious changing almost abrupt harmonies, a bass voice weaving underneath them an odd, weird, reflective counterstrain. This is one side of a dollar record obtainable in the Victrola Parlors of Ye Olde Firme Heintzman & Co., Limited, George and Hunter Streets, Peterborough. On the opposite side is "Underneath Hawaiian Skies," by Albert Campbell-Henry Burr.

OF 200 PASSENGERS ON DENVER AND RIO GRANDE TRAIN 140 WERE SWEPT FROM COACHES BY RUSHING WATER AS TRAIN WAS PULLED UP NEAR BRIDGE—MORGUE AND HOSPITALS ARE FULL TO OVERFLOWING.

CANNOT ESTIMATE DEAD; THOUSANDS HOMELESS

PUEBLO, June 6 (Canadian Press).—Flood-stricken Central Colorado to-day surveys the havoc of the most disastrous flood in the history of the Western United States.

An accurate estimate of the loss of life and property damage is impossible at this time. With the morgues crowded to overflowing, the hospitals turning patients to improvised relief stations, and thousands homeless or suffering from exposure, every effort to-day was being directed towards the alleviation of suffering, leaving the work of survey and plans for rehabilitation for the attention of outside forces en route to the almost prostrate community.

The local Red Cross placed the number of bodies found at approximately one hundred, while the number of persons in temporary hospitals was placed at five hundred.

State rangers have been sent into the lowlands on the north side of the city early this morning to give warning of the approach of a new flood from Swallows, sixteen miles west along the Arkansas River.

The north and south sides of Pueblo are separated by a bridge, the approaches of which are flooded so that passage between the two sections is impossible.

Platte River Overflows Its Banks.

DENVER, Colorado, June 6 (Canadian Press).—Early this morning the Platte River here overran its banks, and is flooding several blocks of the residential district.

Several police squads were sent to the locality to assist the residents in moving from their homes. The families are being cared for at the City Hall.

140 Passengers Swept from Train.

COLORADO SPRINGS, June 6 (Canadian Press).—Heart-rending story of the experiences undergone by passengers on the Denver and Rio Grande train which arrived in Pueblo Friday night is told by Frank Ducray, Sheriff of Masa County. He was one of the few survivors of the two hundred passengers on the train.

The train was pulled up near the bridge over the Arkansas River. In the next track was a Missouri Pacific train. After a short time the passengers heard the roar of waters, and the flood lapped at the coach steps, and began rising rapidly.

"It was soon rushing through the cars," said the Sheriff. "Some of us went up and down the coaches quieting the passengers, many of whom were praying, while others were screaming and moaning. I saw a young girl swept away as the water rushed into the coaches, and carried us out through the windows and doors. An old lady declared that if it were her time to go, she was prepared, and kept on smiling. I reckon she died in her seat.

"In the water we clung to the coaches, which were swaying back and forth with the waves and striking the coaches of the adjoining train. Screams and cries of anguish rose. I saw some people die, crushed between the two trains on either side of us; houses and barns and other buildings were swirling down. Many people were clinging to them.

"Morning came. The waters had been receding. Those of us who were left—about sixty—were able to reach the ground and walk about in the water up to our knees. Some of the unconscious women and children were left in the dark. It was a scene of devastation and death. It was awful."

Is Eigth Great Flood in States

The disastrous flood in Central Colorado is the eighth great flood in the United States during the past century. All except one occurred west of the Mississippi River. The other seven were:

1849—New Orleans, La. — 1,600 lives lost; $28,000,000 damage.

1874—Mississippi Valley — 1,338 square miles inundated.

1889—Johnstown, Penn. — 2,500 lives lost.

1897—Mississippi Valley — 20,000 square miles inundated.

1900—Galveston, Texas—5,000 lives lost; 8,000 buildings.

1907-8—Pittsburg, Penn.—$6,514,000 damage.

1913—Dayton, Ohio — 700 lives lost; $20,000,000 damage.

HYDRO RADIALS FOR BUFFALO?

THROUGH RADIAL SERVICE FROM TORONTO TO BUFFALO PROPOSED BY THE HYDRO COMMISSION.

NO BRIDGE ESTIMATES

TORONTO, June 6.— (Canadian Press.)—Testifying before the Ontario Radial Commission to-day, Thomas A. Wilkinson, Hydro engineer, said the Hydro-Electric Commission was proposing a through radial service to Buffalo, but no estimates had yet been given as to the rentals for the use of the International bridge.

C.O.F. PARADED TO KNOX CHURCH SUNDAY EVENING

The three Camps of the Canadian Order of Foresters—Peterborough, Langton and Little John—held their annual church parade last night to Knox Church, each of the Camps attending in representative numbers. The parade started from the headquarters of Court Peterborough, George Street, and William Kemp acted as Marshal.

Rev. James A. MacKenzie preached on "Blessed Brotherhood," from Matthew 23. 8: "But be not yet called Rabbi; for one is your Master, even Christ, and all ye are brethren."

His sermon was appropriate to the occasion. He spoke of the beauty in fellowship of man under the Lordship of Christ, to which he pointed out all things should be subservient. He referred to the qualities of brotherhood—friendliness, contentment, gladness, and helpfulness, and the fellowship of man should always be encouraged, he said.

Special music was rendered by the choir. "Sanctus," an anthem by the whole choir, was beautifully given, and "Seek Ye the Lord" was sung by the ladies of the choir in splendid manner.

SMALL FIRE.

At 7.50 p.m., yesterday the firemen answered a call to William H. Cole's residence, 640 Union Street. Children playing with matches had started a blaze in the curtains and wall but with the aid of chemicals the blaze was quickly extinguished. The damage would amount to only a few dollars. The danger of allowing children to play with matches was mentioned by the Chief to-day, and the danger is not always to property, he pointed out.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

NEW YORK, June 6 (Canadian Press).—Business on the stock exchange to-day began with the resumption of last week's reaction.

The movement was intensified by another sharp break in the British exchange. Losses of one to almost two points marked the early offering of Atlantic Gulf, American International, General Asphalt, California Petroleum, Royal Dutch, Crucible Steel, and General Electric.

Shares of railroads traversing the flooded section of Colorado were dull and not materially changed.

Sugars were the centre of an active selling movement during the morning, losing one to four points on another cut in refined products. Shipping, especially United Fruit, extended the declines, and all Oils, notably Royal Dutch, Asphalt and Pierce Preferred, showed increased heaviness. Motor accessories, Chemicals and Motion Picture specialties also lost ground, and United States Steel forfeited a point on extensive offerings. Colorado Fuel and Colorado Southern Railway lost one and two points respectively as a result of latest advices from the devastated section. Call money opened at 7½ per cent.

American Tobacco, Bosch Magneto, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Continental Can and Standard Oil of New Jersey were among the various stocks to show extreme losses of two to four points during the mid-session. Short covering in the Motor group effected rallies of 1 to 1½ points.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, June 6 (Canadian Press).—Receipts heavy, and trade was steady. Quotations Heavy beef steers, 8.50 to $0.00; butcher steers, choice, $8.00 to $8.75; butcher cows, medium, $4.50 to $6.00; calvs, $8.00 to $10.50; lambs, $15.00 to $18.00; hogs, ed and watered, selects, $0.00.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 6.—(Canadian Press).—Accumulation of buying orders over the holiday resulted in an active market on the Toronto Stock Exchange when trading was resumed this morning. With the exception of paper stocks, which weakened on news of further price reductions, practically all issues participated in the forward movement. Transactions were higher than for some time past. Toronto Railway led in point of activity and the price was soon bid up to 80, 1½ points higher than Thursday's close. Profit-taking set in, however, and the stock re-acted to 77 7-8, a net loss of 5-8. Canada Steamships Preferred gained two points at 55½, F. N. Burt Common 1½ at 113, while Riordon was fractionally higher at 17½. Spanish River Common lost 1 at 67, and the Preferred issue was down 3-4 at 77¼.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 6. — (Canadian Press).—Active buying on the part of the leading commission firm brought about advances in the wheat market to-day, notwithstanding that opening prices were lower. Initial declines had as a basis good weather and the set-back in foreign exchange. There was some selling of July and buying of September on account of the wide discount of the latter delivery. Opening quotations, which varied from 3-4 to 1 3-4 cents lower, were followed by a general upturn to well above Saturday's finish.

Corn rallied with wheat, despite big arrivals. After opening unchanged to 3-8 cents lower, the market scored moderate gains all around. Oats were goverped by the action of other cereals, starting July 39½ to 39 3-8, and then turning upgrade. Provisions held steady but trade lacked volume.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, June 6.—(Canadian Press).—Prices were weak during this morning's session on the local Stock Exchange. Abitibi was unchanged at 36. Brazilian remained steady at its opening figure, while Brompton went down 3-4 of a point more to 34. Laurentide dropped from 90, its closing figure on Thursday, to 87¼, Spanish River was down one and a quarter points to 67 3-4, and Wayagamack was weaker by a quarter at 66 3-4.

DESERTERS TO BE LET FREE

REGULATIONS FOR THEIR DISCHARGE FROM ARMY EMBODIED IN ORDER-IN-COUNCIL.

CONFESSION NECESSARY

OTTAWA, June 6.— (Canadian Press.) — Regulations for the discharge of deserters and absentees without leave from the Canadian army overseas have been provided for by an order-in-council. The applicant for discharge must produce from the militia headquarters at Ottawa or in his military district a form of release, and must sign a confession of desertion. According to the circumstances of the case, he will be disharged by reason of "misconduct," "demobilization" or "being medically unfit."

PRINTERS CLAIM SETTLEMENT NOW WITH 37 SHOPS

BOOKBINDERS IN TORONTO DENY THAY HAVE MADE ANY SETTLEMENT.

TORONTO, June 6.—(Canadian Press). — The local branch of the Typographical Union claims to have made settlements with thirty-seven firms during the past few days. Officials of the Bookbinders' Union deny that they have made an agreement with their employers.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS OF THE INTERDENOMINATIONAL BIBLE CLASS P. LIBRARY.

We expect to have our teacher, Rev. A. J. Doner, with us for Tuesday night, June 7th. He will occupy part of the lesson hour telling of the wonderful services held in New York City under the leadership of Rev. Paul Rader, and the Bosworth Bros., who have just closed a series of meetings in Massey Hall, Toronto. Mr. Doner and son have also been attending the Annual Council of the Christian and Missionary Alliance at Nyack-on-the-Hudson, and a brief review of this important gathering will also be given. Let every member be present to hear this interesting report and to join us in our new studies on the Holy Spirit.

ANTI-UNIONISTS TO PROPOSE

3890 SUNDAY SCHOOLS

TORONTO, June 6. Canadian Press. It is a trite and true saying that the children of a school are its hope, as it may be said of a nation. This is specially true of the Presbyterian Church, which is now holding its annual General Assembly in Toronto. One of the most important reports dealt with by the six hundred commissioners constituting this Presbyterian body is that of the Board of Sabbath Schools and the Young People's Societies. The importance of the Sunday school as an auxiliary to the church is had in the fact that the 3890 Sunday schools of this denomination have an enrollment of over 300,000, thus making a big army of officers, teachers and pupils. The records of this department in 1920 show a healthy increase over the preceding year.

The modern Sunday school is a far different organization than it was even a decade ago. It is more and more being conducted along pedagogical lines with a grading system that is, in part, based upon public school grading. This all makes for increased efficiency in every branch. The Sunday school of to-day, according to this Presbyterian report is a much wider institution than its predecessors. There are nearly forty thousand on the cradle roll where they are getting their first point of contact with the Sunday school and the church. The Home Department is a comparatively recent innovation with nearly ten thousand enrolled. Similarly, the organized Bible Class has put new life into the adult end of the Sunday school, with 3290 recorded to date. Several hundred workers attend teacher training courses. Over one half of the four thousand schools are neither graded, nor use graded lessons. Definite special instruction is given on Missions, Temperance, Good Citizenship and similar subjects.

Interesting Fact.

It is an interesting fact that over 80 per cent. of the additions to the membership of any church comes from the children and youths. The fact therefore that over seven thousand Sunday school children, came into full communion with the Presbyterian Church last year, is a significant one, especially as it indicates a considerable increase over 1919. The children and young folks are also relatively generous givers. Their contribution to the Budget and the Rally Day Fund exceeded $130,000.

The Young People's Organizations form another important adjunct in any church. The Presbyterians have three thousand, showing an exceptional increase of nearly a thousand in a year, chiefly due to the organization of older boys and girls into effective working groups under the Canadian Standard Efficiency Training and the Canadian Girls in Training Courses. Over seventy thousand young people are thus definitely related to this church through their societies and clubs.

New School Every Day.

There is a new Sunday school day in more ways than one. Children are being interested in the world as in their own parish through the dissemination of missionary literature. Many Sunday Schools and classes contribute directly to the support of a home or foreign missionary. Most of the volunteers for missionary service come from the Sunday school where they receive their first training. Several new lines of social service are also drawing support from the Sunday school, affording a splendid opportunity for an expression of applied Christianity.

The report of Assembly further revealed a marked degree of expansion and cooperation in the realm of religious education which is more and more becoming cooperative, through the Religious Education Council of Canada

The speakers at the Assembly who dealt with this department of children and youth were justified in their optimism based upon a marked advance made along practically every line in this important department of Church life and work.

LLOYD GEORGE'S REFUSAL TO PROLONG OFFER FELL LIKE A BOMBSHELL AMONG THE MINERS

STATES THAT TEN MILLION POUNDS COULD NOT BE PROLONGED MORE THAN FORTNIGHT.

EXECUTIVE MEETS TODAY

LONDON, June 6 (Canadian Press).—Regret that the British coal miners have rejected the latest Government offer for a settlement of the coal strike was expressed in a letter yesterday from Prime Minister Lloyd-George to Frank Hodges, the secretary of the Coal Miners' Union.

In his letter, Lloyd-George said that the grant of ten million pounds which the Government was prepared to make to ease the difficulties of the men in the hardest-hit districts could not be prolonged more than another fortnight.

This offer, the letter said, had been made with considerable misgiving, owing to the severe burdens on other industries and taxpayers, and that the fortnight should give the men sufficient time to ballot on the proposal or reach a settlement immediately.

Lloyd-George's statement fell like a bombshell into the camp of the Miners' Executive. Its effect is indicated by the decision of the Executive to adjourn until to-day in order, as one miner expressed it, that "we may sleep on it, and in a better frame of mind decide what action to take."

PARISIAN JEWELLERS SKEPTICAL OF PEARL MANUFACTURE REPORT

SMILE AT ALLEGED IMITATION OF PEARL BY JAP EXPERT.

PARIS, June 6. — (Associated Press.)—The fashionable jewelers of the Rue de la Paix are smiling over a report from London that a Japanese pearl expert had discovered a cultivating process to produce pearls which could not be distinguished from genuine Oriental pearls and which consequently had the same value.

"In the whole history of the world," said Jacques Cartier, a prominent jewel merchant, "no one has ever succeeded in artificially producing precious stones. Man has never been able to imitate the processes of nature."

The pearl, said M. Cartier, is particularly difficult to imitate and anyone could distinguish an Oriental pearl from the imitation. The real pearl is composed of many concentric skins, as an onion. Held up in the natural right the centre shows darkest ,with the transparency increasing in perfect gradation toward the exterior.

The imitation, or "Japanese pearl," is said to be produced by introducing into the living oyster a small stick of mother-of-pearl or a small ball of meerschaum, which after several years becomes covered with several skins of the same substance as the real pearl.

"It would probably require 50 years to produce a solid pearl by this method," said M. Cartier, with a smile, "and who wants to feed an oyster for 50 years?"

But we have to confess that we don't always recognize good luck when we do meet it.

It's an easy matter to obtain peace; all you have to do is to let the other fellow have his way.

THIS WOMAN'S MISERY

Ended by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Remarkable Recovery of Mrs. Church.

Smiths Falls, Ont.—"I suffered with falling of my organs, pains around my heart and in bowels and down my legs, neuralgia in my face and head, and that terrible sinking feeling. I felt that I could not live and would fix my house in order every night so there would be no trouble if I dropped off in the night. My husband went to the druggist to get the best remedy he had and he gave him Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took six bottles and felt a lot better. I will always recommend the Vegetable Compound, and you can use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. O. CHURCH, Box 845, Smiths Falls, Ont.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from nervous prostration, displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion and dizziness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

If there are any complications about which you need advice write in confidence to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

SCOTSMEN TROUNCE WINNIPEG BY 3-1

WINNIPEG June 6 (Canadian Press).—Giving an exhibition of football as it should be played, and which at times was a revelation to the eight thousand enthusiasts in the park, the touring Scottish footballers continued their conquering methods at the expense of the Manitoba representatives here on Saturday afternoon.

The score was 3 goals to 1.

CAMPBELLFORD MASONS ATTEND CHURCH SUNDAY

SPECIAL SERVICE AND SERMON BY REV. H. B. KENNY—PERSONAL MENTION.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 6—The Methodist church was crowded yesterday morning, when the members of Golden Rule Lodge, No. 126 A.F. and A.M. and visiting brthern, in a body attended divine service, almost the entire centre of the church being occupied by the members. Rev. (Capt.) H. B. Kenney preached a very inspiring sermon from words found in 1 Kings Chap. 6 verse 7—And the house when it was in building, was built of stone made ready before it was brought thither; so that there was neither hammer nor axe, nor any tool of iron heard in the house, while it was in building Subject theme: The mason's working tools. The words chosen were chosen not for exposition but to serve as an introduction to the work ing tools of the mason. Those who study the dim past learn what relation tools have to peoples long ago. Gross darkness would envelop the prehistoric ages, were it not for tools. Historians tell of the stone age, people groping in darkness after God. Then comes bronze age, then iron age. So the study of tools, recalls the history of peoples who preceded us. The distinct feature of advancement of every generation may be traced back to the tools used The progress of the world depends on mans' ingenuity to make new tools. Man is naturally a craftsman. When we study the tools used in our order, we sge unity of purpose. The instrument of proper division of time. In taking stock of the resources of the great materials, God has put within our reach. A life of moderation and now begin to prepare the invisible temple, seen by eye of God. We use the plumb divesting our hearts of vices, superfluities. When walking by the plumb, man cannot sell his conscience or his peace.

Perpendicular Man

The perpendicular man is of great value to any community. He uses the level that he may treat his fellows not according to man's idea, but God's one blood, one brotherhood. He is prepared to use the trowel. What a beauty and charm we see in our fellows. Why not chisel included? Everywhere we go we see the product of the chisel but it is hard to surpass the wisdom of the master of masonry. Growth should be from within rather than from without. Like the silent rearers of white temple of Solomon, so we are to have thoughts directed to the great invisible temple of God accord ing to his plan. The first tool is beautiful and suggestive. Benjamin Franklin said: "Man should begin the day with homage to the Deity. The mason's life should be a well rounded life. Charity is the sublime symbol of God. The mason must know charity. Wealth may vanish. Then abideth, faith, hope, charity, these three but greatest of these is charity. Worship, prayer and meditation.

God's Day.

We must observe God's Day in God's way. No one need to be ashamed of the order. In its higher ethics a curb must be put upon natural impulses. If any man would follow me let him take up his cross and follow me. If thine eye offend thee, puck it out and cast it from thee. The greatest battles of life are those of the human heart. Self-mastery is the lesson of the gavel. The plumb enables us to walk before God. Happiness is the lot of the upright man. The square the most ancient tool governs our rule in dealing with our fellow men, and requires the golden rule "Do unto others as ye would they should do unto you" an honest mans' the noblest work of God. The level teaches the equality of manhood and we meet on one common level and by constant exercise of brotherly love by the trowel be cemented into one common brotherhood. If you want to know what is in a mason entrust him with more of your friendship. Charity discloses itself under afflictions. Men do not reach their greatest except under the influence of love and charity.

LABOUR LEADER DIES.

LONDON, June 6 (Canadian Press).—The Right Hon., William Crooks, who served as Labour member of Parliament for nearly twenty years, died yesterday.

"Will" Crooks, as he was affectionately known, became one of the leaders in the great Labour movement, and one of the dominant figures in Britain.

He was born in a London slum, Poplar, in 1852. From the heart of the slums he became Mayor of Poplar, Poor Law Guardian, and member of Parliament in 1903.

SEIZE 5,000 CASES LIQUOR

PROVINCIAL POLICE MAKE ONE OF THE LARGEST HAULS YET ON OTTAWA EXPORT PREMISES.

VALUED AT $200,000

OTTAWA, June 6. — (Canadian Press.)—One of the biggest seizures of intoxicating liquor in Canada since the enactment of prohibitory legislation, was that made on Saturday morning when Captain Collins of the Ontario Provincial police from Toronto, raided the premises of the Ontario Export Company and placed under seizure close on to five thousand cases of assorted liquors valued at more than $200,000.

The seizure was made under instructions from General Elliott, head of the Ontario Provincial Police Department. Police court action against the owners of the liquor whose names the department is not yet in possession of, will be taken within the course of a few days. It is intimated that the company is conducted by a syndicate of Hull and Ottawa residents of some prominence.

PLEADS RECOGNITION OF CHEMICAL WARFARE

SIR WILLIAM POPE SAYS POISON GAS LEAST CRUEL WEAPON.

LONDON, June 6.—(Associated Press).—Sir William J. Pope, Professor of Chemistry at Cambridge University, and president of the Society of Chemical Industry, asserts in the Chemical Age that chemical warfare has come to stay, and pleads for an open recognition by the Government of poison gas research.

He says that in the war poison gas was less fatal and far less cruel than any other weapon; and points out that it would be simple to devise high explosive shells which would liberate large quantities of carbon monoxide, against which all known protective measures are useless.

"No reason," he says, "exists why a chemical should not be made which does not kill but produces local anaesthesia, causes violent sneezing for a few hours or leads to some form of physiological intoxication which may prove of great military value."

SESSION ENDS; FAREWELL SAID BY DEVONSHIRE

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S MESSAGE AT PROROGATION A VALEDICTORY TO PARLIAMENT.

PRESENTS FOR MEIGHEN

OTTAWA, June 6 (Canadian Press).—With traditional ceremony, His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire prorogued Parliament on Saturday afternoon.

The occasion was more than the usual closing of the Parliamentary session. It was a valedictory on the part of the Duke, a farewell message to the members of Parliament, whom he addressed for the last time prior to the expiration of his term of office as Governor-General.

To this the Duke of Devonshire made reference in the speech from the Throne, following the customary outline of the measures adopted during the session.

"This is the last occasion I shall have the honour of addressing you, as my term of office will have expired before you meet again. May I assure you that I shall always retain a very real affection for Canada and its people, and I shall watch your progress with the greatest interest, in the sure belief that an ever-increasing measure of happiness and prosperity will be the lot of the Dominion."

OTTAWA, June 6 (Canadian Press).—Premier Meighen on Saturday was the recipient of handsome presents from the Government supporters in the House of Commons and the Senate.

The presentation was made of a complete dinner set of Crown Derby china and a large cabinet of solid silver table ware by the Hon. W. E. Charlton, the Hon. W. M. Smith, and the Hon. Senator Rufus Pope, on behalf of the members.

Premier and Mrs. Meighen leave for Quebec this morning, and will sail for England to-morrow on the Empress of Britain.

APPOINTMENT OF A SOUTH PARLIAMENT MAY BE NECESSARY

KING HAS RIGHT TO DO SO UNDER IRISH ACT.

DUBLIN, June 6. — (Associated Press).—King George may have to appoint a Parliament from the south of Ireland. He is authorized by the Home Rule Act to do so if the members elected fail to take the oath of office within 14 days after the date fixed for the assemblage of the new Parliament.

This fact is important in view of the announcement that the Sinn Feiners nominated without opposition for the new Parliament, and thus virtually elected, have been accepted by the Irish leaders as constituting the new members of the Dail Elireann: suggesting the probability that they will refuse to constitute the Parliament for which they were chosen.

In that event, King George is authorized by the Home Rule Act to appoint a committee, consisting of members of the Irish Privy Council and such other persons as he may choose, and constitute these persons a legislative and executive assembly to exercise the functions of the Parliament.

This provision is described by the opponents of the Act as the establishment of Crown Colony government. It is evident that it makes it easy for the Government at once to take measures for setting up the Southern Parliament at or near the same time as the Northern. Under this method, Southern Ireland would be governed by a committee of nominated Irishmen instead of at present by nominated British officials.

MORE YATES THOMPSON MANUSCRIPTS TO BE SOLD.

Expected Whole Collection Will Realize Quarter of a Million.

LONDON, June 6.—(Associated Press).—A further portion of the world famous Yates Thompson manuscripts is to be sold here at the end of June.

Fifty-eight of the collection of 100 manuscripts have already been disposed of for £130,325 and, by the time the whole collection has been sold, probably over £250,000 will have been realized.

The most interesting specimen to be sold is the smallest manuscript in the collection, dated 1530. It is in a costly little golden case decorated with white enamel and pink stones, like garnets, and is arranged to hang from a chain. It is the Credo or "protestacion" of the Emperor Charles V. of Rome.

The volume consists of 29 leaves, each one inch by one and three-quarter inches. The last five leaves contain a prayer to the Emperor's guardian angel.

Eucalyptus trees sometimes attain a height of 500 feet.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN CUBA.

Closing of Sugar Centrals Will Increase Unemployment to 300,000.

HAVANA, June 6.—(Associated Press).—Unemployment is a grave problem facing Cuba, according to the Havana Post, which estimates that the closing of the sugar centrals will increase those out of work to more than 300,000. There are more than 75,000 unemployed in Havana at present, the paper states it has been informed, with the number increasing as a result of the influx of others from the country districts.

Unless the Government takes action it is asserted there will be no relief until the agricultural districts again offer employment next September.

ARKANSAS RIVER, SWOLLEN BY CLOUDBURSTS, TAKES A DEATH TOLL NOW ESTIMATED AT 250

SIR SAM HUGHES TAKEN TO LINDSAY

OTTAWA, June 6. — (Canadian Press.)—Sir Sam Hughes was taken to Lindsay yesterday by a special Canadian National train. The train left at 11 o'clock a.m. and went as far as Belleville by the Canadian National line. From Belleville to Lindsay the Grand Trunk tracks were used. Lady Hughes went to Lindsay on Friday last to make preparations for his reception. Sir Sam was accompanied by his two daughters, by Dr. Peter McGibbon and by two nurses.

ONE KILLED IN G.T.R. WRECK

ENGINEER BADLY SCALDED AND TEN PASSENGERS SEVERELY SHAKEN UP NEAR SHERKSTON

DEFECTIVE RAIL CAUSE

HAMILTON, June 6.—(Canadian Press.) —Pinned beneath their engine, William Allan, fireman, of Fort Erie, was instantly killed, and Fred Clarke, engineer, of Bridgeburg, was badly scalded, while ten passengers were severly shaken up, when a Grand Trunk passenger train bound from Blackrock to Dunnville, was derailed one mile east of Sherkston Saturday afternoon. What caused the wreck was not definitely known, but a defective rail is thought to have been responsible.

SUSPENSION OF TOBACCO IMPORTS TAX WON'T HELP CUBAN TOBACCO PLANTERS.

British Market Said to be Well Stocked.

HAVANA, June 6.—(Associated Press).—Cuban tobacco planters say that the suspension by Great Britain of its extra 50 per cent. tax on tobacco imports will give little help in the present crisis faced by the Cuban tobacco industry.

In a recent meeting of planters it was stated that the British dealers had stocked up heavily and would require little tobacco for some time. The planters also stated that their efforts to induce the tobacco workers' federations to accept reduced wage scales so that Cuban tobacco could be put on the market at reduced prices had resulted in so slight a reduction of wages that it was considered useless.

IN SPITE OF WARNING MANY DID NOT FLEE TILL WALL OF WATER WAS UPON THEM.

DAMAGE MANY MILLIONS

DENVER, Colo., June 6.—(Canadian Press.)— The Arkansas river, over-swollen by cloudbursts, is believed to have claimed at least 250 lives since Friday night at Pueblo and in the country surrounding. There are other estimates of the dead reaching up to one thousand. The property damage will amount to many millions.

Late Friday afternoon the river began to swell and it swept through Pueblo, carrying all before it. People had warning of the danger but were tardy in heeding it and many did not think of any calamity until they saw the wall of water almost upon them. The first deluge was followed by two others, all three coming within a space of 48 hours. The second and third floods of the morning and afternoon did comparatively little damage as the waters raced along the devastated pathway of the first.

The first estimates of the dead, based upon reports from excited eye-witnesses, who told of seeing hundreds of bodies swept through the streets, are to-day considered greatly exaggerated.

While no official count of the fatalities has been attempted, it is stated that the death list will probably not exceed 250, if that high.

WHAT WAS NEEDED.

Remarking that the Meighen government did the proper thing in putting the referendum results beyond the reach of destructive technicalities, the Toronto Star adds that "while it was about it it is a pity parliament did not add the further declaration that Ontario, notwithstanding the provision for the sale of native wine, was a prohibition province, within the meaning of the Act." Quite so, but such a declaration would not be necessary, nor would there be any possible argument in regard to the application of the Canada Temperance Act to this province had the Ontario government been courageous enough to include native wine in the list of prohibitive beverages. But many supporters of the U.F.O. administration would have been affected by such a policy, and the government followed the line of least resistance, with the result that native wine may be legally sold and with the possibility that its sale may result in Ontario being declared as not a prohibition province under the terms of the Canadian Temperance Act.

USEFUL KNOWLEDE.

A life was saved the other day because two young men in a Western Ontaria town who rescued a drowning boy from the river, knew the Shaefer method of resuscitation and were able to revive the breath of life. The method is simple and effective, but the trouble is that knowledge of the different movements is not generally taught. Were it not that the school curriculum is already overloaded, instruction in resuscitation methods and in other simple first aid practices might be included in the education of the older Public school pupils. Under present conditions, however, that does not seem practicable, but the Playgrounds Association might well consider the advisability of having their supervisors instruct in first aid work, especially the resuscitation drill, the older boys and girls who attend the playgrounds. Swimming is becoing more popular each year in Peterborough and the knowledge of what to do in the case of an accident might, as in this Western Ontario case, be the means of saving a life. Medical aid cannot alawys be secured promptly, and in some cases a few minutes mean everything.

A MILLION A MINUTE.

There is something wrong with our system of government when it becomes necessary for parliament to rush through $112,000,000 in estimates in two hours on the last day of the session, after the House had been sitting for many months. Only fifty members of the House were in attendance when these votes went through, and most of them had been there all night and were not, it is to be imagined, as wide awake as usual. Under such conditions, parliament, at a rate of nearly $1,000,000 a minute, spent two hours in authorizing expenditures, about which the majority of members knew nothing. Item after item passed unquestioned; one large appropriation after another went through without a voice being heard asking for an explanation. To the average Canadian it will seem a peculiar way of looking after the business of the country. We have elections and the turmoil and strife that is attendant upon such occasions, and we select representatives and send them to Ottawa. And the House is in session week after week, talking, talking, talking on every subject from prohibition to the length of women's skirts. Then when the end is in sight millions of dollars are voted without hesitation or consideration. It has always been done, but nobody can explain why such unbusiness like methods should be necessary.

WESTERN CONDITIONS.

Seeding operations in the Prairie Provinces have progressed under generally favourable conditions, as regards both soil and weather, according to the Bank of Commerce monthly report. Owing to the amount of precipitation during the early spring there is sufficient moisture in the ground to carry the growing crops for some time. Early in May a windstorm visited central and southern Saskatchewan, causing a certain amount of soil drifting, but the damaged areas have been reseeded. The total acreage sown to wheat in the three provinces is estimated to be approximately the same as last year, but the acreage sown to barley and rye is expected to be larger, and that sown to oats and flax correspondingly smaller. The autumn's crop should cost the farmer much less than that of 1920 for, although the price level of general supplies has kept fairly high, the cost of feed has declined considerably and farm wages have fallen to half what they were a year ago. There is, moreover, among Western farmers a spirit of determination to extricate themselves by hard work fom the position in which they were placde by the sudden fall in agricultural prices last year, and to maintain the same acreage under crop with a minimum expenditure on the employment of labour.

Business conditions in Western Canada reflect uneasiness on the part of farmers as to the course of prices during the balance of the current year. Grains, live stock, eggs, butter, and wool are now selling on a price basis that is only slightly better than in pre-war days, and that still tends to move downward. A year ago the average prices of the same products had reached the apex of an upward movement which started very soon after the outbreak of war, and it was not then anticipated that prices would change materially during the present year. In consequence, production was stimulated, and farmers freely employed labour at high wages to sow and to harvest their crops. Large expenditures were planned and made, and current loans were obtained for this purpose, in the firm belief that not only these, but mortgage interest, local taxes, and other maturing obligations as well, would be liquidated from the sale of produce at a price equal to that prevailing until last October. The producer, however, has had to sell at little better than half the price that he expected to obtain, and in consequence he finds himself faced with liabilities which he can pay off only by abstaining from buying anything but essentials, and this policy is being very generally followed. As a result, the volume of local trade has decreased, making it difficult to liquidate stocks purchased at prices higher than those now prevailing. While the volume of staple commodities purchased has fallen but slightly, there is an almost entire absence of buying for future requirements. Meanwhile, in the Prairie Provinces payments are slow, while the demand for mortgages and current loans is abnormally high and is not being fully met.

THE RACE RIOTS.

There are few more disheartening eruptions of the abysmal barbarism which lurks under the most highly polished civilization than a race riot. None of us can take a lofty tone in discussing it; for war has its root in the same ugly morass. Take race antagonism out of the world, and the optimists who are laboring for permanent peace will have a far easier task.

Race riots commonly have their birth in that most disfiguring human emotion—Fear! One race fears that the other is about to attack, and strikes first. If the law has a sufficiently strong arm to assure both races that no attack can be made upon them, the risks of a riot are tremendously reduced. But a democratic community, composed of the two races affected—as in the case with this unfortunate affair in Oklahoma—can have no more than a skeleton arm, acting for the law. It is impracticable to have instantly at hand an officially impartial force of adequate strength to hold a whole community in check.

Still there lies the obvious cure. If the officers of the law will act with pluck and promptness, they can often stamp down the flame before it reaches formidable proportions. The fatal mistake is to leave either race under the impression that it must defend itself.

If a colored man ever starts a race conflict in the United States, he is a traitor to his own people. For he need only read the casualty lists of these conflicts to learn that practically in all cases his people get by far the worst of it. They have neither the resoures, the arms, nor the numbers of the white race. They are invariably beaten, sooner or later, and usually the toll taken from their ranks is appallingly larger than the damage they have been able to inflict.

If a white American ever starts a race conflict, he is a traitor to his country; for he thereby embitters one of the most disquieting problems of the American Republic, and postpones indefinitely its solution. Its solution is, perhaps, the education of the colored man. The colored man is a good citizen when he has had the educational opportunities of the white. He is no more a good citizen than is the white when he is denied a mental training which will fit him for citizenship.

This is easy doctrine for Canada; but in some of the Southern States they so little esteem education for the colored race that they will not allow white teachers to teach them. The consequence is that the colored people must first teach their own people to be teachers before their children can be taught. This is the imperative reason for the big teacher-training schools that philanthropy has supplied for the colored people in the South.

Of course the constant fear of the South is that the more prolific colored race, if given equal education, and so equipped to compete on fairly equal terms—to say nothing of demanding, with Northern support, equal political power—will eventually dominate the South. And no Southern white deems that possibility even worth discussing. Should it loom up, we would probably see a race war, instead of sporadic race riots.

Troubles having their origin in race should render our neighbors lenient in judging race troubles elsewhere. They have very deep roots. It matters not whether the quarrelling races are equal, as in the Irish, the Silesian or in the Balkan troubles, or if one of them is distinctly inferior, as in the South African problem, or if the clash be over wide differences in ideals and economic standards, as in various Caucasian-Asiatic disagreements, race is dynamite and no statesmanship is to be too swiftly condemned for failing to placate it.

A nation with a race quarrel should be an object of sympathy—not of criticism. Race is the most unreasoning disruptive force known to history. And when resaon is shown the door, who can silence that suicidal councillor, Passion?—Montreal Star?

There is nothing slow about the Canadian parliament when prorogation is at hand. It just took the House two hours on Saturday morning to pass estimates amounting to $112,000,000.

Was This a Peterborough County Road?

A motorist managed to get his car stuck in a mud hole. After he had made several vain atempts to escape, a boy appeared with a team.

"Haul you out mister?" asked the boy.

"How much do you want?"

"Two dollars."

After a long and fruitless argument the motorist agreed to pay the amount asked and the car was pulled to dry land. When he had paid the boy the motorist asked, "Do you haul out many cars in a day?"

"Twelve to-day," replied the boy.

"Do you work at night, too?"

"Yes, at night I haul water for the mud hole."

LOVE!

By KATHERINE MOORE

MRS. RUSSELL CALLS AGAIN

Chapter 67.

One morning Mrs. Russell had the audacity to run in, quite casually, to see me. Of course I knew her visit was only casual in semblance, and that she had come deliberately in hopes of collecting more scandal.

As she sat plying me with questions I was thinking over a plan to organize a campaign for the suppression of malicious, gossiping females. I decided it would be a good idea to conduct it along the methods of dog catching. I felt I would experience keen joy in sneaking up behind Mrs. Russell and clapping a burlap bag down over her head.

"Didn't Mr. Allen tell you?"

I suddenly became conscious that she was asking me something—that my idea of the dog catching method had proved too absorbing.

"Yes,—why, 'er, excuse me, but what were you saying?" I tried to collect my thoughts and remember what it was she had been speaking of.

A knowing squint spread over Mrs. Russell's face. She was delighted to think she knew the cause of my absent-mindedness. If she had really known! I chuckled inwardly to myself.

"Why, about coming over tonight, you and Leonard," she said, looking at me keenly out of yellowish eyes.

"Going over—tonight?" I asked wonderingly. I had not heard about it, and certainly I had no desire to go.

"I told Jack yesterday morning to ask Leonard, if you and he wouldn't run over this evening for a game of cards. Didn't Leonard tell you?" she questioned insinuatingly.

I was not so sure that Leonard had been the one to forget. In spite of the fact that he would not care to go, I did not believe that was the reason I had not heard about it. I felt almost positive Jack had not delivered the message. I knew Jack had sensed contention in the atmosphere ever since that detestable night when I had last invited the Russels over to dinner. Men always avoid the disagreeable. I felt sure Jack had not even spoken to Leonard about it. Perhaps he had forgotten purposely. I blessed him silently.

"No, Leonard forgot to speak to me about it," I said, looking directly at her. "I hope it has not put you out any. Leonard and I have another engagement, and it will be impossible for us to come," I lied quickly. I had to think up some excuse.

"Then tomorrow night?" Mrs. Russell said, trying to force me to the wall.

"No, not tomorrow night either," I answered very slowly, and with positive finality in the tone of my voice.

Our eyes met in combat for a minute. Then Mrs. Russell lowered hers quickly and begun toying with the corner of her handkerchief.

"How is Jack's vegetable garden coming along?" I asked, changing the subject in the hope of relieving the tension.

We talked for a while on the perfectly safe and abstract topic of beets, corn, lettuce, and the like.

At the door Mrs. Russell leaned toward me. Her thin voice rose to more than an audible stage whisper.

"I understsand Emma is going to leave you." She turned away and looked out through the open doorway.

"Not that I am aware of," I returned icily.

"Well now, of course I—I—should not say it. I don't want to upset you, but I understood quite distinctly that she was going to live with the Howard's. I can't think now who told me," she added, giving me a sidelong glance.

"Well, please deny it," I commanded with a frigid voice.

I hoped if Emma had overheard any of the conversation she would hear my remark also.

Tomorrow—I Raise Emma's Wages.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or the kidneys are not acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder troubles.

Jad Salts cannot injure anybody, makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and the urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

Most men who cry "Down with the trusts!" would accept a little stock in them.

Don't crowd. It might prove uncomfortable if some one else should forget to be polite.

THE BRITISH COAL STRIKE REVIEWED, GLASGOW HERALD

(From a Labour Correspondent.)

The coal trade has entered upon one of the most serious conflicts in its history. It is a fight for a principle waged round the readjustment of wages required to again put the industry upon an economic basis. Mrow May, 1915, when the South Wales miners forced an advance of wages upon an uneconomic political claim, the industry has been run upon other than an economic basis. This unnatural method has been continued since the Armistice in November, 1918, upon the enormously inflated profits obtained from the export coal trade. So recently as August of last year a strike ballot vote of the members of th Miners' Federation was taken because the Government refused to concede the claim 'for a reduction in the price of domestic coal by 14s 2d per ton and an advance in wages of 2s per shift." When the figures of Mr. Frank Hodges were proved by the merciless logic of facts to be hopelessly inaccurate the domestic consumer, who was to have received a rebate of 14s 2d per ton in the price of coal as his share of the swag, was thrown over, and the miners' claim for an advance was pressed to the strike of October, which was settled on an advance based upon output, calculated at a particular cash value. The disturbing effect of that strike upon the coal export trade enabled the Americans to capture our markets, and is the real cause of the present depression in the coal trade. Thus the autocrat of Russell Square has to carry his share of responsibility for the disastrous effect of the strike upon the trade, and the loss in wage-earning power which has come upon the workman.

An Illegal Decision.

The decision for a strike came with unexampled swiftness upon the coal trade and the country. That it would come was certain when the negotiations between the coalowners and the miners broke down upon a fundamental difference of principle, and the district associations declared for a national wages board. Writing in this column a week ago I said: 'The breakdown of the negotiations between the coalowners and the miners' representatives brings us within the range of another serious industrial conflict in the mining industry." That forecast has been fulfilled to the letter. What has startled the country is the manner in which the conference and the executive have scrapped their own rules and ignored the right of the members to decide the momentous question of a stoppage of work.

The rule, which requires a ballot of the men to be taken has been deliberately flouted, and the executive, with arrogant autocracy, ordered the men to cease work. This has been done, not upon the legal authority of a ballot vote of all the members of the Federation, such as it required by their own rules, but upon the chance vote of district delegate meetings. I am told of one branch with 3,000 members where the meeting was attended by 40 persons, and the resolution in favour of a national board was carried by 24 votes to 16. Those 24 persons speak in the name of 3,000 members. What was the reason why the executive did not carry out their own rules and submit this momentous decision to a ballot vote of the men? Was it because they were afraid of the possible result of a ballot vote? Certainly the general body of members of the Federation have a substantial cause of complaint against their own officials who have arrogated to themselves a power over the members to which they are not legally entitled by their own rules.

Sabotage.

Then there is the decision to call out the pumpmen and others employed upon safety work. The purpose of this was to coerce the coalowners into surrender by the threat to damage and ruin their property. This is an act of sabotage, and is unworthy of the traditions of the Federation. Under the late Mr. Pickard and Mr. Enoch Edwards, and with Mr. Smillie, the Federation acquired a reputation for hard fighting but for clean fighting. This is not clean fighting; it is hitting below the belt; and if effect is given to it the workmen will be hit almost as hard in unemployment when the strike is settled, as it must be some day, as the coalowners will be in financial loss. And it is a blow aimed recklessly at the whole community, who will have to pay the cost of the damage caused to the pits by higher coal prices. Thus it is a blow aimed at every working man and woman in the country. To resort to acts of this kind is not a sign of strength, but a confession of weakness. It is the desperate act of a gambler seeking to win at any price. From the miners' point of view it is a blunder, because it sets public opinion against the miners from the outset of the fight. From the point of view of the nation it is a crime, because it recklessly threatens wilful damage to a great industry. In their own interest, to say nothing of the larger interests of the community, the miners' executive will do well to withdraw this order against the carrying on of work essential to the safety of the mines.

Increased Production Necessary.

It is an indubitable fact that there is a large measure of hostility to the reductions in wages in certain districts owing to the larger sacrifice asked from the workmen to meet the economic conditions of the industry. That is a regrettable circumstance, but it is due to causes beyond the control of the workmen, the employer, or the State. The truth is that the cost of production is so high that British coal cannot be sold in the open markets of the world in competition with the coal produced in America and other countries, and the high price of industrial coal in the home market is heavily handicapping the iron and steel and other industries in which coal is a prime factor of cost.

Mr. Hodges himself has admitted that leaving out of consideration every other factor, the actual wage cost could not be obtained for coal produced for the export market. If the trade is to be recovered and employment found for the miners, there must be a considerable reduction in the cost of production. There must be a fall in wages. That is admitted by all the men's leaders. The only question is whether the reduction shall be based upon the economic position of the collieries in each coalfield or be aflat rate reduction operative in all the districts.

Mr. Thomas Ashton, the veteran ex-secretary of the Federation, has suggested an all-round reduction of 2s per day. But such a reduction would fail to meet the varying conditions of the industry. There is another way by which the economic position can be restored. That is an increase in the production per man. Take the South Wales coalfield, where the output in recent years has fallen more than in almost any other district. If the piece-worker in the South Wales coalfield would bring his average output up to the level of Scotland or of Yorkshire, his earnings on the lower tonnage rates would be almost, if not quite, equal to his present earnings. I will take the figures of daily average output calculated on all the persons emoloyed in and about the mines. It is:

	Cwt.	Qr.	Lb.
Yorkshire	16	0	4
Derbyshire Notts, and Leicester	17	1	25
Scotland, West....	17	0	2
Scotland, East	17	2	7
South Wales....	12	1	9
Lancashire, Cheshire, and North Wales	12	3	7

Thus the average outout in South Wales, North Wales, and Lancashire is from 20 to 30 per cent. below shire is from 2 oto 30 per cent. below certain other districts. If the men would bring their output up to the level of other districts the piece-worker would be able to earn, even on the reduced rates, pretty nearly the same wages, the day wage workers would be more profitably employed, and the cost of production would be so lowered as to restore the position of British trade.

MANY CAUSES LEAD TO AXLE BREAKING; HOW TO REPAIR IT.

Employ Different Methods According to Style of Axle and Nature of of Break.

When a motorist is driving along a good road and suddenly his motor begins to race and the car comes to a stop, he shifts his gear lever to see if his gears have slipped out of mesh. Sometimes he finds that is not the trouble.

He then throws his clutch in and out, but his gears grind when he shifts, so he knows that is not the trouble, It must be farther back in the rear part of his machine. What can it be? A stripped pinion wear key, a broken pinion gear shaft or a broken universal coupling? Finally he will come to a conclusion that it must be a crystallized or broken axle.

A crystallized axle is caused by a wobbly drive wheel that does not run true, by jerking of the clutch, by hitting rough roads or car crossings at a fast rate of speed, or by hitting street curbs. The axle will not break at the time of the impact, but will start to crystallize as soon as it is not in line, and will soon break.

Other way that axles are broken is in starting, going up a steep hill, or shifting gears and letting the clutch in with a jerk. You will hear a snap, start rapidly down the incline and oftentimes will find yourself all over the road. All depends on the construction of the rear end of the car.

There are three makes of rear axles, the full floating, the semi-floating and the straight axle.

In the full floating, all the weight and the strain of the jar is on the differential housing, the only strain on the axle being the driving power. This axle usually breaks or crystallizes near the differential or on the outside part of the axle, where it connects on to the driving flange of the wheel.

Repairing a full floating axle is easy compared to the others. To find out where the axle is broken unscrew the hub caps and pull out the axles. Remove the differential cover on the rear end by taking out the good axle; a long rod or a stick can be used to push out the broken part. Oftentimes if you push the broken piece quick you can get it out the other side through the housing and save the job of removing the differential cover. Slide your new axle in place, screw the hub cap on tight, and you will be ready to go again.

The semi-floating and the straight axle break off close to the wheel. The semi-floating carries part of the strain of the car, while the straight axle carries all the weight, driving power and strain, and breaks off near the bearing, where all the strain is centred and is continually cutting into the axle. A wheel out of line on either one of the two axles will crystallize from two to three axles a year if not properly taken care of and the wheels tuned up. To tell which axle is broken on the semi-floating typ if it is not broken near the wheel, jack up the car and pull out the wheel. The one that is broken will slide out easily. To get at the remaining piece that is in the differential remove by taking off the housing cover, loosening the screws on the collar lock that holds the axle from slipping out and removing the broken piece with a long rod or stick sliding it out through the axle housing. In replacing the new axle, slide it into the collar lock and see that it is shoved in far enough so as to be in place. See that the wheel fits on the axle, and tighten up the screws on the collar.

In repairing the straight axle, the whole rear end assembly will have to come out. Disconnect spring clips, universal coupling bolts and the brake rods, and slide the rear end out from under the car. Remove wheels, bolts and the nuts that hold the differential together. Disconnect the drive shaft, remove the housings, and the differential assembly will come out as a unit. Remove the bolts holding the differential spider and gears together, and axles will come out with one differential attached to them.

Remove gear on the broken axle by hammering it down toward the long end of the axle housing and you can remove the locks that hold the axle from slipping out. Replace gear and the locks on the new axle and assemble the rear end as you disassembled it.

Remember, a wobbly or an untrue wheel is the cause of many accidents. Broken axles, wear on tires, and danger to the lives of the occupants of the car.

Be sure on reassembling rear end that you refill the housing with heavy grease.

TOBACCO OUTLOOK IN VERY BRIGHT.

BLENHEIM, June 4.—Garnet Muckle, Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Tobacco Growers' Association of Kingsville, when in town, and seen regarding the tobacco situation as far as the co-operative company is concerned, was most optimistic.

"We have made some good sales," he said, "and are shipping right along. We have received some returns from tobacco we have sold, and they are good compared with the prices that are being paid farmers by some of the buyers. We are running our factory at full capacity, and everything is going nicely. The situation is very good. We will be in a position to make returns to the growers whose tobacco we sold shortly." He considers the prices at which some growers are selling as ridiculous.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

BUYING SHARES IN A MINE

"No more mining for me," said a Toronto man when asked to buy treasury stock in a company that is developing a group of claims. "I've had all the mining I want, I've been hooked properly in that game."

Not an uncommon complaint. But almost always an illogical one.

"Yes," the broker replied, when he got particulars. "You were hooked, but mining didn't do it. You did it yourself. You were just plain speculating on the market, not on the mine, and the market slipped down and you sold out at a loss. You didn't know anything about the mine, the value behind the shares, either when you bought or when you sold. You weren't interested in mining as a business, you were trying to outguess the market, and you fell down."

This size-up would fit the cases of scores of people who think they have lost money in mining but who really have lost it gambling.

Mining contains elements of speculation not shared by other forms of enterprise, but look it over and you will see that it is as solid and sure an industry as any in the country.

Next to agriculture it is the most necessary industry in the world; without mining, indeed, farmers would still be turning over their ground with rude wooden implements.

Glance around your office and everywhere you see what mining has done. Your telephone, your typewriter, the knob on the door, the pens on your desk—you cannot look at anything that did not spring from mining. You pull out your watch, its metal was made from mining. You feel the money in your pocket. The coins were made from Cobalt silver; the paper money would be valueless without the gold of Porcupine and Kirkland. The machinery in the factories was first ore in the ground; the coal you use has to be mined.

An industry of such wonderful usefulness must be more substantial than believed by our Toronto friend who lost his money gambling, and thought he lost it in mining.

We cannot deny that people sometimes do lost money in mining enterprises, but can anyone name a form of business or industry in which money is not lost. If all the investments that have been made in the last nineteen hundred years had turned out well every man, woman and child to-day would have an income of a million a year. But it has actually been shown that mining does average up as about the most lucrative and surest form of investment.

Of course, it all depends how you view it. You can look carefully into the merits of this and that stock, and then buy for solid investment. The men who picked up Hollinger last winter at a price that shows them to-day a yield of 12 per cent. made as solid investment as can be found in Canada at double the ordinary yield given by best class investments.

But at the other extreme is the buyer of mining stock purely for gambling purposes, without regard for intrinsic values. When this type gets outguessed they shouldn't blame mining.

Unfortunately, however, they are prone to charge the industry with their losses, and unfortunately, also, we hear more about these people than about those who have used good judgment and sound business principles.

The amount of money that has been made in gold and silver mining investments in Northern Ontario is enormous. It runs to a quarter of a billion dollars, almost half in dividends, the balance in increased prices of the original shares. What has been lost is insignificant beside the quarter billion.

The mines have been very, very good to the investor who has used good judgment. The markets have been lenient with the speculators who have taken wild fliers on tips and hearsay. An unusually large proportion of the mining properties that have been tested out have made good. Some thousands of people can to-day credit the ownership of handsome homes and a couple of cars to a fortunate investment in the original shares of a mining company.

And there can be little doubt that the mines of the north will go on in their work of making millionaires, of making moderate fortunes, and assuring people of freedom from financial worry. We are inclined to the view that in the future, as in the past, it is the people who invest their money in the mines, rather than those who speculate in the markets, who will win out.

OVERHEATING CAUSES WORRY TO MOTORIST.

Radiators May Give Some Annoyance in the Spring.

Radiator troubles are a prolific source of annoyance to motorists at this time of the year.

One automobilist writes that he can find no water leak but that the radiator of his car requires a refilling about twice a day when he drives his car, as the water seems to boil away. Otherwise, he adds, the car and cooling system seem to be in excellent condition.

Radiator ailments, fortunately, are usually easily remedied. The first place to inspect, not only because it is the easiest to get at, but also because it is the most frequent seat of trouble, is the fan which draws the air through the radiator cells.

See that the fans turns freely on its bearings and that the belt is tight enough to turn the fan at is proper speed. Often the fan belt is loose and slips whenever the engine is speeded up or even when the engine runs at any speed.

To check up on this, lift the hood and start and stop the engine, watching the while to see if the fan starts and stops with the motor. With most every make of car the tightening of the fan belt is a simple matter of adjustment and a glance at the instruction book will show how to do it correctly.

Check up next on the rubber hose which connects the radiator with the water jacketing of the engine. This hose often deteriorates after a year or two of service and causes clogging of the water passages, with the results that circulation is impeded and sometimes stopped entirely. It is generally wise when this happens to get new hose rather than to try to repair the old.

If the motor still overheats, it is advisable next to take steps to thoroughly clean out the radiator often a scale forms on the inside surfaces and prevents the heat from being carried away readily. Pour a pound of ordinary baking soda into the radiator a fter it has been nearly filled with clean and reasonably pure water. Leave this soda solution in the cooling system for an hour or two while the engine is running; then drain and flush with clean water.

In cases wheer there are still evidences of overheating it is wise to have the ignition system gone over carefully to make sure that the timing is correct ;occasionally the timer slips over so the spark is too late. This naturally results in overheating and, moreover, gives an unduly low fuel milage.

Nor should the carburetor be overlooked in the complete check-up if overheating is chronic. If the adjustment gives a mixture which is too rich, overheating is almost certain to result.

"QUEEN VICTORIA" BIOGRAPHY OUT.

Has Just Been Published in London—Most Interesting Book.

LONDON. — "Queen Victoria," the biography which Lytton Strachey has added to his famous gallery of "Eminent Victorians," has just been published. It will rank among the most fascinating books of the year.

Some astonishing details are given of Victoria's worship of her husband's memory. According to Mr. Strachey's private information:

The suite of rooms which Albert had occupied in the Castle (Windsor) was kept forever shut away from the eyes of any but the most privileged.

Within these precincts everything remained as it had been at the Prince's death; but the most mysterious preoccupation of Victoria had commanded that her husband's clothing should be laid afresh, each evening upon his bed, and that, each evening the water should be set ready in the basin as if he were still alive, and this incredible rite was performed with scrupulous regularity for nearly forty years.

Every bed in which Victoria slept also had attached to it a photograph of the head and shoulders of Albert as he lay dead, surmounted by a wreath of immortelles.

During the latter years of her life, her relations with the Prince of Wales (afterwards King Edward) seem to have been hardly less remarkable.

"The Prince of Wales," we are told on the authority of Fretherman v. Eckardstein, "stood in tremendous awe of his mother.

"She had steadily refused to allow him the slightest participation in the business of government; and he had occupied himself in other ways. Nor could it be denied that he enjoyed himself out of her sight; but in that redoubtable presence, his abounding manhood suffered a miserable eclipse.

"Once, at Osborne, when owing to no fault of his, he was too late for a dinner party, he was observed standing behind a pillar and, wiping the sweat from his forehead, trying to nerve himself to go up to the Queen.

"When at last he did so, she gave him a stiff nod, whereupon he vanished immediately behind another pillar, and remained there until the party broke up.

"At the time of this incident the Prince of Wales was over fifty years of age."

Of the Queen's letters quoted by Mrs. Strachey, perhaps the most curious to present-day eyes, seeing that it was only written fifty years ago, is the following:

"The Queen is most anxious to enlist everyone who can speak or write to join in checking this mad wicked folly of 'Woman's Rights,' with all its attendant horrors, on which her poor feeble sex is bent, forgetting every sense of womanly feeling and propriety.

"Lady —— ought to get a good whipping. It is a subject that makes the Queen so furious that she cannot contain herself.

"God created men and women different—then let them remain each in their own position. Tennyson has some beautiful lines on the difference of men and women in 'The Princess.'

"Women would become the most hateful, heartless and disgusting of human beings were she allowed to unsex herself; and where would to the protection which man was intended to give the weaker sex?"

The fat that is taken off the top of stock after cooling should be put into a frying pan and 'tried out' before adding it to the drippings.

In the Garden

(EDNA MEAD, in The New York Times.)

What can they know of the things I know
Or see of the things I see,
When I climb to the height of the garden at night,
And they will not climb with me?

They never shall catch the tinkling tune
Of the foxglove's rosy bells,
Nor see white candy-tuft like laces framing the purple pansy faces,
They never may learn the bedtime song
Of the thrush that thrills in the jasmine vine,
Nor watch the sweet peas' drowsy bonnets
Nodding down from the trellis line,
While the pale-hued phloxes' whispered call
To the ball delphinium by the wall
Is a thing they never can hear at all!
And yet it is not hard to be
A part of the garden pageantry
If the heart climbs, too, set free.

But what can they know of the things I know
Or see of the things I see,
If I climb to the garden's end alone,
And they will not climb with me?

Corn Bread.

Mix a cup and a half of cornmeal, half a cup of flour, two tablespoons of molasses, three teaspoons of baking powder, one egg, a cup of milk, more if necessary, and a little salt. Bake in a moderate oven about 25 minutes.

ONTARIO HIGHWAY ROAD BULLETINS.

The Department of Highways has received the following reports regarding Provincial highways:

Toronto to Port Hope — Road rough from Toronto to West Hill, West Hill to Liverpool Corners, fair. Liverpool Corners to Whitby — There is new stone on the road, which makes it very rough but passable. Whitby to Oshawa—there is loose stone on one side of the road, but good running track on the other side. Oshawa to Port Hope, very good. Detour around Pickering village during the day; south one mile and a quarter; east, one mile; north, one mile and a quarter. Road in fair condition. This detour need only be used during the day time, as main road is open at night. There is also short detour at Lynde's bridge—1 mile west from Whitby.

Port Hope to Trenton—Gravel road in good condition. No detour as the main road is now open.

Trenton to Kingston—Good with exception of one rough detour, one mile long about two miles west of Deseronto.

Kingston to Prescott—Owing to considerable construction between Kingston and Gananoque ,would advise going to Kingston Mills and using the middle road from there to Gananoque. Detour between Gananoque and Brockville—using the front road to Yonge Mills (15 miles) and the Lyn road from Yonge Mills to Brockville. Between Brockville and Prescott the road is fair.

Prescott to Quebec Boundary — Johnston easterly ,three and one half miles broken stone, not rolled. Cardinal to Morrisburggood. Morrisburg to Aultsville, fair but rough over new culverts. Aultsville to Cornwall good. Cornwall to Summerstown fair; Lancaster to Quebec boundary rough over broken stone not rolled. Detour between Summerstown and Lancaster, via Williamstown, good.

Port Hope to Peterboro—good.

Ottawa to Prescott—Prescott to Kemptville, good. Kemptville to North Gower, good. North Gower to Manotick, fair. Manotick to Ottawa rough, considerable crushed stone not rolled yet.

Ottawa to Pt. Fortune—Eastview Orleans closed to through traffic. Orleans-Cumberland, good, with exception of Cardinal Hill, which is only passable in dry weather. Cumberland-Rockland, excellent; several culvert detours, all good condition. Rockland to L'Original, very good as long as weather remains dry. L'Original-Hawkesbury very good. Hawkesbury-Chute a Blondeau, good, but several culverts are under construction with only fair detours. Detour by Cyrville road, bituminous concrete pavement under construction. Detour between Chute a Blondeau-Pt. Fortune is in excellent condition.

Ottawa to Pembroke — Between Ottawa and Arnprior, very good; Arnprior to Pembroke, fair.

Kingston to Perth—Rough Road, but passable. Culverts building at Barriefield and Seeley's Bay. Detour at Barriefield and at Seeley's Bay.

Perth to Ottawa—Perth to Carlton Place, good. Carleton Place to Stittsville, good. Stittsville to Ottawa, good.

TRY THIS.

Mrs. Styles—"I see by this paper that a woman in a Western town has hit upon a novel plan of obtaining a separation from her husband without going to the expense of court proceedings."

Mr. Styles — "That's interesting. What has she done."

Mrs. Styles—"Why she sent her husband out to match a piece of dress goods and told him not to return until he had matched it. He's still out.

An Array of Organdie Frocks

Expressing Many New Ideas in the Use of This Popular Material

Just a day or two has gone since we unpacked these dresses, so they are crisp and new. Those who have seen them have many words of praise for their beautiful colors and designs, and express surprise that such downright pretty frocks are selling at such small prices.

Tea Rose Organdie, trimmed with Grey, makes a pleasing combination. Just a little Grey, though; it appears as piping on the short sleeves and around the scallops that edge the Overskirt; also on the Tuxedo collar. A Girdle bows prettily at the back. Priced at $16.50.

A model of Pale Blue Organdie is a fresh-looking creation. The sides are Bouffant fashion, and are made so by a series of pleats; these are piped with White. The Vestee is White, and so is the Girdle, with the bow at the back. It sells at $14.95.

A pleasing diversion is one of Pink Organdie, combined with Pink Dotted Swiss—the dots are White and about pinhead size. Mid-way between the waist and the hem is a band of the Muslin, the Tuxedo collar is of the same, and a triangular piece, with the apex to the top, is set-on in front, and helps form the Girdle and Bodice. A bow of the Organdie appears at the back. Priced at $19.75.

A girlish little model that is suitable for Misses can be had in Pale Rose or Copen Blue. It is of Voile, with an all-over pattern of White, and appears like fish-net. There are two large patch pockets below the waist; these are trimmed with a deep flap of White Organdie with a pleated edge. The sash is of self-material, but the ends are finished with pleatings of White, and so is the Peter Pan collar. Priced at $17.25.

Cream Flannel for the Outing Skirt

We are told by style writers—who should know, if anybody does—that the Cream Flannel Skirt is to have a great run this season. We believe it, for we are asked for Cream Flannel Skirting every day.

We do not have to disappoint anyone, for we have a rare piece on our shelves. It is an oldtime quality, with plenty of weight, is pure Wool, free from filling, and thoroughly shrunk. Between 35 and 36 inches wide, and priced at $1.50 yard.

You Don't Have to Be a Sailor To Get Real Comfort Out of a Hammock

though we suppose it was the sailor men who introduced them; and you don't have to be on board ship, at a summer cottage, or a camp to find a place to sling one—right on your own Verandah or Lawn, or any other shady spot on the premises will do.

You'll find real comfort if you choose any from our splendid selection. Priced from $4.50 to $9.00.

Let Some One Else Do the Worrying

A 50c mid-day lunch with a genuine home-like flavor is served in our Tea-Room from 11.30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Stamped Goods

How a Pretty Lunch Cloth Does Improve the Table at the Cottage or on the Verandah.

These are of a heavy Crash and are Snow White. In each corner is a stamped Blue Willow pattern and connecting each corner pattern is a dot and dash border. It is a 36-inch size, and sells at $1.25.

Serviettes to match, in a twelve-inch size, are 30c each.

LUNCH CLOTH OF FINE WHITE COTTON

The edges are large scallops, and hemstitched. In each corner is a stamped floral basket and a floral spray is mid-way between the corners. Thirty-six-inch size, and they sell at $1.75.

SEVEN-PIECE LUNCHEON SET

As it is now, it is all in one piece, but when worked and cut away there will be Seven separate Pieces — the Centre Piece larger than the others, of course. They are neatly hemstitched around the edges, and stamped. Priced at $1.95.

KIDDIES' APRONS

Made of Blue, Tan, or Pink Repp, and stamped around the neck with a band of a diamond and block pattern, to be worked with a darning stitch and French knots. Sizes 3 to 5. Priced at $1.50.

INFANTS' DRESSES

of fine India Linon of a very sheer quality. Scalloped neck and sleeves, also hemstitched. The pretty stamped sprays present some splendid possibilities. Six-month size. Priced at $2.00.

SCARF AND CUSHION COVER TO MATCH

Scarf suitable for a Library Table — ends stamped with a conventional pattern; material a Mercerized Repp. Cushion Cover, with stamping to match. Both obtainable in Gold, Green, or Ecru. Scarf $2.50 and Cushion Cover $1.25.

ADDITIONAL COLOURS IN SILK-MIX WOOL

They are Salmon Pink, Canary, Reindeer, and Buff. Besides these we have Jade, Peacock, Copenhagen, Henna, Turquoise, Sky, Lavender, Black, and White. This splendid novelty Wool sells at 35c for one-ounce skeins.

COBOURG'S LOAN TO GRAND TRUNK, 1851.

Many of the residents of Cobourg to-day, says the Port Hope Guide, are probably not aware of the extent of one bonus granted by the town in its early days, and in all probability if a bonus of the size passed in 1851 was proposed to-day ratepayers would hold up their hands in holy horror. In 1851 when the Grand Trunk Railway was in the making and Cobourg had a population of 3,871, the town voted a loan of $500,000 to the railway, on the assurance that the coming of the railway would soon make the town a city.

Port Hope, with a population of 2,476, voted $740,000. The railways at the time held out the promise of the station being built convenient to town, but this promise was seldom carried out, and probably no railroad built stations as inconveniently located as did the Grand Trunk.

The loan was more than the town could repay the Government, from whom the money was borrowed, and after paying the interest for about ten years the town defaulted payment, and the Government did not press payment on the ground that to force the municipality might drive the municipality into opposition, and politics were played in that day even more strenuously than they are to-day.

LONDON, June 4. — (Canadian Press).— A despatch to the London Times from Jerusalem says that Sir Herbert Samuel, High Commissioner in Palestine, in interpreting the declaration made in 1917 by Arthur J. Balfour, British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, that Great Britain favored the establishment in Palestine of a National Home for Jews, and would endeavor to facilitate such an achievement, announces that the number of immigrants must be limited by the capacity for absorbing new-comers to be determined by the existing population of the country. The correspondent adds that it has been definitely recognized that conditions in palestine do not admit of the reception of immigrants in great masses. He says also that recent immigration having led to the introduction of a Bolshevik into the country, new arrivals will be strictly supervised.

THE MARK STREET CHURCH SERVICES

The congregations were large on Sabbath, especially in the morning. The choir did excellent work, and the solos by Miss Ruth Ross of Winnipeg were highly appreciated. "Blazing the Westward Trail" was the subject of the morning sermon, and was a development of Joshua III, 4, "Ye have not passed this way heretofore."

The Glad Morning of Life Comes But Once.

The countless thousands the opening of life is like the rising of a June morning. Issuing from the gates of light, the sun gilds all the western hills with golden glory. The whole landscape is filled with sunshine and gladness and song. Happy boys and girls look away toward the sun-kissed slopes of life, as they begin the common journey of the race. No cloud obscures the heaven of life's glad morning, and there is neither fear nor care nor doubt; but eternal hope hums in the summer forest, gleams on the hills afar, sparkles in the dancing brooklet, and rolls in the rich green of the meadows faraway. This was our experience as we began life's journey, and entered on our trek of the westward trail.

Life is a Style Which Divides the Cradle and the Grave.

For the first ten years of his life the boy lingers more or less around the scenes of the cradle. About twenty we find him standing on the first step of life's style full of faith in himself, confidence in others; fired with ambition, and with all the push and go of a young Hercules. At thirty he is on the platform, which is to be the stage where he will play life's game. Here is where he fights the battles of life and wins or loses. Here he must stay until something has been accomplished. From this stage he looks backward and forward. Countless thousands reach the first step only, and then give up the struggle. Countless thousands accomplish nothing on life's stage. Even the most successful man finds at sixty that he has descended one step downward and westward. Another step and he is on the western side of life's style, where his grave nestles among the trees. Between thirty and sixty years of age something happens in every human life—the man wins or loses. However, we must grasp the true meaning of success.

Blazing the Trail as We Journey.

But here we must change the metaphor. The text says, "Ye have not passed this way heretofore." Then we know not what shall be to-morrow. Not only have we not passed this way heretofore, but we meet none who are returning. None have ever returned from the silent land to which we wend our way. In mercy God has hidden the future from us. Had we known the future, we might have died at the hand of anticipation. You never dreamed of a financial crash, or failing health, or commercial disaster till it met you, but a yard away. You never saw or thought of your loved one's grave till you stumbled upon the rugged mound. No, it was well we did not know the crushing experiences which awaited us, or we would have been unfitted for life's duties. Jesus alone, having passed this way, returns in spirit to lead us onward.

There Is No Time to Linger by the Way.

We have not passed this way heretofore; nor shall we ever come again. We are making history as we pass. We are gathering gems by the way, and these are men. We have just time for a hand clasp, a smile or a word, and when we touch immortal men it is for eternity. Opportunities have wings, and we must catch them on the fly. Time will not wait for us, but hurries us forward. Men hunger for help and cheer and sympathy. We never met them before, and we shall meet no more until we face each other beyond the "Great Divide." Then let us live for others and God will look after us. We are stamping men for weel or woe every day we live. There are lives so utterly selfish and heartless that the curse of God's suffering poor is gradually becoming their only heritage.

God Blazes the Trail by the Pillar of Fire.

The presence of Alexander the Great in the encampment was recognized by the fire which burned continuously above his royal tent making a flame by night and a pillar of cloud by day. So the God of Israel was in the camp of his people and led them by fire by night and cloud by day. He leads us still and blazes the trail. It is ours to follow the gleam.

Our Opportunities are as Large as Our Responsibilities.

While each day on this new path brings new trials it may also bring new triumphs. Fresh burdens are met by new vigor. Did we fail yesterday? This is a new day and we have a new chance. Coupled with this truth is the burning fact that what we do on our journey cannot be undone. "Can you undo?" said a dying man, as the tide of life was ebbing from his veins. "Can you undo the deeds of darkness? No. What shall it profit, then, the man who has grown rich on the price of his neighbor's blood. Can you undo the noble deeds of a good man? No, sir. His work will abide in spite of all the forces of iniquity. The reason is clear, we shall never pass this way again; and there is no re-touching our life work.

We See Along the Path the Footprints of Others.

No rare we the firs tto pass this way. The mighty have passed on before and have left us monuments of virtue. On that mount Abraham offered Isaac; there Daniel lay among the lions; this is the furnace where the three Hebrews walked the flaming vault with the Son of God; here is where God's Joseph twisted his virtue out of the leprous hand of vice; this is where the thin edge of a Roman sword set the mighty soul of Paul at liberty; and this is the blood-splashed guillotine whose massive blade was crimsoned by the blood of two hundred thousand Huguenots. But the scene that concerns us most is the all conquering Cross, as its mighty arms rise in triumph over the wrecks of shattered systems of religion, which have failed to save the world. Let us exercise eternal vigilance as we follow life's westward trail.

STORY OF BRITISH CROWN JEWELS.

Kept For Seven Hundred Years in Tower of London.

Would it be possible to blow up the jewel house in the tower of London or to steal the priceless crown jewels from their strongholds? askes a writer in London Tit-Bits.

The question is suggested by the recent report of a Sinn Fein plot to destroy the jewel house by means of bombs. As the place is strongly guarded day and night, every possible precaution being taken against any eventuality, either coup is very unlikely.

Two hundred and fifty years ago, Col. Blood, a notorious soldier of fortune, made an attempt with three conspirators. Disguised as a parson, he gained the favor of Talbot Edwards, the keeper of the jewels. Edwards, an old man of 77, being persuaded to show the jewels one night was promptly bludgeoned as he entered the treasure chamber. The most portable emblems were seized, and Blood and his companions rushed for safety. A hue and cry was quickly raised, however, and they were captured.

The sequel was extraordinary. Blood, instead of being hanged, drawn and quartered, was not only pardoned by Charles II, but given a post in his body-guard at £500 a year—an income which at present monetary values would be worth about £5,000. Two explanations of this leniency and generosity are made— one that the merry monarch being, as usual, short of cash, himself put Blood up to the job; the second, that his majesty made a bet that nobody could rob him of his crown and Blood took up the wager.

Since those days many a burglar has cast envious eyes on the crown jewels. But, to quote Sir George Younghusband, the keeper of the jewel house, "It is practically impossible for any attempt to succeed.

Royal Gems Tampered With

"It has been a source of amusement to the warders to watch known burglars, with their faces flattened against the bars, thinking, thinking, thinking how possibly they could get hold of these priceless gems. One, indeed, with a resigned sigh, was heard to mutter, 'Blimey, it ain't to be done!' "

It is naturally not permissible to mention what the mechanical safeguards are, but the inexpert or, indeed, expert thief may certainly count on being guillotined or electrocuted if he attempts to emulate Col. Blood's adventure.

Many Germans have cast covetous eyes on the jewels. One women looked long at them just before the war, and carefully examined the steel casement in which they were exhibited.

Then she went back to one of the of the yeomen on duty and remarked: "You may think those jewels very wonderful and very wonderfully guarded, but do not be surprised if I say they will soon belong to our kaiser." The yeoman was so astonished that he did not know what to say. Yet he made, perhaps, a better reply than much forethought might have supplied. He said: "I don't think so, madam. Pass along, please!"

Time after time the Germans tried to bomb the tower. The total casualties were one pigeon, which probably had a weak heart and died of shell shock, and one pane of glass, broken in a window of the jewel house. But it was deemed advisable to remove the jewels.

All sorts of stories and rumors got about as to the method of their removal and destination. One imaginative person said they had been taken to a castle in Cornwall, the train conveying them being accompanied by two others, one in front and one behind, filled with troops, police detectives, machine-guns, etc.

Another story was to the effect that they had been placed in a deep and secret vault in Bath. The truth about the removal of the jewels and their hiding-place seems rather tame.

A royal car drove up to the jewel house. Into it the more important and valuable portions of the regalia already packed in their own cases, were handed. It was all a matter of a few minutes, and then the car drove away to Windsor castle, and deposited the jewels in a secure place.

A Soft Job.

For seven hundred years the crown jewels have been kept at the tower of London, their previous home being Westminster Abbey, in the chapel of the Pyx, from which they were removed on account of certain thefts by monks. In ancient days the salary of the keeper of the jewels was only £50 a year. But he had many perquisites and privileges.

Apartments were reserved for him in all the King's palaces, as well as at the tower of London, for it was his duty to travel with the King, and to take with him such articles of the regalia and royal plate as the monarch might have occasion to require. Fourteen double dishes of food were supplied every day. He had a £300 New Year's gift, £20 when sieving the goldsmith's bill, choice of the King's jewelry, and precedence.

"A curious privilege which the keeper of the jewel house still retains," Sir George Younghusband writes in his book, "The Jewel House" (Jenkins), "is that 'he hath no superior officer in court or kingdom.' He receives no orders except from the King himself, or instructions conveyed to him through the lord chamberlain. The origin of this rule is not far to seek, for otherwise in less settled days, anybody who was in a position to do so might have ordered the keeper to hand over portions of the regalia or plate."

There is evidence that the regal emblems were constantly being tampered with. Valuable stones were extracted and colored glass inserted to replace them. As late as the reign of James II, we have a record of the King paying as much as £500 for the hire of jewels for the day of his coronation, presumably to replace pieces of coloured glass found in the regal emblems!

"A somewhat notable instance of this is the large faceted globe of monde which used to be on the top of the King's crown. This was always described as a valuable aquamarine, and is portrayed on the crowns of several sovereigns. Unhappily, on examination, the magnificent aquarmarine was found to be glass, the real stone having been removed in some previous reign and re placed by a worthless imitation. This glass replica is shown as a curiosity."

A Diamond of Ill-Omen

Historically, one of the most interesting gems among the crown jewels is the famous ruby, as large as a small hen's egg, which is given the place of honor in front of the King's state crown. This is the celebrated jewel which first belonged to the Black Prince, the eldest son of Edward II.

When Charles I was beheaded parliament ordered that all the insignia of royalty should be destroyed and the gems set therein sold to the best advantage. Luckily, this ruby was recovered for the state crown of Charles II.

From an intrinsic point of view, the most valuable of the jewels are the Koh-i-noor diamond, placed in front of the state crown to Queen Mary, and the "Cullinan" diamond When the former was presented to Queen Victoria it was valued at £140,000,000, and the latter at £1,500,000.

EVENTUALLY GET THEM.

(London, Ont., Echo)

True words were those spoken by Mr. Justice Logie, when sentencing a condemned criminal at Toronto a few days ago. "Organised society is too strong for any criminal." His Lordship told culprit, "It gets him in the end, and if for no other or higher reason, you should bear in mind that honesty is the best policy." This particular prisoner, who was given a sentence of fifteen years' imprisonment, is not the only one who has of late learned the lesson the Court endeavoured to teach, and the wonder is that any man will go to the lengths he and others have before being impressed with its truth. "The way of the transgressor" has ever ben hard, and no one need resort to lawlessness in order to convince himself of the fact. Yet lawlessness and crimes of the very worst kinds have been rampant in this and other provinces for some time past, and in spite of warnings such as those the Court are constantly giving, it would seem there are those who will not listen.

MOTOR REGULATIONS IN EUROPE DIFFER WIDELY

Methods of fixing automobile taxation and regulations covering the use of motor vehicles in different European countries provide an interesting field of study. In Great Britain, at the present time, motorists are greatly interested in the taxation system, which is based on the horse power of the car, similar to the new regulations passed upon in Manitoba at the recent session of the legislature.

W. F. Bradley, writing in The Autocar, has the following interesting article:

"At a time when the chancellor of the exchequer is causing the motorist to delve deep into his pocket, it is not without interest to enquire how much our neighbors are paying to the state for the privilege of owning and using their cars.

"Simple as the question may appear, the answer is not at all easy to give. In most countries taxes are based on horse-power, but the enquirer soon discovers that horse-power is one of the most ill-defined quantities in the world. In many countries the motor car tax is not at all as clean-cut as it is in England, and after having paid his main tax the foreigner often has to submit to a number of smaller subsidiary taxes, which appreciably increase the total. Then there is the question of exchange, which further complicates the problem, for according to whether foreign moneys are taken at their actual or their normal value on the British market entirely different results can be obtained.

Simplifying the problem as much as possible and taking as an example a medium size four-cylinder car of 80x140 mm. bore and stroke, the following taxes would have to be paid in five European countries:

An 80x140 mm. four-cylinder engine israted at—	Ann. tax
15.9 h.p., Great Britain	£ 16
22.4 h.p., Spain	12
20.5 h.p., Belgium	20
13 h.p., France	32
25.29 h.p., Italy	104

"In arriving at these figures only nominal exchange has been considered. This appears to be the only way to handle this problem, for if any attempt is made to follow actual exchange fluctuations we get the absurd result of an important drop in French and Italian taxes, compared with the pre-war period, whereas in reality the native is bearing a most substantial increase.

No Uniformity.

"Even from an engineering standpoint there is no uniformity regarding horse-power, but when it becomes necessary to calculate the power of an engine for purposes of taxation, absolute chaos is found to prevail. Thus we get the result of a car with cylinders of the given dimensions of 80x140 mm. varying from 13 h.p. in France to more than 25 h.p. in Italy. The French take into consideration the number of cylinders the bore and stroke, and the engine speed ,but have no accurate method of determining this latter.

"Belgium has a somewhat similar formula, in which it is assumed that engine speed is 1,200 revolutions a minute for touring car engines and 1,000 revolutions a minute for lorry engines. Italy ignores engine speed, and her motorists have no intention of asking the authorities to take it into consideration, for they feel that there would be no change for the big, old-fashioned slow speed engines while modern, high-speed motors would be taxed higher than ever.

"France possesses the most complicated taxation system in Europe. There is first of all a fixed tax, according to whether the car has two or more seats, and varying with the number of inhabitants in the town of residence. Then there is a horse-power tax, which begins at 15 francs for the first and each succeeding horse-power up to the twelfth, and gradually increases until the sixty-second horse-power costs 45 francs.

"It must be noted, too, that horse-power on the French side of the channel is quite a different thing from horse-power found on the north side of that strip of water. Having got this result, the French motorist must add 25 per cent. to the total, then put on a circulation tax, which is 100 francs for a car of not more than 12 h.p., 200 francs for horse-powers between 13 and 24, and 500 francs for cars of 61 and more horse-power. This is all so far as direct taxes are concerned, and it gives the right to pay quarterly or not to pay at all if the car is laid up for any complete quarter—a new concession.

"It does not constitute the end of the French motorists' liabilities, however, for there is an old-world law established before railroads came into existence, which declares that every man must contribute a few days' labor a year to the maintenance of roads, and if he owns a mule or a horse or a motor car, the number of days is increased proportionally. In these times the payment is made in cash, and not in labor, and, naturally, the motorist has to contribute to a slight extent. In addition to this, the Frenchman pays tribute to the state every time he uses his car, for there is a substantial import duty and tax on petrol. As to the luxury tax, paid on the purchase of a car, the tax on insurance policies, and the local taxes on petrol, it is sufficient to mention them, without attempting to calculate their total.

Prohibitive Taxation.

"Italy is the most heavily assessed of all European countries, for not only is its method of determining horse-power very disadvantageous for the car owner, but the tax per horse-power is higher than in any other country. For the first horse power the amount to be paid is 106 liras, or more than £4 at nominal exchange, while a car of more than 50 h.p., (this does not imply a very big engine under the Italian formula), has to pay £600 taxation per annum.

"There is an equal amount of diversity in the systems under which driving licenses are granted. England's system is nothing more than a registration, and is only surpassed in simplicity by the method employed in Belgium, where every man, woman, or child is free to drive any type of car without permit, certificate, or registration of any kind.

"The French applicant for a driving license begins by paying a 20 franc tax, makes a formal application on stamped paper, and has to submit to a practical examination, which may consist of an hour's drive through dense Paris traffic or a ten minutes' run over a deserted national highway, according to the whim of the inspector. Once obtained, the license is good for all time, unless withdrawn for some really serious fault, and it is not available for endorsement. It should be mentioned that the inspector has the right to limit the applicant to cars of some determined horse-power or even of one particular make, if he feels that the applicant is not qualified to drive all types of cars.

"In Spain it is a serious matter to drive a motor car, for in addition to a minimum age limit of 18 and a maximum of 60, the applicant must furnish a good conduct certificate, delivered by the mayor if he is a native, by the consul if he is a foreigner; he must be able to read and write; a doctor must certify that his eyesight, hearing and general health are good; he must be acquainted with Spanish road regulations; and he must know how to drive. In addition to this, minors must have the consent of their parents and a married woman her husband. After having fulfilled these requirements, the applicant must go before the government inspector, who, in addition to a practical test, conducts an oral examination. The license is permanent unless withdrawn for infringment of road regulations.

"In Denmark it is necessary to have received 25 lessons extending over a period of fourteen days before the applicant presents himself for a practical examination before a government inspector. The license is available for five years, but can be renewed on application. A law which is quite special to Denmark is that every motor car owner must carry an insurance policy covering third party risks. Foreigners arriving by automobile must effect this insurance at the frontier station.

"Germany maintains a close control over her motorists, for before issuing a driving license the applicant must have a good conduct certificate from the police, a technical knowledge of cars, an acquaintance with road conditions, and a practical test at the wheel of a car In addition the license is only granted to persons of 18 years or over. In Switzerland there is a practical examination, for which a fee has to be paid.

AUTOMOBILE CAMPING TRIP BECOMING POPULAR SPORT

WEEK-END TRIPS INTO COUNTRY PROVE ENJOYABLE TO FRESH-AIR-SEEKING CAR OWNERS.

Automobile camping trips over the week-end are getting to be the great summer attraction for car owners. -The practice of utilizing the family car in this manner to reach the great outdoors is gaining favor in many eastern and southern centres, as well as on the Pacific coast. Early Saturday morning finds the motorist packing his car with mysterious packages designed to bring comfort and enjoyment during the vacation trip. Last of all, he packs in his family, and the car, baggage and occupants are off to some delightful place where country life can be indulged in to the heart's content. Late Sunday night or early Monday morning they return after an experience that furnishes interesting table conversation for the ensuing week.

Usually, the camping autoist takes too much paraphernalia. Yet it is better to take a little to much and really camp in comfort than to take too little and be compelled to "rough it" to roughly. Equipments for camping carry all the way from a trailer, that is in effect a completely furnished bungalow to the very minifum outfit, which consists of a jacknife and a couple of matches. The more elaborate outfits are designed especially for long trips of a month or more. For a trip from a few days to a fortnight in length, a good rule is to take about what one would carry for a canoe trip of the same length of time.

As in ordinary living, food, shelter and clothes are the triumvirate that needs special consideration .If there is to be fishing, a little fishing tackle plus what supplemental food can be secured at groceries and bakeries en route plus a few simple dishes and a corkscrew will pretty well solve the camper's problem.

Each member of the party should have an outfit of dishes, including a non-breakable plate of a deep soup pattern, a large, non-breakable cup, a knife, fork, large and small spoon. For general use of the motorist group, the cooking utensils should include some sort of a grate under which a fire can be built and on which food can cook. Other necessities along this line are a frying and boiling kettle, toaster, coffee pot and a pair of pinchers for removing hot dishes. This last-named article is by no means the least important for such outings there are usualy enough sunburns on arms and necks without adding burned fingers to the list of casualties.

Shelter is an important consideration for the camper. If he doesn,t observe the law respecting taking things belonging to others, such as watermelons, the auto camper is apt to find his shelter problem solved for him by local police authorities.And they say that the cots in our country jails are most uncomfortable. Some folks have declared it to be possible to sleep on the seats of an automobile. Their number however is not legion. Some admit that they have found romance, if not comfort, in rolling up in a blanket and reposing in the open field. Outside of the inconveniences of mosquitoes, snakes and thunder showers, this plan may have some merit. Some have found joy in a patent bed arrangement which upholds and stretches in the car over the tops of the front and rear seats. One possibility of this plan, although not necessarily an argument in its favor, is seen in the space between the seats and under this bed where small shildren of the family might find repose. Some have tried various kinds of tent arrangements by which canvas is stretched from the top, side or end of the car to the ground. Others have put up regular tents that have side walls and blow down in the event of a very strong wind. Others have built a lean-to branches and leaves which protect them from the moonlight, if not from the rain. Still others have sought the more substantial shelter give their automobiles a careful once that takes mast of the camp out of camping and savours of the tenderfoot.

A little "pup" tent for two persons in the party has been found by many tourists to be quite satisfactory. These tents take up little space in the car and are easily and quickly erected. A small ditch around them will keep the occupants from getting wet in case of rain. A little mosquito netting at the front will keep out the bugs yet not interfere with good ventilation. And this sort of shelter equipment is not expensive.

It is taken for granted that camping enthusiasts, who propose to use their cars for conveying them to their happy camping grounds will give their automobiles a careful once over before starting. Car trouble on a camping trip is apt to take a good deal of the joy out of life. It is worth while to have the machine in the pink of condition.

Thousands of motorists will become adult scouts during the coming warm weather. They will undertake to imitate many of their younger scouts' stunts. They will do first of all to heed the Boy Scouts' motto: "Be Prepared."

REVOLUTION IN CIRCUS CLOWNS.

No Longer Put Over Slapstick Stuff.

"Just foolin' around" in grotesque apparel, with liberal by-play of slapsticks, inaflted pig bladders and cap pistols ,as procedure for the support of star clowns in the circus, is old sticks, inflated pig bladders and cap know. The troupes of "joeys," who back up the pantomime of the stars of the John Robinson Circus, which will exhibit at Peterborough on Thursday, June 16th, go through just as much rehearsal as do the members of a Broadway cast.

There are fifty clowns with the star, or producing, fun-makers in the circus comedy displays. Not only have these "joeys" rehearsed every move and pause in their carefully planned pantomime hits, but they have in winter quarters tumbled through rigorous acrobatic drills daily. Some idea of the necessity for this may be realized after one has seen the really dangerous falls and dives in the elaborate fun numbers in the big show,.

The John Robinson clowns are headed by Johnny Lowlow, Jr., son of the famous John Robinson singing and talking clown of yesterdays. Waddling and tumbling after Johnny in the three rings, on the two stages, in the air and on the hippodrome track are forty-nine well-known chalk-face stars, several of them producing clowns of international reputation. In the twenty-two block street parade, which leaves the show grounds at 10 a.m., circus day, the seventh band in line is Johnny Lowlow's clown organization, tooting, thumping, shrilling and honking away on top of a great carved tableau wagon. But the rascals can really play.

A SAVAGE DUEL BETWEEN SHARKS.

A duel to the death between two large sharks was the unusual sight witnessed recently by several fishermen on the North Edisto river in South Carolina. The fight took place within a few yards of the anglers' boat. A commotion in the water first attracted attention to the spot. The two monster fish were attacking each other with the utmost fury; and as the struggle took place at the surface of the water, the anglers had an excellent view of it. The sharks fought, not with their teeth, but with their long powerful tails. They dashed furiously at each other, darting this way and that, each lashing at the other with his tail. At no time did the spectators see blood in the water, but the blows that were struck were evidently hard enough to do fatal damage, for after a while one of the combatants began to show signs of distress. It gradually weakened and presently turned sidewise on the surface and then over on its back, in which position it floated, apparently dead. The men in the boat were about to attack a rope to the carcass when suddenly there was a mighty swirl in the water, and the other shark came swiftly to the surface, seized his defeated foe in his jaws and carried him down out of sight. A battle between sharks is a rare sight; of more frequent occurrence are combats between porpoises and the sharks that compete with the porpoises for small fish. Unlike the shark duel, a battle between a porpoise is generally a bloody affair, and the water is likely to be red for some distance around the combatants.

STEEPLEJACKS GET HIGH WAGES.

New York Man Earns $75 Per Day in His Trade.

NEW YORK June 2.—What is responsible for the sensation, partly of awe that the average man experiences when he sees a steeplejack at work or a "human fly" climbing a lofty building? Probably it is a subconscious inheritance from the time our ancestors swung aloft in the trees. In those days a fall was the most frequent cause of death. The sensation of falling through from great heights is one of the commonest that comes to us in dreams, nobody ever dreams that he fell a hundred feet and hit the ground. We always wake up in a cold sweat before the final crash, congratulating ourselves that we woke up in the nick of time. The psychoanalists explain this by the fact that any of our ancestors who ever did hit the ground from a great height was killed and consequently was not able to transmit the memory of this experience to any of his descendants.

Waiting for the Accident.

Some of us can hardly bear to watch men at lofty heights. To others the sight provides a strange fascination. A few years ago, Jack McCreasy, a steeplejack was at work on the spire of Emanuel Baptist Church, Chicago. Far beneath crowds lingered all day, appearing to him like ants. When night came he crawled inside the belfry, but did not descend. The next day when a search was made he was found hanging by the neck. In his overalls' pocket was a note that read, "Well, I see that nothing but my death will satisfy the public, so here goes. I suppose the verdict will be 'Gone to Hell.'" It is difficult to believe that any rational human being is fascinated by the spectacle of men at work high in the air, because he feels that at any moment there may be a fatal accident, and wishes to be on the spot. Surely anyone who saw such an accident would never forget it, and would be troubled in his dreams for many nights. The probability is the crowds are attracted by the sentiment of awe and admiration for those capable of performing feats which would be impossible to the average man.

Born Steeplejacks.

Steeplejacks, we gather from an article in the New York Tribune, are born, not made. There is no union for them. The expert steeplejack is extremely reluctant to teach another his tricks.

Louis McCarthy, one of the most celebrated in New York, where, by the way, there are only about half a dozen listed in the telephone book, said that nobody took him by the hand and made the way easy. "I had to pick it up myself and risk my neck doing it. Catch me giving the game away! When I must hire an assistant, I don't look for smart boys. The thicker they are the better. I'd rather take a week to show him how to tie a paint bucket to a bo'sun's chair than to have him catch on in one lesson and in a few weeks be competing with me for jobs." Mr. McCarthy, therefore, has trained his wife and his younger brother. He has also given some preliminary instruct on to his fifteen months' old son. This consists in holding him by the wrists out of a four storey window, in encouraging the bab to climb and otherwise develop his muscles.

The Fatal Cramps.

Powerful leg and forearm muscles are essential, for a steeplejack. Th se can be developed, but it is doubtful if a head for heights can be developed. Steeplejacks have absolutely no sense of giddiness. As long as what they are standing on is secur they are as comforta le at their work as a toiler in a basement. The worst feature of their trade is that they are subject to cramps. They must work in strained p sitions and they must stick at the job for the day. Getting to and reaching the work is the most perilous part of their labor, and naturally they will not double the risks by so descending for lunch. Most of the fatalities that occur among them are due to cramped muscles. When the steeplejack feels the cramps coming on, and as a rule disabling cramps do not attack all limbs at once, he makes haste to come to earth while there is yet time. There is a case on record of a steeplejac being unable to use his hands to lower the bo'sun's chair, and using his teeth instead.

Jack of All Trades.

Seventy-five dollars a day is what New York steeplejack earns, and we have no idea that competition will greatly decrease the rate. The steeplejack must have half a dozen trades at his finger ends. It would be useless for him to climb out on the City Hall roof and then send word that what was needed was a roof slater. They must be able to lay bricks or masonry, they must be competent to do plumbing, hey must be sign painters, and gilders, capable of handling the delicate gold leaf in strong winds. They must be riveters and structural iron workers. All these trades they must know something of apart from having muscles like an athlete and being unaffected by a sense of peril when working at great heights. One explanation of the last unusual gift or faculty is that steeplejacks have a highly developed inner ear, for it is here that the sense of equilibrium is seated. Some races appear to have a peculiar aptitude for the work. It is well known that the best structural iron workers are either Irish or Swedes.

THE CAVE MAN'S HOME

The homes of the past and the homes of the present — what a strange contrast!

The cave man's simple mate did not even dream of the luxuries that that were to follow. The housekeeper of to-day very seldom contemplates the drudgery of the past.

The cave man's home was a cavern—his bed, a rock. His needs were of the crudest and simplest, for his marvelous virility of physique—begotten from living close to the breast of nature—had inured him to the rigors of the climate of his day. The implements of that day were crude products ot a crude mentality. First — they were rudely shaped hammer heads. Next—they were finely polished and symetrically shaped flint implements of the same type as shown in our last number of this interesting series. The former were of the Palaeolithic or early stone age, and the latter, of the Neolithic or late stone age, according to paleaontologists, who have all over the world delved down deep below the present crust of the earth's surface, and divided the different layers or strata of rocks, into the Miocene, Pleistocene, and other eras of the earth's development. Thousands of year's apart they were—but only milestones in nature's eternal process of growth and decay. Both served the primary need of man's nature—the hunting and preparing of food, which has through the ages formed the chief urge in the upward progress of human culture.

The third number of this interesting series on the evolution of cooking utensils from the stone age to the aluminum age, by the Wentworth Mfg. Co., Hamilton, will appear on this page to-morrow.

There is a special sale and demonstration of 98 per cent. aluminum now going on in Turnbull's Economy Basement.

FORCED TO FIGHT FOR HIS BREATH

ALMOST PHYSICAL WRECK, RAFF BUILDS HIMSELF BACK TO VIGOROUS HEALTH.

"I had heard a great deal about Tanlac and since trying it myself I can conscientiously say it is the best medicine I have ever seen in all my experence," said David Raff, 250 N.

DAVID RAFF
250 N. 59th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

59th St., Philadelphia, recently. Mr. Raff has lived in Philadelphia all his life and is well known and highly respected.

"My health was all broken up," he explained. "My stomach was all out of order and gave me so much trouble that I actually dreaded to go to the table. I would simply rather go without eating than suffer the awful misery I knew would follow. I would bloat up so with gas that my heart would beat a terrific rate and it seemed sometimes I was being smothered to death. I just had to fight for my breath. My nerves were all undone, I slept poorly and was all the time having headaches that were almost blinding. I lost weight and felt so weak and run-down all over I could hardly do any work.

"Sometime ago a good friend of mine told me he knew Tanlac would help me and he spoke so positive about it that I took his advice. And I can say right now that Tanlac is the first medicine I ever saw that will do exactly what they say it will. Five bottles have the same as made me all over again. I can eat anything I ever could in my life and have gained fifteen poundsc in weight. I'm no more nervous than a child, sleep fine and it just makes me feel happy to be enjoying such good health. Tanlac certainly is a great medicine."

Personal Mention

Misses Ada, Bessie and Lillian Locke of Belleville were home for the week end.

Friends will regret to learn that little Master Adin Lowe is confined to the house through illness.

Dr. H. B. Longmore returned on Saturday after a two weeks absence in Toronto and New York.

Mrs. Nicholson of Coe Hill is visiting at the home of her mother Mrs. George McComb.

Mr. and Mrs. Ireland of Owen Sound, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Owen.

The meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church which was announced for Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. W. Turner, has been postponed until Tuesday afternoon, in order to give the ladies an opportunity of hearing Mrs. (Rev.) G. E. Simmons, who with her husband, is home on furlough from China, after ten years service as missionaries of the Anglican church.

Mrs. Simmons, (formerly Miss Florence Kingston, known to many in town), will address a meeting this afternoon n Parish Hall, and no doubt many will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing about China first hand.

Mrs. W. H. Hart, Grand Road, spent Friday with friends in Havelock.

Quite a number of the members of the I.O.O.F. Socety of town motored to Havelock to attend divine service with the Havelock order.

What Clever Hands Can Do

There are many adages whose greatest distinction is the surprising ease with which, to use a homely expression, "they go in one ear and out the other." Wise as they may seem at the first hearing, they linger not in one's memory, and alas! are heard one day and the next are forgotten. But there is one modren saying, the wisdom of which is never disputed and which is heard so often one could not forget it if one would. And this slogan is, "Do it now."

With summer drawing nearer each hour is this not an appropriate "now" in which to start planning bride gifts? The stores are filled with lovely things, the completion of which will prove a joy for "clever hands."

A nine-piece luncheon set, whose embroidery is the dandelion pattern, consists of four napkins, four service doilies and a large centre piece. The use of French knots is especially effective and the whole set is charming.

Another beautiful set, ideal for Sunday night suppers, contains a stunning forty-five-inch stole piece and four napkins. Stoles are particularly popular and are most practical, as they lessen the number of pieces on the table.

What gift finds a warmer welcome than does a pretty embroidered towel? No household exists in which there is not room for "just one more." Lovely ones, costing 85 cents, are stamped, and with their spoke edges are ready for effective embroidery and crocheted borders.

BOILED BONES OF VICTIM AS TEST OF GUILT.

Ancient Chinese Method Used at Nantao Murder Trial.

SHANGHAI, (By Mail).—How justice is administered in a Chinese criminal court was illustrated in an interesting fashion at the trial of a locally celebrated murder case that was held the last week in March in Nantao, the native settlement which forms a large part of the City of Shanghai.

For three days preceding the trial curious thousands, hedged off by stout bamboo rail, watched the progress of a post-mortem examination at which East and West clashed. The post mortem was performed by Chinese physicians several trained in American and other Occidental schools, and others who had received their medical education in China. It was a case of suspected poisoning and, while the Western-trained physicians insisted that the stomach and intestines, with their contents, should be sent to a laboratory for analysis, the purely Chinese doctors clung to an ancient belief and declared that the question at issue could be proved by boiling the bones of the deceased in a certain manner. The Chinese-trained doctors carried their point.

Chang Shen Sung, the accused, had been arrested in the International Settlement. It was charged that thirteen months ago at the little Chinese river village of Pootung, fourteen miles down the Whangpoo from Shanghai, he had poisoned his father, Chang Kayung, a wealthy rice merchant. On application of the Chinese authorities of Nantac the prisoner was turned over to the Chinese police and a trial was held the next day.

The hearing took place in an open lot, with the court sitting beneath a mat shed, while closely packed thousands, held back by soldiers and the bamboo stockade looked on. In a prominent place in front of the court a huge iron kettle over an open fire simmered, in which had ben placed the bones of the father as the Chinese doctors had ordered.

The hearing was lengthy and the court took three recesses in the course of the day. The procedure consisted almost wholly of questioning the accused and urging him to confess that he committed the crime This questioning was done by the court, police officials and two Chinese procurators in turn. Throughout the bombardment of interrogation the youth in manacles held firmly to a denial of his guilt.

The Chinese doctors had declared that if the father died from poisoning this would be made evident by the presence of discolorations on the bones after the boiling process. Again and again this was borne in upon the prisoner, who was told that if he were guilty the bones when exposed would surely prove it.

It was when the court sat for the fourth time that the lid was removed from the kettle and the contents were placed on a long table. Numerous dark spots were seen on many of the bony parts. One of the procurators, pointing to these marks turned to the agitated prisoner. "Did you poison your father" he thundered. The prisoner shrank back, "I did it, I poisoned him," he confessed.

METEORIC MATRIMONIAL CAREER OF GEO. SERLUI

Winnipeg, June 4.—Revelations of the meteoric matrimonial career of George M. Serlui, former Winnipegger, were made when he was arrested on the Montreal dock by his first wife as he stepped from the Empress of Britain with his third wife last November, eight months after he had buried his second wife in Winnipeg.

By his immediate return to Liverpool, where he served a sentence in jail for entering the United Kingdom without a passport, followed by his deportation a few days ago to Holland, Serlui is now where his penchant for marrying women and bringing them to Canada cannot be gratified. Only in the event of the institutions of divorce proceedings by either his legal or his bigamous wife, will he again assume the public prominence that has made him in London and European cities a personage, but for the present no intimation of action is heard from either his legal wife, now believed to be in Montreal, or his third wife, with her parents in London.

Popular in Winnipeg.

Interest is attached in Winnipeg to the latest development in Serlui's activities as he gained social and business popularity during his brief term of residence here with his second wife.

Deportation from London, Eng., to Holland after three months imprisonment for petty larcency in 1915 is the first knowledge held among acquaintances of Serlui in this city of his criminal career. Shortly after this incident he came to Canada and married a Canadian woman in Montreal, two children resulting from this marriage.

A French girl of social prominence became his second bride when he returned to Europe a year later, leaving his first wife in Montreal. With his second wife he established a residence in 1060 Grosvenor avenue, Fort Rouge, and his engaging manner and his wife's personality quickly won for them the entree to the best homes of the city and placed them high in the social scale.

Had Good References.

By the aid of references from world-known financial institutions of the continent he secured the confidence of business men and organized Transoceanic Trading company; offices were rented in the Banque d'Hochelaga chambers and records of the department of the provincial secretary how that application for incorporation of the $25,000 company was made by Serlui and his wife, Edwin Loftus, K.C., Norman B. Seabrook and Catherine A. Seabrook. In his export and import trading concern Serlhui was associated with men of business standing, of undoubted integrity, and to whom no suspicion of engagement in dubious transactions could be attached.

Apparently genuine in his grief when his second wife died in March, 1920, in Winnipeg, Serlui nevertheless went east a fortnight after her burial in the Shaarey Zedek cemetery, West Kildonan, and returned with his first wife and their children, whom he represented to his friends as his sister-in-law.

Serlui lived with her on Red River Boulevard, West Kildonan, until July, when he went back to Europe, ostensibly on a business trip.

Under ban from British territory he was forced to employ aerial transportation to convey him from the continent to English soil so he could marry Miss Knauss, daughter of Alexander Knaus, the famous diamond-merchant millionaire, who had broken, when she met Serlui, an engagement contracted in New York. Quite a society function accompanied the wedding in September and two months later the couple boarded the Empress of Britain bound for Montreal.

Sent Back to Liverpool.

Met on disembarkation by his first wife and her solicitor, who charged him with bigamy, Serlui was detained and returned to England the same day on the Empress of France to Liverpool, the girl, through aid extended to her by a Canadian cabinet minister, returning on the same ship.

For having entered the United Kingdom without a passport, Serlui was sentenced to jail upon his arrival in Liverpool and his deportation to Holland, his native country, upon his release, closes of the chapters of his matrimonial career until such time as divorce proceedings may be instituted against him.

RINGING APPEAL IN VAIN.—Mr. A. Blackman, independent Liberal candidate in the recent Hastings (England) by-election, made necessary by the retirement of Mr. L. Lyon, former Torontonian, adjudged bankrupt, adopted novel campaign methods. One was to walk the streets ringing a bell and when a crowd gathered the candidate got off his speech. Mr. Blackman, however, finished third in the race won by Lord Eustace Percy, coalition Unionist.

Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Connall have returned from their holiday motor trip to Hamilton.

MR. JOHN EDWARDS CELEBRATES HIS 82ND BIRTHDAY

FAMILY GATHERING SPENT DAY AT RICE LAKE.

KEENE, June 6. — Mr. John Edwards celebrated his 82nd birthday on May 30th. A happy gathering of his family spent the day picnicing at the serpent mounds on Rice Lake. Besides his wife and son and daughters, nine grandchildren were present to make the day bright and complete. A game of ball, in which Mr. Edwards himself took part, was very interesting. The pleasant day was ended by a picnic supper which was followed by a splendid address by Mr. David Edwards.

Exhibition Game.

There will be an exhibition game of baseball between Cressman's team of Peterborough, and the Keene senior team, on the Keene ball grounds, on Tuesday evening of this week.

Mrs. William Campbell returned on Saturday from Toronto, where she spent a few days visiting with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mowry, Messrs Morley Reid and Cullen of Peterborough, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr .and Mrs. H .MacLachlan.

Keene Picnic.

The Union Sunday School picnic will be held on the Keene fair grounds of Friday of this week. Seven Sunday schools will participate. The programme will begin at 1:30 p.m. There will be races and games of all kinds. A game of ball between the junior teams of Villiers, Zion and Keene, will be played. The winning team will be provided with a silver cup from the Sunday Schools. A large crowd is expected.

Amateur Play.

The amateur play "No Trespassing," given by the Social Welfare Club on Friday evening, proved to be a splendid success financially, the proceeds amounting to $85.00. Considering that all who took part but one had never had previous experience in work of this kind, it was very well rendered. Those taking part were Misses Estelle Ellis, Kate Shearer, Lillian Chapman, Hazel Brown and Mrs. William Wedlock; Messrs. William and Alfred Fletcher, eVrnon Ellis, Frank Brown, and Harry Stewart. The Club feel indebted to Mr. Michael McCarthy for his help in his two beautiful solos between acts, also to Mrs. Clifton Lower who helped to make the play a success.

Personals.

Mr. Thomas Wallace and daughter, of Toronto, spent the week end at the home of his brother, Mr. D. Wallace.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Howson of Peterboro spent Sunday with Keene friends.

Miss Evlyn McKinnon of Peterboro was the guest of Miss Stella Ellis on Friday and Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Wood of Toronto are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wiliam Campbell.

Messrs. Cameron and Sturgeon of Peterboro were at the home of Mr. William Kempt on Sunday.

Dr. W. T. Harrison returned on Saturday from Toronto and Niagara Falls, where he had been to attend the medical convention.

Misses Marion and Amy McFarlane of Peterborough, spent the week end with Keene friends.

Misses Queenie Delaire and Mary Busbey of Peterboro spent the week end with Miss Busbey's parents.

Mr. William Fletcher was in Peterboro on Sunday.

Rev. R. McEachern returned on Saturday from Toronto, where he had been the past week.

Mrs. John Casey, who has been visiting Chicago friends the past eight weeks has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bryce and daughter of Toronto, spent the week end at the home of Mr. Bryce's father, father, Mr. A. Bryce.

Miss Annie Busbey went shopping in Peterboro Saturday.

Miss Merrill Upton of Campbellford was the guest of Mrs. John Fletcher the past week.

Mr .and Mrs. Woodberry Yelland of Peterborough, visited Keene on Sunday.

Miss Lottie Wedlock of Peterborough sent Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. McLachland.

The Social Welfare Club meet in thei rclu brooms on Tuesday evening. The meeting will be a very important one and it is hoped all members will be present.

Will Next Week's Ironing be Done Electrically?

HEATING old-fashioned sad-irons, over a hot stove, is not an ideal occupation at the best of times. But, when the soft, gentle breezes beckon one out-of-doors, and housework seems tedious, our grandmother's way of ironing is one of the worst types of drudgery the modern housewife has to contend with. Your electrical dealer has a waiting for you. You will be agreeably surprised at the ease with which you can dispatch your week's ironing by the aid of a "Sovereign." Its tapering nose and cool handle, its $6 perfect balance, and highly nickel-plated finish will make you wonder how you ever got along without it. Be sure and compare the price and quality with other irons.

SOVEREIGN ELECTRIC IRON

ARE WOMEN CONSERVATIVE?

Prussian Women Are As Shown By Vote at Recent Elections.

BERLIN, June 6. — (Associated Press).—The majority of Prussian women voters are conservative in their political sympathies, a compilation of the vote cast at recent elections has disclosed. As high as 59 per cent. of the vote cast by the Conservative parties was by women electors; the extreme radical organization polled a woman vote of 37 per cent.

INVENTOR FELL DOWN NEW FIRE ESCAPE ON THE PARACHUTE PLAN.

MONTREAL, June 4.—While experimenting with a new fire escape on the parachute plan, of which he is the inventor, George Pitt, 67 years of age, fell from a third storey window in the Salvation Army building and landed on his feet, which fact probably saved his life. He suffered, however, severe shock, and internal injuries.

Pitt was trying out his new invention, which was ultimately meant to for ever still all terrors of fire, when one of the straps of his apparatus broke, depositing the inventor on the sidewalk three floors down.

THE LINDSAY SERIES HAS THE BALL FANS EXCITED

PETES PLAY IN LINDSAY WEDNESDAY AND GRAYBIRDS ARE HERE FOR THE RETURN GAME SATURDAY AFTERNOON—SOME BASEBALL GOSSIP.

As far as Peterborough fans are concerned all roads will lead to Lindsay on Wednesday, when the Petes will clash with the Lindsay Graybirds. The game is called for 3 o'clock and it is a safe bet that there will be a fleet of Peterborough cars parked in the Scugog ball grounds when the battle gets under way, for many local enthusiasts are planning to be on hand when the first ball is thrown over the plate. The Lindsay crew are perched up alongside the Petes at the top of the Central Ontario League ladder and the two games this week, Wednesday in Lindsay and Saturday here, will have a lot to do with determining the result of the first section of the League schedule. With a win over Belleville on their own grounds to their credit, the Lindsay gang figure the Petes are already beaten, but the Solomon gang are generally at their best when the opposition is tough, and they promise that Lindsay will at least know they have been in a ball game.

Jack Oulette, Lindsay's crack new pitcher, who already has two wins to his credit, will be on the rubber against the Petes on Wednesday. As usual, Manager Solomon refuses to announce who will do the twirling for the Peterborough crew. It will depend largely on weather conditions and the way the pitching squad warms up on Wednesday.

The Central League race, only two weeks under way, is already developing into a corking fight, and as prophesied, every game is turning out a battle. There is not a weak sister in the six teams and not one outfit can afford to let up for a moment.

The League standing:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Peterborough	2	0	1000
Lindsay	2	0	1000
Oshawa	2	1	.667
Cobourg	1	2	.333
Belleville	1	2	.333
Port Hope	0	3	.000

Games this week:—
Wednesday — Cobourg at Belleville; Peterborough at Lindsay.
Saturday—Oshawa at Port Hope; Lindsay at Peterborough.

The Y.M.C.A. team came within an ace of pulling off a triple play in the game against Hamilton's on Saturday. Morse and Hambly were on first and second base respectively in the sixth innings, with nobody out, and a double steal was started. Webb cracked a liner into Sheehan's hands and the shortstop tossed the ball to Pogue, doubling Morse off second. Hambly was then half way to second and an accurate throw to McWilliams would have resulted in a triple killing. The toss was high, however, and a golden chance was lost.

By the way, you've got to hand it to that Y bunch. They were beaten 4 to 3 by Hamilton's the last time out and since then have lost second baseman Seeley and Catcher Lyons, but they were out ther Saturday trying all the way and breezed home an easy winner.

The Hamilton team have made 21 errors in their last two 7 innings games. No wonder they have been slaughtered.

Y.M.C.A. and C.G.E. clash tomorrow night, and the leadership of the League is at stake. The standing so far is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.
Y.M.C.A.	2	1
C.G.E.	2	1
Hamilton's	1	2

The Juvenile Standing.

	Won.	Lost.
Bankers	3	1
Generals	2	2
St. Peter's	2	2
Lakeviews	1	3

Umpire Alex. Kay believes in making it always look like a ball game. He chased a Hamilton coacher back to the bench Saturday for taking the odd whiff at a cigarette on the coaching lines.

Ray Rose is the utility man of the Petes. He is at home anywhere in the infield, or outfield and Saturday he further demonstrated his usefulness by pitching an innings.

Port Hope Guide: Hats off to Lindsay, for yesterday they stepped in Belleville and defeated the Goyer-Mills combination by a score of 5 to 3. There has been many surprises in the Central League during its three years' existence, but yesterday takes the bun. It was the first time that the Belleville team met defeat on their own diamond. There was no fuss or flurry about it; the Lindsayites simply walked in, administered the trimming, bagged up their paraphernalia, and left. They were well on their way home before Belleville realised what had happened. It was a terrible shock, and it was said that our old friend Jim Jenkins wore a hole in the floor of the rotunda of Quinte Hotel as he paced up and down trying to figure it out.

We frankly admit that we didn't think that Lindsay had a chance, and we humbly apologise for our reference in the Guide that Lindsay was due for a trimming. In addition to our apology, let it be known that with three other delighted fans we stood in the centre of the main thoroughfare and gave three cheers and a tiger for the victors. To young Oulette comes the distinction of putting the "Day" in Lindsay and also of taking the "Q" out of the Bay of Quinte.

Here's that Lindsay may continue the good work.

Lindsay Post: Louis Yeotes' "Thistles" from Peterborough wandered disconsolately about town for some time. Then a kind-hearted bystander located a team for them to play, and at a late hour, on Victoria Park, the Cubs (Wetherup's) and the Thistles squared away. Despite adverse conditions fur and thistles flew freely for seven innings. Brilliant ball was shown at times, and the game was always interesting. The Cubs came out on top, 9-3.

Hopkins was Peterborough's shining light.

Oshawa Telegram: That boy Oulette that Lindsay found following a plough in Rev. Sandy's U.F.O. constituency, had 17 strike-outs in his opening performance. When he kicked the mud off his heels before coming in for the game on the holiday the Scugogites were dubious, but to-day believe that they have another Cannonball. It is quite evident that this boy will not be farmed out to the Lindsay town league.

THE VETERANS AND WOOLLENS WON THE SATURDAY FIXTURES

COMRADES HAD A BAD DAY WITH ONLY TEN MEN ON THE LINE-UP.

By combination play the Veterans' soccer team administered a bad trimming on the Comrades Saturday afternoon at the Oval before a small crowd of spectators. The score was 9 to 0 at the end of the hour and a half's play. At half time the score was 4-0. The play was all one-sided, the Vets winning handily.

The Comrades played with only ten men. The Vets, as a result of the game, are even with the Woollens in the City League race.

("Alec") McKinly was referee.

The line-ups were:

G.W.V.A.—Goal, Jones; f. backs, Gamble, Perry; half-backs, Hurle, Haycock, Peel, forwards, Willis, Monks, Dwyer, Rorrison, Sherman.

Comrades—Goal, Post; f. back, Dunkley; half-backs, Jackson, Cowie, Bolam; forwards, Hall, Warman, McDougal, Hardie, Firth.

The Second Game.

In the second game on Saturday, the Woollens defeated the De Laval 4 goals to 1. They were by far the superior team, but the separator team never stopped trying. ("Will") Brown in goal saved the day, and many times turned the ball away from the nets when a goal seemed inevitable. The Woollens played nice combination and always maintained a steady defence. J. Shaw scored twice in the first period for the Woollens and Miller got the De Laval's only goal. Shaw's second goal was on a penalty kick. Frost and Jones in the last period got the remaining tallies.

Frank McKinley was referee.

The teams lined up as follows:

Canadian Woollens—Goal, McFadden; full backs, Cridland, Chambers; half-backs, Frost, McMillan, Roberts; forwards, Beard, H. Jones, M. Shaw, J. Shaw. E. Jones.

De Laval—Goal, Brown; full backs, Pickles, Leitch; half-backs, Thompson, Humpage, Watkins; forwards, Sanders, Stott, Abrahams, Earnest, Miller.

THE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION SHOULD ADOPT THE JUNIOR LACROSSE TEAM

TWENTY OR MORE YOUNGSTERS HAVE BEEN PRACTICING FAITHFULLY BUT NEED FUNDS—HAVE BEGUN A CANVASS AND ARE MEETING WITH A FAIR RESPONSE.

Whether or not the Peterboro Intermediate Lacrosse Team manages to win the district this year, the hopes of those who are actively engaged in promoting the game locally rest with the Juniors. The Intermediates are performing a real service in keeping lacrosse alive by their example, but the team for next year or even the year after is just now struggling to get on its feet. Some twenty of the juniors have been working faithfully under Jack Sutherland's direction. They have made a late start but they are taking to the game with remarkable aptitude, and will make up by their enthusiasm the time that was lost at the opening of the practice season. Not only are the juniors turning out regularly at the Oval, but they have undertaken to finance the team by appealing to the public for support. They have to buy sweaters and sticks and in their request for aid they have so far been well received. The boys are handing the money over to HarryTudhope at the Bank of Nova Scotia, and after Saturday's collections are beginning to breathe more freely.

Jack Sutherland says that the youngsters will give a good account of themselves in the games with Hastings and Campbellford. Some of those who are practicing are S. Browne, B. Cowan, J. Warde, D. Miller, A. Jackson, O'Connell, B. Killoran, A. Jackson, O'Connell, B. Ranger, E. Foley, B. Curtis, G. Sturgeon, G. Rosenfield, J. Lawson, K. Mein and others.

The Peterboro Amateur Athletic Association has a chance to demonstrate its usefulness by giving its patronage to the lacrosse teams, especially the juniors. The juniors are just emerging from the organization stage, and the P.A.A.A. can take hold of them right now. It is one game that really needs support and encouragement; moreover it is the Canadian national game and the daily reports in the newspapers show that all over the province, in cities, towns, and villages, lacrosse teams are springing up rapidly.Hamilton was represented in lacrosse the other day for the first time in 13 years, and played their first game with Galt, which they lost by 13 to 3. This is just to mention one, and the number is wrowing steadily, although the O.A.L.A. groups have all been formed. The main point to be brought home now is that the Peterborough Junior Lacrosse Team needs and deserves the help of every person who wishes to have the old game re-established. If the boys overlook you in their canvass leave your donation with the Harry Tudhope at the Bank of Nova Scotia, Jack Sutherland, at Wiggins's shoe repair shop on Charlotte street, or with the sporting editor of the Examiner. If you want to encourage the youngsters beat them to it with a grant. You don't need to give them a house and lot, but if all the old time lacrosse lovers would give a little, and at once, the result would be highly gratifying.

LACROSSE NOTES

SAYS SHORT PASSING GAME ORIGINATED HERE.

H. S. ("Sport") Murton writing in The Toronto Telegram says that the short passing game as a development of lacrosse originated in Peterborough and was an expedient born to necessity. Part of his interesting reminiscences follow:

Start of Passing Game.

"By the way," he continued, "I see where Orillia has been credited with the first introduction of the short passing game. I would like to protest. Years before Orillia won their championship by adopting this style, the Checkers, of Beaverton, won a final cup championship against Peterborough in the latter town. I will explain how it came about. The day of the game there was a tremendous gale blowing so strong that it was impossible to throw the ball against it. It would soar up into the air and be blown back within a few feet of where it started. We won the toss, and, of course, played with the wind for the first goal. The custom then, you know, was to change goals after each point scored. We soon saw then that against the wind we could not make any progress. So we worked out a scheme of carrying the ball up the field and making low short passes from one to the other. It was successful, and we carried out the same tactics when playing with the wind. Peterborough did not catch on, so we won the match quite easily through being forced by weather conditions to adopt a style much as a rugby team does when playing against a wind. Unfortunately, this style of play was not adopted the next year and did not come into general use until the sticks began to be made baggy. In those days, you know, all players had to place their sticks on the ground to be examined by the referee, who could forbid the use of a stick which showed too much bag in it. I think now they have gone too much to the other extreme. The short spoon-like bags which players use now are all right for catching, but we must be on top of the net to get a goal, as no force can be put into the shot with such weapons. Some of the goalkeepers now would be hard put to it to turn aside the rifle bullet shots of the old regime."

ADVANCES ART OF MOTION PICTURE DIRECTION

Two Unusual Events Depicted and Yet Not Actually Witnessed In "The Oath."

"The Oath," the photoplay which opens to-day at the Allen Theatre, is a revelation in the art of the motion picture. In it R. A. Walsh, who produced and directed it for the Mayflower Photoplay Corporation for distribution by Associated First National Pictures, Inc., has obtained two intensely dramatic effects which have been marked by critics as being imoprtant advances in the art of motion picture direction.

The first is giving the audience a distinct effect of having witnessed a tragedy without ever showing the actual event itself. The second scene which is regarded as notable is the entire lack of confusion is putting over the most dramatic incident ever shown in a motion pitcure. Rather than attempt to show the effect of the actnon on the crowd that with the action on the crowd that witviews of the emotions of the various characters most vitally affected by the result that the climax of the court room scene in "The Oath" is as gripping a piece of screen art as has ever been produced.

'The Oath" is an adaptation of the William J. Locke widely read novel, "Idols.' Miriam Cooper heads the cast which portrays the story under the skilful direction of Mr. Walsh, and in the support are Conway Tearle, Henry Clive and Anna Q. Nilsson.,

VERA STEADMAN PROVES THAT IT'S MORE THAN MERE BEAUTY

It wasn't but a couple of years ago that Vera Steadman, who will be seen in a prominent part in "Wedding Blues," newest of the Christie Comedies at the Allen Theatre today started her career as the champion high diving girl of the Pacific Coast. Her unusual physical form won her membership of the Sennet comedy forces, where she was called upon to appear largely in a one-piece bathing suit. Finally she was given a small part, and she made so good that Al Christie, head of the biggest comedy-producing company in the world, offered her a chance.

Christie saw in her a real actress, and he has not been disappointed in his opinion. She scored a considerable hit in "Shuffling the Queens" and "A Homespun Hero," but in this picture she is said to more than ever establish the right to be called "the girl with the most appealing eyes who looks on you from the screen."

"Wedding Blues" is described as one of the possible farce comedies that keeps you laughing and still leaves you something to remember. Included in the cast are Neal Burns, Earl Rodney and Helen Darling.

AT THE CAPITOL.

BUSTER KEATON IN FAMOUS PART

Comedian Drafted From Slapstick to Play Juvenile Role in "The Shepherd."

Buster Keaton, playing the Lamb as co-star with William H. Crane in "The Saphead" showing at the Capitol Theatre, made his first departure from slapstick comedy to create the role of the wastrel son on the screen.

Mr. Keaton had been playing with Roscoe Arbuckle in his horesplay productions for three seasons, when he was seen by Winchell Smith, who supervised the production of 'The Saphead." Mr. Smith detected under the uproarious effects achieved by Mr. Keaton a quiet subtlety of method that convinced him the slapstick actor would be a "find" in the more human field of straight comedy.

It was the same sort of discrimination that led Maxwell Karger to take Alice Lake from slapstick work into her triumphs as a star in serious drama for Metro. Or, to take a striking instance from the stage, it was the sort of selective power shown by Belasco when he took David Warfield from slapstick to play in "The Auctioneer."

Buster Keaton has been a member of the theatrical world since he was five years old, when he started on the vaudeville stage with his parents, comprising the knockabout team of The Three Keatons. He was sixteen years in vaudeville, playing all over the United States and Canada and most of the big cities of Europe.

Metro advanced him to stardom in the belief that he is the coming comedian of the screen. The producers feel that his work in "The Saphead" has justified this belief. At present he is under contract to play in a series of slapstick comedies, but he is expected in the future to return to roles of the sort that he plays in "The Saphead."

In "The Saphead," he is co-star with William H. Crane. Others in the cast include Irving Cummings, Edward Connelly ,Odette Tyler and Beulah Booker.

The production is presented by John L. Golden and Winchell Smith in conjunction with Marcus Loew, with F. H. Webster as art director and Harold Wenstrom as cameraman.

Balance of the entire programme will be found in keeping with excellent quality of the Capitol entertainments.

"HOMESPUN FOLKS," NEWEST THOS. H. INCE DRAMA, HERE

"Old Homestead" and "Way Down East" Combined in Picture Coming to Regent Theatre.

Heralded by film critics as a notable addition to the ranks of rural classics, Thomas H. Ince's great Associated Producers special production, 'Homespunk Folks,' is scheduled as the featured presentation at the Regent Theatre to-day.

With the honor of American manhood as its theme, a broiling political campaign as its plot and a locale which takes audiences back to the old homestead of a gentle New England village, "Homespun Folks" is described as the most human, absorbingly wholesome document yet contributed to the cinema.

The genius of Thomas H. Ince is said to find its truest expression in this new super-photodrama under the banner of the famous Associated Producers, Inc., an alliance composed of Ince, Mack Sennett, Marshall Neilan, George Loane Tuker, J. Parker Read, Jr., Allan Dwan and Maurice Tourneur.

Not since the original stage presentations of the time-honored "Way Down East," "Sis Hopkins" and "Shore Aces," have the sentiment and courage of rural America been so faithfully depicted as in the latest attraction from the Ince Studios.

THE MURRAY STREET JUNIORS WON GAME

DEFEATED THE JUNIOR TEAM IN OMEMEE BY A SCORE OF 12-7.

The Murray Street Juniors journeyed to Omemee on Saturday and defeated the Juniors there by a score of 12-7. Murray Street held Omemee scoreless until the 6th inning, when they opened their scoring with 9 runs against them. They ran the score up to 10-6, but Murray Street came back with 2 more in the 9th, thus cinching the game. C. Yelland for Murray Street and Pogue of last year's Normal team were the opposing pitchers and played a great game.

Murray Street lined up as follows: A. Johnstone, 1st b.; A. Miller, r. f.; H. Baptie, s. s.; J. Ward, c.; S. Stacey, 3rd b.; C. Yelland, p; A. Hardwick, l. f.; Bookout, c. f.; C. Doughty, 2nd b.

Murray Street defeated Hastings in their home town on May 28th by 6-5. Lakefield also lost their game by 9 runs. The only out-of-town defeat suffered this year was at Norwood, when Murray Street Juniors were beaten by a score of 21-1.This was the first game out of town, and Murray Street should win easily over Norwood in a return game. The return game with Lakefield will be played on Wednesday evening next at the Oval.

Y.M.C.A. SWAMP HAMILTON'S; PETES WIN FROM THE C.G.E.

DOUBLE HEADER AT RIVERSIDE PARK SATURDAY FURNISHED CHANCE FOR "Y" TEAM TO FATTEN THEIR BATTING AVERAGES, AND CENTRAL ONTARIO LEAGUERS TO GET IN SOME USEFUL P[illegible]CE.

[illegible] Solomon's Central Ontario League outfit got some good practice on Saturday afternoon in their clash with the C.G.E. City League outfit, in preparation for this week's big games with the Lindsay Grey Birds. Incidentally the Petes got a bunch of errors out of their systems, for they were guilty of seven misplays against the City Leaguers and had the latter been able to hit Lefty McElroy's offerings with any degree of success they would have made the battle a close one. The Petes in spite of their fielding mistakes won 6 to 1 in a seven innings game.

McElroy had his hook working nicely and in his six innings on the rubber allowed the Electricians only two singles, one of them being made by Tommy Holyman who was loaned to the C.G.E. for afternoon. The southpaw should have had a shut out, the only counter registered against him being the result of a wild heave by Murray and a boot by Ray Rose.

The Petes bagged two in the first. Cherrett beat out a bunt and Murray was passed. Ray Rose moved the pair up with a neat sacrifice and Ross doubled to left to score the two. The next pair went out leaving Ross stranded.

C.G.E. got their counter in the third. Legon reached second on Murray's high throw to first Holyman popped to Cherrett, Corrin grounded to Ross. Legon going to third. Jackson tapped to Ray Rose who fumbled and Legon registered. Lowe grabbed Helson's fly to right.

The Solomon crew got it back in their half. Murray drew a walk. Rose bunted safely but Murray was out trying to go to third on the play. Ross sacrificed Rose to second and Swanston supplied the necessary hit to send him in.

Errors by Primeau and Barrie and single by McCarney. Ross and Swanston gave the Central Ontario Leaguers three in the ourth. There was no further scoring. Ross caught the last two innings for the Petes while Swanston covered first base in the sixth. In the seventh Ray Rose replaced McElroy on the rubber. Pinnette went to right field taking Lowe's place. Swanston took second and Manager Solomon interjected himself into the game at first base. Rose retired Foley and Barrie easily but Legon got a life on Murray's wide throw. Holyman singled to right and Corrin walked filling the bases. Solomon wound up the game by grabbing Jackson's liner. THE CITY LEAGUE GAME

The Y.M.C.A. administered a terrible hooking to the Wm. Hamilton team in the City League fixture beating Joe Murphy's crew by 15 runs to 2. The Red Triangle gang fattened their batting averages to the extent of eighteen safeties. First baseman McWilliams having four lusty wallops in five trips to the plate, while the defence of the losers was lurid, slow fielding in additonto actual errors keeping Cousins in trouble all the way. Kirn pitched for the winners and had an easy task holding the Hamilton crew to six hits without having to extend himself in the least. His team mates gave him the benefit of some nice fielding, two double plays both started by Sheehan being of great assistance. The second two ply killing should have been a triple play but Pogue threw high to first and lost an easy chance for the first triple slaughter of the season.

The Y.M.A. virtually won the game in the first innings. A. Butcher and Pogue started off with singles past third, both of which should have been cut off. Sheehan fanned but Fitzgerald singled past third scoring the pair. Fitzgerald was Williams singled to centre and when Webb let the ball get away Kirn went on the way home. George Butcher wound up the innings in fanning.

Y.M.C.A. picked up another in the second on Callaghan's error, a steal a wild pitch and a fielder's choice and three infield errors gave them a counter in the fourth.

Hamilton's got their only runs in their half of this innings. Murphy singled to start with and errors by Pogue and Alex Butcher and Coursey's hit through the box gave the losers a pair of perfectly useless counters.

The Y got them back in the next innings when Sheehan singled to left with the bases full and two out sending in Herbison and Alex. Butcher.

The sixth was a nightmare with two out. McWilliams doubled, G. Butcher, Herbison, Hopkins, Alex. Butcher and Pogue singled in succession and Coursey dropped Sheehan's fly, the batting bee netting the Y.M.C.A. final runs.

They got three more to wind up with in the seventh on singles by Fitzgerald, McWilliams and George Butcher and Hambly's error.

BISONS WIN OUT IN THE EIGHTH

WINTER GOES TO PIECES AND BUFFALO SCORES NINE RUNS.

BUFFALO, June 6. — As if it wasn't affront enough to inyade the home roost of the Leafs and deliver a three-ply defeat as they did last week, the Bisons invited the Doyle men over here and then proceeded to give their guests an 11 to 6 trimming yesterday. From the finest sort of a struggle for seven stanzas that one would want to witness, the game ended in an old-time swatfest, and the curtain was rung down only after two and one-half hours of play. Before the ninth inning had been completed it was necessary for the respective managers to call upon reserve pitching strength. Right here let it be known that it was well for the Herd that they staged a big eighth-inning rally, which was productive of nine large counters, for the Leafs drove Heitman to the showers, and were getting well acquainted with the offerings of "Lefty" Werre, when a fast double play in the ninth, with three runs in, one out and three on bases, sent the fans home rejoicing.

For seven innings it was a stellar performance that the ex-Giant, Jesse Winters, was giving, while his teammates just managed to keep in front of the herd, but Winters "blew up" in the eighth, and Fortune, who relieved him, proved just as easy, thirteen Bisons going to bat. The game was not without its petty arguments.

TORONTO WIN TWO AT STARS' EXPENSE

THOMPSON AND FULLERTON DO THEIR PART—POUND BALL IN SECOND.

TORONTO, June 6.— Thanks to the splendid pitching of "Tommy" Thompson in the first game and the timely hitting of the Leafs late in the second, the locals won both ends of Saturday's doubleheader against Syracuse. Thompson, who turned in his third consecutive victory, had the visitors at his mercy, restricting them to six scattered hits and one run, while the Leafs made ten hits and scored three runs. The score in the second engagement was 7 to 6, with the locals coming from behind to snatch the victory.

OSHAWA AND BELLEVILLE CENTRAL LEAGUE WINNERS

There were two lively battles in the Central Ontario League race on Saturday. Belleville visited Cobourg and managed to break into the win column by nosing out Slick Mulhall's braves by 3 to 2. It was a close fit and anybody's game until the last out.

The Port Hope Ontarios made their record three straight losses when they were beaten 5 to 2 at Oshawa. An Oshawa despatch says:

OSHAWA, June 5. — By Bunching hits in third and sixth innings Oshawa defeated Port Hope here yesterday afternoon, to 2, in a Central Ontario League game, which was one of the best played on local grounds this season. Dainty, pitching for Oshawa, had 17 strike-outs to his credit and allowed only 3 hits. He also hit a home run to deep centre with nobody on bases, in the third, after two runners had scored. In the fifth frame, Dobson, the local first baseman, in an attempt to catch a foul ball out on the racetrack, ran into a wire that been strung across the gateway, receiving a bad cut on the chin and then throwing him in a dazed condition on the ground. He was taken to his home in a car and Wilson replaced him at the initial sack. The score:

GOAT FARMING IN CANADA PAYS

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Barker own and manage the largest goat farm in Canada situated just off the paved highway a short distance out from New Westminster, in Surrey municipality. They lived in Burnaby prior to taking over fifty acres in their present location. They moved on to the El-Bar ranch, as they call their goat farm, on May 1, last year. Mr Barker has kept goats—or allowed goats to keep him—for years now, but it was not until after his discharge after service in the great war that he turned his attention to it on a large scale. In an enclosure just off the paved highway he has now a flock of kids whose antics are visible from the highway. How attractive the sight is may be judged from the fact that the average number of visitors, counting youngsters, who often have automobiles using the highway, stopped for a closer view of this unique farm, on Sundays, so far this spring is well over 2,000—and is mounting every week.

Over Hundred Goats.

It isn't often a herd of well over a hundred goats can be seen—in fact nowhere else in Canada is it possible, and the goats, especially the kids, are well worth seeing. They do the doubleswerve high jump quite casually, they investigate every new thing that comes along, a climb to the top of an automobile is nothing to them, and a truck laden with shingle bolts or lumber, or in fact anything, affords them just the perch they love from which to view the countryside and upon which to perform diverting antics. They are dainty feeders—probably that was why they, or one of them, browsed quietly upon the outline of a poem to Spring in the pocket of the writer when he visited the farm on behalf of The British Columbian.

Pay Handsomely.

Moreover, they pay, and pay handsomely. Quite a number of the does on this farm yield more milk than the average farm cow—and that's going some. And they do not give off an unpleasant odor—in fact the does are absolutely odorless. There are over 120 does here, and the six males are separately housed some distance from the other buildings. The males have a characteristic odor, but when they are properly looked after it is nothing like what alleged comic pictures and stories make out.

To cinch this mistaken impression regarding even male goats, list to the testimony of Mrs. Barker. "The buck goat is the most maligned animal in the world," she said. "When properly looked after it is docile, clean, dainty and affectionate. He is the member of the family who has an odor, but it is nothing like so objectionable as made out to be by ignorant persons.

"The big majority of buck goats can easily be handled by a woman; we have six here and I handle them without any trouble at all. Young withers make ideal pets, and are profitable to raise for mutton, or goat flesh." This is the opinion of the lady who has admittedly much to do with the outtanding success achieved by the largest goat farm in Canada.

Goat Milk in Demand.

Mr. and Mrs. Barker gave particulars of their farm, from which the following imperfect outline is derived. Their goats are all of the Saanen and Toggenburg breeds. They run their herd around 125. The number is slightly over that now, and will be increased by another 30 at least within a month. They have a herd of kids which is an endless delight, besides being a source of prospective revenue. They sell all the milk and other products they can produce easily—many people go right out to the ranch from New Westminster and Vancouver to get goats' milk for the use of delicate babies and invalids. It sells for 40 cents per quart. On this farm are the first pure bred goats ever born in Canada. Goats' milk is immune from tuberculosis—that is an established fact. Goat flesh cannot be distinguished from the best grade of mutton, and in Kansas City is selling in large quantities right now for more money than lamb or mutton. So great is the demand for breeding stock that the Barkers export animals from their herd all over Canada—recent shipments were to Ontario, Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Big Milk Producers.

Does start to give milk at fifteen months to two years of age, when grade does are worth from $75 to $150 each, and purebreds from $300 to $2,000 apiece. Polly-Mac, the acme of perfection in Toggenburg does so far, belongs to a Mr. McLaughlin, who lives at the La Crescenta ranch, California. Polly weighs 152 pounds, and in 341 days on official test gave over 26 times her weight in milk. Possum Sweetheart, the world's greatest cow, was a whole year producing just over 22 times her weight in milk. Besides this Polly dropped within one year two sets of quintuplets, all large vigorous kids which puts her so far ahead of the performance of the greatest cow as to make the latter seem very tame. Polly-Mac exceeded 4,000 pounds of milk production in one year. An offer of $5,000 has been refused for her.

5,000 Goats in B. C.

As evidence of the way goats are forging ahead in popularity in B.C. is the fact that there are now around 5,000 goats in the province, valued at $200,000, with an estimated milk production last year of 75,000 gallons. That output of milk, at the low valuation of 15c per quart, is worth $45,000. Mr. Barker gets 40c per quart for goats milk. If the value of the 1920 crop of kids is added to the milk production, say $25,000 at a very conservative estimate, $70,000 is the value of production in the goat industry in B.C., for last year, which is equal to he value of the wool grown in the province that year.

A milking goat is supposed to be at her best from 5 to 8 years of age, says Mr. Barker, and will continue to give milk until 12 or 14 years old, starting at about 18 months, and is bred once a year. The fat globules of goats' milk are only one-third the size of those in cows' milk, and the milk is easier digested on that account. A good grade does gives around 150 gallons of milk per year, worth here only 15c per quart, and can usually be reckoned on for twin kids in addition. The pure bred gives more milk, though there is no equally marked variation in its quality.

Cheese and Butter.

Mrs. Barker makes several varieties of cheese from goats' milk and all the butter for her own household use. Goats' butter is pure white in color—if colored it cannot be distinguished from cows' butter. The best known of Mrs. Barker's goat cheese are the soft cream, like Devonshire cream, and the hard Roquefort variety. This latter is beloved by Italians for use in the preparation of a standard macaroni dish—Italians from a wide area besiege Mrs. Barker for her Roquefort cheese.

The churn for making butter from goats' milk costs $2.50, and the separator $19. The implements are small in size and are easily handled and cleaned. As to feed, the California University sets the proportion at ten goats to one cow—ten goats can be kept for the cost of feed for one cow.

Took 130 Prizes.

This herd took 130 prizes at last year's B.C. exhibitions. Several of the does are yielding over a gallon of milk per day now—a revenue of $1.60 per day each. Their manure is very valuable—in California herds of goats are run specially to fertilize orange groves. The revenue from kids is no negligible part of the goat farmer's income. This year a pure bred Toggenburg doe presented Mr. Barker with triplet doe kids—worth from $200 to $300 each at five months.

Goat buttermilk is a famous health beverage—the original Bulgarian buttermilk is said to have prolonged the lives of the patriarchs of old into the hundreds of years, and is eagerly sought after now by persons of weak digestion or afflicted with stomach trouble.

ESPECIALLY THESE DAYS.

Mrs. Chapman Catt, the eminent suffragist, said at a dinner in Washington:

"Women in business are more honest than men. For instance, they can't be bribed."

"No?" said the senator.

"No," said Mr. Chapman Catt. "But men now—well, every man has his price."

"And hasn't every woman," the senator retorted, "hasn't every woman especially these days, her figure?"

HE REJOICES OVER HIS GOOD FORTUNE

ONTARIO FARMER SAYS HE IS LIKE BRAND NEW MAN SINCE HE STARTED ON TANLAC.

"It would make anybody rejoice to get the wonderful relief I have," declared Adam Book, well-known farmer residing at Ancaster, Ontario, while relating his experience with Tanlac at the Parke and Parke Drug Store in Hamilton a few days ago.

"At the time I began taking Tanlac I had been suffering with acute attacks of indigestion for a long time. Often it seemed that my time had surely come. After each meal gas would form on my stomach and bloat me up so I could hardly get my breath. My appetite was very poor most of the time, and I had severe attacks of biliousness when I got so dizzy I could hardly stand up. I suffered from constipation, and most of the time I had a terrible headache. My right shoulder ached so I could hardly get my coat on, and at times I ached and hurt all over. My nerves were in an awful condition, and I scarcely slept any. Mornings I got up feeling dull and heavy, and could hardly do any work at all.

"But the first few doses of Tanlac got me to feeling better. I have taken four bottles now, and my appetite is good, and I never have a trace of indigestion or biliousness. I have no more aches or pains of any kind, and am feeling like a brand new man. I certainly am grateful for what Tanlac has done for me, and am glad to recommend it to anyone needing medicine."

BASEBALL

There is liveliness in Mercantile League Circles. The Lock Works have entered a protest against the Cressman team's win last Friday evening, claiming that the winners used more outside players than was permissable under the constitution. A meeting of the League will be held early this week.

FIRST JAZZ HOUNDS WERE PERUVIAN INDIANS

Originated Fox Trot and Shimmy.

New York, May 18.—The shimmy, the one-step and the jazz music, are as old as the hills and the ancient melody-loving inhabitants of Peru were the first to produce them. And to make their claim secure for all time they inscribed the figures of the dance on their prehistoric pottery and metal so that when future aracheologists sought proof of their claim there would be no doubt about it.

Sure enough, their claim to fame as the originators of the trots that make life worth living for a lot of light footed persons, has been found by Charles W. Mead, assistant curator of the Department of Anthropology in the American Museum of Natural History.

This discovery, incidentally, blasts the theory that jazz first a product of the now extinct Barbary Coast in San Francisco where adventurers since the days of '49 whirled with the girls of the dance halls.

And that isn't all—they have dug from the ruins of old Peru such instruments of jazz as the drum, the cymbal, the rattle, the pipe, the flute, the whistle, the trumpet and other devices of sundry character.

It also is recorded that the Huancas, a particularly warlike Peruvian tribe, made their drums from the skins of their enemies and the music, it is declared, was even more terrible than the jazz of today.

The ancent popularity of the jazz and shimmy is attested by the abundance of dancing figures on most of the pottery which has been unearthed and is in possession of the American Museum o Natural History.

THE RESTLESS EARTH.

No portion o the earth's surface is ever at rest, though all but the great movements of earthquakes escaped attention until recent years. The minute vibrations are followed by J. J. Shaw in "Nature" as an unending train of waves, waxing and waning in amplitude, that are unceasingly coursing along the earth's crust, and reach to unknown depths. The wave period ranges between 4 and 8 seconds; the amplitude is between one 50,000th and one 2,000th of an inch, but with a wave length of 8 to 16 miles. The speed of the waves is believed to be about 2 miles per second. Such local causes as air tremors and the swaying of buildings and trees were formerly suggested, but it is now known that they are widespreading earth movements. Earthquakes are easily followed on the recording apparatus by the primary and secondary phases and the long waves rising to a maximum. The minor movements—microseisms—are not easily separated from one another, and there has been no means of studying their propagation. But recently, certain tremors have been traced on recording instruments, 60 feet apart. Continuing the investigation, the range has been extended to 2 miles, and it has been made practicable to pick out individual tremors on the two sets of records.

OBITUARY

JOSEPH AUSTIN O'HERON.

The death occurred on Sunday morning at 10.30 a.m. at the family residence, of Joseph Austin, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert O'Heron. The deceased was 18 months old. Interment took place at 3.30 yesterday afternoon to St. Peter's cemetery.

MRS. EDMUND (TED) PILLING.

Following an operation a week ago the death occurred last night of Bertha L. Chapman, wife of Mr. Edmund Pilling, aged 32 years. Mrs. Pilling is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chapman, formerly of Peterborough now living in Douro township. She is survived by her husband and four little children, Walter, eleven, Margaret, Ina and Ted, the youngest. Her parents and three brothers, William of Welland, Clifford and Albert at home, and four sisters, Mrs. George Foster of this city, Mrs. John Foster of Smith, Mrs. M. Pammett and Annie of this city, survive. The sorrowing husband and family will have the sympathy of the community in their bereavement.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 2.30 p.m. from the family residence, 294 Lake street, to Little Lake cemetery.

JOHN KELLY.

Death removed a well-known resident of this city in Toronto yesterday in the person of John Kelly. Deceased had been in failing health for some time, death occurring at St. Michael's Hospital. Mr. Kelly was 78 years old, a native of Peterborough, and was widely known and universally respected. Till 25 years ago he was superintendent of the Little Lake Cemetery, a position he had held for 17 years. His wife predeceased him some years ago. Six sons, William of Chicago, John of Detroit, Michael of Buffalo, Dr. T. Kelly of Mount Pleasant, Michigan, James of Pittsburgh, and George at home, survive, and three daughters, Mrs. R. Sheehy, Mrs. J. T. Donoghue, and Mary at home.

The funeral will be held at 9 a.m. to-morrow from 257 Rubidge Street to Peter's Church and Cemetery.

AUTO BRAKES JAMMED; NARROWLY ESCAPED DEATH

COBOURG, June 6.—J. W. Rorabeck and E. W. White, of this town, had a thrilling experience at Colborne, when they narrowly escaped death on the railway.

They were driving in an auto toward the G.T.R. tracks, and came on a slowly moving freight train near the C.P.R. station. The brakes on the auto refused to work, and the car ran into the freight train, breaking off both front wheels and the lamps of the car. Fortunately neither of the occupants were injured.

She was accompanied by Miss Agnes Logan, also of Peterborough. Mesdames Dawson, Tate and Fawcett and Miss Adcock contributed vocal selections, which were much appreciated.

The village was startled about ten o'clock on Sunday night by the fire bell. The fire, which was in the hardware store of Mr. W. W. Leonard, was discovered in time, and in a few minutes, thanks to prompt measures, the fire was extinguished

SKIN OFF PINEAPPLE VAUSES BABY'S DEATH

OTTAWA, June 4.—Little Wesley Edward, only child of Mr. and Mrs. W. Shepherd, Ottawa, met his death through swallowing a piece of pineapple skin, which resulted in a fatal attack of congestion of the lungs. When his mother was pealing the pineapple, the baby, aged one year and five months, came up behind her, grabbed a piece of the skin and swallowed it before she realized what he was doing. The skin lodged in the lungs and the child passed away after five days of intense suffering, the skill of specialists proving of no avail.

Peanuts will give off about half their weight in a clear oil.

IMPROVEMENT IN GENERAL BUSINESS

Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P., returned home from the session of the House of Commons on Sunday morning, as the House prorogued Saturday night.

He said he was much gratified with the action of Sir Henry Drayton, the Minister of Finance, in taking off the tax on foods in package form, including oatmeal, rolled oats, corn flour, corn meal and flour.

Mr. Gordon further said that one of the large millers stated that this would save the families who bought usually in less than forty-eight-pound lots, one million dollars per year, which it would have increased the price of these goods to the consuming public.

In addition to that, Mr. Gordon intimated the removal of this taxation will preserve the small package business of the different cereal mills in Canada, and put them on a competing basis against the United States mills.

According to the Federal member, there were many hopeful signs of improvement generally in business throughout the country which were expected by many men in business to improve conditions in the very near future.

LITTLE LAKE CEMETERY

Summer Work Progressing Rapidly —The Grounds Resuming their Usual Beauty.

Visitors to the Little Lake Cemetery are growing daily in increasing numbers, now that the summer sun and rain are beginning to transform the winter aspect into a gladsome summer attractiveness. Superintendent James and his men are right into their busy season. Every day now finds them engaged throughout the grounds filling in the beds with fresh blooms and plants and clearing up and decorating the grounds. The grass,—wearing a lovely shade of dark green, has recently been cut and cleared and the walks cleaned up in a thorough and tasty manner.

The superintendent has designed three new large ornamental beds at the main entrance to the Cemetery, which, when completed, he expects to make additional beauty spots in this section.

The well kept large greenhouses in connection with the cemetery are filled with vigorous growing blooming and foliage plants of unusual beauty and variety. The principal supplies for the cemetery are taken om these greenhouses for bedding plants and large urns. Some idea of the extent of this work may be gathered from the fact that upwards of 700 large urns have to be filled with plants this year, and placed on their respective plots throughout the cemetery.

Decoration Day this year will be Sunday, the 26th of June, which is a week or two later than usual.

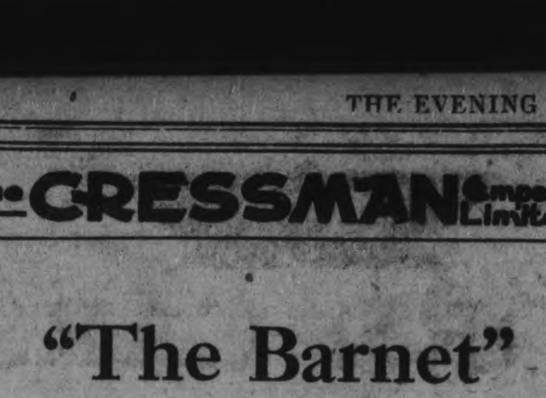
"The Barnet"

America's Finest Refrigerator Is Canadian Made

THE BARNET has repeatedly demonstrated its superiority to such good effect that it is to-day conceded to be North America's finest household refrigerator! It is in active demand all over Canada, as well as in the United States and Great Britain.

And it is made in Renfrew, Canada, by Canadian workmen, with Canadian capital, from Canadian materials.

Read right through this advertisement. Then you will begin to get an idea of what The Barnet can do.



Doing without a Barnet is wasteful and often means using contaminated foods.

Points of Barnet Superiority

- Barnet is Ventilated.
- Foods do not Taint or Contaminate one another.
- Has no Drain Pipe.
- No Foul Odours.
- No Breeding Place for Germs.
- Easy to Clean.
- Air Circulates in Barnet.
- Interior always Bone Dry.
- Has Eleven Walls of Insulation.
- Lowest Temperature for Ice Consumed.
- Has Adjustable Shelves.

Always Clean and Sweet

The outstanding feature of this splendid Refrigerator is that it is always sweet smelling, fresh and pure. No foul odours; no heavy food gases; no stagnant air. It will preserve food perfectly for unbelievably long periods —no danger of contamination by germs—no possibility of souring.

Milk, for instance, children's most used food, is a magnet for germs in the ordinary Refrigerator. But not if the Milk is kept in a Barnet.

Now here is the reason.

The Barnet Is Ventilated!

Without Ventilation perfect refrigeration is absolutely impossible. There is no getting away from that. It doesn't matter how cold the food is kept there must be some way for the food odours and food gases to escape — ventilation.

If they cannot get out, these gases at once set up contamination — souring—spoilage. The foods begin to taint one another — oniony milk, fishy butter.

The Barnet is ventilated. The gases and food odours rise, pass through small vents in the top, travel through a passage way, then out to the open through a small outlet at the rear top of the refrigerator.

Thanks to this ventilation system (Patented under No. 121577) foods cannot become tainted in a Barnet. No other Refrigerator has this exclusive system.

NEWS OF COLORADO FLOODS OBTAINED IN FACE OF DANGER AND DIFFICULTY

FIRST NEWSPAPERMEN TO REACH PUEBLO WENT BY AIRPLANE—ONLY ONE UNCERTAIN WIRE CONNECTING THEM WITH OUTSIDE WORLD—TELEGRAPH OPERATORS STAYED AT POSTS TILL WATER REACHED THEIR FEET.

DENVER, June 9. — Information in regard to conditions in flood-stricken and isolated Pueblo, was obtained and forwarded to the outside world under conditions that were trying and hazardous.

The first news of the disaster came to Denver over the Associated Press leased wire, and a Western Union Telegraph Company wire almost simultaneously. A few minutes after the Associated Press wire lost Pueblo, the last Western Union operator to brave the rush of the waters wired to the Denver office:

"I am going to beat it, the water is around my feet." That was Friday night.

After that it was hours before communication and the rest of the country was restored over one of the Western Union wires. The first outside newspaper men to reach the flooded city were two Denver correspondents. One was an Associated Press man and the other a staff correspondent of the Denver Times newspaper. They went together early on Saturday morning in an airplane from this city.

Later two more Associated Press correspondents and an Associated Press correspondent went to Colorado Springs from Denver by train, and from Colorado Springs to Pueblo by automobile and on foot. The trains could not get within miles of the business section of the city and automobiles that managed to get around washouts on the roads, had to stop at the city limits. Colorado Springs newspaper men also succeeded in reaching Pueblo late on Saturday.

News of the conditions in Pueblo was obtained under the greatest difficulties. The local newspapers, the police, the fire department, the military and the Red Cross were the first sources of information, as the high water and the vigilance of the military guards made it impossible to get first hand information until military passes had been obtained, provision made for getting through the mud, water and fires that overwhelmed city. Correspondents had to work in relays to keep in contact with the lone wire (and an uncertain wire at that) which connected Pueblo with Denver, the distributing centre for news which dribbled out from the city.

Newspaper men in Pueblo witnessed of the disaster from the tops of buildings. They also used boats. The military wigwagged information when distance made it impossible to hear the human voice. Fire whistles served as signals for more urgent information. Half nude and intrepid swimmers, many of them negroes, served as couriers.

GRAVE DANGER IF IMMIGRANTS ARE NOT ADMITTED

PORTS OF NEW YORK ARE NOW CONGESTED.

Commissioner Predicts Outbreak of Disease.

Must Remain on Boats For Another Month.

NEW YORK, June 9.—Congress must pass emergency legislation to admit thousands of Italian immigrants now in this port or en route, "or they will die like flies," Frederick A. Wallis, New York immigration commissioner, declared yesterday.

These immigrants are held up here under the new law which restricts immigration to a certain annual percentage of the various nationalities already in this country.

Wallis declared that because of crowded conditions and the dangers of disease epidemic, especially after the immigrants have spent a fortnight or more on the voyage across, if they are held a month longer—as required by the law—"the situation will be indescribable."

"Die Like Flies."

"They will die like flies."

The day following application of the law he had 4,300 Italian immigrants in port," he said. "Our allotment for June is 2,500. We have to-day 1,200 more Italians in the port than can be admitted this month, under the law.

"During the closing days of May and up to June 3, the day the law became effective, the race for the United States began. All ships arriving in port before midnight, June 3, were to be exempt from the new law. Only one of dozens of immigrant-loaded ships arrived ahead of the midnight deadline.

"I immediately called authorities at Washington for instructions. Solicitor-General Risley hurried to New York and spent some time with me going over the situation. Secretary Davis was also here.

His Hands Tied.

"Under the law I am powerless to act to relieve the situation. I can't let them in. I can't let them land. They must remain in the boats, crowded, without proper attention, until another month passes. This is a horrible thing to think of. Congress must act and act at once, on some sort of emergency legislation to admit all persons in port or now on the waters en route here, under the distinct understanding that those admitted would be charged up against the year's allotment."

All nationalities are pouring into this country, Wallis declared. The big problem is the Italian and Jewish immigrants. They would overrun their quota early every month, he said.

System Unworkable.

"We had thought that different ports might help each other by trading quotas. But that will not work. The Boston authorities called up and asked if we could take some of their Italian immigrants off their hands. We asked Boston if they couldn't help us out. And there you are—the situation is impossible.

"On a small scare, other nationalities will give us trouble. Monday the little duchy of Luxemburg exceeded its quota by one person."

Question of Humanity.

Wallis declared that in such a crisis "humanity should rule," regardless of quotas, percentages and what nots. "And," the commissioner declared, "something must be done to stop the illegal transportation of these helpless foreigners.

"The only thing that will prevent the bringing of these peoples to the United States in violation of the law is immediate action by the Federal Government."

The Commissioner asserted that the ships housing the immigrants "might better be sunk than lie in port until July," as they must do under present regulations.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Sir: Although I am only one of the vast number calling this meeting for to-morrow night I am sure that if the members of the old executive will come to that meeting as Liberal-Conservatives, like the rest of us, we will be able to have a friendly conference, and that which should have been done before the last election, can be done now, that is have a distinct understanding and prevet disunion.

J. H. BURNHAM.

Sir.—At the matter of traffic regulation is being considered, I would call attention to a serious blocade of traffic on George street caused by autos parked where the street railway is double tracked.

Parking of cars should be entirely prohibited along the double track section, and in justice to traffic on the main street parking for more than five minutes should not be allowed.

I have repeatedly encountered a large car that parks on George street just south of Charlotte, where the tracks are double and it stands there for hours at a time. As motorists we must recognize that that streets are primarily for traffic and not for storage.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 9.—(Canadian Press). — Stocks of every description were severely depressed at the opening of to-day's session. The further collapse of foreign exchange, which forced London quotations under $3.70, was one of the disturbing factors. The proposed heavy export tax on Mexican Oils was another unfavorable development. Within the first few minutes of active trading, Mexican Petroleum registered a decline of four points, and Pan-American Petroleum lost six points. Other Oils, as well as Steels, Equipments, Motors and specialties, were materially lower. U.S. Steel fell almost one point to 77¼, a new low quotation for the year.

The market continued to sag during the morning. Oils and Steels bore the brunt of the decline many of those issues establishing new low records for the year. Equipments, Shippings, Coppers, Rubbers, Chemicals and Tobaccos were swept into the selling movement. The weakness of numerous unclassified specialties denoted renewed liquidation of speculative accounts. Rails were comparatively steady although a few of the high grade issues showed losses of one to three points. Feeble rallies based on short covering occurred before noon. Call money opened at 6 1-2 per cent., the lowest initial rate in several weeks.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 9.— (Canadian Press.)—Wheat took a decided upward swing in value to-day as a result of the bullish aspect of the government crop report. The weakness of foreign exchange, however, and declines in the stock market tended to check buying. Trade was active and fluctuations rapid. Opening prices, which varied from 1 1-2 to 3 1-2 higher, were followed by a material setback.

Corn lacked support. After opening unchanged to 5 1-8 cents higher, the market underwent a general decline. Oats were depressed by the bearish showing of the government report as to oats. Prices started 1-8 off to 1-4 up and then sagged all around to well below yesterday's finish. Lower quotations on hogs acted as weight on provisions.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, June 9.—(Canadian Press.)— Sterling exchange weak, Demand 3.70 7-8; Canadian Dollars 10 3-4 per cent. discount.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Ont., June 9.—(Canadian Press.)— Further recessions were registered by practically all issues traded in on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, the market failing to maintain the rallying power which led to partial recoveries in the late trading yesterday. Canada Steamships preferred and Spanish River Commons each lost 1 5-8 at 51 3-8 and 63 1-4 respectively while Toronto Railway declined 1 1-2 points to 75, Tuesday's quotation. Mackay was down 1 at 72 and C.P.R. lost a smilar amount at 125. Slight fractional recssions were recorded by Canada Steamships Common, Canada Cement, Twin City and Brazilian.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, June 9.—(Canadian Press).—Cattle receipts light; trade steady. Heavy beef steers, $8.50 to $9; butchers' steers, choice, $8.50 to $9; butcher cows, medium, $4 to $6; calves, $10 to $12; lambs, $15 to $18; hogs, selects, $9.50 to $9.75.

FLOWER SUNDAY AT TRINITY CHURCH.

The Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D., former pastor of Trinity Church, will preach at both services in Trinity Church next Sunday. At the morning service he will speak to the young people, who will occupy the centre seats of the church. The church will be most beautifully decorated with flowers for the occasion. The Sunday School Orchestra of 22 pieces, under the leadership of Mr. Runett Gliddon, will assist in the service. The choir and the school will render special music.

The classes of the Sunday School will meet in the basement of the church at 10.45 a.m., and will march in a body into the church. Every member of the school, from the cradle roll to the home department, is expected to be present. All teachers are requested to meet with their classes.

"GO WEST WITH ZANE GREY," SAYS RAYMOND HITCHCOCK

FAMOUS COMMEDIAN SUGGESTS AS A RECIPE FOR AN IDEAL VACATION A HAMMOCK, A BACK YARD AND A BOOK.

(By Raymond Hitchcock.)

(The best phase of many a holiday is the arrival home again. The famous star of 'Hitchy Koo' and other musical comedies offered the following advice for the guidance and delectation of New York readers but it will carry a certain appeal right here in Peterborough. The burden of his wisdom localised would be the suggestion tion that if you can't go West, see F. M. DelaFosse about it.)

'I have been reading these signs 'Where to go on your vacation,'" the comedian said "and I followed the advice of several. One of them says, 'Why go out of town? Why not take the subway for a nickel and see all the animals, wild and otherwise?' It read so seductively that I purchased a five-cent ticket from a man who shouted 'How many?'—and I no more had it in my hand than another man took it away from me.

"I met the six o'cock crowd going toward Bronx Park which lifted me off my feet put me right in centre of the car, and I never touched the ceiling or the floor till I reached daylight uptown somewhere. When I got there, I found the park was closed.

"Being stout of heart, I read another ad. where it says, 'Ten miles from here! Get pure food and air!'

"Well, after recovering from the ptomaine poisoning, I read another ad. It says, 'Come and paddle on our lake!'

'Now, paddling on any lake sounds well. So I went up to that lake, rented a paddle, and a canoe went with it. I hadn't paddled more'n a block when a female voice said, 'You look lonesome.' I never was noted for being hard-hearted, so I asked her if she didnt want to paddle along with me—and we paddled to a nice overhanging willow tree, and I suggested that we land and make whistles out of the willow branches.

"No more had we landed than a big policeman stepped up and says, 'You gotta keep paddling — it's against the law to land—and you can't float—you just gotta keep paddling.' So that put an awful nail in that vacation.

"I've tried em all, and now I say: 'Why spend the nickel,' Take one of Zane Grey's books in your back yard, hang your hammock under the old umbrella and read his Western stories. You can have 'The golden sunset swept over the valley when a single horseman was silhoutted against the horizon'—and if you have a good imagination, you can say, 'Oh, that's me.' And you're looking for something to eat (because the sinking sun does remind you of dinner), and you've worked up a terrible appetite just thinking you've ridden all day without food. And then you get off your horse and go into the kitchen and say, 'Is dinner ready yet?'—and you're not through the first chapter.

"If you really went West and the sun was sinking and you were tired and dirty and hungry, you'd get a cup of coffee made by a Chinam n out of local mud. One must be rugged to take these vacation trips.

"When you meet the girl as you ride into the village, shes standing at the window waiting for her father to return from the mines. She's a real girl, and you bow to her and ask her to walk under the willows with you. If there weren't any willows, there's mesquite bush.

"No policeman comes up and tells you to keep paddling, and you can make all the love you want to, and when you want to shake her, just close the book.

"No tiresome trip home. No losing your luggage. No having to stay in the house a week afterward to rest up.

"Oh, me for the back yard vacation!"

Women Teachers' Guild Donates Profits Of Concert To Charity

The Women Teachers' Guild of Peterborough, which was responsible for the very successful Spring Festival put on in the Grand Opera House in April, have apportioned the funds received from this concert amongst various charitable and educational enterprises in the society with which the children are connected. Previous to this year, some of the funds went to the upkeep of a little French orphan, but the teachers felt that charity nearer at home might be permissible in view of the existing industrial conditions. So the Children's Aid Society, the Peterborough Health Association and the Playgrounds Association will benefit to the extent of $45 each from the Women Teachers' Guild, while $50 remains in the treasury to be donated to the Red Cross for the proposed War Memorial, should this question arise in the fall.

The Guild, which, at a meeting held in the beginning of the year, was addressed by Mr. A. Mowat on the subject of Canadian authors, and decided to take up the study of Canadian literature for its literary work during the year, has been meeting once a month during the season. At these meetings, some Canadian author has been the subject of discussion and addresses, and the works of Archibald Lampman, Robert Service, Dr. Drummond and Pauline Johnson were among those considered.

The annual picnic of the Teachers' Guild, with which they wind up their teaching year, will be held on June 11th, when they will motor to South Beach for tea.

Catholic Women Ih Convention

With delegates from Vancouver to Nova Scotia and from Newfoundland, the convention of the Catholic Women's League, which was held in Toronto from June 1st to June 5th, was a wonderful success from every point of view. Speakers from many parts of the United States and Canada were present. Addresses were given on "Citizenship," by Mrs. Fee Devine, of Toronto, on "Catholic Alumnae Associations," by Miss Robert Devine of Ottawa, "At the Port of St. John, N.B." by Mrs. J. E. Owens, St. John, on "Catholic Social Service," by Rev .Robt F. Keegan, Secretary for Charities to the Archbishop of New York, on "Our League," by Miss Guerin of Montreal, on "Phases of Child Welfare," by Miss Mary Power, B.A., of Toronto, on "Immigration," by Lady Pope, of Ottawa, on "The Catholic Women's League of the World," by Mrs Geo. H. O'Neil, of Toronto, and "Social Problems," by Judge Jean H. Norris, of New York. The last named lady, who practised law for 11 years, is now Judge of the Women's Court and the Court of Domestic Relations in New York City, and is an outstanding figure in the judiciary of the United States. The courts over which she presides include a larger area and population than any similar tribunals in the world.

Social events in which the delegates from Peterborough participated, were luncheons for the various days of the convention, a garden party at Benvenuto, one at the Scarboro Golf and Country Club, and one at "Ben Macree," at Port Credit, a concert and lecture at Massey Hall, the concert including vocal and instrumental solos by artists in their several lines, a dinner at the King Edward Hotel with nearly 1,000 guests, and speeches from many of the delegates, and a reception and Loretto Convent. The president of the local branch, Mrs. Jas. V. Gallivan, was also present at a luncheon given by the Alumnae of the different Catholic schools in Toronto.

TROUBLED WITH ITCHY ECZEMA

In Rash On Face And Limbs. Cuticura Heals.

"I had been troubled with eczema on my face which took the form of a rash. Later it broke out on my limbs and they itched very much, causing me to scratch them until they were bleeding. The rash would often keep me awake at night.

"I tried some remedies, which failed, and then thought I would try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It was not long till the rash began to disappear, and I used three cakes of Soap and four boxes of Ointment, which healed me." (Signed) W. M. Hymers, Paris, Ont., Sept. 12, 1919.

Peterboro's Gift To Grenfell Work

Mrs. Jas. Wood, who has charge of the sending of goods to the Dr. Grenfell Mission Hospital, shipped a quantity of supplies on Tuesday last, including one large bale of almost 00 lbs., one small bale, four boxes containing new garments, and one large box of groceries, a shipment the aggregate weight of which was nearly 600 lbs. Gifts in cash received from those interested in the work were converted into groceries. As the aim of the ladies is to send a bale of 300 lbs. every year to the Mission, it will be seen that their expectations this season have been more than realized.

The shipment proceeds to Qeubec, where it awaits the arrival of the steamer which conveys it to the Harrington Hospital, one of the chain of the Dr. Grenfell Mission Hospitals in the Canadian Labrador. From Quebec there is no charge for transportation whatever the goods being transported from there to their destination in the Labrador entirely free of charge. They are distributed at the Hospital to those in need of the clothing and supplies, no gifts being made to anyone who is not absolutely in want of such help.

WHAT CLEVER HANDS CAN DO.

Slips for brass beds are practical and decorative. If the following directions are carefully followed, lovely bed covers will be the result.

Take your material, and to a piece of muslin cut the exact size of the top surface of bed springs, sew a straight piece, the width of the distance from the springs to within an inch of the floor, to the two long sides of the muslin oblong. This is placed over the springs and under the mattress, the straight pieces of material serving as a valance. Now cut a length of material, which will reach from the springs on the inside of the head over the top of the head and down the back, to the same distance from the floor as the valance. The sides of this length are joined by a narrow strip, which is cut wider where the joining of the two sides end and is continued down the long side of the material. This extra width of the strip is tucked under the valance on the sides and fastened to it with snappers. The same treatment is given to the foot of the bed. The plain coloured spread is made of a top piece, which is of exact size of mattress and joined at four outer edges to a plain piece of material, which tucks under the mattress and now no gleaming brass is visible, and old-time curves and scrolls are completely gone from view.

Giving the masculine touch of deep colour, slip covers of brown and green plaid ginghams would be welcome additions to a boys room. A little girl would love a slip cover, in which figured material combined with blue charms the eye.

RECORD APPLE CROP IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

CALGARY, Alta. June 8.—(Canadian Press).—Everything points to a record apple crop in British Columbia this year, and if nothing unforeseen happens, the prairie markets are assured of a good supply of high grade apples, according to J. A. Grant, British Columbia fruit commissioner for Alberta. Mr. Grant estimates that five thousands cars of apples will be shipped out of British Columbia this year, which is an increase of nearly 100 per cent over last year's output.

Beauty Comes From Within

"Though we travel the world over to find the beautiful, we must carry it with us or we find it not. The best of beauty is a finer charm than skill in surfaces, in outlines or rules of art can ever teach—namely, a radiation from the work of art of human character—a wonderful expression through stone or canvas or musical sound of the deepest and simplest attributes of our nature."—Emerson.

I.O.D.E. In Convention

The 21st annual meeting of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire closed on last Saturday evening at Convocation Hall Several new proposals were put forward, one from Quebec suggesting that the I.O.DE. offer a prize annually for the best book of prose or verse of the year written by a Canadian. A collection was taken up at this concluding meeting for a treat for the blind soldiers of Pearson Hall.

The Municipal Chapter of Quebec recommended in a resolution, that, "whereas money is required in many phases of work in which the Daughters of the Empire are engaged, this chapter feels that no money should be spent by the Order on personal gifts; that in the opinion of this chapter, no Daughter of the Empire wishes for any recognition or reward of her services, the aims and ideals of the Order being so high." This resolution was considered as a recommendation to be sent to the chapters, not as a legislation positively forbidding the practice.

A recommendation for the establishment in each chapter of a convention fund was endorsed, as was also a resolution to create a new office, that of National Echoes' secretary. The vexed question of "delegates" voting, preferred by the Order to the term proxy was discussed, and it was finally decided to leave the constitution as it was for the present owing to the difficulty in providing a better method of proportional representation.

Practical Hints

Sometimes the best part of the potato is thrown away merely because of carelessness in peeling Close to the skin are the mineral salts, which are just as valuable as the starchy component of potatoes If the potatoes are pared thickly this will be thrown away.

Potatoes should not be pared, but scraped, being held under cold water during the process. With the new potatoes this is very quickly done — in fact, sometimes a good stiff brush will remove from new potatoes the tissue-like outer skin, and then nothing is wasted.

Old potatoes are really much better for creaming than new ones. New potatoes are a trifle too hard to make a smooth vegetable. Let the old "murphies" stand in cold water after dicing for an hour, and the result will be as it should.

Dishes that have held milk are apt to be rather horrid things for the uninitiated to wash. If you have ever thoughtlessly put a milk bottle into the sudsy dish water you have caused a most unpleasant condition of affairs.

All milk bottles and pitchers and bowls shohld be put into cold water before attempting to wash them. Any dishes or pans that have milk sticking to them will wash easier if put to soak in salt water.

After all traces of milk are removed the utensils may be washed in hot suds and no slipperiness be made. Anything that has rontained milk or will contain milk should be very carefully washed and scalded and be perfectly sterile before milk is put into it.

FIRST SKYSCRAPER CHURCH.

Opened in Office Building in New York By Christian Scientists.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The first church to be built within a skyscraper in the world has been opened. This was the Fifth Church of Christ Scientist, which has been holding worship in Aheolian Hall Its new quarters are within the twenty-one story building known as the Madison Avenue Offices, and occupy five floors of that section known as the Canadian Pacific Building, 9 East Forty-third Street.

There are four Ionic columns of Kasota marble on either side supporting a balcony which runs on three sides of the auditorium. Above, rising to the full height of the five stories, is a panelled arch of plaster, and carved stone, the interior being furnished in cream and ivory tones.

Opera seats will be set in rows of American walnut inlaid with white ivory and upholstered in old blue. An organ, costing almost $35,000 will be installed over the reader's desk. Carpets and hangings will also be in old blue. The floor will be of Terazziz cloisonne marble.

The seating capacity is more than 1,700, and the Sunday school-rooms will accommodate 600 pupils.

PICNIC AT APSLEY ON DOMINION DAY.

The Apsley Methodist Church are holding their annual picnic, bazaar and sports on Friday, July 1st, in the Parsonage grounds. A fine programme of sports, baseball match will be run off, and dinner and supper served. The residents of the district are expected to be on hand in large numbers.

THE HOME CIRCLE

CHEERING SOMEONE

Don't you mind about the triumphs,
Don't you worry after fame;
Don't you grieve about succeeding,
Let the future guard your name.
All the best in life's the simplest,
Love will last when wealth is gone;
Just be glad that you are living,
And keep cheering someone on.

Let your neighbors have the blossoms
Let your comrades wear the crown;
Never mind the little setbacks
Nor the blows that knock you down.
You'll be there when they're forgotten,
You'll be glad with youth and dawn,
If you just forget your troubles
And keep cheering someone on.

There's a lot of sorrow round you,
Lots of lonesomeness and tears;
Lots of heartache and of worry
Through ths shadows of the years.
And the world needs more than riumphs;
More than all the swords we've drawn,
It is hungering for the fellow
Who keeps cheering others on.

Let the wind around you whistle,
And the storms around you play;
You'll be there with brawn and gristle
When the, conquerors decay.
You'll be here in memories sweetened
In the soul's you savd from pawn
If you put aside the victories
And keep cheering someone on.

THE KEYNOTE OF HAPPINESS

How few women realize when they are railing against man—his faults and deficiencies—how largely they have themselves to blame for the masculine failings. The men who make bad husbands, nine times out of ten have had weak, querilous, irritable mothers, and women they marry, as a rule content themselves with resenting the fact of their shortcomings without making any strenuous efforts to rectify them. So history repeats itself, and the sons, like their fathers before them, grow up in an atmosphere filled with bickerings and dissensions. How can great and good men be the product of such lives? The sooner that women awaken to a thorough understanding that the key note to all family happiness is harmony, and that it devolves upon them alone to establish that harmony, there will be more heard of domestic felicity and less of the "new women." Every man, no matter how viciously inclined, clings to his ideal when he can find one, and it is surprising how they sometimes manage to defy the most ordinary of feminine mortals. If each and every woman would determine to be worthy of deification by the man she loves, that man (were he rightly called), would be inspired by her example, and the desire to rise to her level would soon find place in his heart. We don't say that this is an easy part for a woman to play, but simply it is better than being content to slip down off the pedestal that man would place her on, and insisting upon being made of no finer clay than he.

BOOKS

Few finer tributes to books have ever been paid than this of Henry Ward Beecher:

"When, one by one, a loving student has gathered from all departments of human learning a multitude of books, they are not alabaster vases filled with the sweetest perfume of the human soul, they are living creatures; they are companions; they have received the homage of our best hours. We have hung our hearts upon them, as they prang from the noblest parts of their authors ,they are clothed with the noblest associations of our own lives."

Nothing gives more serenity to old age and so fortifies against inward or outward woes as collection of good books. The young couple who are wasting their income in a mad effort to keep pace with all that shifting fashions demand in clothes could insure far greater happiness for the future by investing in a modest library as they go along.

There is no duty we so much underrate as the duty of being happy. By being happy, we sow anonymous benefits upon the world, which re main unknown even to ourselves, or when they are disclosed surprise nobody so much as the benefactor.
R. L. Stevenson.

SCOTLAND YARD UNEARTHING ROOTS OF SOVIET PROPAGANDA.

Sensational Discoveries Said to Have Resulted in Raids.

LONDON, June 8 (Associated Press).—Determined efforts are being made by the British Home Office to get at the bottom of Bolshevik propaganda in this country, according to the Daily Sketch, which says that reports have been received of dangerous activities of the Bolsheviki in London and Scotland.

Raids have been carried out by Scotland Yard detectives on alleged Bolshevik meeting places and offices, and it is reported that sensational discoveries have been made.

While searching one building the detectives found a small casket containing ashes which are declared to be those of Rosa Luxemburg (Red Rosa), the German Socialist, who was killed in 1919 about the same time as Karl Liebnecht, the Communist agitator.

CHOICE RECIPES

By A. L. WYMAN, Chef.

On my return to New York I was asked what I thought of the Boston markets and I told my inquirer that they were the best that I had ever visited, especially the fish markets. No city in this country has such an abundance of delicious sea foods for sale all the year round and Boston cooks excel in their preparation. At the largest market restaurant the chef gave me some of his old and best recipes and this is the one I liked the best:

Boston Fish Chowder.

For this chowder fry in the bottom of an iron pot a quarter of a pound of diced salt pork and when the pork is brown add two finely chopped onions and fry brown. Remove the kettle to the side of the stove and lay on the pork and onions a layer of three pounds of halibut cut in three-inch pieces, cover the fish with a layer of sliced raw potatoes and sprinkle with salt and black pepper. Cover with water and boil twenty-five minutes. Pound fine six crackers and add to the chowder; add two cups of rich milk; let it cald well and serve.

Delicious Lobster Chowder.

Lobster chowder is a specialty that is very easy to make and is very nice for a light luncheon. Cut the meat of one cooked lobster into small bits; scald four cups of milk and add one teaspoon of salt, quarter teaspoon of cayenne pepper, two tablespoons butter rolled in one tablespoon of flour, and a pinch of soda, cook one minute and add the lobster simmer five minutes. Split six Boston crackers, spread with butter, dip each piece quickly in boiling water and then place them on the bottom and around the side of a deep soup tureen; turn in the hot chowder and serve immediately.

Boston Deviled Lobster.

For deviled lobster procure a heavy, cooked lobster and split carefully, remove the meat, which should be cut in small pieces, also remove and place on separate plates the fat and coral; rub the coral to a paste with the fat, half a teaspoon of salt, quarter teaspoon of paprika, teaspoon of chopped parsley, teaspoon of lemon juice and a teaspoon of anchovy essence; add the lobster to the sauce and stir well together. Fill the shells with the lobster mixture, sprinkle with bread crumbs, place a few bits of butter on top and brown in the oven.

Creamed Shrimps in Green Peppers.

This is a special served at one of the Boston hotels. Select six even-sized green peppers, remove the stems and seeds, and soak in cold water for forty-five minutes. Cream two tablespoons of butter with a quarter of a teaspoon of pepper, one teaspoon mixed mustard, one-eighth teaspoon celery seed and one beaten egg, when well mixed add half a cup of fine bread crumbs and two cups of cleaned, cooked shrimps. Drain and dry the green peppers and fill with the shrimp mixture, sprinkle with fine bread crumbs and place a piece of butter on each; bake in a quick oven fifteen minutes.

New England Salt Fish Dinner.

This will be a novel and agreeable change for the Friday dinner. Soak a pound of salt codfish in cold water twelve hours. Change the water and cook fifteen minutes. Before boiling the fish, boil some peeled potatoes and when potatoes are half done put on the fish. Cut up one pound of salt pork into tiny fish and place on a hot platter. Put the pork bits in a hot gravy boat and the potatoes in a covered dish To serve, mix the potatoes and fish on your dinner plate and pour over the fried pork bits and bat. Serve with this sour pickles, cornbread and tomato sauce.

Fish Loaf—"New England."

For a fish loaf secure two fillets of halibut weighing about one and a quarter pounds each. On the bottom of a baking dish place three slices of salt pork; on his place one of the halibut slices, cover the fish with one cup of soft bread crumbs mixed with salt, pepper and four tablespoons of melted butter; place on this the other fish slice and cover with three slices of salt pork. Bake thirty minutes and just before it is done remove the top slices of salt pork, cover fish with half a cup of bread crumbs, replace the salt pork and brown in the oven. Serve with egg sauce.

Lunch Fish Mould.

For a luncheon dish, add to two cups of cold cooked fish that has been run through a food chopper one cup of bread crumbs that have been soaked in one cup of boiling water for fifteen minutes, half teaspoon of salt, a dash of paprika, one tablespoon of minced parsley, two tablespoons of melted butter and two well beaten eggs. Pour into a well buttered mould and steam for forty-five minutes. Unmould on a hot platter and serve with tomato sauce.

At the hotel where we stopped in Boston the pastry chef was making his plum puddings and fruit cake for this fall, and as I ha given him some new recipes he gave his recipe for both the pudding and fruit cake, which he told me was over two hundred years old. These recipes had to be changed to comply with the eighteenth amendment.

Italian Fruit Toast.

At an Italian cafe near the Boston market they serve fruit toast. To make cut stale bread in slices, remove the crusts and fry a nice brown in deep fat. Drain and place on a hot plate and pour over a fruit sauce. For the fruit auce place in a saucepan four tablespoons of chop ed seeded raisins, six tablespoons of finely chopped raw ham, a pinch of ground sage, two tablespoons of sugar and three tablespoons of mild vinegar. Cook until a syrup is formed.

Old Style Plum Pudding.

Mix one pound of chopped candied peel with two pounds seeded raisins, two pounds of seedless raisins, one and a half pounds of Sultanas, two pounds of brown sugar, two pounds of bread crumbs, two pounds of finely chopped kidney suet, grated rind and juice of two lemons, grated rind and juice of two oranges, quarter pound of blanched almonds chopped, two nutmegs grated, half a teaspoon of pastry spice, half a teaspoon of salt and seven well beaten eggs. Mix this all thoroughly, place in moulds and boil for twelve hours. When cold place in an air tight container and store in a cool dry place. This should be boiled two hours before serving. This recipe will make seven one-quart puddings.

For the fruit cake substitute flour for the bread crumbs and butter and lard for the suet. In baking the fruit cake place the mixture in well papered pans and bake in a very slow oven.

HAILS THE SHORT SKIRT.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson Declares It's the Outcome of Woman's Freedom.

BOSTON, June 8. — The short skirt is here for ever, in the opinion of Dr. Woods Hutchinson, who says it is the outcome of "freedom in athletics and freedom from household drudgery."

"Everybody is picking on women these days because of their abbreviated skirts," the physician-lecturer-author declared. "Folks are also complaining of her Amazon-like development, her determination to take part in the world's affairs and her refusal to admit herself the inferior of man.

"I, for one, am convinced that the girls of to-day—and the boys, too—are 20 per cent. better than those of the previous generation, which thinks it is so wonderful.

"The short skirt is the outcome of two of the most serious movements in the last forty years. There was a time when people held up their hands in holy horror if a girl so much as climbed a tree or jumped over a ditch. For a girl to take exercise was terrible. A girl's dress was abominable. I am glad to say those days are gone, never to return.

"Now girls dress for their games, and they're better, happier, and more wholesome than ever.

"The second movement was freedom from home drudgery," he continued.

'Housework is a relic of the past "Housework is a relic of the Dark Ages. Women rebel at it, yet I admit dishes won't wash themselves, and even a vacuum cleaner has to be guided.

"The short skirt and the charmingly graceful costume which has built itself up around it, is the healthiest, most beautiful and most artistic gown woman has ever worn," the doctor declared.

He added that men were worried because women were "giving them a run for their money" in business life, and he added the prediction that in this field also the "female of the species" would give the male even more to worry about in the next generation than in the present.

ARCHDEACON DAVIDSON'S WORK SHOWS RESULTS

TORONTO, June 7. — Anglican laymen last evening discussed the value of the work which Archdeacon J. C. Davidson has been performing in holding fraternal men's meetings in the country congregations. The concensus of opinion amongst various clergymen who attended the meeting was that it had been invaluable in stimulating the earnest parish worker to greater efforts, but that it had failed to arouse the indifferent member from his habitual apathy.

J. Edmund Jones thought this problem could only be solved by offering to workers a range of service so varied that each member would feel that his peculiar talents were being particularly appealed to.

Rev. C. A. Seager, who represented the committee from the Synod entrusted with the supervision of Archdeacon Davidson's work, said this was intended primarily to arouse an enthusiasm which the local clergyman could convert into something permanent. The committee would take steps to rectify the deficiency which had so far become apparent.

The laymen were told that Toronto diocese had received well in excess of its $550,000 forward movement objective.

DEFENDS ORIGINAL PURCHASE OF THE CENTRAL ONTARIO POWER SYSTEM

J. E. MIDDLETON CONTENDS THAT THE SAVING TO THE PUBLIC BALANCES THE LOSS OF $2,700,000 ON UNPROFITABLE UTILITIES THAT WERE CAUGHT IN BECK'S BIG GRAB.

(J. E. Middleton, the writer of the following letter, is a propagandist or publicity agent for the Hydro-Electric Commission).

Sir,—Because the Hydro-Electric System is a public institution, any critic feels free to attack it by fair means or foul. So far the system and the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, which has the duty of administration, have withstood successfully a whole series of frontal and flank attacks. If one-tenth of the reckless statements made by malignant critics had been true even in part, the Commission long ago would have lost the confidence of the public, the system would be no better than a tangle of industrial and financial wreckage, and the private exploiters of the people would have a free hand.

Recently the status of The Central Ontario System, controlled and administered by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission on behalf of the Provincial Government, was examined by that independant, judicial authority, The Farmers' Sun. The result of the inquiry appears under a two-column heading:

"Central Ontario Power System a Huge White Elephant Hydro paid $2,700,000 too much. No assets to show for money. Bonds mature in Four Years and No Sinking Fund Provided, etc., etc.,"

The conclusion of the article is as follows: "Sir Adam Beck and the Hydro-Electric Commission take the people's money, spend it as they see fit, get in the hole and adopt methods of financing that would *bankrupt any ordinary concern."

All this is very terrifying. One is surprised that the Hydro-Electric Commissioners have not put up the shutters and given up the ghost. They still venture, however, to walk in the light of day—possibly owing to the fact that The Central Ontario System has accumulated in four years renewal and contingency reserves of $823,273.65. For some odd reason The Farmers' Sun overlooked this trifling sum and made no reference to it whatsoever. Because of that omission the whole article becomes a half-truth, which according to the poverb is always more mischievous than a lie.

Other systems under the control of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission are owned by the participating municipalities. The Central Ontario is on an entirely different basis. It is owned by the Province and is administered by the Commission at the request of the Provincial Government.

Durng the war, while the Hydro-Electric service was stretching to every portion of Western Ontario, there was a measure of discontent in the district east of Oshawa. There seemed to be little possibility of securing for the people a better electrical service or more reasonable rates since most of the sources of energy were in the hands of private companies. The Dominion Government had alienated water rights along the route of the Trent Canal, and the leases were jealously guarded by the holders. The Electric Power Company, under the direction of certain interests in Montreal, had gradually obtained control of some 22 public service companies operating in the region, and had a firm grip on the development rights at the various waterfalls.

Since the Ontario Government favored the policy of recovering, as far as possible, all water-power rights within the Province, negotiations looking towards the purchase of the Electric Power Company's assets were begun. In due course the company named a price of $8,350,000. This was to cover all the property, franchises and rights of the 22 going concerns in the merger.

The original understanding was that the company would take in payment 40-year Provincial bonds bearing interest at 4 per cent. On this basis the purchase was recommended by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. Later the Government consented to a variation of the agreement and undertook to issue 10-year bonds in place of the 40-year securities proposed. The Government took the responsibility, and validated the amended agreement by legislation.

The responsibility of management was laid upon the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. A survey was made. Betterments and extensions of various sorts were recommended and approved, and new development plants were projected to meet the growing demand for power. The Commission takes full responsibility for everything it recommends. Today the Central Ontario system is electrically efficient and reliable from end to end. Its assets are $13,244,480.11. Its reserve for renewals and contingencies, as above stated, are $823,273.65, and experience has shown that the basis of assessment for renewals is unduly conservative. In addition, there is a sinking fund reserve of $21,216.36. At the end of 1920 the system had in reserve, therefore, $844,490.01. So far there is a surplus on operation of some $82,418.93, which reduces the net operating deficits since 1916 to $85,112.51, only about 10 per cent. of the sum held in reserve. Meanwhile the output and sale of energy has increased from an average of about 16,000 horse-power to over 30,000 horse-power.

Complaint is made by the Farmers Sun that $2,700,000 of the original purchase price went for "water rights, franchises, and other assets of an intangible nature, and therefore that the Province paid that money for a gold brick of no value.

Such a criticism is interesting, because in the past the Hydro has been fiercely assailed for alleged unfairness to private capital. The legend is that the Commission bludgeons private investors into parting with their property at a ridiculously low price. These water rights and franchises of Central Ontario were held by a private corporation, having been acquired in good faith from private holders competent to sell them. The theory that they are of no value seems to set the Farmers' Sun on the same bench with the extreme Socialists.

Ordinary folks, jealous for the rights of private capital, and considering the justice of rewarding private enterprise before establishing a public electrical service, will probably consider that the recovery of all rights in falling streams throughout Eastern Ontario is worth $2,700,000, since it frees the public from the incubus of paying dividends to private individuals in perpetuity.

Yours, etc.,
J. E. Middleton.

PRETTY NELSON SISTERS LEAD.

In John Robinson Women Offerings.

The Nelson Sisters, of the John Robinson Circus, are credited with being the greatest wire dancers in the world. Suspended in the air on a fine thread of wire, they perform intricate terpsichorean steps that are the envy of many clever dancers on the solid stage. In the finals of one of their dances they execute a 'split," not with the deliberation that one would think absolutely necessary with such a slender support and with the constant necessity of recovering their equilibrium, but with a rapidity that is said to fairly startle the spectators. The Nelson Sisters are among the ton-line features in the big show and the John Robinson Circus is, indeed, credited with many notable novelties. In the big cities recently played, the features that attracted especial attention, in addition to those already mentioned, were the aerial butterfly ballet, in which a score of young women give a startling exhibition of posing while suspended in mid-air by their teeth; the wonderful Nelson Family of acrobatic somersaulters; the Hanley and Fisher troupes of flying folks; Beatrice Joy, who whirls 120 times in a minute while hanging by her teeth; Mme. Bedini, Irene Montgomery, Cecil Lowanda, the Dills and the Hodgins, all noted riders; the trained elephants and other animals, and the great number and cleverness of the clowns, led by Johnny Lowlow, Jr., the famous droll, son of the beloved Johnny Lowlow, the singing "joey," and there will be a picturesque two-mile-long parade to introduce circus day in Peterborough on Thursday, June 16th.

The coming of this big show will have an especial interest from the fact that it offers as special attraction the noted Robinson animal acts.

NEW FRUIT COMING IN

Many new fruits have appeared in the fruit stores this week. California must truly be the "Sunshine" State, for she has sent some fine examples of Mother Nature's genius to Peterborough.

Cherries are selling at a very high figure—$1.00 a pound; but peaches, apricots, and plums are not much advanced over other years. Peaches are 40 and 50 cents and plums 30 to 40 cents a dozen.

The productive soil of the Pacific Coast has also produced splendid cantaloupes that have recently arrived on the Canadian market, and are selling for 40 and 45 cents.

Lemons are Dearer.

Of interest not only to fruit men, but to restaurants and the army of lemonade devotees, is the rise in the price of lemons. For a case of 270 lemons, a local dealer advised The Examiner that he paid $10.50, laid down in Peterborough — almost 4 cents per lemon! To meet overhead expenses and make a reasonable profit, he has to sell these at 60 cents a dozen, although the smaller ones can be picked out out and sold at 50 cents a dozen This dealer stated that there seemed no possibility of any reduction.

Cardboard Berry Boxes.

Niagara-grown strawberries are selling in the city at 35 to 40 cents a quart box or 20 cents a pint. Only an occasional patch around the city has produced any berries yet, but next week it is expected local growers will have some for the market. The scarcity and high prices of the wooden berry boxes has been felt so severely by the fruit men that the berries are now being put up in stiff cardboard containers. "I never saw anything like them before,' one dealer told The Examiner. The boxes are made of a heavy brown grade of cardboard, well ventilated by holes in the sides of the box; and it is possible that if the prices of the wooden containers remain high cardboard boxes for fruit may come into wider use in this country.

SUGGESTIONS RE WAGES SOLICITED BY ONTARIO BOARD

MINIMUM WAGE OFFICIALS ARE EXTENDING THEIR INVESTIGATIONS.

There are few subjects in which a keener or wider interest is taken than the matter of wages, probably because 90 per cent. of the men and women in this country are dependent directly or indirectly upon their own or someone else's earnings. Realizing that there is a point below which wages for women should not be allowed to fall, the Minimum Wage Board was established by Act of Ontario Legislature in 1920. It has now spent some months in ascertaining just how much a girl must spend in order to obtain the necessities of life. One of the results of their investigating has been the establishing of an order governing the minimum wage which may be paid to women workers in the laundries of Toronto. Under the terms of this ruling experienced female workers employed in such laundries may not be paid wages at a less rate than $12.00 per week.

A survey is now being made of the following industries: Chocolate, biscuit, confectionery and allied industries, paper box, paper bag, stationery and allied industries, retail stores, grocery specialties, gum and jam, with a view to establishing wage rates for girls in these occupations. These orders will first apply to Toronto, but, together with the laundry order, will later be extended to the whole Province. As the cost of living is lower in the smaller towns and cities of the Province, the orders for the Province generally will fix lower minimum than for the larger cities.

Dr. Macmillan, chairman of the Minimum Wage Board, Spadina Crescent, Toronto, has announced that he will gladly furnish information to any employer or employee who may care to write to him with regard to the terms of the Board's orders.

Employers throughout the Province, with whom the Board has come in contact, have invariably not only given their assistance but, upon learning the methods and results of the Board's actions, have also given their approval.

Y.W.C.A. SWIMMERS GAVE EXHIBITION OF THEIR SKILL

EVEN THE YOUNGEST GIRLS WERE AS GRACEFUL AND AS ACCLIMATED TO THE WATER AS MERMAIDS—A CREDIT TO THEIR INSTRUCTOR.

An enthusiastic crowd at the Y.W.C.A. swimming pool last evening witnessed a fine exhibition of the swimmer's art from Miss Emma Carroll, the new instructress, and some of her pupils. Miss Carroll opened the programme with a wonderful series of 19 difficult strokes, including sculling, trudgeon (with racer's turn), propeller, crawl, spinning toy, pendulum, rolling log, bicycle and porpoise, going through her trying numbers with no perceptible effort, and seeming to be absolutely at home in the water, whether treading lightly or swimming almost absolutely submerged for minutes at a time. The excellence of her training abilities was manifested to a marked degree in the performance of her pupils, the majority of whom were small, and have learned many of their strokes since the beginning of the present season.

Little Misses Mollie Wood and Mary Brooke, six-year-old ladies, gave examples of diving, with the breast stroke and the deadman's float, in a most matter-of-fact and efficient manner; Miss Phyllis Young did some good fancy diving, including the twist and half twist, the jack-knife, front and back, and the back somersault; Miss Carroll and Miss Grace Sharpe showed three methods of life-saving work, the release, the rescue and the tired swimmer; and Miss Sharpe did a fine underwater swim for the length of the pool, forty feet. The Misses Eleanor Hiland, Dorothy Clark, Grace Sharpe and Helen Huff had three pretty little races, the hoop, the egg and spoon and the lighted candle, which were very much appreciated, and little 12-year-old Eleanor Hiland gave a most surprising exhibition of diving work, with the straight, running, swan, side, front jack-knife, Annette Kellerman, Peterborough Special (a fine splashy effect), watermelon, Charlie Chaplin, which received uproarious applause, and in which the small maiden, twirling an imaginary cane, walked off the board in the most negligent manner, the hoop, and the backward flip all executed in the neatest possible manner. The small performers, instead of being tired by their exertions, all piled into the water at the conclusion of the programme, and were left swimming and diving and apparently enjoying themselves immensely.

Mr. H. B. Cowan made a very satisfactory chairman, announcing and explaining the different numbers on the programme.

FAMOUS BOW-MAKER DIES.

Many Noted Violinists Clients of "Tubbs of Soho".

LONDON, June 9.—(Canadian Press).— Recent announcement of the death of James Tubbs of Soho, conveyed little to the average citizen, but it meant much to players of violins, Tubbs was a past master in the art of violin bow making and numbered among his clients such celebreties as Kreisler, Paganini, Bottesini, Sivoni, Gompertz and Strauss. In fact everyone in the violin world knew "Tubbs of Soho", who toiled in his small house in the heart of that district of London. Some years ago Tubbs retired and was succeeded by his son, but the latter died and Tubbs emerged again to his bow-making, which he worked to the time of his death.

NICKEL LOAF

Its Return in United States Is Predicted

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Return of the five-cent loaf of bread is a near possibility throughout the United States, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said to-day.

"The average value of the wheat needed to make a one-pound loaf of bread now is one and seven-tenths cents," said Wallace. "The average retail price of a pound loaf throughout the country is 10 and 3-10 cents.

"Farmers are receiving for their wheat only slightly more than in pre-war days, when bread customarily sold for five cents a loaf. Flour prices are largely deflated.

"The big difficulties in the way of the five-cent loaf now are high freight rates and high wages. When these factors are reduced and the labor cost of transportation, milling and baking deflated, there will be no justification for failure of the five-cent loaf to reappear.

PETES WIN OUT IN THE TENTH INNINGS BY BEATING LINDSAY 7-5 YESTERDAY

LOOSE FIELDING IN NINTH ALLOWED GRAY BIRDS TO TIE THE SCORE, BUT M'ELROY WON HIS OWN GAME BY DRIVING IN TWO RUNS IN THE TENTH AND PETES ARE OUT IN FRONT IN LEAGUE RACE.

After as hard fought and exciting a ball game as the most rabid fan would desire to see, the Peterborough team sailed out in front in the Central Ontario League race yesterday by beating the Lindsay Graybirds, the famous Oulette and all, on their own diamond, by 7 runs to 5 in a ten innings battle. It was a hair raising struggle, and the result was in doubt until the final Lindsay out was registered in the tenth frame. In fact the Scugog crew had the ticing runs on the bases waiting for a hit to sew up the game, when Cherrett and Rose forced Williamson at second on McMahon's roller and the game was over.

Manager Solomon nominated Lefty McElroy for the job of stopping his old team mates and the southpaw came through in grand style. In fact he was the hero of the engagement, and with airtight support he would have breezed home an easy winner. But the Petes' fielding, which was of big league calibre in the Cobourg and Oshawa games, fell to pieces yesterday and the error column shows them credited with eight boots, the result being that McElroy's task was rendered much more difficult than it should have been. In the ninth, with the score 5 to 2 in favour of the Petes and two men down, the usually reliable Murray fumbled a grounder, giving the batter a life, and on top of this made a wild heave to first which put runners on second and third and the fat was in the fire. Carew scored the two with a single and Pinch-hitter Bates came through with another safety, sending in the tieing run.

That was a mighty unlucky innings for McElroy, but the little southpaw showed the old fighting spirit, getting the third out on an easy roller to Rose and then in the tenth, with two Petes on the sacks he won his own game by combing a crashing single to right centre that sent a pair of runs in and put the game on ice for the second time after his team mates had tried to throw it away for him.

McElroy held Lindsay to eight hits, several of them very scratchy, and the last three coming after the game should have been over. His curve was breaking nicely and he worked steadily and confidently all through the piece and incidentally came through with three clean hits and a walk in five trips to the plate. It was a fine all round performance for "Lefty" and he is entitled to all the credit that is going.

Jack Oulette, the Fenelon Falls' phenom, who conquered Freddy Goyer in Belleville, and who had seventeen strike-outs against Port Hope, was on the rubber for Lindsay, and although he showed a lot of speed and a wide breaking curve, the Petes did not find him a mystery for they nicked his delivery for thirteen hits and worked him for four bases on balls. Oulette is a right hander with a peculiar wind-up and seemed to have a lot of confidence in himself, especially in the early stages of yesterday's game.

The batting heroes for the Petes were Stan Lowe, who had four hits and a sacrifice in five times up, McElroy with three singles and a walk, Ross with a triple and a single, and Swanston with two timely singles. This quartette were the big four in the onslaught on Oulette, and their clouting was responsible for practically all the Peterborough runs. Lowe drove in the first run after Swanston had singled; Swanston supplied the hit that brought Ross home after the latter had tripled; Ross's single chased in two runs in the seventh, and McElroy's clout was good for the winning pair in the tenth.

Umpire Wilson, of Oshawa, was late in arriving and for the first half of the first innings Dick Butler took his place behind the plate, while Frank Carew of Lindsay, gave the decisions on the bases. When Wilson made his appearance he acted as chief umpire, while Butler worked on the bases. And incidentally the same Dicky was impartial and accurate in his decisions, and the Petes got a square deal all the way.

A big crowd saw the battle, Peterborough fandom being represented by many enthusiasts who motored over to Lindsay for the fixture and who were in high glee when it was all over. It was a nice win and gives the Petes the edge in the first half of the schedule, although every game will be a battle, and the Solomon crew will have to be on their toes all the time.

BY INNINGS.

First Innings.

Peterborough— Cherrett rolled to Oulette. Murray fouled to Logan. Ray Rose thrown out by McDonald. No runs, hits or errors.

Lindsay—Stark walked and went to second on Williamson's sacrifice, Swanston to Ross. McMahon scratched a hit on a roller down the third base line, McElroy slipping as he fielded the ball. Coombs rolled to Cherrett, who threw to second to force McMahon, but the runner got the decision, Stark scoring. Carew hoisted to Rose. McMahon went to third on Swanston's low heave to second. McElroy tossed out Logan. One run, one hit, one error.

Second Innings.

Peterborough—Ross grounded to Workman. Swanston singled to right and stole second, going on to third on Logan's wild heave. Lowe shot a single over second, scoring Swanston. Pinnette fanned. Coombs pulled down McCarney's liner. One run, two hits, one error.

Lindsay.— Ray Rose tossed out Workman. McDonald fanned. Oulette was safe on McElroy's low throw to first, but Stark struck out. No runs or hits, one error.

Third Innings.

Peterborough — McElroy walked and went to second on a passed ball. Cherrett and Murray whiffed. Williamson made a beautiful running catch of Ray Rose's long drive to deep centre. No runs, hits or errors.

Lindsay—Wiliamson flied to McCarney. Rose made a nice grab of McMahon's sizzling liner. Coombs missed three. No runs, hits or errors.

Fourth Innings.

Peterborough. — Ross rolled to Workman. McDonald threw out Swanston. Lowe beat out a roller past the box, but was caught off first on the old hidden ball trick. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Lindsay—Carew singled over second and stole second. Logan walked. Carew stole third. Workman's single to left scored Carew. McDonald scratched a hit on a fast one to Rose, which bounced over the second baseman's head and Logan was out at the plate trying to score on the play. Lowe making a perfect throw. Oulette hit to McElroy, who threw Workman out at the plate. Oulette stole second. McElroy tossed out Stark. One run, three hits, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Peterborough — Pinnette singled past third and went to second on McCarney's out. Oulette to Coombs. McElroy singled to short, Pinnette going to third. McElroy stole second. Cherrett walked, filling the bases. Murray and Rose fanned. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Lindsay— Williamson rolled to McElroy. McMahon cracked a liner to Murray. Coombs hit to Murray and got a life when Ross missed the throw. Carew was hit. Logan grounded to Murray. No runs or hits, one error.

Sixth Innings.

Peterborough — Ross tripled to deep right. Swanston singled to second, Ross scoring with the tieing run. Lowe sacrificed Swanston to second. Pinnette hoisted to McDonald. Workman threw out McCarney. One run, two hits no errors.

Lindsay—Workman was safe on Rose's miss. McDonald popped to Cherrett. Rose let Oulette's roller get away, losing a good chance for a double. Pinnette made a sensational one-handed catch of Stark's fly to left. Swanston got Williamson at first on a roller in front of the late. No hits or runs, two errors.

Seventh Innings.

Peterborough— McElroy rifled a single over second. Cherrett sacrificed. Murray drew a walk. Rose rolled to Coombs, advancing the base runners. Ross's smash bounced over Oulette's head and went for a single. McElroy and Murray scoring. McDonald threw out Swanston. Two runs, two hits, no errors.

Lindsay—McMahon rolled to McElroy. Coombs singled through short, but was forced at second, Rose to Cherrett. Logan fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

Peterborough — Lowe swung a bunt past Oulette and easily beat it out. He stole second and went to third on a passed ball, but Pinnette fanned. McCarney hunted a fly to Stark and McElroy missed three. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Lindsay — Cherrett threw out Workman. McDonald popped to Cherrett. Murray tossed out Oulette. No runs, hits or errors.

Ninth Innings.

Peterborough — Cherrett singled through short and stole second and third. Murray fanned. Rose flied to short left. Ross hit to McDonald, who threw low to first. Cherrett scoring and Ross going to second. Swanston grounded to Workman. One run, one hit, one error.

Lindsay — Cherrett tossed out Stark. Wiliamson died, McElroy to Ross. McMahon was safe on Murray's fumble. Coombs hit to Murray, who threw high to first, McMahon going to third and the batter to second. Carew singled to centre, scoring McMahon and Coombs and taking second on the throw to the plate. Bates, batting for Logan, singled between short and third, sending Carew in with the tieing run. Workman rolled to Rose. Three runs, two hits, two errors.

Tenth Innings.

Peterborough— Lowe beat out a roller to short and stole second. Pinnette was tossed out by McDonald, Lowe going to third when Coombs threw wide to second. Jackson batted for McCarney and drew a pass. Jackson stole second. McElroy won his own game with a slashing single to right centre, scoring Lowe and Jackson. Cherrett lined to McDonald. Murray fanned. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Lindsay—McDonald fanned. Oulette rolled to Murray. Stark got a life on Cherrett's miss. Williamson singled to centre. McMahon forced Williamson, Cherrett to Rose, and the game was over. No runs, one hit, one error.

LINDSAY TEAM EXPECT TO WIN HERE ON SATURDAY

CLAIM PETES WERE LUCKY YESTERDAY AND THAT THEY WILL BEVERSE THE DECISION AT RIVERSIDE PARK—IT WILL BE A REAL BATTLE.

SOME BASEBALL GOSSIP

The Lindsay Graybirds will be the attraction at Riverside Park Saturday when they meet the Petes in a Central Ontario League fixture that promises to be one of the best battles of the year. The Solomon crew just managed to nose out the Scugog outfit in Lindsay yesterday after an extra innings, and the scrappy Graybirds are confident of reversing the decision here. They claim the Petes were crowded with horseshoes in yesterday's game, and that they will prove it by winning right in Peterborough Saturday. The League leadership is at stake and it will be a scrap from the first ball Saturday. Lindsay will send Oulette back at the Petes, and the Fenelon Falls twirler says he'll come through with a win. The Peterboro pitching selection has not yet been announced. The game is called for 3 o'clock with Jack Rosevear, of Port Hope, officiating.

The Peterboro Central Ontario League team will practice at the Riverside Park at 5 o'clock to-morrow (Friday) afternoon, in preparation for Saturday's game with Lindsay.

The Central League standing is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	%
Peterboro.	3	0	1000
Lindsay	2	1	.667
Oshawa	2	1	.667
Belleville	2	2	.500
Cobourg	1	3	.250
Port Hope	0	3	.000

Games on Saturday:
Oshawa at Port Hope.
Lindsay at Peterboro.

Lindsay pulled the hidden ball trick on Stan Lowe in yesterday's game and incidentally got away with a beautiful balk. Oulette stepped on the rubber without having the ball in his possession and when Lowe took a lead off he was tagged out. Evidently Umpire Wilson is not conversant with Rule 34, Section 7, which declares a balk shall be "making any motion to pitch while standing in his position without having the ball in his possession; or regardless of whether he makes any motion to pitch or not, the pitcher takes a legal position on the rubber without the ball in his possession."

It was a great day for Lefty McElroy and the Peterboro gang were all delighted to see him come through with a win.

It was a scrappy battle. Manager Solomon was in half a dozen arguments, and usually succeeded in collecting the whole Lindsay team around him.

Jack Stark the Lindsay third baseman, broke a bone in his ankle sliding into first base in the tenth innings.

Jack Nott of Oshawa, secretary of the Central Ontario League, was a spectator at yesterday's battle.

SPORT COMMENT

When the Hon. Mr. Raney, Attorney-General for Ontario, assailed the race tracks a few days ago, he charged that not a race track owner was in any way interested in the breeding of horses. This is practically true. Very few, if any, of those people interested in the race courses of this country have ever attempted to invest their fat earnings in the breeding game. In addition, they put high fences around the courses, and even refused the use of the parks for any other purpose than the regular series of races conducted each year. The selfish spirit of those behind the clubs is something which everybody in this city is familiar with.

The use of American labour on Canadian tracks is another point on which there has been much talk but little action. The point is well covered by a Chicago publication which says:

Uncalled for disregard of Canadian immigration laws has once again ruffled the feathers of the good people "over 'ome." This time John Madigan, the Buffalo turf mogul, who controls the destinies of the Fort Erie race track, which is located on the Canadian side of the Niagara River, is being blamed for the present "jam," which is likely to cause a lot of hard feeling between labour factions on both sides of the international "line."

It is alleged that Madigan, or whoever is responsible for the official acts of the Niagara Racing Association, attempted to send a crew of American painters across the border in order to renovate the Fort Erie grand stand. Naturally, the Canucks resented such a bold-faced slam; the immigration officials turning the American painters back, and indicating that if there is to be any work done at Fort Erie this spring, the track management had better see to it that only Canadians are employed.

Now, that's as it should be. The Canadians have been mighty "gentle' in their treatment of American turfites. If they want to make the most of the Niagara Racing Assiciation's most recent "bobble" they'll put the bars up against the DROVE of American race followers who cross the international line each summer in order to WORK in the mutuel machines at the CANADIAN tracks. Maybe the Niagara Racing Association has started something it will be unable to stop this side of legislation against the "foreign" race track owners now doing a thriving business in Canada.

LACROSSE MOGULS ISSUE WARNING

ROUGH PLAY WILL NOT BE TOLERATED—REFEREES MUST REPORT.

President Leonard Smith, of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association, is out to curb those players who spend a great deal of their time with the penalty timekeepers. He has instructed all referees to file a complete report of every game, giving the list of penalties and also particulars of any incidents more than ordinary. "A player may get one penalty in a game and still not play rough lacrosse. But when a player's name is mentioned two or three times in a game and often in every game, then it is time to remind him that the playing field is the place and not the penalty bench. There is no occasion for a man to jab the ball-carrier in the body when he has no chance to reach the stick. It does no good and only causes hard feeling. We are out to keep lacrosse as clean as possible, and it is only by strict work of the officials that this can be accomplished," remarked the hustling lacrosse leader.

Warning to All.

Following up his policy of keeping play clean, President Smith has sent out the following notice to all managers and referees:

"Two or three instances have been reported already this season of players being struck over the head either accidentally or deliberately, and in order to clean up the situation we are instructing referees that the penalty for such be not less than ten minutes, or as much more as the offence warrants. Striking at the head of an opponent will not give one possession of the ball.

Uphold Officials.

"In the case of players being deliberately struck down and forced to leave the play, referees are instructed that under such circumstances the player committing the foul shall be banished from the match entirely, or until such time as the player who has been injured may be able to resume. Referees can be assured that they will receive the wholehearted support of every member of the executive in carrying this order into effect at all times. The placing of a five or ten-minute penalty on a player who puts his opponent out of the game by dirty tactics is a joke, and it is high time that such conduct was curbed, otherwise the game is bound to deteriorate.

Public Demand It.

"Referees are also instructed to see that a complete list of penalties is furnished him by his timekeeper at the end of each match, and same sent on to the secretary with his report of the match, as strict record is being kept of the men who are constantly being sent to the fence.

"Club managers are also reminded that any player who makes a practice of visiting the penalty bench two or three times each game, or continues his rough work, will be banished from the league, and the sooner some of the players realize this the better for all concerned.

"We ask for the co-operation of club managers and referees for the bringing about of the above improvements, now sadly lacking in some quarters. The public demand clean lacrosse and we intend to see that they get it."

FAST ST. KIT'S TEAM IS HERE SATURDAY

The fast C.G.E. soccer eleven meets the St. Kits outfit at Riverside Park at 6 p.m. Saturday. The winners will play off with either Brantford or Ottawa and if winners: Peterboro will have won honour in the football world. The game is the biggest thing of its kind here in years and there should be several thousand people on the grounds and plenty of support should be given the locals by the fans.

CRANEY IS GOING GREAT GUNS NOW.

Ed. Bang writes in the Detroit News, concerning the Cleveland Indians:

"Whether Speaker will get back in the game immediately depends largely upon his mental attitude toward the club and its future. His injured wrist is practically okeh again, but like most ball players, Spoke entertains a superstition against doing anything that might have a tendency to affect a winning combination. And right now the Indians, as crippled as they are, certainly represent a winning combination.

"Whether they can keep on winning ball games with Speaker and O'Neill out remains to be seen. What with his pitchers not going any too well as it is, Jim Bagby having been knocked out of the box the last two times out, for one, this eastern invasion, tough enough to begin with, takes on additional difficulties now that the team isn't able to present its strongest front to the enemy.

"However, it's encouraging to note that the men Speaker called upon to act in emergencies have risen to the occasion admirably. Old Irish Jack Graney is playing a pip of a game in left and is hitting the ball as hard as any man on the ball club.

"Jack got off to a rather bad start in centre but as soon as Spoke shifted him back to left, his old position, J. Gladstone began to show the boys that he is far from a has-been."

MAY NOT WIN CHAMPIONSHIP BUT HAS WON HEARTS OF PEOPLE

GEORGES CARPENTIER HAS GIVEN A CERTAIN DISTINCTION TO THE FIGHTING GAME, SAYS THE CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

One reason why we like Georges Carpentier is because he does more smiling than bragging. That smile of his is a wonderful asset. It is perennial and unerasable. If Mr. Dempsey rocks him to sleep on July 2 we may be sure that Georges will wake up smiling. It is his way. And he will squeal. A man with Carpentier's general all-round likableness is no more of a squawker than he is a braggart.

The natty French athlete has arrived in America for a certain very definite purpose. He is here to lick our own Jack Dempsey. Probably most of us imagine that he will not succeed. Nevertheless, we are glad to see him. And if this very definite purpose is fulfilled very few financially disinterested Americans are going to take it to heart.

The amazing young Gaul is a departure from type. He is not hard-boiled. All professional pugilists are not pluguglies or roughnecks, not by any means. We have had our notably refined fistic gentlemen. But all of the genius, whether refined or unrefined, have been distinctly hard-boiled. Carpentier is sauve, modest and affable. Of our own pugilistic bred we have not seen one like this slim, trim, genial invader.

Some of those who admire Monsieur Georges are just a little sorry for him. They have sized him up, and they have sized up Mr. Dempsey. On the basis of pulchritude the comparison is all in favor of Georges But pulchritude does not win prize fights, and in qualities purely pugilistic Mr. Dempsey seems to loom immense. If Georges can contemplate Mr. Dempsey and still smile we may well pocket our pity and be assured that this quietly confident Frenchman is not going to be minced or hashed by Mr. Dempsey or anyone like him.

Americans differ widely as to the desirability of pugilism, but even those of us who most deplore the "manly sport" and the pecuniary adjuncts thereof can be glad that Carpentier has come. If we must have prize fighting let us have as many Carpentiers as possible. A gentleman, a soldier, a fellow of many fine points, Georges Carpentier gives a certain distinction of the "fistic game."

Of course comparatively few hope that the world's heavyweight championship will be taken away from this land of many firsts and bests. But if the great battle of "Boyle's Thirty Acres" results in a French victory there will be no prolonged moaning at the soft drink bars when the triumphant Georges puts out to sea.

NEW STYMIE RULE WAS RESCINDED.

R. C. G. A. Goes Back to Former Style.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, held the other day, it was decided to rescind the new Stylmie rule as approved and adopted by the United States Golf Association and revert to the old Stymie rule used by the Royal and Ancient Club, of St. Andrew's, Scotland.

A great deal of discussion has taken place throughout Canada in regard to the new rules. When the committee adopted the new rules, they were under the impression that the Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrew's had approved and adopted the new Stymie rule, as well as the out of bounds rule, the lost ball rule, and others, affecting the weight and size of te ball, etc.

Since this meeting, however, the committee has been in touch with the secretary of the Royal and Ancient Club by cable, and have learned that there has been no change in the Stymie rule by the Royal and Ancient Club, so that the committee decided to follow the Royal and Ancient Club rules in all particulars.

The resolution adopting the new Stymie rule having been rescinded, the old rule automatically comes into force at once, so that all tournaments played after 1st June will play the old Stymie rule.

The secretary reported to the committee that upon investigation, and after consulting a number of clubs and players, the general opinion seemed to be in favour of the new rule, but, at the same time, practically all of the clubs and players felt that the Royal Canadian Golf Association should have all of its competitions played in accordance with the rules adopted by the Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrew's, Scotland.

It is quite possible that an endeavour may be made to take a vote by every player in Canada, members of clubs recognised by the Royal Canadian Gold Association, but in the meantime, no departure will be made from the rules of the Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrew's, Scotland.

The open championship of Canada will take place at the Toronto Golf Club on Monday and Tuesday, 1st and 2nd of August, instead of on 28th and 29th July, as previously announced.

WESTCLOX AND LOCK WORKS AT 6

GOOD GAME IN MERCANTILE AT RIVERSIDE THIS EVENING

Al. Doughty having ben given his release by Barrie's will play with Westclox against Lock Works this evening.

Barrie's have been out of luck in their league games, and they do not wish to hold Doughty when he has the opportunity of playing in faster company This is good sportsmanship by Barrie's, the club having made the initial move, and not at the suggestion of the Westclox Club or the pitcher concerned.

Westclox and Lock Works should provide a fast game of ball this evening. Alex. Kay and Edgar LeBarr will umpire at the bat and on bases, respectively.

WALL ST. BANKERS STIRRED BY RUMORS

To Aid Stock Exchange Police Committee in Campaign Against False Reports.

NEW YORK, June 9.—Responsible bankers, it was learned yesterday, have decided to aid the Police Committee of the New York Stock Exchange in running down false rumors in Wall street and in counteracting the unrest caused by such baseless reports.

Several bankers explained that despite the improvement in general conditions, there has not been a time in this year when rumors of impending financial disaster have not been circulated about the street. They are heard in banks, in brokerage offices and frequently trickle into the financial district from uptown.

Bankers are emphatic in saying that there is no large corporation or institution in serious financial trouble; that all those for whom aid has been necessary have been helped and that in most cases, the slow thawing of frozen credits will find the others on their feet.

The head of one large bank heard, as did all Wall street last week, of financial difficulties in which a big concern was said to be entangled. He decided to run the reports down.

"I examined the books of this corporation and its assets from top to bottom," he said. "It is sound as a nut, and a going concern. Of course, most of its assets are tied up at the present time, but these are being slowly liquidated. I would be willing to stake everything I have that it is sound and solvent."

Bankers conferred recently with the Police Committee of the Stock Exchange on means of scotching the rumors. A drastic rule of the Exchange on means of scotching the rumors. A drastic rule of the Exchange provides expulsion for violation of its provisions, but most of the rumors, however, originate in brokerage offices and from men ever whom the Governors of the Ex change have no control.

Bankers with a financial interest in some of the institutions about which rumors are now in circulation say that every effort will be made to ascertain the names of those who started the reports. They propose to prosecute these persons for criminal libel.

"One such good administering of justice, with a heavy fine and jail sentence, would have a sound effect on the whole district and would teach the idle gossipers to hold their tongues in these difficult days.' said one banker.

R. C. BRAUND

U. S. CARTOONED BY HER DEBTORS.

Nations This Country Aided Represent Uncle Sam as Profiteer.

PARIS, June 9.—Cartoons in Paris, London, Rome, Bucharest and Belgrade newspapers represent Uncle Sam as a bloated giant bursting with gold wrung from impoverished war countries, or, as Gil Blas of Paris suggested, "fattening off billions reeking from the blood of the slain."

An anti-American campaign is sweeping Europe—with the exception of Germany—to such an extent that Universal Service deputised a staff correspondent to discover the principal cause or causes.

His field of inquiry covered investigation of the work done by the American Red Cross, the Hoover Commission, the American Committee for the Devastated Regions, the Joint Distribution Committee and individual Americans and American companies.

From this inquiry we found that an approximate total of one billion dollars is being spent by Americans annually in direct aid to Europe. Every man, woman and child in America, therefore, is contributing ten dollars annually to the relief work of various descriptions in Europe, without counting foreign missions. The father of a family of five contributes, directly or indirectly, fifty dollars annually to this cause.

People Ungrateful.

What is causing some alarm among American economists and financiers is not only that a billion dollars annually is being thus sent abroad in aid of people whose leaders do not hesitate to express their dislike and hatred of America and everything American.

The following official statement was made to Universal Service by Major C. D. Morris, chief in Paris of the American Red Cross News Bureau which handles Red Cross propaganda in America:

"The Red Cross has frequently declined to furnish medical or sanitary assistance to European Governments or armies. It has uniformly insisted that its province is to relieve suffering, and that it cannot take any part of furnishing any supplies which will have a political use in assisting a belligerent or organized force.

"The Red Cross is not a food-distributing organization; its function has been rather the assistance of hospitals and institutions, more especially those dealing with women and children. None of the armies mentioned (Youdenitch, Wrangel, Denekine, Koltchak) has received food supplies from the Red Cross."

Red Cross Aided Russia.

The last line was not considered sufficiently clarifying. "Was any assistance of any kind given those generals or their armies?" he was asked.

"Red Cross units certainly followed the armies mentioned," returned the Major. "and gave medical assistance to sick and wounded. Our province was particularly to look after the women and children who follow the Russian armies."

Such medical assistance was undoubtedly furnished to members of the revolutionary Russian armies, headed by such ex-Tsarist officers as Denekine or Wrangel, all of which campaigns ended in absolute defeat and rout But no Red Cross money has been spent within the borders of Soviet Russia

This is explained by the Red Cross as follows:

"The Red Cross has been ready at all times to extend its work into Russia whenever an arrangement could be made with the Russian authorities which would cable it to ensure the propor distribution of its supplies. Operations have been conducted on various fringes of Russia during the past two years but no operations have been carried on within Soviet Russia.

PARENTS SUING BOARD OF EDUCATION

Interesting Case Arising Out of Smallpox.

SMITHS FALLS, June 9.—Several residents of this town have entered action for $1,000 damages against the Board of Education of the town, claiming that the board did not permit their children to attend school.

The action arose over a compulsory vaccination order issued by the Medical Officer of Health of Smiths Falls. The plaintiffs allege that, wthout lawful excuse or justification, their children, aged 8 to 14 years were excluded from the schools until March, 1921, and that they were forced to provide private tuition.

The Board of Education says that Messrs. Bastien, Cameron and Harrington are not ratepayers or public school supporters, and, that in the case of the others, if their children were excluded it was in the interests of the public for the prevention of the spread of smallpox, and in conformity with the orders of the M. O. H. The board says it was willing to permit the attendance of the children if they were able to produce certificates of successful vacination within the last seven years.

From Cave Man to Super Man

This wonderful race of men loved artistic things including banquets and wine. These beautifully chiselled stone vessels were found in a tomb in Upper Egypt and were no doubt made to hold food and wine.

From the rude flint hammerheads, lashed to wooden handles with rawhide thongs, which were found in the caves of te Palaeolithic Age of 5,000 years ago to these symetrically shaped and polished stone vessels is truly a wonderful stride forward. The long period that intervened between that and the wiser men of Egypt of 5000 B.C. shows how tedious and difficult must have been the task of building up the foundation of our present day culture. All the marvellous inventions that followed would have been impossible without this cruder groundwork. The beautiful aluminum-equipped kitchens of to-day would have remained undeveloped but for the foundation laid previously by the cruder but yet excellent vessels in iron, tin, and granite.

So also was thought developed. Plato and Aristotle, over two thousand years ago, thought we saw things through the human eye illuminating the objects around us. Working from this faulty but yet constructive idea, Newton 2,000 years later got the vague idea that though our inferior eyesight failed to perceive it, everything around us was alive—and that so-calied dead matter like stones, etc., had the power to vibrate and hurl particles into space—some of which would strike our eye—which in turn vibrated according to the speed of the impact—and reflected the same to the brain—registering there the velocities into colours and the number and arrangement of the particles into shapes and sizes. Later scientists made further startling discoveries.

So runs the story of the development of our present-day culture. The sixth number of this interesting and educational series on the "Evolution of Cooking Utensils" will appear on this page to-morrow. The picture is a photographic cut of the originals in the Royal Ontario Museum. Get your Kitchen equipped with 'Wellworth" Better Quality Aluminum Ware and measure up to the standards of progressive refinement laid down by these wonderful predecessors.

"SON OF TARZAN" VILLAIN HATES HIMSELF WHEN PORTRAYING CRUELTY EFFECTS IN FILMS

"Why a naturally mild-mannered man like myself should cast his lot among the film villians is one of the greatest enigmas of my life," declared Eugene Burr, the actor who portrays the role of "Ivan Paulvitch, the villain, in "The Son of Tarzan," feature serial, which will be shown exclusively at the Allen Theatre, commencing Friday and Saturday. "The Son of Tarzan" is the fourth of the Edgar Rice Burroughs' "Tarzan of the Apes" jungle romances to be filmed.

"When I'm not at the studio," continued Mr. Burr while discussing his life's work, I'm mild as a lamb, but once I get before a motion picture camera my face becomes revolting and my acting seems to unleash some hidden 'Mr. Hydes' who seems to have a power over me until the director says 'cut!' My only desire is that the Dr. Jekyll side of me will remain the controlling force—at least, while I'm with my wife."

Johnny Jones, Lucille Rickson, Buddy Messenger and the other kids who take part in the "Edgar" comedies which Booth Tarkington wrote and which are produced by Goldwyn, have about the best "jobs of any youngsters this side of paradise. For their work really isn't work at all; it's the doing of things which boys and girls all over the country do of their own accord.

And what is more, the "Edgar" children have all the facilities of a great motion picture company to provide them with the playthings which children crave. Several property men are kept busy supplying them with merry-go-rounds, tents, waggons and other things which Mr. Tarkington's scenarios call for.

In "Edgar Camps Out", the sixth of the series, which will be shown at the Allen Theatre to-day.

AT THE CAPITOL.

TREASURE HIDDEN IN OLD HOUSE SHOWN IN FEATURE "STRAIGHT IS THE WAY"

Author of Story Tells of Romantic History of Homestead Which is the Scene of Fine Paramont-Cosmopolitan Picture.

Real hidden treasure which has eluded searches for generations is the material motive of "Straight is the Way," the new Paramount-Cosmopolitan picture, which comes to the Capitol Theatre for three days, beginning to-night. The treasure is concealed somewhere about the old Sands Homestead, at Sands Point, Long Island, which is the location of the story.

This old homestead, which is owned by Mrs. Mumford, the author, and used as a summer home, was built in 1668—more than 250 years ago—and has been the scene of many romantic and thrilling incidents. But none is more interesting than the known presence of hidden treasure thereabouts. Every means of locating this has been tried in vain—including clairvoyants, divining rods and tipping tables, but no treasure.

Mrs. Mumford has taken advantage of ths concealed treasure in her story. She makes it the property of one "Uncle Henry" Ort—the ancestor of Aunt Mehitable and her orphaned niece, Dorcas, who live in the old homestead. They consult a ouija board to ascertain its location, and two warm-hearted crooks hearing them questioning ouija decide to bury a quantity of valuables and answer throuyh ouija, telling them the location thereof. It is their idea of justice; also of practical sympathy, because the women need the money to satisfy a mortgage which threatens them with the loss of their home. Matt Moore and Gladys Leslie have the leading roles.

A very funny two-reel Jimmy Aubrey Comedy, entitled "The Blizzard," and many other excellent pictures will complete a splendid show for this week-end. Cool as a woodland glen is the Capitol. Comfortable cozy and always spotless sanitary and service to the public at all times makes this theatre a popular resort.

AT THE REGENT.

LOUISE LOVELY IN A LOVELY MIX-UP

A new William Fox picture, "Partners of Fate," which has recorded success elsewhere, is to be seen at the Regent Theatre this evening with Louise Lovely, the new star, as its central figure.

The story, which is by Stephen Chalmers, deals with the trials and tribulations that visit two young couples who discover shortly after marriage that fate has paired them off wrongly and dealt them mates with whom they never can be happy. Then, through the agency of a shipwreck, the two mismated pairs find that Fate has reshuffled and redealt the cards, each husband finding himself the companion of the other fellow's wife on a lonely tropical island. From this situation the plot develops in earnest.

WEDDING BELLS

McWILLIAMS—McCAGUE.

On Tuesday, June 7th, at Trinity Parsonage, the Rev. F. E. Malott solemnized the marriage of Mrs. Matilda McCague of Smith Township to Mr. Adam J. McWilliams, of Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams will live at 304 Elias Avenue, Peterborough.

KENNETH PROFIT.

The death occurred at Nicholls Hospital this morning of Kenneth Elton Profit, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Profit, of Douro Township. The funeral will take place Saturday to Trent Valley Cemetery, Hastings, Rev. Bonsfield

MONCRIEF—WARD.

On Wednesday, June 8th, the marriage was quietly celebrated at the Trinity Church parsonage, by Rev. F. E. Malott, of Miss Mary C. Ward, of Peterboro, to Mr. William Moncrief of Cavan. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Verta M. Ward, and Mr. P. C. Moncrief, the brother of the groom, acted as the groomsman.

Mr. and Mrs. Moncrief will live in Cavan.

HENDLEY—McFADDEN.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Trinity Parsonage, on Wednesday, June 8th, when Miss Agatha A. McFadden and Mr. Dennis P. Hendley, both of Burleigh, were united in marriage by the Rev. F. E. Malott. The bride's cousin, Miss R. V. McIlmoyle, of Young's Point, was bridesmaid, while the groom was supported by Mr. E. A. Hales, of Burleigh.

Mr. and Mrs. Hendley left on t' 3:50 train for Toronto, and on their return will reside in Burleigh.

ADAMSON—HASTIE.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday evening, at 6 o'clock, at the home of Mr. Joseph; Hastie, Villiers, when his eldest daughter, Bessie May, became the bride of Mr. Ralph Adamson, son of Mr. Robt. Adamson, of Otonabee, the Rev. Mr. McEachern officiating.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white silk crepe de chine, and carried a lovely bouquet of Ophelia roses.

The briesmaid, Miss Isabel Hastie, of Toronto, sister of the bride, was dressed in a pale blue silk crepe de chine with a corsage bouquet of lily of the valley, and wearing a gold bar pin, the gift of the groom. Mr. Elmer Adamson, brother of the groom, was the best man. The groom's gift to the bride was a sunburst set with pearls.

After the ceremony (which was held on the lawn under an evergreen arch, erected for the occasion) the bride led the way to the dining room where supper was served to about 30 guests, the immediate relatives of the young couple. Among the guests was the bride's grandfather, Mr. William Hastie, of Lang, who has entered his 90th year, and is still hale and hearty.

The happy couple left later for a trip to Toronto and Niagara, the bride travelling in a navy blue suit, with hat to match. On their return they will reside on their farm in Otonabee, south of Mathers' Corners.

FLYNN—DALTON.

A very pretty June wedding was solemnized at St. Joseph's Church in Douro, when Ellen Gertrude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dalton, and Thomas Leonard Flynn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Flynn, of Erinville, were united in marriage, Rev. Father McGuire performing the ceremony. The bride was charmingly attired in white crepe de chine, with black mohair hat and seal cape. She carried a shower bouquet of Onhelia and sweetheart roses. Miss Mae Flynn, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid wearing a gown of blue crepe de chine and black mohair hat and carrying pink carnations and sweet peas. Mr. David Crowley, a cousin of the bride, supported the groom. Miss Mabel Allen played the Wedding March. After the ceremony a luncheon was served to about fifty guests at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Flynn left to spend a brief honeymoon in Toronto and Buffalo, the bride travelling in a navy suit with hat to match and seal neckpiece. On their return, they will reside at Chinnewa.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leo Flynn and daughter Frances, of Tamworth; Mrs. James Flynn and Miss Mae Flynn, of Erinville; Mr. and Mrs. M. Cassidy and son Thomas; Mr. and Mrs. T. Murphy, Mrs. Bridget Murphy and son John, all of Stoco; Mr. J. Flynn of Tweed; Mrs. J. Foster and Miss V. Mulroney, of Chippewa.

SASKATCHEWAN REJECTED THE GROUP SYSTEM

LIBERAL VICTORY LESS SWEEPING THAN IN LAST ELECTION, BUT GOVERNMENT IS INDEPENDENT OF OPPOSITION.

4 SEATS ARE DOUBTFUL

REGINA, Jan. 10. — (Canadian Press.)—Saskatchewan decided yesterday not to experiment with group government and returned Premier Martin's Liberal government to office, giving him a majority less sweeping than the one which preceded his leadership during the last Legislature, but sufficiently large to make him independent of all opposition.

The Government supporters will number about 45 in a Legislature of 63 when the three deferred elections have been held, in the view of political authorities. The latest figures are: Government 41, Independent 12, Labor 1, doubtful 4.

FINAL RESULTS.

REGINA, June 10. — Hon. George Langley, Minister of Municipal Affairs in the Saskatchewan government ,was defeated in Redberry by George Cockburn, an Independent. This is now conceded. Cockburn has more than 200 majority with 1 poll to come. Langley was the only one to meet defeat. It is thought he may be a candidate in one of the deferred elections.

Completed figures this afternoon are as follows:
Government, 42.
Independent, 15.
Conservative, 2.
Labour, 1.
Deferred, 3.

WHAT IS PETERBORO'S GREATEST NEED?

J. S. Bell: Peterborough's greatest need, in the words of Horatius at the Bridge,

"Then none were for a party,
"Then all were for the State."

Each for all and all for each. Can we measure up to these standards in Peterborough? Nature has provided us with a healthy situation, in climate, soil, and topography.

Dividing intermittent absences, I have seen America from Halifax to Victoria and the Gulf of Mexico to Prince Rupert. Few inland situations can equal Peterborough in diversified advantages. Thousands of your best have heeded the call, "Go West," because you have been a shrinking wayside flower, while the great plains and the Western gateway hid not their light, and fully exemplified—"It pays to advertise."

Let the press associations hear very much more of Peterborough. This city needs a lusty confidence and faith in itself, in its people, and in its products, and in our part in a virile Canadianism. Canada's proud share in the war impels this of each one of us.

Real democracy means personal, individual responsibility. Municipally it means that you and I will thoroughly acquaint ourselves with the advantages of Peterborough, and will let this light shine.

ICE-BATTERED SHIP IN PORT

FOUNDERING SEEMED IMMINENT AS CHARLOT ENTERED ST. JOHN'S HARBOR, STAGGERING FROM ICEBERG'S BLOW.

WATER IN FIRE ROOM

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., June 10.—(Canadian Press.) — The United States Shipping Board freight steamer Charlot, still staggering from the effects of a collision with an iceberg yesterday, reached this port to-day. Captain Ricca and his crew had made a hard fight through the night to stay afloat. When the crippled ship slipped through the Narrows her decks were awash and her boats swung out board ready for launching in event of the foundering that apeared imminent.

The Charlot, bound from Philadelphia for London and Hamburg, was two hundred miles from this port when she encountered the ice yesterday. She had left here several days ago, after affecting engine repairs. Captain Ricca reported that the steamer's bow was stove in by the bow. Water reached the fire room last night and he found it necessary to send out a call for help.

LANTERN TIPS, BARN IS RAZED

FIRE IN EAST WARD LAST NIGHT CAUSED BY SPILLING OF AN OIL LAMP.

STOCK IS DESTROYED

Fire, caused by the spilling of an oil lantern, totally destroyed a fine barn and adjoining buildings owed by James Healey, 338 Cameron St., East City, at ten p.m., last night.

Burning like a huge torch, the roaring barn, which faces on Woodbine avenue, and stands in an open space, cast a ruddy glow over the eastern sky and in a few minutes after the fire started there were hundreds of people at the scene.

The entire district was lighted up, and showers of sparks sailing skywards provided a beacon visible for miles.

Lost in the barn was a five year old horse, seven brood sows, one valuable boar, 22 chickens and a good buggy with harness, new plow, set of double harness, and a sulky, and other implements Mr. Healey could not remember.

Mr. Healey stated to the Examiner he had just returned from being over town. The mare he was driving he put on pasture and then put the buggy away in one of the leantos. Before he went up to throw down some bedding and hay for the horse he set the lantern on a box. A second later roaring flames met him as he went to throw down a forkful of hay. Unless the cat tipped over the lantern, Mr. Healey could not explain how it fell off the box.

There was straw and hay littered around and the fire started so quickly that the owner was unable to go down the trap and had to jump out of the window at the front of the barn. The barn was then a seething mass of flames, he declared, and by reason of the smoke and flames he was unable to save any of the animals. No one was near except a young boy, Clarence Bacon, living near, and he sounded the alarm.

The alarm went in from Box 57 but when the firemen arrived the buildings had fallen in, said Mr. Healey, and they could do nothing. Several lines of hose were laid up Woodbine avenue but the part of the road the barn is on is cut off by the creek, and the hose were of no use.

Mr. Healey complained bitterly of the fire protection in that section of East City last night but stated that the firemen could have done no more without the fire engine. Had they had the fire engine water could hav been jumped from the canal or creek, but even so, the barn would be so far gone as impossible to save. The barn was constructed of matched lumber and had been up for about 12 years. Several of the neighbors said that it was a very good barn. It had a stone foundation; two well-built lean-tos were built against it, with the pig pen and hen house continguous. The wood was dry and there were two loads of straw and about 1800 ot hay in the barn, accounting for the rapidity with which the barn was consumed by the flames. The loss, includidn gthe animals who died in the flames, the supplies and machinery, the owner placed conservatively at about $1500. The fire burned long into the night and this morning a smouldering pile of grain, straw and blackened lumber, were all that was left on the ground.

Mr. Healey stated that he had joint insurance on the house and barn and would receive some insurance, but of what amount he could not say.

ADMIRAL SIMS SAYS ADDRESS BEEN GARBLED

REPLIES TO DENBY THAT THERE WAS NOTHING IN SPEECH HE HAD NOT SAID IN U.S. AND IN HIS BOOK.

LEARNED UNOFFICIALLY

LONDON, June 10. — Canadian Press. The reply of Rear Admiral Sims to the request of Secretary of the Navy Denby, for an explanation of his speech here Tuesday, expresses the opinion of Admiral Sims that some parts of the speech to which objection had been taken, had been garbled. This was learned unofficially but on good authority here to-day. In his answer Admiral Sims declares he said nothing which he had not said before in speeches in the United States and in his book.

UNDER ARREST FOR SHOOTING HIS DAUGHTER

CANNIS TYRON OF KALADAR HELD AT NAPANEE—GIRL CRITICALLY ILL BUT HAS EVEN CHANCE TO RECOVER.

HAS LOST MUCH BLOOD

KINGSTON, June 10 (Canadian Press).—Cannis Tryon, of Kaladar, is under arrest in Napanee Jail, charged with shooting his daughter, Cecily Tryon, aged seventeen, yesterday with intent to do grievous bodily harm.

The girl is at present in the General Hospital, critically ill, although physicians state that she has an even chance for recovery.

She is suffering considerably from loss of blood from a wound in the left breast.

(For further particulars of shooting, see page 3.)

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 10.— (Canadian Press.)— Selling pressure was resumed at the opening of to-day's stock market. A few leaders, particularly high priced oils, showed slight recoveries from yesterdays' recessions. On its reduced dividend Utah Copper made a further decline of one point and Atlantic Gulf lost 1 1-2. Bethlehem Crucible and Vanadium and U. S. Steels were fractionally lower with American Smelting. Rails and Equipments made nominal gains and losses. Prices steadied within the first half hour on buying of Mexican and Pan-American Petroleums and Baldwin Locomotive, together with a brisk rally in Utah Copper. Exchange on London forfeited part of yesterday's recovery.

Momentum was given to the early rally by 6 per cent. opening rate for call money. Oils, including General Asphalt, California Petroleum, Associated Oil, and Pacific Oil improved their position, and motor and tire issues also strengthened. American and Baldwin Locomotives, American Car and Pullman were among the stronger equipments. Shippins., leathers, and tobaccos made moderate gains, offsetting the features embracing Atlantic Gulf, New York Air Brake, Montana Power, Famous Players, common and preferred, and several gas shares, which declined 1 to 4 points.

In the bond market, Liberty 3 1-2's showed exceptional strength.

Sterling exchange was steady — Demand 3.72 3-4; Canadian dollar, 10 9-16 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 10 (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices scored material advance to-day as a result of free buying on the part of houses with seaboard connections. Further unwelcome rains in the southwest counted in favour of the bulls, besides there were adverse crop advices from the Ohio Valley.

Opening quotations, which ranged from 1 1-2 to 3 1-2 higher were followed by moderate additional upturns.

Corn lacked support. After opening at a 1-2 decline to a shade advance, the market underwent a general sag. Oats were weak, in sympathy with corn, starting a shade to 3-8 off, and then declining still more.

Strength in the hog market gave a life to provisions.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, June 10 (Canadian Press).—Following the activity of the past few days, the market on the Toronto Exchange this morning again lapsed into quietness, and the trading was light, with unimportant price changes.

Spanish River recovered slightly after the recent serious depression, selling at 64, a gain of 3-4. Brazilian was the most active stock, losing 1-2 during the session, with the noon quotation standing at 23 3-4. A similar loss was sustained by Abitibi at 34. Canada Steamship Preferred declined one point to 50

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, June 10. — Canadian Press.—Market closed for the morning with more important issues down. Brazilian closed at 28 1-4; Riordon at 16 1-4, and Steamships at 21.

LARGE CATTLE SHIPMENTS TO BRITAIN.

OTTAWA, June 10.— (Canadian Press.)—Large shipments of Canadian cattle are being made to Great Britain. More than 1,256 head have been shipped from Montreal so far this week. Quotations on the London market for the best Canadian cattle on June 7 were 13 1-2 cents a pound, with later advices showing a slight advance.

PORT HOPE'S M.O.H. GETS $600 SALARY.

Alderman Crowe states that the salary of the Medical Officer of Health in Port Hope is only $600 a year, and not $1000, as reported in the Examiner. This figure was set by the County Judge.

BANKERS TROUNCE KEENE BY 7 TO 5

Louis Yeotes' Bankers nosed Keene out in the last innings of a hard fought ball game yesterday afternoon at Father Phelan's picnic, when Jimmie Hall doubled with the score tied and two Bankers on bases.

Keene got away to a good start, and in the fifth innings were leading by one run, when Hall singled for the Bankers and brought in the tally that evened the score. Scates, who was on the mound for the Bankers, was in great form, striking out 13. Barraclough did the hurling for Keene. Both pitchers received poor support.

Batteries — Bankers, Scates and Wilgar; Keene, Barraclough and O'Dette.

COAL MINERS DECIDE TO TAKE BALLOT IN COAL FIELDS, THUS TAKING LONG STEP FOR PEACE

UNIONISTS SAY RIOT ATTEMPT TO PREVENT KING OPENING HOUSE

BELFAST, June 10.—(Canadian Press.)—A police sergeant and two constables were shot on the street here this afternoon an dare reported to have been gravely wounded. The shooting is attributed in Unionist quarters here to an attempt on the part of the Sinn Fein to create such conditions as would prevent King George from coming to attennd the opening in State of the Ulster Parliament on June 22.

PROPOSALS OF MINE OWNERS TO BE SUBMITTED TO ALL BRITISH MINERS, THEIR DELEGATES DECIDE.

72ND DAY OF STRIKE

LONDON, June 10. —(Canadian Press.)— A conference of the coal miners' delegates, held here to-day, decided that a ballot should be taken in all coal fields on the proposal of the mine owners for settlement of the coal strike. This is generally considered a long step towards peace in the coal industry. The strike of the miners has been in progress since April 1.

The decision of the Miners' Executive to hold a ballot of the miners in the coal fields, it is confidently expected, will be followed by the men voting in favour of dropping the wage pool scheme which has been the principal bone of contention.

The precise nature of the new terms submitted to the men by the owners are expected to include a 20 per cent .advance in wages on the 1914 scale, including additions and percentages since made ,and also guarantees to the lower ranks of surface workers. This will mean a 40% rise over 1914.

SHIP FOUNDERS, MANY ARE LOST

DETAILS ARE LACKING

ATHENS June 10. — (Canadian Press.)—Many lives are believed to have been lost in the sinking of the Greek steamship Bouboulina, which has struck a mine and foundered in the Aegaen Sea. The Greek battleship Lemnos has arrived at Piraeus from Smyrna with two passengers who were picked up. Details of the disaster are lacking. The mail packet carried 265 persons all told.

BLACK'S ODDS AND ENDS SALE

An unusual opportunity to secure clean and good Summer Wearing Apparel and other goods, at a big bargain, is open to shoppers just now at the busy store of Mr. P. Black, corner of George and King streets. Customers who have been attending this sale of odds and ends declare that it seems almost impossible that first class goods could be sold for the prices quoted. Ladies who are wanting dresses, suits, skirts, millinery, and the many other articles of wearing apparel, should visit Mr. Black's store, and see for themselves what saving is in store for them. It is a real clean-up of all odd lots of lines left over from regular goods—not damaged or soiled, but clean samples of regular lines. There are many chances to save half on seasonable goods, including men's, women's and children's wear.

THIEVES PAID VISIT FIRST NIGHT HOME

PORT HOPE, June 10.—Senator Mulholland's home has been locked up the last five months during his absence in Ottawa ,and not even his garden was disturbed. But on his first night home thieves gained entrance to the garage and removed a clock from the Senator's car. Nothing else was disturbed and the thieves locked up the garage and left.

WORK TO SPEED UP ON BIGGEST LINER.

The Bismarck, to Be Renamed Majestic, Taking Shape for White Star Line.

HAMBURG.—A thousand men are working on the giant liner Bismarck, which is to be renamed the Majestic when she hoists the White Star flag. By the end of this month the number will be increased to 2,500.

Three huge funnels are alongside her on the dock of the Blohm & Voss shipyard and will be hoisted into position about the first of the week. The liner is 956 feet over all, ten feet longer than the Vaterland; 100 feet beam, of 73 feet depth and 56,000 gross tonnage. Her four propellers will be driven by four turbines on each side, one reverse, three ahead. Her horsepower, it is expected, will develop a speed of 26 knots on her trial trip.

The Majestic will carry a crew of 850. She is an oil burner with seventy engineers. The great ship will be ready to enter the New York-Southampton service in the spring of 1922.

Her boilers were being tested last Saturday when I went over the ship. She is constructed on the same lines as the Vaterland with improvements, including an elevator to the bottom of the engine room. The decoration scheme is more elaborate, the builders say. There are eight decks for passengers, carrying 4,000 of all classes.

There will be a restaurant on the upper deck, a gymnasium, winter garden, swimming pool, ball-room and a stage for theatricals on a deck with an arched roof. The Florentine iron work is very artistic. The rooms on the deck are larger than those on any previous ship, including the Olympic. There is a large passage in the centre of the ship, with bed-rooms opening off each side as in a hotel. The ship has side companion ways instead of the large one in the centre, customary on ships, giving more space between the E and F decks, 12 feet 3 inches. Others average 10 feet between decks in every direction.

Gives Idea of Great Space.

The Majestic gives the observer an idea of great space. The Captain's bridge is 100 feet above the water and the masthead 250 feet high.

Blohm & Voss say that she will be better than the Vaterland, as they have learned by experience. The Harland and White Star representatives are satisfied with what is being done. P. A. S. Franklin, President of the International Mercantile Marine, with other Directors, visited the ship recently and was greatly impressed with her. After the liner leaves her Hamburg dock she will be towed to Southampton

BOY SCOUTS' BRAVERY SAVED FIVE IN FLOOD

Two of Them Manned a Boat and Rescued Persons Trapped in Blazing Building Amid Waters.

By FRED. E. CUNNINGHAM, Editor of the Pueblo Chieftain

PUEBLO, Col., June 10.—Of all the quick-thinking heroes of the flood which swept the Arkansas Valley in the greatest disaster in its history two Boy Scouts deserve most credit, perhaps.

After the city was thrown into terror Friday night by the flood several fires started in the business section. Boy Scouts brought boats from Lake Clara in Mineral Palace Park.

At 10 o'clock fire blazed out in the King Investment Company's plant. George King, the owner, his young son, Francis, and three employees were trapped in the burning building, which was surrounded by onrushing water.

Charles Hopkins and George White, Boy Scouts, faced death as they manned a rowboat and pulled through the dangerous current three blocks to the blazing structure.

On their first trip they brought back King and his son. They battled desperately and it seemed as if they were going to be swept away into the river. Several explosions in the building, which was filled with lime, came as they were pulling away. Hearing shouts of the men left in the building, they returned after taking King and his son to safety. On the second trip the Scouts became exhausted before reaching safety and the men took the oars. Shortly after they landed terrific explosions were heard, and the walls of the building crumbled and fell into the water.

Near the spot where the Scouts manned the boats three colored women and a colored man were drowned when their boat tipped over.

Dr. E. R. Cary tried to save and lost his life. Dr. Cary came from his place of business near Fourth and Main streets with his son, Robert, in a rowboat. After leaving the boy in safety he returned to a store near his office to rescue a woman, but his boat was swept against a building by the current and overturned and he was drowned.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

HERE'S GRANDMOTHER'S RECIPE TO DARKEN AND BEAUTIFY FADED HAIR.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its apearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get the famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and the lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compond now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or a soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

TENDERS WANTED

Tenders will be received by the Rev. J. J. O'Brien, 227 Wescott street, Peterborough, on Saturday, the 25th inst., for the erection of a Rectory building for the Church of the Sacred Heart, Peterborough. TORONTO GIVES DEGREES TO 10 PROMINENT MEN

PREMIERS OF CANADA, QUEBEC, ONTARIO AND SOUTH AFRICA ARE AMONG RECIPIENTS OF HONORARY DEGREES.

TASCHEREAU SPEAKS

TORONTO, June 10.—(Canadian Press.)—At a special convocation last night by Toronto University, many prominent men were awarded honorary degrees.

The degrees were conferred by Chancellor Sir William Meredith, and their recipients were: Doctors of Law, Right Hon. Arhtur Meighen, K.C., B.A. (in absenia); Right Hon. Jan Christian Smutz, P.C. (in absenia); Hon. Erenest Charles Drury, B.S.A.; Hon. Louis Alexandre Taschereau; Hon. Newton Wesley Rowell, K.C.; Francis Walter Merchant, Ma., Ph.D.; Doctors of Letters, Wilfrid Hirt Mustard, M.A., Ph.D., Duncan Campbell Scott, F.R.S.C.; Doctor of Science, John Morrice Roger Fairbairn, Chief Engineer of the C. P.R., Robert Alexander Ross, E.E.

An address of more than ordinary interest was given by Premier Taschereau of Quebec, in which he dealt with an issue frequently raised, namely, the advisability of doing away with appeals from Canadian courts to the Privy Council. Hon. Mr. Taschereau said that while he considered too many appeals were carried to the Privy Council, and that some restriction was necessary, he was of the opinion that the Privy Council was necessary as affording protection to minorities. He hoped that this tie between Canada and the Mother Country would not be broken and it certainly would not be broken through any action on the part of Quebec.

WHAT ORGANIC UNION OF THREE OF PROTESTANT CHURCHES WILL EFFECT

(Written for The Examiner by REV. ROBERT POGUE, Pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.)

I have been asked to state in a few words what is meant by the Organic Union of the three churches which have been negotiating to that end, namely, the Methodist, Congregational and Presbyterian. It means that when the Union is consummated these churches cease to function as individual organizations, or denominations, and that they shall become one denomination, or organization, and shall function under a new name and a new form of church government, namely, the form drawn up by the Union Committee, which was composed of representatives of all three churches and which was adopted as "The Basis of Union." The "Basis" is neither Presbyterian, Methodist or Congregational. It embodies the best in each of the three churches and what is acceptable to the three. The "Basis" contains the doctrinal statement as well as matters of church government and the rules under which the new church shall do its work.

A concrete illustration may help to make the matter clear. When Organic Union is consummated and the new church under a new name has taken the place of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational Churches, there will be no St. Paul's Presbyterian Church and there will be no George Street Methodist Church, and yet each of these churches will continue its work as at present. The only difference will be that each will be a congregation in the one united church of Canada, each will belong to the same denomination. The form of government, of course, will then become the same, and yet, it will be different to either form now in operation in the individual congregations.

CAMPBELLFORD IN NEED OF SWIMMING PLACE FOR PUBLIC

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE BUT NO BATHING PLACE AVAILABLE.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 9.—"Let's go swimming"!

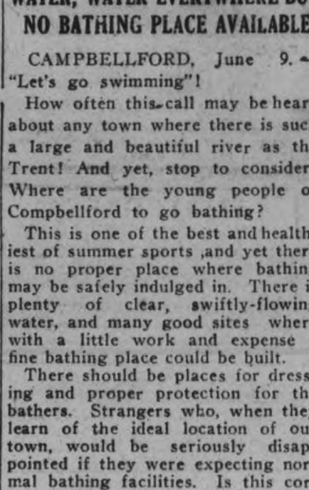
How often this call may be heard about any town where there is such a large and beautiful river as the Trent! And yet, stop to consider: Where are the young people of Compbellford to go bathing?

This is one of the best and healthiest of summer sports ,and yet there is no proper place where bathing may be safely indulged in. There is plenty of clear, swiftly-flowing water, and many good sites where with a little work and expense a fine bathing place could be built.

There should be places for dressing and proper protection for the bathers. Strangers who, when they learn of the ideal location of our town, would be seriously disappointed if they were expecting normal bathing facilities. Is this correct and is it right and safe to have youngsters going in bathing in improper places. Our city fathers are now considering playgrounds, etc., could they not also consider this?

BRITISH COLUMBIA VETS NON-POLITICAL

CHILLIWACK, B. C., June 10.—The Provincial Command, G. W. V. A., in session here, went on record Saturday as being in favor of the amalgamation of all veteran bodies on an absolutely non-political basis. Delegates from other veteran organizations will be invited to attend the Dominion convention to discuss the question. T. M. Harnett, Vancouver, was re-elected President and Ian McKenzie, M. L. A., Vancouver, was elected Provincial Representative on the Dominion Executive.



C. E. WRAGG,

Chairman of Campbellford's Light and Power Commission which at its meeting for June on Thursday night, recommended to the town council, the extension of the new street lighting system. The total cost with the additional section which it is proposed to be lighted would be approximately $4,000 and would serve the entire community.

THREE PREMIERS WHO WERE RECIPIENTS OF DEGREES.

Left to Right—General Jan Christian Smuts, Premier of the Union of South Africa; Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Premier of Canada; Hon. E. C. Drury, Premier of Ontario, upon whom honorary degrees were conferred by the University of Toronto yesterday

YOUNG FARMERS' BRIGHT MEETING

U.F.Y.P.O. HAD PRIVILEGE OF HEARING MR. E. N. MACDONALD

The Peterborough branch of the United Farm Young People of Ontario held their regular monthly meeting in the U.F.O. rooms, Simcoe street, on Wednesday evening, June 8th.

The response to the roll call took the form of impromptu speeches on given topics. Some of these speeches proved quite humprous and were enjoyed by all.

In his usual interesting manner Mr. E. N. Macdonald, M.P.P of East Peterborough, addressed the meeting outlining recent legislation. His sympathetic dealing with the problems of the farmer and his interesting stories of earlier days on the farm well merited the hearty applause they received. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Macdonald, who was also assured that he would always find a warm welcome at Peterborough U.F.Y.P.O. This was followed by a most enthusiastic rendering of the old song, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

The social part of the programme included a lively old-fashioned geography match, with Messrs. S. Cann and Forster as leaders, Mrs. W. R. Shields as referee and Mr. E. N. Macdonald, M.P.P., as timekeeper.

Arrangements were completed for a strawberry festival to be held at Mr. Hancock's, second line of Smith, on Tuesday evening, June 21st. Splendid talent has been engaged for a humorous and entertaining programme and Dr. Grant, Minister of Education, has also been asked to give an address. Early next week tickets will be for sale at the Farmers' Cooperative Store or from club members.

The next meeting of the Peterborough U.F.Y.P.O. will be held on the first Tuesday in July, (July 5th), at 8.15 p.m. The programme for the July meeting will include a solo, a paper on "Morals," an address on "Economics" by Mr. Harry McKee, their teacher in that study, a game to be arranged by Mr. Roy Sanderson, and a debate, "Resolved, that country life is more beneficial to the individual than city life," with Mr. V. Milburn and Miss A. Fowler on the affirmative and Mr. Pat Lynch and Mr. Stanley Grant on the negative.

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY HAS ENDED LABORS

CLOSED YESTERDAY AFTER AUTHORIZING LOCAL CONFERENCES ON PROPOSALS OF LAMBETH CONFERENCE.

RACETRACK GAMBLING

TORONTO, June 10.—(Canadian Press.)— After a momentous convention the forty-seventh Presbyterian General Assembly concluded its labors yesterday. The moderator, in his closing speech, predicted that the Toronto General Assembly would, in after years, be regarded as an historic one.

One of the most important reports passed upon during the day was that of the committee on the Lambeth Conference appeal on church union. The Assembly authorized the holding of local conferences with the Anglican and other churches on the question of the reunion of Christendom and more articularly on the proposals of the Lambeth conference.

The Assembly adopted a strongly worded resolution condemning race track gambling and declaring that the Federal government was responsible for the continuance of this by refusing to make it an offence against the Criminal Code.

FIND COMMUNITY STILL.

Booze Factory on Wheels Served Whole Neighborhood.

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—A community still, set upon wheels and which ran up and down the alley in which it was operated, delivering its illegal product wherever mash awaited it, was discovered in full operation here, prohibition enforcements agents reported to-day. Barrels of mash were found in different houses along the alley, they added.

The man who happened to be using the still at the time the detectives visited the alley, was arrested and the still was confiscated.

SAYS MARRIED WORKERS ARE LESS DEPENDABLE

Dr. Quinby Tells Industrial Physicians They Are Absent Oftener Than the Unmarried.

BOSTON, June 10.—Married men employed in industrial establishments are less dependable than single men, Dr. R. S. Quinby of Newton told the American Association of Industrial Physicians and Surgeons yesterday. He supported his views by statistics.

A study of employment records at one plant showed, he said, that unmarried employes were absent from work much less than those with families. The causes for the absence of married persons ranged from sickness to helping with the family wash, other speakers said.

MARTIN GOVERNMENT RETURNED TO POWER; COMMANDS FROM 40 TO 45 SEATS OUT OF THE 63

AT MIDNIGHT LIBERALS HAD SECURED 40 SEATS TO THEIR OPPONENTS' 10, LEAVING ONLY 10 SEATS IN DOUBT.

3 CONTESTS DELAYED

REGINA, June 10. — Canadian Press. — The Martin Government was returned to power yesterday in Saskatchewan, and its supporters claimed at midnight that the administration would command from 40 to 45 votes out of the 63 in the new Legislature.

All the members of the cabinet (with the exception of Hon. George Langley, who was defeated in Redberry) were in the safe column at that time.

At midnight the Regina Leader sent home its street crowd with the announcement that there had been returnedd 40 government supporters and ten opposition candidates, leaving ten constituencies in the uncertain list.

Premier Martin's election in Regina, a two member constituency, with a vote of 7,301 out of 10,376 votes cast, was a personal triumph.

Elections for three of the 63 seats have been postponed.

WORMS ON TRACKS IMPEDE TRAFFIC

ST. JOHN, June 10.—(Canadian Press).—Train men report million of caterpillars or army worms between Fredericton Junction and Harvey on the Canadian Pacific Railway lines and that train travel has been greatly impeded. An official said that for miles the forest had been stripped of foliage and the tracks are covered with these worms which grease the rails so badly that freight trains are having a hard time getting over this section and passenger trains have to double or cut and be conveyed in two sections. All of the C.P.R. trains have been equipped with special steam jets which are placed in front of the wheels and two hundred pounds pressure of steam is used to help clear the worms off the rails. The condition arising from this invasion is said to be the worst ever experienced by the C.P.R. in this district.

GIRL IS SHOT, FATHER HELD

KALADAR GIRL IN PRECARIOUS CONDITION — ALLEGED RIFLE WAS IN HANDS OF FATHER.

KINGSTON, June 10.—(Canadian Press.)—Cecilia Tryon, 17 year old daughter of Kenneth Tryon, Kaladar ,was brought to the General Hospital last night, shot through the right breast and in a precarious condition. The occurrence took place yesterday morning, and after receiving medical treatment from Dr. Kindall, of Flinton, the girl was brought here on a C.P.R. train, accompanied by two Kaladar residents and was immediately operated upon. The rifle which caused the wound was in the hands of her father, who was placed under arrest by Constable Sedorand and removed to Northbrooke for a preliminary hearing. The girl has been living with a first cousin in Kaladar, but there was no evidence, according to the villagers, of any disagreement between the father and daughter. Mr. Tryon has been a resident of Kaladar for over a quarter of a century except for a short residence in Napanee.

TO-NIGHT'S MEETING.

The meeting of the Liberal Conservatives of West Peterborough called for to-night by the "committee of one hundred," is naturally causing considerable speculation, and the result of the gathering will be awaited with much interest. The officers of the West Peterborough Liberal Conservative Association announce that they are not responsible in any way for the calling of to-night's meeting, a fact that scarcely required advertising. It is assumed that among the developments to-night will be a resolution calling for a return of the old party lines and for the dissolution of the present government. There is certain to be plenty of oratory, and a few resolutions, but the net result of the whole affair is likely to be a further widening of the gap between the two wings of the Liberal-Conservative party in this constituency.

THE PARKING PROBLEM.

In a letter to the Examiner last evening "Motorist" referred to the dangerous practice of parking cars near the corner of Charlotte and George streets, and citizens who have observed the conditions there will thoroughly agree with our correspondent. It is the busiest corner from a traffic standpoint, in the city, and with the roadway necessarily contracted by the street railway there is no questioning the fact that motor cars should not be allowed to stop alongside the curb, even momentarily, let alone to park there as a meance to traffic. In fact the whole question of parking cars in the business section should be taken up by the Council, and a more business-like policy adopted. On one occasion yesterday there was an unbroken chain of cars parked along the west side of George street taking up the whole block from Hunter street to Brock street, and that condition of affairs is by no means a novelty. The time has come to deal with the parking problem, for it is obvious that the use of the main streets as a storage place for cars cannot be allowed to continue, without being a detriment to business and a factor in increasing the danger of accidents.

THE PPEMIER'S DILEMMA.

The position taken by the Farmers' Sun in regard to the Hydro Electric Commission and its plans, must be a thorn in the side of Premier Drury, who realizes that a policy antagonistic to the public ownership and operation of the province's water powers will destroy the confidence of a very large proportion of the people in the U.F.O. government. It is evident that a powerful section of the United Farmers' organization is behind the Sun in its attacks upon Sir Adam Beck and the Hydro Electric scheme, so that the Premier is between two fires. So far he has handled the situation skilfully and has kept the government ship from disaster by refusing to countenace the proposal that city power users be taxed to provide cheaper power for the rural sections and at the same time bringing down legislation to lessen the expense of rural transmission lines. It is true he did not succeed in pleasing the Sun, but the majority of the United Farmers are apparently satisfied, while the course adopted did not result in the corns of the urban power users being trampled upon and they are not complaining. The germs of trouble are still prevalent, but the Premier is so far master of the situation.

THAT TROUBLESOME CONFERENCE.

There have been from time to time, conferences of representatives of the Mother Country and the overseas Dominions, generally with no particular purpose, but nevertheless useful in bringing the statesmen of the Empire together. Such a conference is to be held in London this summer, and very properly Canada is to be represented by her Prime Minister. The only thing remarkable about this conference is the difficulty that some of the parties concerned are having in understanding its object, and even in giving it a name. When first talked of, the proposed gathering was described as an Imperial Conference, for the consideration of necessary constitutional changes in the Imperial relations. Announcements of this character caused alarm in some quarters, and the authorities in Britain hastened to say that a real Imperial Conference of that kind had at one time been contemplated, but that it could not be held before 1922. In the meantime the proposed meeting of the present year was described as a conference of Prime Ministers." Just what these Prime Ministers were to talk of was not very plain; but pains are taken to make it clear that no constitutional change was to be considered. Then Mr. Winston Churchill, fresh to his new duties as Secretary of State for the Colonies, spoke of the meeting as one of an "Imperial Cabinet." This in turn alarmed some suspicious people and explanations were asked in the British Parliament.

The latest phase of the matter is the answer of the British Prime Minister, Mr. Lloyd-George, to an inquiring member. Asked to state just what was the character of the conference and how it should be described, Mr. Lloyd-George replied that he proposed to consult the other Premiers as to how the conference should be designated.

The assembling of the Premiers of the Empire to talk of things generally is all right. It should serve a good purpose, or at all events do no harm. All the difficulty that has arisen springs from the disposition in some quarters to magnify its importance. The truth is that, with constitutional changes excluded, there is really very little for the conference of this year to do.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is evident that Admral Sims is not a politician—he speaks his mind with no fear of the effect upon a portion of the electorate.

Mr. Patterson thinks too many ice cream cones is the cause of malnutrition among school children. But the small boy will tell him there is no such thing as "too many ice cream cones."

It is a short street that parks no automobiles.

Sometimes one wonders how Mack Sennet's bathing girls can stand the competition the 1921 street costumes provide.

It is a fact worthy of note that while many articles are going down in price, skirts still remain high.

Al Plunkett of the Dumbells, who told us about the "Wild Wild Women" and also "Where the Flies Go," is to appear at the Winter Garden in New York. Thousands of Canadians will wish him luck.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

It used to be said that long hair was a sign of genius. Now it may be a sign of bankruptcy.

The owl, like a number of people, has attained a reputation for wisdom by keeping its mouth shut.

A Missouri court has ruled that you may cuss a telephone operator once, but you mustn't do it again. Most people will now wonder whether the Missouri climate has an enervating and softening effect on operators.

"Oh, Henry," exclaimed the wife as she threw her arms rapturously around his neck, "I do love you so. And don't forget to leave me a couple of fives when you go downtown this morning, dear."

Among the damlis you hear every day is that told by the men who had to get up early and who raves about the sunrise which he got up to see.

"My time," said the magnate, "is worth $100 a minute."

"Well, then," replied the friend casually, "let's go out this afternoon and play about $10,000 worth of golf."

We have no objections to women serving on juries. But we would like to know what chance a beautiful young thing would have with a jury composed of homely elders.

"What sort of time is your friend having on his motor trip?"

"I've only received two letters from him, one from a police station and the other from a hospital."
